Council Seeks Approval to Build Arena

CAMPBELLFORD — One of the main items of business at the recent meeting of the Campbellford Town Council was the passing of a resolution to ask the municipal board for permission to issue $50,000 worth of debentures to build a new community arena. The arena, when built, is to be that recommended in a report by Councillor A. Moody who said that a meeting with the Seymour Agricultural Society and the Seymour council concerning the area had not been fruitful. He said that an arena with artificial ice and a club house would be a good addition to the village of Norwood would cost $60,000 to $90,000.

He said that Norwood Arena cost less than $50,000, without artificial ice, he stated that the building would have a heated enclosure. The $60,000 for which council is asking permission to raise debentures would be more than required for the structure, but would allow for the purchase of locally before the ice-making plant could be purchased.

A resolution was presented to the effect that council receive applications for the $50,000 worth of debentures to build a Community Centre Arena and that Mr. Moody's motion be adopted proceeded with at the meeting. Reeve G. Free opposed the last part of the resolution stating that the ratepayers should have a say in it. J. M. Rutherford said that the formation of arena had cost the ratepayers $10,000 in the last few years and the town received little in the way of revenue.

The vote on the motion was polled; Reeve Free and Councillor Rutherford opposed, Councillor Hopping was absent.

BROCHURE PRESENTED

Mr. Hugh McCarten presented the new industrial brochure prepared by the Chamber of Commerce which received favorable comment from council and a resolution of commendation was passed. Councillor R. Hopping, correspondence in a letter from the Ontario Development of Economics and development planning stated that imported which could be manufactured here, stated that the demand for the product in the idea is excellent and should be investigated.

Mrs. Percy Gooding commended council on the good condition the town was in with respect to weed control.

Councillor Brown reported on the Campbellford Fair Board and requested a controlling fund be established with the new mercury vapour light near Bell's service station on Bridge St. This the latter was approved by council.

Tenders were asked for a one ton truck.

A civic holiday was declared by the Campbellford fair day, Sept. 26th.

The by-law providing for the vote under the Local Option Act was given a third reading, the by-law passed and council adjourned.

U.S. Health Officials Adopting Wait-and-See Attitude on Sabin Vaccine

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A number of local and state health officials have adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude toward use of the Sabin type III oral polio vaccine, even though some states have decided to discontinue it.

The states deciding to halt use of type III, however, will continue to use oral vaccine types I and II. Health officials "on the fence" regarding type III will mark time pending a more complete analysis of it.

The U.S. Public Health Service announced Saturday that 11 confirmed cases of type III polio provided sufficient evidence to indicate that at least some of these cases have been caused by type III vaccines.

The health service's special advisory committee, noting that all of the 11 confirmed cases occurred in adults, recommended limited use of type III vaccine in mass immunization programs to pre-school and school age children. The health service recommended continued use of types I and II for everyone.

SOME HOLD UP

Among places where officials have decided to hold up some or all type oral vaccination programs are Texas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, southwestern Pennsylvania, Oregon, Kentucky, Seattle and Spokane, Wash.; Montana, and Hugo and McAlester, Okla.

Some communities or states, however, have already started or completed type III oral vaccination programs.

In Washington, U.S. Welfare Secretary Anthony J. Celebrezze said Sunday the odds are 1,000,000 to one against a child who has taken type III Sabin oral polio vaccine contracting the disease. With those odds, Celebrezze said, he would be willing to take the vaccine himself.

The committee had not planned to meet until Sept. 27, but moved up its session after reports from Japan of the recommended against further mass use of the mouth-administered sabin oral vaccine.

The Canadian federal health department said as follows, with total passing their test: bobbler 1, minnow 45, fish 31, shark 44, junior tadpole 11.

At the end of the presentation Canadian Red Cross Life Saving classes and assistants presented Mr. Storey with a gift certificate.

Mr. William MacSeney, recreation director, thanked the local Red Cross branch for the prize presented to the swimmers and the staff whose services were supplied at the end of the ceremonies. He presented the sandwiches contributed, the Lions Club for the use of its beach and pre-park, Mr. R. Nuttall and E. Hubble for the use of their boats and the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 71, for the use of its building on wet and cold days.

Argentina's Tacuara Society Meets Behind Closed Doors

By RONALD ARIAS

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—The funny-faced 15-year-old flushed with pride as the roomful of teen-agers fixed their gaze on him. Standing erect, he raised his arm in a stiff Nazi salute and shouted "Hail Tacuara."

"Hail Tacuara," echoed others as their 34-year-old leader nodded approval.

Behind bolted doors in a small flat in the heart of Buenos Aires, this reporter was permitted to watch a ceremony which could have taken place in Hitler's Germany.

Thirty youngsters, most of them high school age, had gathered to initiate new members into Argentina's Tacuara organization, whose keystone is anti-semitism. Its leaders variously boast from 2,500 to 7,000 members throughout the country and claim it is growing rapidly.

As each convert went through the ritual, he pledged allegiance to the "nationalist" cause. Tacuara's soft-spoken chief Alberto Ezcurra, told him his mission would be to "fight against capitalism and Zionism with one hand, and with the other hand against communism."

The ceremony over, Ezcurra gave the new members a terse lecture on training courses. There would be trips to the Pampas where they would be taught physical fitness and competition.

drilled in the nationalist-fascist ideology of Tacuara.

"We have to be strong, because our movement in Argentina is revolutionary and logically we cannot work completely out in the open yet," he said.

Tacuara, named after the cowboy word "lance," has existed since 1955. In recent months, its members have ranged through cities distributing anti-semitic propaganda. Argentine Jewish organizations charge a great further of late, smearing school buildings with tar, terrorizing Jewish children and damaging synagogues.

ASKS TOLERANCE

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope John, Sunday, urged youth to avoid preconceived notions and to be tolerant in judging men and events. The Pope was receiving a group of winners in a secondary school catechism

Falls in the Home

By Matthew B. Dymond, M.D., Health Minister for Ontario

Of the many accidents that happen in the home, falls stand out above all deaths and injuries. Nearly half the 900 Ontario people who die yearly in home accidents die from falling, and falls account for more than a quarter of all disabling and temporary injuries.

Who are these frequent victims of falls? One may ask if they are particularly clumsy or lazy, or perhaps below average intelligence. The Ontario Safety League says not. Among them are intelligent wives and mothers, capable husbands, active youngsters and above all, aging men and women.

The majority of deaths from falls occurs in the 75-and-over age group, when eyesight and muscular co-ordination are not all they once were. Certain compensations must be made for the elderly, bearing in mind these handicaps. Sturdy railings on stairways and in bathtubs, lightswitches at top and bottom of all stairs and easily reached inside doorways, and well-laid carpeting on stairs and floors can all help to prevent sudden slips for the elderly.

Consideration by the rest of the family in making sure toys and other objects are not left on stairs and floors to be tripped over, sensible furniture arrangement which affords easy passage from one room to any other, bedside lamps and even handgrips are all part of making a safe home environment for a senior citizen.

But although deaths from falls are most outstanding among the elderly, no age is exempt, and permanent and temporary injury from falls affect every age. For tiny children, windows and stairways are hazardous, and should have barriers. Rules about running and climbing must be established and enforced for older Youngsters. Parents should beware makeshifts in climbing devices, and instead provide sturdy stepstools and ladders. And for the grown-ups, whole family floors should be thinly waxed and well buffed, and small rugs secured to the floor.

The vast number of deaths and injuries from falls attests to the importance of making these warnings public. Your Ontario Government and Legislature supports wholeheartedly the efforts of safety organizations throughout the province to reduce the present high toll of life and health.

Commonwealth Asked To Push For Disarmament

Green Requests Parley To Renew Strong Plea

LONDON (CP)—Canada's External Affairs Minister Green asked the Commonwealth Monday to give disarmament another push.

The Commonwealth prime ministers' conference here probably will agree to the request, Canadian sources said later.

Speaking for Canada during a broad conference review of world affairs, Green established the importance of continuing the work of the 18-nation disarmament conference at Geneva.

He urged, in effect, an updating of the disarmament declaration made at last year's Commonwealth conference. The statement is given much of the credit for its subsequent United Nations decision setting up the Geneva talks.

It was indicated later that Canada seeks no change in the principles set out in last year's declaration — complete abolition of war-making potential in all countries, carried out in stages under effective control and inspection and the establishment of a United Nations peace-keeping force.

Green was described as placing great importance in a Commonwealth initiative on disarmament, coming within a multination association just before the expected disarmament debate at the UN General Assembly.

QUEBEC POWER POLICY TO BE ANNOUNCED

To Reach Decision On State Ownership

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said today that Liberal members of the legislature are to hold a caucus here Wednesday after which he will make public the government's policy on state ownership of electricity in the province.

He made the announcement to a reporter as he walked to the legislature office.

The premier described a report published in Montreal that a general election might be held on the issue as "more or less fanciful."

Key government sources said no election is planned. But one hinted a referendum is possible.

MONTREAL (CP)—A caucus of Liberal members of the Quebec legislature has been called for Wednesday morning in Quebec City but no provincial source gives any reason for the meeting.

The meeting was called as a Montreal newspaper, Le Devoir, reported that Premier Jean Lesage will announce Wednesday the nationalization of all privately - owned electricity companies, including the Shawinigan Water and Power Company."

The newspaper adds the government also will announce that it will consult public opinion . . . in the form of a provincial general election," which it says will take place in early November.

Bonn Arsenault, lands and forests minister, Monday night confirmed the caucus would take place and added arrangements for it had been made "three weeks ago." But a Montreal Liberal member—he wouldn't allow use of his name —said he had been told Monday of the Wednesday caucus by the party whip, Philippe Lalonde, member for Bellechasse, St. Henri.

Le Devoir says that the caucus will be followed by a press conference by Premier Lesage.

REPENT TO COMMUNIST

All available cabinet members were tight-lipped about the published report—but they have been since a secret cabinet meeting Sept. 4-5 at a resort in Laurentides Provincial Park north of Quebec City. Speculation has been that the secret meeting was called to decide on public ownership of the province's privately - owned power companies.

By building an election, Le Devoir says, "Mr. Lesage on one hand would have the public approve the decision to take over the power companies and on the other hand would obtain a new mandate for four years."

A November election would find "the Creditiste (Social Credit) absorbed in their new functions in Ottawa; Union Nationale party militants caught by surprise and forced to fight the election campaign just about exclusively on the public ownership issue."

Le Devoir adds that the Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party has not yet been constituted.

Meanwhile, the Union Nationale party, official legislature opposition, was reported Monday to have informed its supporters to get ready for a general election Monday, Dec. 3.

Present party legislature standing is Liberals 54, Union Nationale 46, independent one—for a total of 95 seats.

Nine Astronauts Named to U.S. Space Program

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Nine new astronauts joined the U.S. space program Monday specifically to put a man on the moon in this decade.

A National Aeronauts and Space Administration spokesman said they will be trained only for the moon shot, Project Apollo, not the Project Gemini, the stepping stone to the Apollo trip.

The new astronauts met reporters Monday at a press conference. They agreed they volunteered for the space adventures because of the challenge.

None of the newcomers will be used on the current one-man Project Mercury orbits, although they will be observers.

The space administration also announced that astronaut Donald K. Slayton has been named co-ordinator of astronaut activities. He was withdrawn July 11 from the Project Mercury program because of a minor heart condition.

Russia Refuses To Renew Pact With 3 Powers

BERLIN (AP) — Russia has refused to renew four - power relations in Berlin and has issued a new call for the Western allies to withdraw immediately their "NATO military base" in the divided city.

The Russian statement came Monday as thousands of allied troops in combat gear launched a major test of their ability to spring to West Berlin's defence.

The alert, involving most of the West's 11,500-man garrison, ended early today and military officials were reported satisfied with the results.

The Russian government statement, released in Moscow, rejected the Western position that Berlin still is under four-power control. It ignored allied calls for establishing relations broken last month when the Soviet Berlin commandant was replaced by his post Communist over to an East German.

Instead, a new bilateral four-power administration has not been in existence since 1948 when the United States, Britain, France, and Britain set up a separate military command. It added:

"West Berlin has now been turned into one of the centres of the aggressive north Atlantic bloc and into a base against the U.S.S.R., the G.D.R. (East Germany) and other peaceful states."

'In Certain Circumstances' Divorce Justified Church Decides at General Meet

LONDON, Ont (CP) — The United Church of Canada has broken from the historic church position on marriage by deciding that divorce is justified "in certain circumstances."

The policy - setting general council of Canada's largest Protestant church concluded Monday that wider grounds for divorce are required as part of a general need to strengthen the institution of marriage in Canada.

The decision constituted the first official statement by the United Church that divorce can be justified on any ground, although ministers of the church have been able to remarry divorced persons. In addition, council proposed that grounds other than adultery be recognized.

Council called on the federal government to establish a royal commission to completely wilful desertion, gross mental of physical cruelty and insanity as grounds for divorce in addition to adultery—now virtually the only ground in Canadian divorce practice.

The royal commission also should consider also the abolition of the system of granting Quebec and Newfoundland divorces only by private act of Parliament, the council said.

The assembly accorded general approval to a 60,000-word report on marriage and divorce drafted by a special church commission of ministers, doctors, lawyers and social workers.

The report concludes that marriage must be strengthened through adequate preparation, wise counsel and greater efforts by church and society to save failing unions.

Morgenthau Chosen

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—New York state Democrats, long packed by internal feuds, chose Robert M. Morgenthau at a chaotic state convention early today as their nominee for governor in the November election.

Morgenthau, former U.S. attorney in New York City and grandson and son of a famous Democrat, was nominated on the second ballot to oppose Republican Governor Nelson Rockefeller. He faces an uphill fight.

Public Probe Into Union Violence Has Counterpart

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal inquiry into waterfront labor violence and shipping disruptions appears to be under way in two fronts in public and behind the scenes.

When public hearings opened today before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris here, one of his special counsel was in Montreal making an on-the-spot investigation of the books and records of the Seafarers International Union of Canada.

Junior counsel Marc Lalonde was making the internal study of SIU documents, apparently with a chartered accountant as an adviser.

He is expected to make a similar study of the books of the Canadian Maritime Union, a rival seamen's union trying to oust the SIU from Canadian lakeships.

A hint was also dropped at Monday's hearing that the commission is trying to reach officials of the International Longshoremen's Association, a union involved in the investigation but so far not present at any hearings.

There was a brief, unexplained reference to a commission letter sent a week ago to an ILA officer in Halifax but so far unanswered.

Asked about the letter outside the hearing, Charles Dubin, senior counsel for the commission of inquiry, declined to elaborate.

The commission has wide powers, not only to subpoena witnesses but to demand pro-

Dept. Says Russian Planes Not Added to Cuban Force

WASHINGTON (CP)—A state department official said Monday Senator Kenneth Keating is mistaken in his statement that Russian planes which flew over Canada were added to the Cuban Air Force.

The department's information, the official said, is that the planes in question discharged cargo and personnel in Cuba and returned to Russia.

He added that the department has made no complaint to the Canadian government about the incidents.

The official was asked for comment on the statement by Keating, New York Republican, that the Canadian government had "surprised" Washington and guides "for the flight of light bombers or transport planes to be added to the Cuban Air Force."

Demanding that the United States call for an immediate meeting of NATO ministers to halt NATO trade with Cuba, Keating told a special meeting of two Senate committees:

"It is intolerable for the Canadian government to permit the flight of Soviet planes over Canada in order to supply addi-

Little Enthusiasm Shown For Diefenbaker's Idea Of World Trade Parley

Expect Britain to Get Green Light To Resume Market Negotiations

LONDON (CP) — Commonwealth prime ministers met today for the difficult task of drafting a communique covering their week of strained discussions on Britain's bid to join the Common Market.

It appeared likely that a major last-minute effort would be made around the Marlborough House conference table to smooth over their differences and strike a positive, constructive note.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, marking his 67th birthday, was reported to be sounding out Commonwealth reaction to his surprise proposal for a free-world conference aimed at reducing international trade barriers.

So far, reaction has been mainly cool with little enthusiasm for the idea evident in the statements of other prime ministers who have commented on it. The Canadian delegation has indicted it doesn't expect to win outright approval for the Diefenbaker proposal in the final conference communique.

The general view is that the communique will give Britain its hoped-for green light as resume Brussels negotiations with the six-nation European Economic Community, while still making clear the Commonwealth disapproval of the trade terms worked out so far.

GIVES GUIDE

Prime Minister Menzies of Australia gave the strongest guide to the communique when he said his government's position on the Common Market hasn't changed, but that the conference should produce a positive statement of principles "and not end in a sterile exercise in disagreement."

Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan, evidently breathing easier after last week's assault of Commonwealth criticism, has given signs of determination to pursue his government's policy of joining the Common Market. But he agrees with the other prime ministers that the terms would be "dear."

He summed up the debate in a favorable speech.

He told of the passing of Britain's traditional power balancing role in world affairs. It was a role, he said, that had gone on unchanged for 300 years as each new force—Spain and Russian giants.

He noted the changes of new techniques, discoveries and power relations and Britain must change to meet them or risk the loss of her influence.

Macmillan also stressed the importance for the world of events in Europe where old feuds were being abandoned for new friendships. Britain he said, could help in the forward advance toward the new frontiers.

Mentioning that everybody has a right to know what Britain is for Britain and Britain alone, Macmillan said: "We are independent, although we have not formally declared our independence."

LACKS APPROVAL

It appeared that Diefenbaker had not yet won general Commonwealth approval for his hope that the conference would be held in conjunction with meetings conference before Britain makes the final decision on joining Europe.

In his speech Diefenbaker said Canada is prepared to at-

Supreme Court Turns Down Gambler Feeley

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada today rejected Toronto gambler Vincent Feeley's bid to upset the Roach royal commission inquiry into Ontario crime.

The decision was announced by Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin after 90 minutes of argument by Walter Williston, counsel for Feeley.

Mr. Williston had sought leave to appeal to the court on a motion that Mr. Justice W. D. Roach lost jurisdiction to conduct the crime inquiry when he held a private examination of a witness.

The seven-member court, sitting in an unprecedented special session, did not call Roland Wilson, lawyer for the crime commission, to reply to the arguments.

ASKS COLLEAGUES

Instead, Chief Justice Kerwin conferred briefly with his colleagues on the bench and announced the decision.

"It will be unnecessary to call Mr. Wilson," he said.

He added that the court was unanimous in agreeing that this was not a case where leave to appeal should be granted.

Two Charged After Robbery

HAMILTON (CP) — A man and a 15-year-old boy, were charged with armed robbery Monday night after a gunman held up a city parking lot attendant and made off with $111.

Shortly after attendant Harry Massey reported the robbery police arrested Joseph Robert Campbell of St. Catharines and Ronald Lee Street of Hamilton from the scene of the holdup.

tend another meeting but will not commit itself to attend another conference.

The draft communique is expected to be issued by the end of Monday.

QUIET BIRTHDAY

Diefenbaker's birthday celebration will be quiet—a party by Canadian High Commissioner George Drew, and attended by Canadian officials.

Comments on the Candian prime minister's proposal for a world trade conference also have been hedged with reservations, both from the conference and in the London press.

Macmillan was generally noncommittal. Comments made on comment on it, Prime Minister Macmillan said he had learned that the Common Market six already have proposed two conferences of the same type and the same ground suggested by Diefenbaker.

Premier Nehru of India, welcoming the idea in principle, indicated he places more importance in the idea for a world trade conference to be discussed at this fall's General Assembly session of the United Nations.

Castro May Be Building Naval Base Near Guantanamo Bay

GUANTANAMO NAVAL BASE, Cuba (AP)—Sources in contact with the Cuban underground and refugees here have received may indicate a move by the Castro government to build a naval base on Cuba's north coast.

The sources said that for the last several weeks the Cuban government has been removing civilians from a point near a town called Banes—an area said to feature a protected bay.

The Banes area is about 30 miles east of Guantanamo Bay. The town of Banes is the northwest end of Bahia Be de Nipe (Nipe Bay).

Cuba doesn't have much of a navy. But President Kennedy announced recently that the Russians have been sending unisalle-armed torpedo boats to Cuba.

NPD IN ONTARIO GETTING READY FOR ELECTION

Calls for New Deal for Consumer

TORONTO (CP)—The executive of the New Democratic Party in Ontario today came out in favor of sweeping government measures to introduce what it called a new deal for the consumer.

It advocated a provincial medical insurance plan, a government bureau to encourage co-operatives, a complete system of portable pensions, purchase of essential housing land to restrain speculation, and establishment of an Ontario arts council.

The measures are called for in the draft of a new policy for the party to be presented at the annual convention of some 1,000 NDP supporters in Toronto Oct. 5 to 8.

In a statement to the press, the NDP says the draft will be the basis of the party's campaign in the next provincial election expected next year. Two other drafts are expected to be released before the conference starts.

ALREADY ENDORSED

The 10,000-word draft, prepared by a committee named by the provincial council, has already been endorsed by the party's provincial council.

A preamble to the draft says the party's main aim is to increase production and stimulate economic growth with the sole purpose of meeting the needs of the consumer.

"Many people in our wealthiest communities live in misery because wealth and the power to make decisions are concentrated in the hands of a few," it says.

"In these days of huge corporations, both public and private, the individual and his family are often helpless. Too often their needs are lost sight of and their rights brushed aside in the complexities of government and industrial bureaucracy."

The party says its draft policy would rectify these distorted values.

GO IT ALONE

In advocating a comprehensive medical insurance plan, it says this should be the responsibility of the federal government, but a province with the resources of Ontario can go it alone.

A NDP government would introduce the following scheme by stages:

1. Everybody would be covered against an extensive range of services would be provided;
2. Medical decisions would be made by the medical profession and doctors would be allowed to practise completely outside the plan.

The plan would be financed in part by premiums and premiums and partly through general revenue measures.

North Hastings Woodsman Rewarded by Bank Assoc.

Bob McGeachie, 46-year-old North Hastings woodsman and municipal auditor, has recently been awarded $500 by the Canadian Banking Association for his help in tracking down the five gunmen who a year ago robbed a Havelock bank of $232,000.

The Toronto Telegram in a by-line story Saturday told how Mr. McGeachie spotted trucks of the men whom they had walked along railway ties after abandoning their getaway car.

He discovered the gunmen were rubbers and walked the railroad ties in the dark thinking they wouldn't leave any tracks.

But the dust had swatted the grassed ties and stuck to their rubber soles.

"It was just like writing your name", he, McGeachie said.

"The rubbers were Japanese made and I had never seen their trends before".

Four of the men were caught three days later and following the annexation by the town of any municipal property claim that available land within the town borders should be used for residential, commercial and industrial building first.)

Mr. Wilson, on behalf of the country club's directors, asked that the $1,900 assessment be retained as it was under the terms of the Assessment Act a fixed assessment.

No immediate action on the issue was taken by council as the present assessment is in force until next year.

COUNCILLOR OBJECTS

Queries pertaining to the golf course assessment also almost did not get off the ground when Councillor Lloyd Wilson raised objections to the presentation from the ratepayers' association.

"I don't believe this delegation (Coun. Wilson and ratepayers secretary Douglas Hyde) represents the Ratepayers' Association," Councillor Wilson said. "If any individual has personal thoughts he should be at the altars of the town should-be run, he should send a letter to the town clerk and not be allowed to letter."

"I suppose you're referring to reports published in Trenton papers to the effect that the ratepayers didn't have a quorum at their last meeting", said Mayor James MacDonald.

"Perhaps the feeling is that this group is being used as a sounding board or air out opinions of people who don't show themselves. It's up to council to decide whether or not to answer the questions Mr. Vaughan has raised", he said.

"We've got to call a halt somewhere", said Councillor James Duncan. "We've elected to make decisions. If every decision we make is to be an issue with, we'll never make any progress".

"I don't think there'd be any harm in hearing the questions", said Councillor W. V. Graham.

"The third Monday in the month was set aside for delegations years ago", said Councillor Ross Burtt. "We've received delegations on the first Monday time has come around. These people have gone about things in the right way".

"My point is that since the representative of the ratepayer's association are present", declared Councillor Worrall.

"What does it matter?" asked Councillor Corbett. "The press will print what it likes anyhow".

"We represent every ward in Trenton", said Mr. Vaughan. "We hold executive meetings at which citizens' complaints are discussed by the ward representatives. We don't like inflies that point".

POLICE COMMENT

Mr. Vaughan reiterated the statement made at last week's ratepayers' meeting to the effect that the Trenton police department was doing an efficient job if it was run on $70,000, when a government grant of $40,000 for "police protection" was considered.

Mayor MacDonald said that the police grant for police protection was a fallacy, and did not exist. He said that such a grant had not been

Ratepayers Ask Increase In Golf Course Assessment Or Use of Land for Houses

TRENTON—Divergent views forthcoming from the province about Trenton's 18-acre golf course were aired at last night's meeting of Trenton council.

Trenton Country Club president, Alec Wilson, claimed that the course attracted distinguished visitors to the town and that important men from all over the world had played a game of golf here.

Mr. Wilson, a member of the Trenton Ratepayers' Association answered this argument with the declaration that "most people come to Trenton to fish."

Ratepayers' secretary, Alfred Vaughan asked that the $1,900 assessment on the property, in force for the past 12 years, be upped, or the land made into a subdivision for building as he says that they are solidly against the annexation by the town of any municipally property claiming that available land within the town borders should be used for residential, commercial and industrial building first.)

Mr. Wilson, on behalf of the country club's directors, asked that the $1,900 assessment be retained as it was under the terms of the Assessment Act a fixed assessment.

No immediate action on the issue was taken by council as the present assessment is in force until next year.

COUNCILLOR OBJECTS

Queries pertaining to the golf course assessment also almost did not get off the ground when Councillor Lloyd Wilson raised objections to the presentation from the ratepayers' association.

"I don't believe this delegation (Coun. Wilson and ratepayers secretary Douglas Hyde) represents the Ratepayers' Association," Councillor Wilson said. "If any individual has personal thoughts he should be at the altars of the town should-be run, he should send a letter to the town clerk and not be allowed to letter."

"I suppose you're referring to reports published in Trenton papers to the effect that the ratepayers didn't have a quorum at their last meeting", said Mayor James MacDonald.

"Perhaps the feeling is that this group is being used as a sounding board or air out opinions of people who don't show themselves. It's up to council to decide whether or not to answer the questions Mr. Vaughan has raised", he said.

"We've got to call a halt somewhere", said Councillor James Duncan. "We've elected to make decisions. If every decision we make is to be an issue with, we'll never make any progress".

"I don't think there'd be any harm in hearing the questions", said Councillor W. V. Graham.

"The third Monday in the month was set aside for delegations years ago", said Councillor Ross Burtt. "We've received delegations on the first Monday time has come around. These people have gone about things in the right way".

"My point is that since the representative of the ratepayer's association are present", declared Councillor Worrall.

"What does it matter?" asked Councillor Corbett. "The press will print what it likes anyhow".

"We represent every ward in Trenton", said Mr. Vaughan. "We hold executive meetings at which citizens' complaints are discussed by the ward representatives. We don't like inflies that point".

the meeting proceeded.

POLICE COMMENT

Mr. Vaughan reiterated the statement made at last week's ratepayers' meeting to the effect that the Trenton police department was doing an efficient job if it was run on $70,000, when a government grant of $40,000 for "police protection" was considered.

Mayor MacDonald said that the police grant for police protection was a fallacy, and did not exist. He said that such a grant had not been sensitives; will hear arguments for and against the annexation bid by Sidney and Murray and Township. The place is the Trenton council chambers.

Home Is Robbed

TRENTON — Ontario Provincial Police here are investigating a break-in at the residence of Mrs. A. G. Morrison, 372 North Byron Street, Trenton.

The OMB hearing Wednesday, Oct. 24, OMB representatives will hear arguments for and against the town debenturing for $36,000 to proceed with sewer reconstruction.

Approval of the last issue, signed Sidney and Murray for road reconstruction had been held up for six weeks by the OMB. The board originally presented a petition to council, asking that the debenture be for $35,000. He said that an interesting sidelight on the issue was the fact that the board will be permitted to raise $117,000 for curbing and street reconstruction through, with no objections being raised by town citizens.

E. S. Pace who combines the role of mayor for Trenton heads board will ask that of hearing inspector, plumbing inspector and weed inspector, will be asked to approve building additions on Bastiste, Cedar and Ontario Streets today, before he leaves for vacation.

Councillor Burtt said that town properties in this area were by way of being run down property owners. He said that the town mower cut weeds on the property and that the weeds were then just left there.

He said next year to have our own backyard cleaned up before we asked anyone else to do so. He said Mayor MacDonald could.

"We'll look into it," promised the engineer, in reviewing property, according to the Weed Act, if weeds are discovered on property the owner is served by a inspector can notify the owners to clean them up and if they don't do so, on a specified time, we can go on the property and clean up and charge the owners back in taxes."

REPORTS ON RADIO

A letter from Trenton's Fire Chief Cecil Burtt, sent a long way to clearing up the question of the effectiveness of a three-way radio system recently installed in the fire hall, the chief's car and the fire truck. The chief said that the radio signals came through loud and clear at all times, that vehicles were within the town's borders, but that when he left the radius of five miles the truck or his car were trying to send messages from townships surrounding the town.

Channel 33, a private channel used by the Trenton department for relaying radio messages.

A report of last week's traffic committee meeting was read by councillor W. Ralph Thain.

The committee urged council to pursue negotiations with the Minister of Highways regarding the advisability of having the CNR subway on Highway 33 and the CPR subway on Highway 2 widened. A request for the provision of a new bridge across the Trent River.

Also recommended was that the Ontario Department of Highways to trim a hedge at the corner of 4th. and Dundas, Highway 2 and remove dead trees on department road allowance between McColl St. and 4th. Ave; that present regulations limiting parking on the north side of Bastiste St. be retained and enforced; that the advance warning signal at the intersection of Dundas St. W. and Division St. be changed to allow westbound traffic 10 seconds advance green light instead of five seconds traffic, and that turning lines be painted on the road.

"But the pedestrian won't be able to get across the street," objected the mayor, referring to the last item.

He was assured that the new system would in no way interfere with the pedestrian's progress.

OBJECT TO PLAN

Councillors Duncan McDonald said that they had objections to the traffic committee's recommendation that the layout for the new square parking, compiled by the Rockwell Parking Meter Company, be accepted. This layout would be used if and when the fire hall is torn down and relocated.

"How come the traffic committee got this layout when the special committee appointed to look into this hasn't seen it yet?" asked councillor Todd.

"We don't necessarily feel that parking meters in this area would be a good thing," said Councillor McDonald.

Councillor Worrall, who heads up the special committee mentioned, explained that he had wanted to get the traffic committee's reaction to the parking layout before presenting it to his committee. Council adjourned shortly after 1a.m.p.

Registration linejups stretched for blocks at Queen's University yesterday, and moved slowly. Joan Shoemaker, an arts sophomore from Bayside, inspects her calendar during the wait.

So many signs: they're enough to confuse even a sophomore. Nell Milroy, of 271 Victoria Avenue, Belleville, ponders the instructions posted on the door of Grant Hall, where some sorts students registered yesterday at Queen's University, Kingston.

After registration, and before classes, Queen's University students found time yesterday for some really important activities, like meeting old friends. Wayne Alexander, of 130 Wragg Street, Trenton, a third year engineering student, relaxes in front of Ontario Hall on the campus with Jill MacGregor, of Montreal, a third year arts student.

East Ontario Drama League Will Hold Conference Here

The Eastern Ontario Drama League fall conference, usually held in Kingston at Queen's University, this year will be staged in Belleville. Delegates will register Saturday morning, Sept. 22, at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St. Two workshops will be held, one for actors on Saturday and Sunday and one for directors on Saturday only. The actors' workshop, on voice and movement, will be conducted by Miss Olivia Hasler, while Mr. George Luscombe will be in charge of the workshop for directors. A dinner will be held at Tabernacle United Church at 6 p.m. Saturday and Saturday evening at Education Hall at the Belleville General Hospital Mr. Arnold Edinborough with speak on "Confessions of a Critic."

ARNOLD EDINBOROUGH

Who will speak on "Confessions of a Critic" at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, on Saturday evening, September 22, as part of the program of the Eastern Ontario Drama League fall conference, to be held here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Edinborough's bearded face and ready wit have become a part of the Canadian scene in the short fifteen years since he came to lecture in English at Queen's University. Well known as editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard and until very recently as editor and then publisher of Saturday Night, he has often broadcast on CBC radio and is a popular panelist on "CJBC Wine the Shows." His experience in Little Theatre is considerable; back at Cambridge University he was president of the Marlowe Society, at Queen's University he was president of the Faculty Players, and this present speaking engagement should be a kind of homecoming, for he was chairman of the EODL itself in 1956.

Miss Hasler, an energetic teacher of speech and drama in Canada and Ethiopia, is known locally for a remarkable series of classes she gave for Theatre Guild members a few months ago. It is intriguing to read of her work as adviser to the Imperial Ethiopian Government of Haile Selassie at Addis Ababa, where she helped organize an Art Centre, and a Drama Centre, supervised instruction in the government schools in art, music, speech and drama, and herself lectured and taught at various levels in the school system. At present she is chiefly concerned with speech and drama education in Etobicoke, Ontario, though last summer on the summer staff, she lectured in these subjects at the Banff School of Fine Arts. She has conducted a course in speech and drama for blind adults for the CNIB in Toronto.

George Luscombe, recently awarded a Canada Council grant, will conduct a workshop which he calls "An Approach to Theatre," intended for those who direct Little Theatre or would like to. He has been a professional actor himself and his Toronto company, which he directed in the phenomenal success "Hey, Rube" and "Buriap Bags" has now developed a professional subsidiary called Theatre 35. This has taken shows all over Ontario summer with a truck, a trailer, a tent, and three plays. His approach is manner of staging commands attention and, whether as director or from point of view or not, local directors of amateur theatre will surely find his guidance in coming productions.

The Belleville Theatre Guild, hosts to the conference this year, has been producing plays for the last dozen years, and plans several productions for this season. Moreover, it was at Belleville that the Advanced Directors' Course was held this summer, under the sponsorship of the Community Programs Branch of the Department of Education. Director for Eastern Ontario is Don Maddocks.

Purchasing Agents Will Meet Wednesday

Mr. Arthur S. Nursey, 1st vice-president of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents, will speak to the Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario at their first meeting of the 1962-63 season.

This meeting will be held in Brockville, at the Hotel Maitland, on Wednesday, Sept. 19 with the general meeting beginning at 6.30 p.m.

In the afternoon, commencing at 3.00 p.m., there will be a plant tour of the R.C.A. Victor Company at Prescott, Ont.

Mr. Nursey is the General Purchasing Agent of the Marwell Construction Company Limited, Vancouver, B.C.

Also present at this meeting will be Mr. Bill Small, executive secretary-treasurer of C.A.P.A. and will address the meeting on the future plans of C.A.P.A. in Canada

Lynch Did Not Get Oil Contract

The Lynch Coal Company of Belleville is happy to supply its customers with coal but it is not interested in selling furnace oil or stove oil at prices quoted to the city for the person's supply.

At last week's council meeting Lynch Coal Company was given the contract for the supply of the year's coal, while Murphy Oil Company of Oshawa received the contract for furnace oil and stove oil.

However, in the account of the meeting published in The Ontario Intelligencer it was indicated that Lynch's received both the coal and fuel oil requirements.

"Our customers keep calling wanting to know why they can't get furnace oil at the price quoted the city," Mr. Lynch said today. "Actually we received only the coal contract. We couldn't hope to supply oil at the price quoted the city by the successful tenderer."

Bancroft Votes Heavily Against Liquor Outlets

Bancroft residents voted a decisive "no" in yesterday's plebiscite on four liquor questions.

Unofficial returns last night indicated that approximately 80 per cent of the voters voted no on the four questions.

Official returns were not expected to be available before noon today.

Yesterday's vote was on men's and women's beverage rooms, and the sale of liquor in lounges and in dining lounges.

NPD IN ONTARIO

surance plans are also suggested.

The draft says an NDP government would establish a government - operated insurance plan which would automatically provide compensation for accident victims and their dependents. Basic coverage would be sold with auto insurance.

Charging that the provincial government's present plans for portable pensions are inadequate, the draft calls for a "public universal contributory pension plan."

It also calls for a sickness and accidents benefits plan to provide an income for a family not covered under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The insurance scheme would include farmers and other self-employed persons.

A series of measures are planned to protect the consumer against the "onslaughts on his pocket book."

An NDP government would set up a consumers' bureau "to help consumers get value for their money" and protect them against price-fixing.

All goods would have to be accurately described on labels and quantities in packages clearly marked.

A provincial mediation board would be established to assist consumers to understand the terms of instalment buying and investigate alleged hardships arising from agreements already made.

In calling for a department of co-operatives, the draft says:

"The New Democratic Party, as it has proved in Saskatchewan, is the party of co-operation, because this is the obvious way for society to take a large step towards democratic control of the economy."

It says the department would encourage establishment of co-operatives and work with a co-operative loan fund set up to support accredited enterprises.

The draft also pledges the NDP to encourage credit unions and eventually set up central co-operative banking institution in Ontario.

In reference to private enterprise, it says:

"Private enterprise will remain the major suppliers as long as they conform to the general standards adopted for the protection of consumers and do not attempt to create monopolies or administer prices. . ."

Under the heading of town and country planning, the draft says it is necessary to restrain speculation in land by advance purchase of essential land for housing development.

The NDP press release says the draft will no doubt be amended at the convention but it represents the party's basic plan of action.

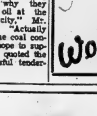
Rotarians were given an inside picture of the occupation of a portrait-commercial photographer by fellow member William Riley in a classification address yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Quinte.

The speaker warned his audience at the beginning that he had been unable to find the photograph which was worth 10,000 words to suit this particular occasion and that words would have to do instead.



His field of work consisted of portraiture, with children being the most widely photographed subjects, industrial ed the needs of a number of photography in which he serv- local industries plus manufacturers from Napanee to Colborne, and commercial or wedding photography.

This latter field might be considered as routine technically, he advised, but could never be considered dull. The speaker related a number of different incidents, with names and times omitted, to very humorously illustrate his point.

In portraiture he observed that older people appreciate portraits most and that men form the most reluctant subjects, usually having their likeness captured on film only if they are required to do so for business reasons or if their wives have trickled them into it.

For the students of photography Mr. Riley revealed that lighting was the most important aspect of photographic technique. He explained that there were many instances where it could take as long as two hours to set up the proper lighting for the exposure of a split second.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by Bob Lanning and Court Miller, respectively. The meeting was conducted by president Dr. Harry Burns.

Power Squadron Guests Enjoy Shore Picnic

Massassega was a popular place on Sunday afternoon when members of the Bay of Quinte Power Squadron anchored their boats in Sand Cove and ferried ashore to enjoy a mass family picnic.

The ideal mid-September weather, peaceful surroundings and good food all contributed to making this final event of the summer season a great success.

National and district officers together with officers and members of neighboring squadrons were in attendance.

TEN DIE IN FLOOD

MADRAS, India (AP) — Ten persons were killed and 25,000 made homeless by floods in Hyderabad, following four days of continuous rain. Police said the 10 victims were in a house which collapsed after being undermined by flood waters. More than 200,000 acres of paddy fields were reported submerged by the rains.

Hastings May Provide Tenth Of Queen's 3,500 Students

Registration began at Queen's University, Kingston, this week, and authorities there are expecting an increase of about seven per cent over last year's 3,500 students. And normally, between five and ten per cent of their enrolment is drawn from Hastings county. The last accurate figures available for the 1960-61 school year show 350 Hastings students out of a total enrolment of 3,000.

In addition, Belleville was well represented in the summer school courses. From July 1 to August 10 this year, over 2,000 people in all took courses at Queen's, including "credit courses," (normal university subjects), fine arts, ballet, a special English course for French course for French speaking Canadians, and a Department of Education course for high school teachers. The total student body in the summer represented ten provinces of Canada and quite a few other countries as well. Twenty-six Belleville people attended during the past summer.

MORE FACILITIES CROWDED

Of the applications at Queen's this year indicate most faculties will be crowded, but medicine and some engineering faculties are not completely filled. Medical schools are rarely filled. Queen's authorities say, partly because of the length of the course. Most engineering faculties across the continent took a sharp dip in registration four years ago.

Queen's authorities explained the shortage of engineering students as a result of space research, and the current emphasis on pure science. For two years nuclical science took a sharp dip in prestige, when the first satellite went up, and university registrations reflected it. For the past two years, however engineering registrations have been climbing back to their former level.

The Siberia of America?

Hon. Paul Martin, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Essex East, told the Newspaper Advertising Managers' Association convention at Montreal on Thursday that, if Canada accepted economic union with the United States as an answer to the European Common Market "we would be absorbed."

The previous day the president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Carl Pollock of Kitchener, had told a meeting of purchasing agents at London, Ont., that without tariffs Canada would be "the Siberia of North America."

Mr. Pollock is almost certainly right—but there are two interpretations which can be placed on his remarks, the one he intended and the direct contrary.

Mr. Pollock used the term "the Siberia of North America" in a derogatory sense—and this sense would apply if Canada lowered tariffs without economic integration with the U. S. But if there were economic union between the two countries, followed by the absorption of Canada by the U.S. which Mr. Martin forecasts—and we think accurately—then Canada might become the Siberia of North America in quite another sense. There is adequate evidence to support the contention Siberia will one day become one of the most prosperous regions of the USSR, as its rich natural resources are developed. Union with the U.S. would almost certainly bring an even more rapid and thorough development of the Canadian north.

Mr. Martin might agree with this view. But he shows no liking for the prospect. "Though he does not mention the increased prosperity we might be able to buy by relinquishing our independence, it is evident he would not regard the acquisition as worth the price. With this view we are in complete agreement, but it is an attitude which it is almost impossible to defend with rational arguments. It is a matter of what Canadians do not already share this view, they will never be persuaded to embrace it. They have always held to it in the past, but the make-up of a nation is constantly changing. Immigration poses a problem—shall we be able to instill in newcomers a feeling of Canadian nationalism? But such as big a question is the attitude of the native-born raised in the midst of a continual barrage of propaganda, flowing across the border by various media of mass communication. Old-fashioned patriotism is out of style, and we do not mourn that fact. What is needed is not a conviction that we are better than the U.S., because we are Canadian, but that we are different, and that we like this difference. There is also another task, success in which can alone make the separate existence of Canada meaningful—that is the preservation of the differences which do exist, insofar as these differences are not inimical to our cultural and intellectual development.

Public Housing

Canada is ten years ahead of the United States in public housing, according to the head of the U.S. public housing program, Mrs. Marie McGuire.

One of the reasons may be Mrs. Marie McGuire.

Addressing the tenth annual Ontario Housing Conference, she said she could not understand why many people condemn government-aided public housing while accepting government aid to erect roads, post offices and highways.

Publicly-owned schools, parks, post offices and highways are a sign of a prosperous community and a healthy economy. Publicly-owned housing, in our economic system, is proof that the community is not as prosperous, nor the economy as healthy, as it ought to be.

"We do well to provide public housing, "to pay someone else's rent" in Mrs. McGuire's words, where a need for such assistance exists. But we do better if we seek to discover, and then eliminate, the reason why such government assistance is needed. Some public housing projects are unsightly—the unfortunate and the victims of others' shiftlessness will always be with us. But if we accept public housing as a yardstick of a lively social conscience we stand in danger of ignoring basic injustices, which permit low wage standards, high building costs, excessive real estate taxes or exorbitant land rentals to deprive some workers of the privilege of paying their own way unbeholden to governments and to their fellow citizens.

Those men are most apt to be obsequious and conciliating abroad, who are under the discipline of shrews at home.—Washington Irving.

I would define, in brief, the Poetry of words as the Rhythmical Creation of Beauty. Its sole arbiter is Taste.—Edgar Allan Poe.

OTTAWA—Charles D. Warner observed in the mid-1900's: "True it is that politics makes strange bedfellows."

He could see the forseeable Canada's 26th parliament, but this body of men and women will probably go a long way toward proving his statement.

The feeling is growing steadily stronger that the first session, which begins September 27, will not break up quickly, that the government will not be defeated in the early days by the far larger combined Opposition.

Indeed, the government appears to be preparing a legislative program which will win support from at least one segment of the Opposition at any given time, so Commons votes will not go against it.

To make doubly sure of survival, however, it will have to woo one of the Opposition parties. This is where the 'strange bedfellows" bit will come in.

Looking over the choice of possible allies — or, at least, friends — it is difficult to see than any group but the Liberals will provide the support the government will require.

NO DEFEAT

It is not likely to be anything obvious, but it will have to be there. Already Liberal Leader Lester Pearson has said he would give favourable consideration to any government moves which would benefit the country.

This would be no real departure from past practice.

There have been times when the Opposition — Liberal or Conservative — would fight the government strenuously in debate, but wind up voting in favor of legislation obviously intended to aid the country.

The CCF was never as reasonable as this and the New Democratic Party is unlikely to be different from the CCF.

Their attitude has been that opposition in debate must be followed by opposition in the final vote.

In the last Parliament, the eight CCF votes were often registered against a combined Conservative and Liberal vote on government legislation.

Although the NDP is not anxious to have a new election this fall, it also feels no desire to change its stand of overall opposition in the older parties.

It is 19 votes (18 to begin with and remaining 18 if party leader Tommy Douglas wins the Burnaby-Coquitlam on October 23) can never be counted on to support the Conservatives. or

SOCREDS NO HELP

The larger 30-vote block of Social Creditors also will be adamant in their approach, but they are more ready for a new election.

And Real Caouette, controlling 26 of the Socred votes, does not like the government nor many of its ideas for the country.

Thus, it will be the Liberals who will be expected to keep the government in power through a full session — unless Prime Minister Diefenbaker decides differently.

If the PM feels the time is ripe for an election at any given point, it will be in his power to force a vote which he knows he can win handily.

His supporters are sure he wants a full session, however, to take further steps toward balancing the budget and improving the economy.

They now seriously expect that the party's fortunes will be the Fall of 1963 (or perhaps this late Summer) and are preparing for a hard-working session of Parliament.

Liberal spokesmen are being singularly quiet on the subject, probably waiting to hear what sort of plans their prime minister has and to decide how far they can go with them.

They will know — and so will the country — in less than two weeks.

Fuchs Enters Sanatorium

Dienst aus Deutschland

Klaus Fuchs, "Englishman of German nationality" decided in commit nuclear espionage and high treason in Los Alamos, U.S.A., to "Scientists talk, trust and wait, and are again and again disappointed, because they don't know the true nature of politics, but they but I shall act." This vow has gained new bitter significance for Dr. Klaus Fuchs. Surrounded by distrust, rejected by secret police agents, isolated from every contact with people and the world or research, the 50-year-old intellectual, who in spite of his Marxist amateur studies, has always been an expert of physics but a layman of politics, had to leave action to the party. Recently he was admitted to the sanatorium of Bad Liebenstein with a "nervous break-down."

This was not only due to the secret agents shadowing him but the endless distrust and denunciation. Klaus Fuchs had already stated in 1950 after his arrest: "Perhaps I can prevent the next war." With this deed, seems to have been his motive.

Moscow — after rearranging and reducing the staff of the Soviet-Scientific Institute for Nuclear Physics — asked Klaus Fuchs, the deputy director, to cooperate in the development of nuclear weapons in the Soviet Union. Fuchs refused to do this. He found himself cornered. For the second time "Roter Fuchs" (Red Fox) was trapped.

Once he thought treason was a way out, once he found out it was breakdown.

The fate and career of Klaus Fuchs may be a warning to all those intellectuals who walk around with their heads in the clouds, who cannot distinguish Communist propaganda from Soviet dictatorship. Bespecialized Klaus Fuchs was the prototype of the innocent, conscientious Objector." From the Father, a pastor, he inherited early influences of radical socialism determined by a religious monastery which was also the son. Later the whole family suffered under persecution by the Nazis.

Klaus Fuchs emigrated to England, where his friend, the world-famous physicist Max Born, had taken refuge. In Britain they worked together again, Fuchs attracted the attention of Sir John Cockcroft, and of the Carnegie Foundation. From 1940 he worked for the top-secret British nuclear program. The team was moved to North America in 1934. There the gifted young researcher co-operated in the making of the first atom bomb.

Klaus Fuchs returned to England in 1946 working as the first assistant of Sir John Cockcroft. In 1950 he was exposed as a spy and sentenced to a prison term of 14 years for high treason. Nine years later he was pardoned.

The full extent of his treason will never become entirely known. He was said to have evening-long talks with Wife Peierls, Oppenheimer and others he had participated in declaive experiments in the U.S.A. His release was another sensation. He had predicted the squinkis and was said to be the "greatest" scientific material for the hydrogen bomb. Fuchs moved to Rossendorf near Dresden in the Soviet Zone.

Manfred von Ardenne — the ready famous "Hitler's Hitler" scepticically accepted him in the small circle of Russian physicists. Why had he been dismissed prematurely? Had he been turned inside out? Was the man who had betrayed Harry Gould or Julius Rosenthal Klaus Fuchs was carefully isolated from others; again this "genius in prison" had to work in isolation. Now, however, the "father-land of his ideology" that poor Soviet satellite zone of deprivation, he finally suffered a nervous breakdown, after experiencing his greatest disappointment, the shattering of all his illusions.

Strictly Personal

Assumption Of Knowledge Is Dangerous

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Perhaps the most curious and perplexing paradox of the human mind is the fact that what we make progress only in the things we do not know.

Most of mankind is ignorant of physics, higher mathematics, anthropology, genetics, modern astronomy, medicine — indeed, of every sphere in which tremendous and profound developments have taken place over the ages.

In the area of the things we know — or, more accurately, of the things we think we know — we have made absolutely no progress since the days of the Hebrew prophets. The Greek philosophers, and the Roman lawgivers. It might be added, in fact, that we have retrogressed in social behavior.

Everybody thinks he understands love and the ways of the human heart. It is impossible to tell someone he is delusive or dense on this subject. And every parent believes he knows how to rear his children. As housekeepers, we all know how to live in amity with our neighbors — if only they would let us. And, as voters, we are absolutely convinced that our political opinions are valid and cure the ailing public body.

Yet it is precisely here — in personal, family, social and international relations — that we behave most like children rather than the Medes, the Persians, the Gauls and the Goths.

What a very little we know, nobody knows: this might almost be the motto of mankind. Those areas in which we think we require no instructions — because we are sure of them — minds or our characters so easily grasp them, are the very areas of emotional conflict, or circular motion, of frustration and failure and decline.

It may be that what the theologians call "original sin" is this assumption of knowledge on our part; not any particular sin, or any bundle of sins, in the conventional sense of the word — but, rather, a spiritual atmosphere in which all sins are born and which we carry with us for a lifetime.

For notice — in those spheres in which genuine progress has been made, the pioneers and innovators and discoverers and inventors are those who think they know the answers. They know they were in the dark, they struggled with it, it's difficulty to reach the light.

But most of us think we are in the light, and those who disagree with us are in the darkness — so our intellect is not with ourselves (as it should be), but with them: so that, the more loved one grows responsive, the child more treclable, the neighbor more outwardly sin, the more we assume that we know.

The one thing in the world a disciple does not know is himself, because he always contained in it. And the one thing we do not know is our ignorance of ourselves, because it surrounds us with a false sense of security, so attack upon this ignorance, so far, all attacks have failed.

Prescribed Tranquilizer Creates Beneficial Cycle

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: There is so much controversy that I'd like your opinion on this: Will three tranquilizers a day hurt you or have been taking (name of brand) for over a year.

My doctor and oral surgeon say I have inflammation of the nerve of the tongue. I suffer badly from pain and burning. Tranquilizers make me comfortable, but I worry for fear I will become addicted to them or that they will produce other bad effects. — Mrs. L.

The particular tranquilizer you are taking has been thoroughly investigated and I know of no ill effects from its prolonged use.

Many people, however, seem to believe erroneously that "a tranquilizer is a tranquilizer," and that they can safely go on a mad and take whatever kind they can lay hands on, and in whatever amount they choose, and for whatever "reason" they happen to think they need one.

This idea can be harmful. With some users, there may be a chance of faint addiction, but this is not even to be considered in the sense of narcotics habit.

The risk is more on the order of simply lapsing into the habit — not addiction—and becoming dependent on the tranquilizers in that sense.

Your case is quite different. You are taking a regulated dosage. You are under the care of physicians who are alert for signs that the drug happens to be unsuited to you.

These days doctors have quite an assortment of tranquilizers which have quite similar effects and so they are able to select the one that fits the type of case in question.

Yours is an example of a continuing pattern. Sometimes in which the pain is not overwhelming, but does become a steady drag on your nerves and system. This is real, not something that is just "in your head." Even when you aren't consciously thinking about the discomfort, you are subconsciously aware of it.

The tranquilizer does just about what its name implies: gives you an increased sense of ease. It lessens the tension you focus on the nagging pain. There is both a respite for your natural nerve tension and a release from fatigue, because pain is decidedly tiring.

These two release from the consequences of the pain combine together and form an actual reduction in the pain. A beneficial cycle, rather than a vicious cycle, is established.

You can discard your worries about the medication you are taking.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have what appear to be corns on the bottom of my feet. How can I get rid of them? — Mrs. D.S.

Corns are the result of abnormal pressure. I'd get rid of them and stay rid of them removal of the pressure is necessary. Sometimes wider or longer shoes are the basic answer. Sometimes arch support is necessary. But in your case, a more important first question is whether these are corns, or are something else, such a plantar wart which forms on the sole. I'd see a podiatrist (foot specialist) or orthopedist, or your personal physician to find out exactly what kind of a "corn" is bothering you.

Dear Dr. Molner: My gynecologist says I am safe from becoming pregnant if I have missed three consecutive menstrual periods. (I am 49 and going through the change.) Another doctor said about a year and another said two years before you are safe. Which is right? — Mrs. M.

I have long used the rule of one year after the last menstrual period. Three months is probably long enough in most cases, but there may be exceptions. There is actually no fixed time.

Pleasant Way To Mow Lawn

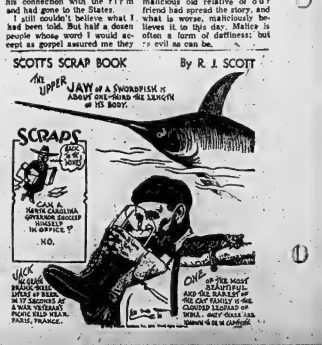
Hamilton Spectator

No matter how enervating a chore may be, there always seems to be some individual around who can make it seem worth doing. And while mowing a lawn is certainly vigor, it is nevertheless enervating, and that is why we were interested to see that a man down in Bradenton, Florida, has come up with a scheme to have grass shoes away with the boredom that goes with it.

This happy schemer places cocktail glass holders used for flares in both shoes of his pair and an iced drink in each. He says the cocktails are not necessary so that as he pushes his lawn mower around, he is never without refreshments.

This doesn't concern us, of course, since we are an apartment fancier. However, we know a friend who will be quite pleased with his interest. The trouble is, though, that his lawn is so big that we may end up being cut before it.

THE PACKSACK



By GREGORY CLARK

Misinformation can be corrected. But—matter of fact, I'm surprised. About five years ago, I heard, to my astonishment, that an old schoolmate of mine, a man I respected more than most men, had been let out of the firm he had been associated with for thirty years because he had been caught falsifying the books of the department of which he was the head. I made immediate enquiries, and learnt that he had indeed severed his connection with the firm and had gone to the States.

I still couldn't believe what I had been told. But half a dozen people whom you'd expect to be kept as gospel assured me they had it on unimpeachable authority.

Two years ago, I had a few days on a fishing trip with one of the members of the firm; and when my old friend's name came up, I asked my colleague if what I was told how much his partner enjoyed missed him, what a loss he had been, and how well he was doing in the job he had gotten in the States. A job he could not possibly have refused. When I mentioned the scandal I had heard from various quarters, my fishing companion explained that a malicious old relative of our friend had spread the story, and what is worse, maliciously believes it to this day. Malice is the very form of deftness!. but no evil as can be.

The fall monthly meeting of Saint John Ambulance, Belleville Branch, was held recently at its centre on Front St. Reports were received from the nursing, cadet and ambulance divisions, indicating considerable activity in first aid services made available during the summer to various public activities, such as processions, parades, picnics, movies, concerts, exhibitions, hockey and football matches, skiing patrols, race meetings, fires, public demonstrations, field displays, and assisting at public and army first aid classes.

The president of the branch, Major K. J. Willcocks, highly commended the manner in which the various members of the divisions had voluntarily given of their services in the various community activities totalling approximately over 1,200 hours of public duty, being ready and equipped to cope with any emergency involving sickness or accident.

Colonel Angus Duffy was present at the meeting in order to co-ordinate the Saint John Ambulance first aid training with the Civil Defence program. He stated that it was desirable to have first aid and home nursing courses carried on this fall at Picton, Trenton, Napanee, Belleville, with the possibility of those qualifying in the home nursing course qualifying for further training if arrangements could be made with the local hospitals. There would be a continuing program of training and those properly trained personnel for the Civil Defence Organization in the event of an emergency.

Colonel Duffy stated that those interested in the first aid classes starting this fall who are not sponsored by industry but would be available to the Civil Defence Organization, if required, will have their cost registration fee paid.

Mrs. J. R. Marshall was reported as no longer superintendent of the Nursing Division, having moved out of town and this position is to be filled. The very excellent features delivered periodically to the Ambulance Division by its surgeon, Dr. Ian Douglas, will now be available to the members of the Nursing Division who will be invited to attend jointly with the ambulance group at its meetings.

TRAINING NIGHTS STARTED

The Ambulance Division started its training meetings at the centre last Wednesday evening and will continue with two monthly exceptions, one of which will be general training, and the other specialized training for the Belleville team which will compete in the provincial competition.

The Cadet Division under Mrs. H. W. Reid held its meeting at the centre on Tuesday evenings, and expects to start shortly. A membership in excess of fifty is expected to register this year, and will comprise Cadets, Junior Cadets and Crusaders. Courses are planned in child care and casualty simulation. Mr. William James, secretary of the branch, reported that six instructors were now available for classes, and that as classes are announced they are quickly filled. He also stated that special classes are under consideration for civil employees, to be held in the new Federal Building.

The current United Appeal campaign started October 1st was discussed and plans made to give it all the support possible. Those soliciting the individual members of the Nursing, Cadet and Ambulance Divisions for commitments, participating in the opening dinner on Sunday, Sept. 29th, and also taking over a section of the city house to house canvass.

The work of the Saint John Ambulance, one of the participating agencies of the United Appeal, is only able to be continued in Belleville citizens' support of its appeal, and when it is realized that in almost every community actively members of Saint John are available to render humanitarian service to the citizens it will be realized how important it is that this should be supported.

GREEK TOBACCO

Greece exported 52,720 tons of tobacco in the 1961-62 fiscal year, compared with 63,800 tons five years earlier.

Dave Batchelor New President Of Chess Club

Dave Batchelor was elected president of the Belleville Chess Club at the organizational annual meeting held last evening at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. Tim Hesse was re-elected secretary-treasurer, a post he has held since the club's inception two years ago. He reported a balance in the bank of approximately $200. Dick Payne was named tournament convener, Bruce May, retiring president, continues on membership.

Main issue at last night's meeting was whether the club should retain its membership in the South Eastern Ontario Chess League, in view of a ruling by that body that all players in team matches will have to be members of the Canadian Chess Federation and the Ontario Chess Federation.

Dick Payne reported on the League's annual meeting, held in Brockville a week ago. He urged that the local club accept the League ruling. Martin Hershlink, a past president of the club, was the main dissenter. "This club has done more for chess in this part of the province than the Ontario Chess Federation ever did," he asserted, outlining successful efforts to organize leagues during his presidency and recounting that, although assistance had been sought from the Federation in this work, no aid whatever had been forthcoming.

After lengthy discussion, the meeting decided to continue in the league. This will involve each active player paying the membership fees to the Federation. Also decided was that the club's usual $1 membership fee was dropped and the club operation was put on a monthly basis, a nightly levy of 25 cents from each member attending meetings. For the present, the club is meeting Monday evenings at the Recreation Centre, though this arrangement may have to be changed later, possibly to another night, depending on whether experienced players or beginners, will be welcome.

Col. Robert Graham Visits City Before Taking His New Post in New Delhi, India

"Join the Army and see the World!"

That's the modern day version of the familiar old saw regarding the Navy.

And that is the case with the Col. Robert Graham family of this city who are leaving tomorrow for New Delhi, India, where Colonel Graham will act as Military, Naval and Air Adviser to the Canadian High Commissioner in India.

Col. Graham, 46, native-Belleville boy, and twice a member of city council, has just completed three years as Chief of Staff for the Eastern Command at Halifax and prior to that served in Washington in a liaison capacity for the Canadian Army.

"I've never regretted making the Army my lifetime career", noted Col. Graham this morning as he and his wife and two sons briefly visited his mother, Mrs. George K. Graham on the Front Road.

TO GATHER DATA

His duties in New Delhi will be military liaison and the view of gathering technical data as opposed to the trade and diplomatic missions already carried on between the two countries.

Col. Graham is the first such military appointment to India since the Canadian army of 1/4 million men.

He noted however, that it was normal for Canada to have military advisors to high commissioners in many other countries.

Col. Graham started his military career with the Argyll Light Infantry here prior to World War II and had achieved the rank of 2nd Lieutenant at the time of the outbreak of hostilities in 1939.

He promptly "went active" and was posted to Brockville for officer training before going overseas in the fall of 1941. He served overseas with the Lord Strathcona Horse armored regiment and for a time was with the British Army in North Africa.

TWICE IN COUNCIL

Col. Graham twice served in the municipal field and was a member of city council on two occasions. He first served on council prior to the war, then following the war was again elected but served only for a few weeks when he resigned to join the army. At the end of the last war he held the rank of major.

From 1954 until 1956 he commanded the Lord Strathcona Horse at Calgary with which unit he served overseas during the war.

Col. Graham and his family are leaving for Montreal tomorrow where on Friday they will board ship for England and where they will be joined by their daughter, Margaret, now enjoying a cycling tour in the United Kingdom.

The New Delhi the Graham boys, Jamie and Robert, are expected to attend the American International School. Margaret has completed her schooling.

New Delhi, in north central India, is a city of approximately 3,000,000 persons.

Y's Men's Club Resumes Meets For Fall Term

After a two months' recess, the local Y's Men's Club resumed its regular weekly supper meeting last Tuesday evening. The enthusiasm with which the membership received acquaintances and discussed club work for the year ahead suggests Belleville Y's Men will have another fine year of service work and fellowship.

President John Hayman advised the club of a District Council meeting to be held Sunday, September 16, at the Belleville Y.M.C.A., and encouraged the members to attend. He also noted that Dave Wadley had accepted the position of club treasurer, replacing Bill Hutchinson who is moving to Kingston.

Guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Bruce Finch, Chairman of the Hastings' County Tuberculosis Association. Mr. Lynch discussed the Association's current tuberculosis clinics and related several interesting statistics regarding this disease. He pointed out that 90 per cent of those who have TB do not realize that they have it, and that the only effective way to "stamp it out" is through such programs as presently being carried out locally.

Mr. Lynch referred to his personal experiences while a TB patient in a sanitarium for a year and a half, and to other points of interest to his talk.

The speaker was introduced by Ron Moorman. The club's appreciation was expressed by Jerry Hill.

This year the Regional Convention will be held in Sarnia, October 19-21. Several Belleville Y's Men have indicated intentions to attend.

Assault Court Laid Against Rodney Sharpe

Rodney Alexis Sharpe of 50 Frank Street was remanded one week in city magistrate's court today on $1,000 property bail when he appeared on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

He is charged with assaulting Norman S. Barriage of Belleville.

FINED $34

A Belleville resident, Donald S. Stapley was fined $34 in city court this morning when pleased guilty to a charge of careless driving.

Constable Leo Kent of the City Police Department told the court that on July 14 he was called to investigate an accident at 40 Bettes Street.

He said when he arrived he found the accused's car on the lawn in front of Mr. H. S. Dewey's home at 42 Bettes St.

Constable Kent said the accused was proceeding east on Emily Street and had stopped at the stop sign before proceeding into Bettes Street. He turned left onto Bettes, nearly striking the sidewalk on the east side of the street, swung across the street, struck a guy wire attached to a hydro pole, crashed through a fence and ended up on Mr. Dewey's lawn.

Mr. Dewey told the magistrate it cost him $137 to repair his fence. Damage to Mr. Stapley's car was about $25.

A 20-year-old Belleville resident, Cecil B. Lapierre of John Street, was fined $128 in city magistrate's court here this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of malicious damage, in the property of Mrs. J. F. Lapierre of 102 Byron Street.

Detective H. Reid told the court on Sunday, September 9, he received a complaint from Mrs. Laperie that some men were at her door. She said they asked her for some wine and when she said she did not have any they left the residence.

The men then broke two windows in her home and smashed the front door.

Mrs. Laperie later identified Hanna at the police station as one of the men who were at her door earlier.

Embellish and Economize on Meat

by Mary Moore

When things are normal I am a patient, mild and patriotic woman.

But when the butcher told me the roast of beef I wanted was $1.35 per pound something snapped. I will not pay $1.35 per pound for beef even if it were the favorite dish of the Queen and she were coming for the only dinner of my life.

Without command, but burning, I moved along the counter to the New Zealand lamb. Legs were 59 cents per pound, less than half the price.

So I decided to buy one and to prepare it the way the French chefs do "en croute", stuffed and with a pastry crust around. My guests were not royal but I love them, not because they love my food, but they warmed my heart cockles over this posh dish.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Fried Chicken; Cream Gravy; Fluffy Mashed Potatoes; Spinach with Lemon Butter; Lattice Plum Pie; White Cream Cheese; Tea.

Instead of paying over $6.00 for 5 pounds of meat, I paid $3.06 for 5¼ pounds, and had the gratification of serving something totally different and enjoyable.

The function of the crust is to seal in the moisture. It does too. The egg-yolk-wash gives it the rich finish characteristic of European pastries.

STUFFED LEG OF LAMB IN CRUST

Since New Zealand lamb is always frozen, ask your butcher to be sure in advance to thaw and bone a leg for you. Tell him not to roll and tie it. Mine weighed 5¼ pounds before boning. Also order in advance 1 Rump Kidney or 1 small veal kidney. The other ingredients you need are: one-quarter pound fresh mushrooms (or 1 10 oz. can pieces and stems, drained, but save the liquid for gravy, if desired), 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon each salt, rosemary and thyme or tarragon. Trim and chop kidneys in ½" pieces and soak 15 minutes in cold water. Drain. Wash and chop mushrooms. Sauté kidneys and mushrooms gently together in butter or margarine, with the salt and herbs. When heated through fill cavity with it making deeper pockets in the flesh if you seem to have too much stuffing. Now make a firm roll of it and sew opening together with strong thread and needle. (You will be tempted to tie it with strong string but resist, remember that later this is enclosed with pastry and string inside will not do.) Sear in oven at 450 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. (Pierroast shorter time if lamb leg is 4 pounds). Remove and entirely encase in thin rich pastry made of 2 cups flour, ⅔ cup shortening, ½ teaspoon salt and 4 tablespoons ice water. Open edge should be down. Return to oven and roast at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes, then raise heat to 400 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. (Pierroast shorter time if lamb leg is 4 pounds). Remove and entirely encase in thin rich pastry made of 2 cups flour, ⅔ cup shortening, ½ teaspoon salt and 4 tablespoons ice water. Open edge should be down. Return to oven and roast at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes, then raise heat to 400 deg. Fahr. for another 15 minutes. This is how I did it. Other oven temperatures might work.

I served it with mint sauce because I have mint in the garden. The French serve it with mustard aside. Now let's see how much nerve you have.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS BY PATRICIA LEWIS

DON'T BICKER IN PUBLIC

The most difficult people to have around are the husband and wife who are constantly bickering.

Sometimes they're not even aware that they are giving others "feud" for thought. Their sarcastic repartee generally is hidden behind a smile and everything is said in a spirit of "fun." But while their teeth may be in it, it's easy to see that their hearts aren't.

Very often, a husband or wife will keep quiet at home about a habit or fault that's cousinly annoying, but will bring it up in the relaxed atmosphere of a party. In poking "fun" at each other, they also bring their irritations into public view. Naturally, both are miffed to find they're not as perfect as they thought, and doubly resent having their shortcomings aired in front of other people.

Naturally, when one partner "tries" another all too painfully, some tension results, and very often it's transmitted to others in the group.

There are times when a wife will make a joking comment about the horrible suit her husband is wearing. Piqued, he may reply — with a grin, of course — that he'd buy a new one if she didn't spend all his money on silly-looking hats. The remarks rankle on both sides, and a slight family argument is in the offing, to the despair of the hostess and the embarrassment of her guests.

A party is hardly the place to air family skeletons. The first duty of guests is to enjoy themselves and to help others do the same thing. People with good manners and breeding never pick on another guest's appearance or relatives, make disparaging remarks about his politics or the books he reads, or in any way insult or belittle him in front of his friends.

If husbands and wives would just regard each other as fellow guests on their infrequent outings, their party nights would be more serene and enjoyable for all concerned.

By paying each other the same courtesy they would anyone else in the room, they wouldn't get off on highly personal conversational tangents. If a husband, however, should forget his manners and make a remark about how his wife looks in curlers, she'd exhibit more courtesy by changing the subject than by getting involved in an intra-mural and all-too-revealing squabble about it.

In short, the moral of how to get along in public with a bickering spouse is grin, but don't bare it.

Twice-Divorced Japanese Woman a Hit in Politics

TOKYO (Reuters)—A 53-year-old Japanese grandmother who had already made a success of legislation."

careers in business and television jumped into politics this summer and was a hit right from the start.

Running in the first election of her life, twice-divorced Aki Nakimigawa was elected to the Japanese Senate with a record 1,555,000 votes.

Miss Nakimigawa contradicts just about every Western belief about Japanese women—usually pictured as quite, submissive creatures living in their husband's shadows.

She is best known to millions of Japanese as the star of My Secret, a Japanese version of the U.S. television panel game What's My Line.

HEADS CHARM SCHOOL

She left the show earlier this year after seven years as a panel member, but is still carrying on as president of a charm school run by a leading Japanese cosmetics company which has 5,000 stores throughout the country.

Asked what she wants to do as a politician, Miss Nakimigawa says: "I have suffered enough as a woman and I want to make women happy through

The daughter of a Japanese business executive, Miss Nakimigawa was married, at 16, to an oculist three months after she graduated from high school.

In 1938, after divorcing her first husband, she set out alone for Italy to marry Fujiwara, a big was singing there.

She lived in Italy for four years and accompanied her husband on tours of Europe and the United States, helping him collect funds to support his opera company.

She was 26 in August and has eight grandchildren.

Would she marry again?

"I may sound heretical in Japan," she says, "but I would do so if I could find the right man."

MELROSE W. I.

The monthly meeting of the Melrose W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. M. Lazier with a good attendance. The president occupied the chair and after the opening exercises, the secretary, Mrs. Roy McLaren, read the minutes. Two letters from Mrs. Lyndhurst were read, which brought members up-to-date on Institute news.

At this stage Mrs. R. Fox, convener of health, took charge and all joined in community singing. Mrs. Fox gave a most interesting paper on the topic "A famous Doctor and what contribution she has given toward the science of health." Her choice was Dr. Frances O. Kelsey who took such a firm stand against "Thalidomide." As government medical officer she prevented the marketing of this drug in the U.S. and wears the distinguished federal civilian service medal which was presented to her at the White House by President Kennedy. The origin of this drug began in Germany in 1957 and was marketed as a tranquilizer and sleeping pill and truly was a wonder. Then quietly, ominously, came a trickle of seemingly unrelated cases of deformity in new-born babies from mothers who had taken the drug, straight or mixed with other drugs it has been sold under 32 names and was taken off the market in Germany in November, 1961, England in December, 1961, and Canada in March, 1962. Dr. Frances O. Kelsey in a woman of fortitude and determination who has proved that the virtues of patience can be occasionally slowed and examined.

Mrs. Suzanne Lazier contributed a piano solo which was well received by the group. Mrs. Sherman gave a humorous article written by Ethel Chapman entitled "Party Line." Mrs. R. Graham read a timely article on "Our Town Welcomes" which described the proper procedure to follow when visiting the sick. Miss Judy McLaren rendered a pleasing piano selection after which Mrs. George Blatherwick read a most enlightening paper on "Surgery for Children Who are less Epileptic".

Mrs. T. Howard and Mrs. V. Pascoe gave a most helpful demonstration on "Bandaging." They cleverly explained the proper method of bandaging a cut finger, how to apply a bandage on elbow or knee. The collar and cuff sling, the St. John's Ambulance and spiral bandage were deftly made and each lady benefited immensely from this demonstration.

A jumbled word contest on "Dress" by Mrs. Weicomb and won by Mrs. J. McLaren and Mrs. Fox. Prizes with a laugh provoking poem, "Today Won't Come Again," after which a delicious lunch was served by the committee in charge.

London Girl Only Woman Foreman of Demolition Gang

LONDON (AP) — Dorothy and Stain—28, blonde and shapely— explained why she's Britain's only woman foreman of a demolition gang.

"I once worked in a factory," she said, "but I couldn't stand it. I didn't like being closed in by walls so I finally persuaded a demolition company to take me on."

She pushed back a curl and added:

"This is the life for me, it's healthy and every job is a challenge."

She's tossing 20 men.

"They know I can do the same work as they can," she said, "even some of the heavier jobs."

Her boss, 48-year-old Edward Bates, thinks the world of his blonde foreman.

"No job is too big for her," he said, "and since she took over as foreman I've heard nothing but praise for her."

WEEKEND HOUSE

Dressed in blue jeans and a pink blouse, Dorothy's latest job is tearing down a house to make room for a building.

"At first when I used to announce that I was in charge, some of the men would smile and think I was kidding," said Dorothy, "but pretty soon all of them learned I was serious and they soon lost their nonsense."

Her boss said he originally gave her a job as a laborer because she looked capable and was so insistent.

"I'm glad I kept an eye on her," said Bates. "She was not only an excellent worker but she had good judgment of her own jobs.

Generation Of Jews Said In Jeopardy

OTTAWA (CP)—The Women's Canadian Organization for Rehabilitation through Training was told Monday that a generation of Jews is in jeopardy.

Nathan Gould of New York, executive director of the Women's American ORT told members of the Canadian group that Jewish immigrants to Israel, France and Italy must find a productive life through ORT schools or they will become wayward.

"We have been given a mission to save a generation," he said. About 200,000 Jews from North Africa and a large group from an unnamed area needed assistance.

All too often the new wave of immigrants found themselves in new ghettos, created by unscrupulous people and without

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Stella B. —She won't discuss anything except style and make-up.

Gladys D. — I'm through being a dowdy frump like her.

Stella B. — Gladys and I have been friends ever since kindergarten days. We read the same books, played the same games. In high school we were both on the staff of the yearbook. She was Art Editor and I was Managing Editor. Now we commute downtown to our jobs together.

Suddenly she's taken to shutting me up whenever I talk about a book or anything I've been reading. She glares at me and changes the subject to what she's wearing or what did I do to my hair. I always had lively discussions with her about authors and philosophers. Now she confines things to a narrow one-way street of fashion and superficiality. It's pathetic to see a bright girl turn so shallow.

Gladys D. — Stella believes in mind over matter. This means, I guess, that I shouldn't "mind" how she looks because it doesn't "matter." Well, it does. I'm glad I realized in time just how exasperating I was to my other friends when I joined Stella in bemoaning around.

Now I'm trying to convert her, but without success. It's embarrassing to walk down the street with someone whose hem is coming down, coat buttons missing, fingernails chewed and so on. For the first time in our lives we each have the money and time to attend to our grooming and wardrobe.

I want to turn out the most attractive "me" I can. Stella should, too. Instead she hides behind books.

The Council: "Even your best friend won't tell you," doesn't apply here. Stella has come right out and accused Gladys of ignoring the Philistines, and the latter labels her depth-thinking pal, a sartorial slob.

Well! If Stella hopes for a more varied diet of conversational fodder, she'd better heed some of the pearls that flow right from the clotheshorse's mouth. Gladys is right. Looks do matter, and vanity so in these fastmoving days of fleeting contact. A new acquaintance may forget your name quickly, Stella, but will cling to eternity as "the girl with lipstick on her teeth."

Of course the cover isn't as important as the book. That much we'll grant Stella. But it is important, and we gather Stella ignores it.

The Pilgrim Fathers were right about some things, but wrong about frills and furbelows being sinful. It isn't virtue that keeps Stella slatternly. It's a form of inverse snobbery, a feeling (unconscious, perhaps) that preoccupation with dress is for the hoi polloi, and that the "intellectual" must confine his thoughts to matters invisible, intangible and impalpable. Actually, an unkempt getup is an affront to others and eventually, demoralizing to oneself.

Gladys might modify her campaign and settle for neatness, cleanliness and brightness in Stella's dress, instead of the last word in chic. Even if she never learns the difference between a Balenciaga and a Corona-Corona, Stella can present a chipper facade to those who must view her, rather than a shapeless rag-bag.

Besides regaining the respect and affection of her old friend, other rewards await Stella if she makes some effort to look nice. When a woman feels attractive, literally, an invigorating hormonal action she becomes attractive. Bolstered by approving smiles from Gladys and others, Stella will enjoy the books she likes to talk about — more than ever.

Cave Explorer 'Surfaces' After 2 Months Below

MASSIF du MARGUAREIS, France (Reuters)—French cave explorer Michel Siffre emerged into daylight Monday in "satisfactory condition" after besting the world record for underground endurance by spending two months 420 feet deep in the earth.

A doctor who examined Siffre said he was physically weak but in satisfactory condition.

Siffre wore thick dark glasses when he emerged in case his first contact with daylight might damage his sight.

He was so weak from his ordeal the team of speleologists (cave explorers) bringing him to the surface on their backs had to stop during the ascent to let him rest.

He had been camping on an underground glacier during his record-breaking stay.

The previous world record was set last year by a group of Italian speleologists when they stayed underground 700 hours—just under 30 days.

TOOK OWN FOOD

But the Italians received frequent supplies of fresh food, whereas Siffre took all his provisions with him at the start of the experiment.

He lost all sense of time underground, and Saturday—when the team arrived to fetch him —he still thought it was the middle of August.

His idea of color also became hazy, and after 11 days underground a bottle of blue ink he had with him appeared purple or green. He recorded his feelings in a diary.

Disgusted With Advice to Forgive

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—The advice you gave to "Round The Bend" was disgusting, if not downright sickening.

When a husband plays around, the wife gets told to hang onto him, and be thankful you're married to this no-good so-and-so. When it a woman runs around, would your advice be to the husband: No man would take back a woman like that, and I don't blame him.

You tell her she'll just "have to" trust him again. Sure, so he can have an affair with every alley cat in town. Do you think a wife would ever forget an affair so she wouldn't recoil every time he comes near her? I can't imagine it.

I know you're going to say "Those poor children need their Dad." Well, a Dad like that isn't worth having.

So he doesn't want his home broken up. Well, that's too bad! He should have thought of that sooner. No doubt this way is more convenient for him. A wife to keep house and rear children for him, and visiting women to provide the thrills.

Any woman with an ounce of self-respect wouldn't take it lying down.—WET HEN.

DEAR WET—You make a nice case for the plaintiff. But how do you know this man is no good? He was guilty of just one indiscretion.

Round the Bend has plenty of self-respect. She also has the fortitude and the love in her heart to forgive. Taking this kind of a chance is a lot better than certain emptiness.

IN GERTAIN

riage is the cornerstone of society, the church and society must recognize that it is dangerous to attempt formal preservation of marriages that are broken in fact, the commission concludes.

Council dealt with only eight of 18 commission resolutions before the time allotted on the program expired. The remaining recommendations will come up Thursday.

KEY ISSUES PASS

But the key measures were passed without dissent and with only one amendment.

Council went on record for wider grounds for divorce, abolition of parliamentary divorce, establishment of a federal royal commission, a bill ministers' message for marriage across Canada and proposals to strengthen marriage counselling in the church.

Legal age for marriage without parental consent should be 21 and with parental consent it should be 18 for the groom and 17 for the bride, council proposed.

The recommendation is based on the commission's finding that "immaturity and lack of preparation" result in "disproportionately frequent" marriage breakdown among teen - agers and in the early years of marriage.

Legal ages for marriage with parental consent at present are 16 for both boys and girls in Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia; 15 in Ontario; 16 in Saskatchewan, and 14 for boys and 12 for girls in Quebec. The Atlantic provinces set no minimum age for marriage with parents' consent.

Without consent of parents, the minimum legal age for marriage is 16 for both partners in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Newboundland; 18 for both partners in Manitoba, Ontario and New Brunswick: 16 for male and 15 for female in Prince Edward Island.

EXPECT TO PASS

Important remaining recommendations are expected to win council approval. Among them is a proposal to establish a special family government agency to help promote stability in marriage and another, aimed at providing government, to establish special divorce courts along the lines of family and juvenile courts.

The assembly turned down a resolution calling for a system of national censorship of publications on the ground that the wording was too vague and sweeping, and therefore potentially dangerous.

Council voted to send the proposal to a sessional committee for redrafting.

Dr. Ernest M. Howse of Toronto's Bloor Street United Church, leader of the opposition to the resolution, proposed its deletion from the report of the board of evangelism and social service. Rev. O. F. Hoare of Kitchener rescued it from oblivion by proposing its reconsideration in committee.

Dr. Howse said that what is needed to control pornography is recourse to the courts, not licence to exert control on literature before its publication.

Dr. Mutchmor defended the measure as essential to stem a rising tide of "filth and trash" on Canadian newsstands. But he stated that Dr. Howse "about quite a few holes" in the resolution.

duction of pertinent documents and records.

The federal investigation was ordered by the government after the CMU-SIU struggle resulted in disruptions and harassment of CMU ships in American intercourt and a retaliatory boycott against SIU ships in the St. Lawrence Seaway.

So far, the inquiry has heard from witnesses from the Upper Lakes Shipping Company, which broke with the SIU in April and signed a contract with the CMU. They told about violence, intimidation and harassment since severing relations with the SIU.

When the Upper Lakes line wound up its evidence, the Canadian Labor Congress began its case—largely testimony from two former SIU officials who now head the CMU, Michael Sheehan, CMU president, and James Todd, CMU secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Sheehan, a burly Liverpool-born man with a salty way of giving evidence, charged that the SIU was ruled in a dictatorial fashion by its president, American-born Hal C. Banks. He also alleged that votes were rigged and members swindled.

The testimony of the two ex-SIU men has been completed, although they may be recalled later, and the CLC now is heading into a new phase of its case. It apparently plans to call seamen before the commission to cite their experiences at the hands of the SIU.

Mr. Sheehan testified Monday his life "wouldn't be worth a cent" if he had tried to organize seamen aboard ships of Upper Lakes while the company held a contract with the rival SIU.

Rumor President Was Once Secretly Married Branded Groundless, False by Paper

WASHINGTON (AP)—A book circulated rumor—coupled with a denial—that President Kennedy once secretly married was published in Washington Monday. The Washington Post carried an advance article from Newsweek magazine, which it owns, and which along with the Post branded the rumor as groundless and false.

The White House, asked for comment, declined to discuss the matter as it has in the past.

Rumors of an early Kennedy marriage have been circulated widely for more than a year. Persons or groups have distributed in various parts of the country copies of a page from a genealogy alleging there was such a marriage.

To citizens who write the White House about the rumor, a simple reply goes out:

"The president has been married since 1953—to his wife Jacqueline Kennedy."

The Associated Press checked many sources over the months and was never able to find any evidence to substantiate the publication of it—or hints at it by hate groups and gossip columnists.

The so-called "evidence" for the marriage appears in one paragraph on page 894 of a privately-printed family history, The Blauvelt Family Genealogy, written by a member of the 10th generation, Louis L. Blauvelt, who migrated from Holland in 1638, one entry under the 11th generation says:

"(12,472), Durie, (Kerr). Malcolm, (Isabel) D. Cooper, 11.30.4. We have no birth date. She was born Kerr, but took the name of her stepfather. She first married Firmin Desloge, IV. They were divorced. Durie then married F. John Bergsch. They were divorced, and she married, third, John F. Kennedy, son of Joseph P. Kennedy, one-time ambassador to England. There were no children of the second or third marriages."

Newsweek asserts the "third marriage" never took place.

"The only mystery," it says, "is why Louis L. Blauvelt, in of Belleville.

Squid Should Put Bite on Him For Reward of at Least a Quid

LONDON (AP) — Kenneth Blake "the breakfast today with a set of false teeth once worn by an octopus.

"They set under anybody to believe this story," said Blake, "but it's true and here are my choppers to prove it." Six weeks ago, Blake went to Loano on the Italian Riviera for his vacation. He went swimming off the beach and his jaws whipped out his false teeth.

He looked in vain for those teeth.

Four days went by, and it was time for him and his family to return to Britain. Toothless and dejected he came back.

At work, he told a friend, Gerald Farrell, about his lost teeth. Farrell and Blake both work for a firm making railroad coaches.

Farrell said he too would be vacationing in Loano and said as a joke:

"I'll keep an eye out for the choppers."

On his first day in Loano, Farrell sat on the beach where his friend's teeth had disappeared.

He was watching some fishermen, he said. "They were spearing things in the water. Finally, they speared an octopus.

"I couldn't believe my eyes. For when they hauled up the octopus there in one of his tentacles was a set of false teeth. As best I could I told the fisherman how my friend lost his teeth. They handed them over."

Returning to England last weekend, Farrell called on Blake and told his strange story and handed over the teeth.

"I couldn't believe my eyes," said Blake. "They fit. They're mine. But I bet you won't believe me."

Mr. and Mrs. C. Pearsall, Wellington, Wed 50 Years

PICTON—Many relatives and friends attended the Golden Wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pearsall, well known residents of the village of Wellington. They spent their honeymoon in Illinois, Buffalo and Cmy of their attendants was Mrs. Arnold Harper of St. Thomas.

tional equipment for Cuba. It is intolerable that, in addition, the Canadian government should supply pilot observers or guides for the flight of light bombers or transport planes to be added to the Cuban Air Force."

When Keating's office was asked for clarification of his remarks—especially the statement that the planes had been added to the Cuban Air Force—an aide said the senator was unavailable but that he had obtained the information from a newspaper. He had not consulted the state department before delivering his charges before the special joint session of the Senate armed services and foreign relations committee.

In Ottawa on BCAF spokesman said Russian - speaking BCAF pilots have never piloted aboard Russian planes crossing Canadian east coast territory en-route to Cuba as a routine safety measure." Three such flights were made last year and four so far this year.

"But to say that these planes are being added to the Cuban air force is ridiculous," the spokesman added. "In each case our pilots have returned on to Cuba with these planes and pulled up aboard them. No planes have remained in Cuba.

"Furthermore, all the planes have been civilian transports. No bombers were involved."

The Canadian protest here, reiterating the BCAF statement, said three Russian planes had flown from Cuba to Cuba by way of Canada during the summer. In accordance with international practice and Canadian air safety regulations, Canada was informed and had been placed aboard to advise the Russian crews on guiding the carriers to and from Gander Airport in Newfoundland.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

SOME POINTS TO CONSIDER REGARDING BELLEVILLE'S SEPT. 26th VOTE ON DINING & COCKTAIL LOUNGES

- If a city decides to adopt more pleasant drinking facilities that isn't to say that dining and cocktail lounges will immediately open for business. The Liquor Control Board of Ontario alone determines whether licences will be granted. The Board also decides the number and type of establishments to be permitted.
- When an establishment applies for a licence, a notice of application must be published in the local paper and any resident of Belleville has the right to file notice of objection.
- Before an application is heard, the applicant for a licence is required by law to file the specification and plans of the establishment he proposes. The establishment itself must be thoroughly inspected.
- If (and there's nothing automatic about it) the Board decides to consider the application, a public hearing must be held at which any citizen can oppose the granting of a licence.
- It is a legal and well known fact that the Board limits the number of licences granted in any city. It is also a well known fact that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario has the strictest regulations in the world.
- There's nothing automatic about it. The policy of the Board has been one of not granting licences to restaurants in local option areas. There is little chance of liquor finding its way into restaurants or soda shops.

It is therefore not a question of more outlets in Belleville, but rather a question of improving the facilities we already have.

There is no concerted effort to foist scores of drinking establishments upon the people of Belleville. If the people of Belleville VOTE YES ON BOTH it does not mean wide open drinking facilities.

These facts are presented for your information. They are presented so as to allow you to make a sensible intelligent decision on the issues.

We, the VOTE YES COMMITTEE ask you as responsible citizens to consider these facts.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"Golden memories" of 45 years in professional hockey reach back in nostalgic flood as Jack "Jolly Jawn" Adams and I talked in Larry Eggert's well-appointed summer cottage at Rossmore on Saturday.

"Nostalgia, no, but memories, yes," said this former warhorse of the NHL jousting arenas, but the years rolling back to a still keen, alert mind belied his words.

He was given the sobriquet "Jolly Jawn" after a Detroit sportswriter wrote: "If Adams wins he is a Jolly Jack—if he loses he is a Mussolini with the toothache." The nickname stuck.

And as a tribute to a doughty foeman, the Maple Leafs' Conny Smythe once said: "Adams would take out your eyeball and eat it as a grape to win a game."

Ten years playing with Ottawa, Vancouver, Toronto St. Pats, and other clubs foundationed the qualities that later made Jack Adams one of the outstanding managers in the NHL.

Whatever vagaries of fate led to his severance with his beloved Red Wings, the big red team of Detroit's Olympia is, as it has always been, his one and only big hockey love.

And two monuments will perpetuate the memory of this hockey personality who learned to play the game in his native Fort William.

One is a living monument, "the greatest hockey player in the world, Gordie Howe." The other, the brick, steel and mortar that is Olympia.

Jack has left his imprint on the sands of the professional sport. He introduced the goal-crease, an idea taken from the semi-circular crease of soccer. He innovated the "colored pants" of hockey uniforms, His Wings, with pink faces, mildly objected when he gave them their first "red pants."

"Sucks, Jack," they chorused, "we'll look like sissies."

And he inaugurated the NHL pension plan, fighting off efforts of certain elements to secure its operation. It now amounts to some two million dollars in the hands of reliable trustworthy financial people.

Jack sold professional hockey solidly to Detroit. "A foreigner selling a foreign sport in one of the best sports cities in the United States" had a tough assignment.

Detroit fans "took" to the game despite heavy seasonal opposition from the football Lions, Michigan State, the University of Michigan and the American Baseball League's famous Tigers. Add to this a minimum of newspaper publicity.

And the Adams personality reached out and beyond the perimeter of sport. He was persuaded to run as a councilman in one of the city's districts. He polled 15,000 votes, finishing third in a "field of 33."

And on October 8 Detroiters, outside the Red Wing organization, are giving Jack a testimonial dinner. A fitting tribute to the man who has given so much to the city's recreational enjoyments with hockey and other sports activities.

He produced some great Red Wing teams that brought seven Stanley Cups and twelve National League championships to Detroit. The 1951-52 club was to the NHL what the 1927 Yankees were to major league baseball. "The greatest team of all time," said Jack. "We won the Stanley Cup in eight straight games with Sawchuk having four shutouts."

National Hockey League expansion to the west coast will come eventually, he believes. "Those fellows are big league. They have the Dodgers, the Giants, the arenas, the fans and the money."

"The player situation is the crux of the matter. The NHL may have to inaugurate a universal draft to get things under way. To help themselves stand on their own feet, the coast teams could come to Canada, sponsor clubs and start their own farm systems," he said.

"There are 120 players in the National Hockey League and 140,000 trying to make it each year. Expansion would open a larger field for young hockey players. There would be more opportunities to make the "big time!"

How about the gripes of certain players over training camps and exhibition games?

"Training camps are necessary because the majority of players are not in shape when they report. I always told my youngsters 'You have a God-given talent to play hockey. Go out there and use it—don't abuse it."

"As for exhibition games. I used to take the Wings to small towns in Canada (Napanee, the home of Mrs. Adams, included) to play. It was one of the best publicity mediums we had. I never believed exhibition games were a tough part of a player's life," he said.

At the moment Mr. Adams is taking a well-deserved rest. But don't be surprised in the near future to see him a member of the National Hockey League's public relations staff. President Campbell is seriously considering the matter.

Little enough reward for a man who was no small factor in making the National Hockey League one of the greatest professional sports organizations in the world.

Giants Lose Six In Row

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The fleet Los Angeles Dodgers have been slowed down in their sprint for the National League pennant. But San Francisco Giants, on a season-long tread-mill away from home, aren't catching up.

Behind the masterful five-hit pitching of Warren Spahn, Milwaukee Braves cooled off Los Angeles 2-1 Monday night, dealing the Dodgers their second straight loss after a seven-game winning streak. Spahn recorded his 324th career victory.

At Pittsburgh, Elmo Plaskett made his first major league hit a three-run homer and right-hander Tom Sturdivant threw a seven-hitter as the Pirates beat the home-loving Giants 5-2. It was the Giants' fourth successive loss to Pittsburgh and their sixth straight setback since flying out of San Francisco on the wings of a seven-victory string a week ago.

The Dodgers remain four games ahead of San Francisco in the league race, Cincinnati Reds 5½ games back in third spot. The Dodgers and Giants each have six games and five road games to go. Cincinnati has four at home and six away.

BANKS' BLUNDER

In Monday's only other game, homers by Billy Ott and Ernie Banks in the seventh inning powered Chicago Cubs to an 8-4 triumph over St. Louis Cardinals. There were no games in the American League.

Hamilton Ups Eastern Lead

Tigers Claw Lions, Bombers Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One found it tough and one easy, but the top dogs won out in two Canadian Football League games Monday night in the West.

Helped by four pass interceptions, Hamilton Tiger-Cats walloped British Columbia Lions 40-6 in Vancouver before 27,052 fans.

In Winnipeg, 16,213 watched the Blue Bombers squeak by Saskatchewan Roughriders 20-18.

The Winnipeg victory put the 1961 Grey Cup champions five points ahead of runnerup Calgary in the Western Conference standings with 14 points.

Hamilton increased its Eastern conference lead over Ottawa to three points with a total of 11.

The Tiger-Cats made a clean sweep of a two-game Western swing, handing Coach Eddie Edmonton Eskimos 16-15 Friday.

CLOSE TO STANDOFF

It was close to as offensive standoff in the Vancouver game with Hamilton picking up 170 yards rushing and 161 passing to 163 and 152 for British Columbia.

But Hamilton pass interceptions throughout set up Tiger scoring plays and spelled trouble for the Lions. The victim was British Columbia quarterback Joe Kapp.

Sam Fernandes picked off a Kapp throw on the Lions' 39 yard line in the first-quarter field goal by Don Sutherin.

Sutherin nabbed another in the second quarter to set up a 100-yard touchdown march climaxed by Garney Scott's plunge for a touchdown.

Hamilton's Milan Wall picked another Kapp aerial for a touchdown for Bobby Kuntz, his third of the game.

The fourth Hamilton interception by Joe Zuger came in the fourth quarter. The British Columbia had managed to get on the score sheet with a 38-yard field goal by halfback Willie Fleming.

HAS 18-POINT NIGHT

Kuntz also scored touchdowns in the first and second quarters, running his total to three and his points on the night to 18. He picked them up on a pair of one-yard plunges and a 15-yard pass from Barry Randall. Sutherin kicked a 48-yard field goal and three converts for six points and Joe Zuger punted for a Hamilton single.

Frank Cosentino guided Hamilton at quarterback in place of injured import Bernie Faloney.

The Winnipeg game was the reverse of the Vancouver contest with the Roughriders staying close all the way.

Halfback Leo Lewis sailed away the Winnipeg win with a four-yard touchdown on a 91-yard kickoff return. Joe Williams ran 35 yards for an earlier score while Gerry James kicked a single, two converts and a field goal.

Jack Delveaux kicked two singles to round out scoring for Winnipeg, now unbeaten in seven of eight games played. The Bombers lost the season opener to Edmonton.

SCORE TOUCHDOWNS

Fullback Ferdie Burket and quarterback Bob Plaseck scored Saskatchewan touchdowns, while flanker Ron Whitehouse added a field goal, single and two converts.

Saskatchewan, a WFC alumnus for five seasons, almost matched the Bombers' offence in yard for yard, getting 210 altogether compared to 217 for Winnipeg.

Winnipeg got 15 first downs to Saskatchewan's 14. In the air Plaseck completed nine of 15 for 113 yards compared to 10 of 18 for Reg. Flores and Hal Ledyard of Winnipeg for 90 yards.

The game results left Saskatchewan in third spot in the Western Conference with seven points, one ahead of Edmonton and British Columbia, tied for fourth and last.

Liston Has Oversize Thumbs

Flare-Up Over Gloves

CHICAGO (AP)—A flareup of tempers over the make of eight-ounce gloves to be used in the title fight broke the monotony of routine physical examinations of heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston at the Illinois Athletic Commission.

There were violent exchanges for more than 30 minutes Monday between Jack Nilon, Liston's adviser, and two of Patterson's close associates, trainer Dan Florio and Cus D'Amato, over the gloves to be worn by the two fighters in their bout a week from tonight.

Four sets of gloves, two for each fighter, had been specially made by Everlast Company. Another set, made specially for Liston's big hands, was submitted by Sammy Frager of Chicago.

After an exchange between Florio and Nilon, chief inspector Art Winch asked Liston to try on an Everlast glove. Liston put his ham-like fist into it and said:

"It don't fit my thumb."

D'Amato yelled: "We'll get everlast to make some more gloves for the challenger to take care of his abnormality of thumbs."

Commission chairman Joe Triner said: "Liston has big thumbs and has to be measured special. Frager has made gloves to the specifications. I rule that Liston use Frager gloves and Patterson use Everlast."

This brought heated protests from Florio and D'Amato. The gloves were passed around to newspapermen while Florio explained that one make is "round" and other "flat."

Finally, Triner said: "We will take this under further advisement. We are satisfied it is serious enough for further consideration and a decision on the make of gloves will be rendered Wednesday."

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Wildlife Federation has been awarded a $30,000 grant under the national fitness program to establish a national headquarters in Ottawa. The health department, which administers the government's program to promote fitness and amateur sport, said Monday it and the national resources department expect to work closely with the federation in conservation measures related to hunting, hiking and other outdoor activities.

Piersall Innocent On Charge

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Piersall, Washington Senators outfielder, was found innocent Monday on a disorderly conduct charge. The judge said Piersall had a right to lose his temper over razzing by a fan.

"He was entirely justified in being provoked," municipal Judge Robert I. Hammermen said.

Piersall went into the stands Thursday night at Memorial Stadium before a game against Baltimore Orioles. Piersall said Florio and Nilon, chief corner for Art Winch asked Liston to try on an Everlast glove. Liston put his ham-like fist into it and said:

"It don't fit my thumb."

D'Amato yelled: "We'll get everlast to make some more gloves for the challenger to take care of his abnormality of thumbs."

Leaf Harler Joins Braves

Castoff Makes Big Time

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

TORONTO (CP) — Baseball has had more comeback stories but few compare with the saga of pitcher Jimmy Lee Constable from Jonesboro, Tenn.

The 29-year-old righthander had to hang for a job last spring. He had been out of organized baseball for three years.

Chuck Dressen, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, took a chance. Constable had a 16-4 record over the season and a 2.36 earned-run average, best in the league.

He left Toronto Monday to join Milwaukee Braves of the National League.

Three years ago, Jim was a ward of a state hospital in Tennessee. His baseball career, which included three years as a reliefer in the major leagues, had tumbled down around him.

It started in 1956, in the Cuban Winter League. Constable was on a intense performer and the actions of Fidel Castro bothered him.

BAD BREAKDOWN

Jim locked himself in his hotel room for several days and suffered a nervous breakdown. When he returned to realization, he found himself in Mexico City. He doesn't know how he got there.

An uncle from Jonesboro took Constable back to Tennessee. He spent several months in hospital recuperating.

Constable played semi - pro ball around his home town. When released from hospital and worked as a security guard at an electronics plant.

"I thought I could still pitch," he said. "But I was worried about how people would accept me after my trouble."

Constable approached one major league team directly and spoke to scouts of two others. Nobody was interested.

HAD ONE FRIEND

But Constable, who spent much time with New York Giants, Cleveland Indians and Washington Senators, had one friend.

Dale Alexander, winner of the AL batting championship with a .367 average in 1932, lived on a farm at Greenville, Tenn., 30 miles from Jonesboro.

Alexander understood Constable's problem because he, too, had problems with his nerves last year. The former Cleveland good-hit-poor-field first baseman became Constable's agent.

Alexander played minor league ball at Toronto and told Dressen he should give Constable a chance. Constable, drove to Florida, uninvited, to Leafs training camp last spring. He watched them play an exhibition game from the stands but didn't have the nerve to go down to talk to Dressen.

Finally, Dressen's pals pitcher with had known Constable when he was in the Giants organization, persuaded Dressen to take a look at him.

"He said everything I asked of him," said Dressen after Constable's stint in Minnesota. "He certainly deserves this break."

Constable didn't cost the Leafs anything to sign. He couldn't command a high salary after all of the intervening quantity factor.

But Leafs have given the quiet-spoken pitcher a bonus.

Track and Field Meet

City Boys Win Awards

Belleville representatives faired very well in the East Central Ontario Track and Field Meet held in Cobourg this past weekend.

Competing against athletes from Whitby, Oshawa, Cobourg, Peterborough and Colborne, the Belleville youngsters brought home three firsts, eight seconds and four thirds.

Taking part in the bantam age group, Greg Paul Howe raced over with two firsts and a pair of seconds. Howe won the 220 yard and 75 yard sprints and placed second in the high jump and in the running broad jump.

In the midget division, Ron Olsen placed second in the 880 and in the "midget" mile while Mike Howe copped seconds in the high jump and in the 220 yard sprint events.

Willy Jorgensen had a big day for the juveniles. He took second place honors in the hop, step and jump, third in the high jump and third in the 880 yard sprint then topped his performance with a second place finish in the open mile.

Also in the juvenile grouping, Tony Sfellium won the running broad jump with Mick Ansbury coming in third. Sheldon also won third place in the 220 yard sprint.

It added up to 15 points for the Belleville Lions of boys who attended the meet from this city.

Sponsors Key to Success

Hockey Prospects Bright

Groundwork for the proposed City Hockey League was laid at a representative meeting of the sports enthusiasts here last night.

Commercial League Commissioner Russ Soules chaired the discussion.

Two definite entries, Joyces and Wagner Mills were assumed. The league will consist of four clubs which will play double-headers on Wednesday nights.

A decided air of optimism was apparent. It was the general consensus that the league will be a success with the co-operation of sponsors, players and club officials.

Sponsors are needed and with this in view a special committee was set up to interview potential backers.

Chairman of the committee is Geo. H. Carver. With him are Bert Faulkner, Gerry Alexander and Doug Bone. They will interview various people and report back to the next meeting of the league slated for next Monday night at the Recreation Centre.

Discussion revealed that the approximate cost to a sponsor would be between $300 and $350.

However if more than the necessary number of sponsors are secured, teams will be insured on a complete thus reducing sponsor costs to a half.

The meeting was unanimous in endorsing the suggestion that ex-senior and over-age juniors be evenly distributed among participating clubs.

Distribution of these players will be made by the league executive which will be named at soon as club sponsorships are assured.

A suggested entry fee or 50 and 25 cent met with the general approval of the meeting.

It was also felt that should the league prove a success and there is a surplus of funds at season end, the moneys will the disbursed to the teams sponsors.

Aussie "Boss" Changed Navigators

Charges 'Gretel' Effort Sabotaged

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Australia's Cup defender Weatherly and the United States and Australian challenger Gretel clashed over the starting line for their second race today loaded by the winds of controversy.

The official spokesman for the U.S. team Monday accused Sir Frank Packer, Australian syndicate head, of sabotaging Gretel's effort.

"Sir Frank has given confidence to no one and is running the show himself," American team spokesman George O'Day wrote in an article in the Boston Traveler. "This despite the fact that he has never had any real boat racing experience."

O'Day's article said that the night before Saturday's first race of the best-of-seven series, Sir Frank pulled first - string navigator Terry Hammond out of the lineup and replaced him with Hamilton Jamieson.

"To make matters worse," it wrote the U.S. Olympic medalist, "a navigational error put Gretel out of the first race for the day when the wicked wind from Weatherly when both were making the first windward mark."

BOATS DUE

Monday morning both boats were involved in a tacking duel which brought about even more controversy before the day was over. The two racing sloopers appeared outside Newport harbor about 10 a.m. and Skipper Bob Sturrock took off after Weatherly.

U.S. skipper Bus Mosbacher attempted to lock out of the starting line but Sturrock remained tenaciously astern. After about 45 minutes, the U.S. boat had opened-up a lead of approximately a quarter of a mile. Gretel apparently was downwind.

At the end of the day's practice, O'Day commented that Mosbacher had been purposely sailing off the wind so that the Aussies would learn as little as possible from following Weatherly.

"They were following us the same way an amateur skier follows a professional, trying to learn how he does it, and we don't want them to learn anything from us right now," O'Day said.

Informed of O'Day's article, Sir Frank snapped out a terse "No comment."

Hammond was back aboard the 49-foot Australian sloop Monday and assisted in navigating the boat to several buoys in the northeasterly breeze and choppy sea.

The two boats were scheduled to cross the starting line for the second race at 1:10 p.m. ADT today. The course will be a triangular one of 24 nautical miles. The first eight-mile leg is a beat, the second leg is a reach and the third will be downwind.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frank Mahovlich is much closer geographically to Toronto Maple Leafs, but how close he and the National Hockey League club can get on contract terms remains to be decided.

The big left winger, Leafs' goal - producer, checked into Toronto's training camp at Peterborough Monday night after a four-day protest sojourn in Montreal.

He and Toronto manager-coach Punch Imlach have still to get together on what Mahovlich will put in the bank this season.

Mahovlich left camp last Thursday night. He and Imlach were at odds on a contract for the coming season, with Mahovlich reported to be asking $30,000.

King Clancy, Imlach's assistant, talked with Mahovlich in Toronto Monday and reported in an interview:

"I didn't think Mahovlich was dissatisfied. We had a nice friendly talk. There are a few things to be ironed out but I don't think there's anything serious to worry about."

DECLINES TO SAY

Several other players disagreed with Imlach Monday on this season's contract but Imlach declined to say whether any signed.

The Leaf coach may have worries getting signatures but, to hear him talk, Toronto is a sure bet to win the Stanley Cup for the second year in a row.

Chicago Black Hawks, Leafs' opponents—and tough ones—in the cup final last year, defeated Toronto 3-2 in an exhibition game Saturday night.

Said Imlach:

"I can beat Chicago. I'm sure of that now. Only other club I'm worried about now is (Montreal) Canadiens and won't know a thing about them until I meet them.

PLAY IT ROUGH?

To a suggestion that the Black Hawks might get a bit rougher against Toronto this season, Imlach replied:

"I hope they decide to play it that way. Or play it any way they want as far as that's concerned. But I've never been beat us if they try to play it rough. We've tried to play it that way before and lost."

Toronto and Chicago meet again tonight in Peterborough.

Meanwhile, in the Black Hawks' training camp at St. Catharines, Chicago general manager Tommy Ivan was having an easier time than Imlach in getting the administrative chores done. With forwards Len Lunde and Ken Wharram and defencemen Wayne Hillman, Tex Evans and Bob Turner agreeing to terms Monday, Ivan has 10 players signed.

He was "very pleased" with Hawks' efforts Saturday night against Toronto.

But he wasn't happy with the morning scrimmage Monday and the afternoon workout was devoted to tough conditioning exercises.

WINGS SELL PLAYER

In Detroit, the Red Wings sold one player and loaned two others to Hershey Bears of the American League.

The player sent Roger Dejordy, a 23-year-old left winger who spent the last four years with Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League, a Red Wing affiliate.

Wayne Rivers, a winger who saw little action last season with the Montreal Canadiens champion Hamilton Red Wings, and Yves Lamoureux, centre with Spokane Comets of the WHL last season, were loaned to the AHL club.

Jerome's World Mark Approved

BELGRADE (AP)—The International Amateur Athletic Federation Monday approved a world record for Vancouver's Harry Jerome as 50 marks were ratified at the IAAF congress here.

Jerome equalled the world 100-yard dash record of 9.2 seconds with his sprint Aug. 25 at Vancouver. Also accepted was another 9.2 effort by Frank Budd of the United States at New York June 30.

Jerome was also a member of the University of Oregon 440-yard relay team whose world record of 40 seconds was recognized. The mark was set at Modesto, Calif., May 26.

Also ratified was a pole vault ing record of 16 feet 3¼ inches set by Pentti Nikula of Finland in June. Acceptance of Nikula's record, set with a fibreglass pole, is effect meant the approval of such a pole by the IAAF, which governs track and field in competition for world marks.

There had been some demands to disallow marks set with fibreglass poles on the grounds that they are springy and help the athlete in his jump.

Among other records ratified was the men's high jump mark of Valery Brumel of Russia, 7 feet 5 inches, set July 22.

Title of New TV Series Thoroughly Misleading One

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a man's world is the title—and a thoroughly misleading one — of a gentle, perceptive series about three young men and a boy for which had its premiere Monday night on NBC.

Peter Tewksbury, who created and produced the series, said recently he had a hard time explaining to his front office that he wanted to do his opening show about a 14-year-old boy who loses $32.

The plot is still impossible to explain, but the boy did lose $32 and its return serves to introduce the young stars in a happy, imaginative series about growing up.

The four lads, each a different type, are engaging and interesting actors. The show is a refreshing change from idiot-inhabited situation comedies, psychotic murderers and cowtown shoobouts.

Saints and Sinners, another new NBC series bowing in Monday night, promises to be a fast-moving, taut action series built on a newspaper city room background.

The first episode concerned the abduction ransom of a businessman. But the drama was not so much the hunt as finding the person who tipped off a rival paper about the story, thereby endangering the kidnapped man's life.

So far not a dirty trench coat has loomed and, true to the producer's promise, nobody yelled "scoop."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Apprentice rider Ron Turcotte, 21, moved into a commanding lead in the leading rider standings at Nor Woodbine by taking four of Monday's eight races.

Turcotte was the second, third, fourth and seventh races, giving him 17 victories, three ahead of runner-up Jim Fitzsimmons.

His second-race win aboard Dougs Chop returned $12.60 for a $62.40 daily double combined with Mighty Eagle, winner of the first.

Turcotte followed this with Flaming Louise in the third and Lovely Lady in the fourth. His final victory came aboard Wizmanship, which paid $23.60 after defeating Peaches Reward.

At the Park

"THE NOTORIOUS LANDLADY"

Take a beautiful young woman suspected by Scotland Yard of knocking off her husband, add a young American diplomat, enamored of the beauty, who is willing to fight the Revolutionary War over again if, necessary, to vindicate her. Add one debonair, if aging, senior American diplomat on the verge of a nervous breakdown in the uproarious goings-on. There, boys and girls, are the main characters in "The Notorious Landlady," a comedy with the merry nuance of a pop gun, from Fred Kohlmar-Richard Quine production, "The Notorious Landlady" stars Kim Novak, Jack Lemmon and Fred Astaire. Yesterday's Park Theatre audiences loved every wacky minute of it.

Miss Novak is the attractive murder suspect, the notorious landlady of the title, who rents an apartment to up-and-coming career diplomat Jack Lemmon. Jack throws overboard his careful schooling in the fine art of diplomacy when he falls head over heels in love and Astaire, Lemmon's dapper wire-pulling superior, becomes flabbergasted and unhappily involved in his aide's very undiplomatic romance.

"The Notorious Landlady" combines action and suspense with its comedy when Kim has to prove she is not a murderess and later is blackmailed by a purported key witness. The picture winds up with a truly exciting chase which involves not only a U.S. Army helicopter but a truly British wheelchair.

Miss Novak proves herself an accomplished comedienne, as well able to snatch comedy lines with such polished veterans as Lemmon and Astaire. Lemmon is as marvelous as always and Astaire so enjoyable it's hard to realize he isn't dancing. Lionel Jeffries and Estelle Winwood, are featured, respectively, as a Scotland Yard inspector and an elderly invalid.

Written for the screen by Larry Gelbart and Blake Edwards, "The Notorious Landlady" is based on a story by Margery Sharp. Richard Quine and Fred Kohlmar are, respectively, director and producer of the Columbia release.

Senior Lacrosse Final

West Takes Opener 11-6

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — If New Westminster can play a better brand of lacrosse, Brampton Kamblers are in real trouble.

The British Columbia team, not extended for the full 60 minutes, played well when pressed Monday night and took an 11-8 in the opening game of the Canadian senior championship for the Mann Cup.

And, says manager Jack Fulton, the team didn't play as well as it can.

"Well win it," he said after the game. "But not in four games."

Second game of the best-of-seven series is set for Wednesday night. All the games will be staged in this town near Toronto.

The Ramblers, who played a scrambly game relying on individual efforts, didn't look as smooth as their western opponents. Their shooting was bad.

"I figure the team made four mistakes and all four resulted in goals for New Westminster," said Carl Madgett, a Brampton club executive. "Also, we hit two posts and two crossbars in the first two periods."

Football 'Touchy Subject'

'Rifle' Nurses His Shots

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Etcheverry, says the National Football League "naturally is tougher than Canadian football."

"It's a touchy subject," he said in an interview Monday while here on a public relations job for a clothing firm.

"I don't like to be quoted about a part of the two games. I may come back to Montreal some day and I don't want to sound like a pop-off."

What Sam meant was that he might not again here where his playing days are over.

When he left here in November, 1960, there was no love lost between him and M. E. (Ted) Workman, Montreal's president.

Int. League Finals

Suns Salt Crackers 4-2

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— Batting champ Vic Davalillo smashed reliever Mel Nelson's 0-of-seven series with a line drive over the fence.

Davalillo hit his 360-foot shot over the right field wall after starter Leroy Cooper tossed a pair of walks to bring the Suns from behind and give rookie lefthander Tommy John his initial playoff triumph.

Gregory walked Larry Brown with one away to start his seventh frame downfall. Harry Call got a walk and, after throwing one ball to Davalillo, Gregory was lifted in favor of lefty Nelson. Davalillo pasted a line drive over the fence.

The second game in the best-smashed series will be played tonight with Joe Schaffernoth (18-11) going for the Suns, opposed by league strikeout king Harry Fanok (12-10).

Son of Helen Hayes Stars In Role of Journalist

By DORIS KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James MacArthur, who followed in the footsteps of his famous mother, Helen Hayes, is making a stab at portraying the profession in which his father gained fame.

Jim, a sandy-haired 24, plays the role of an itinerant writer in a television series. ABC is filming, Postmark: Jim Fletcher.

Jim's father was the late Charles MacArthur, who immortalized the newspaper business' more rollicking side with his play Front Page.

"There won't be much similarity between the kind of writer I'm supposed to be and the Chicago newspaper days of my father," Jim said. "The kind of journalism really doesn't exist anymore."

The kind of journalism MacArthur wrote about was a classic portrayal of the old newspaper wars when papers did battle or circulation on their front pages with the bloodiest borders and the most bosomy beauties.

THINGS HAVE CHANGED

"Reporting is different from those days," Jim said. "We have a different set of values,' a different way of getting news days.

"A story that might have seemed funny and sensational in those days might be very serious today."

In Postmark Jim plays the son of a famous war correspondent, killed in the Second World War, who wants to follow in his father's journalistic footsteps.

"In the opening segment, I try to get a job on a magazine with my dad's old editor. He tells me I can't write about life from a little room. Why don't I go out and see what life's all about?

"So, that's the idea. I travel around the country, turn up stories and send them to the magazine."

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. In case after case, while patients were using this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, very striking improvement was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough (Advertisement) that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, from simple to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret of this new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute in Canada. Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Brooding Statue of Stalin About to Be Toppled From Lofty Pedestal in Prague

David Oancia of CP's London bureau has just returned from a reporting tour of Czechoslovakia. In this story he tells how the Communist nation has tried to blend Marxism with its essentially Western traditions.

By DAVID OANCIA

PRAGUE (CP) — The brooding statue of Joseph Stalin is about to be toppled from its lofty pedestal high above this city of more than 100 spires.

For seven years the massive monument of Stalin heading a column of workers overlooked incongruously with the Czechoslovakian capital's ancient gothic and baroque architecture.

Now, as the program of de-stalinization is pushed cautiously forward, the structure is to be demolished. A cultural centre devoted to Czechoslovak-Soviet friendship is to take its place on the bank of the Vltava River.

In other parts of the compact, attractive land crews of workmen are unobtrusively substituting new name plates on the streets and roads named after the late Soviet dictator.

These developments are viewed by some as an indication that Marxism is mellowing in the most prosperous of Communist states. But they can hardly be looked upon as liberalization in the Western sense.

ECONOMY LIKE BRITAIN'S

The leadership is determined to make its revolutionary program stick despite failures to meet targets envisaged in the five-year plan that began in 1960.

Nevertheless, many of the characteristics one expects to find in a Communist society are missing.

Striptease shows, jazz and the theatre are part of the regular scene. The traditions, social background and standards of living are essentially those of a Western state. And the economy resembles that of Britain or West Germany.

One may wonder, in fact, how a nation so advanced technically, so middle-class, could become Communist so easily and why there is so little indication of protest.

I put these questions often to Czechs and Slovaks during a two-week tour of the country.

A major factor, of course, was the tight, well - disciplined organization developed by the Communists immediately after the Second World War. The democratic parties were divided and often squabbled.

In 1948 the Communists skilfully surmounted control of the government and in a matter of months pushed through a Communist - style constitution giving them undisputed power.

RESENTFUL TO WEST

"The fate of our country was settled in 1938," said a young party member. The Munich agreement with Hitler which dismembered the state caused a deep revulsion against the West, he added. The Russians on the other hand, were viewed as liberators.

Part of the answer to the question of why there is so little protest is evident in the cities, towns, hills and valleys. Steel mills, hydro power plants, factories and housing centres have been built.

Even though production targets may not be fulfilled completely, people are reasonably well off.

Rents are low—a modern two-room apartment costs as little as $20 a month. There's an acute housing shortage but planners hope it will be overcome by 1965 in major centres and 1970 in the rest of the country.

Medical care, social security, pensions and a vastly enlarged educational program are paid for by the state.

Small cars—there are many around — sell for about $5,000, roughly 2½ times their value in Canada. These must be bought with cash but so many Czechs have saved up the price that it now takes between a year and 18 months for delivery.

The people have plenty of spending power — the average industrial wage is said to be in the neighborhood of $200 a month at the official rate of exchange.

Prague's broad Wenceslaus Square is invariably crowded until late at night. People flock to cafes and night clubs. The stores on the square are modern, attractively designed and well - stocked. Brno and Bratislava, two other major cities, present much the same image of prosperity.

Food and clothing are expensive—butter is $2 a pound, meat $1.50, coffee $5, a cheap suit $20 and a good one as much as $300—but the prices are no deterrent. Agricultural production has not kept pace with consumer demands and there are long queues outside stores selling food.

Fifteen years of Communist rule have virtually transformed the nation's living pattern. Small farms have disappeared. Big collectives have taken their place. Practically all the means of production, distribution and exchange have been nationalized.

About the only indication of private enterprise I saw was a shoe repairman's portable stall on Bratislava Street.

APATHY AMONG WORKERS

But if there is little vocal protest against the system, there are indications that it exists beneath the surface.

The present system of rewards and incentives seems designed to appeal directly to the materialistic cravings of an industrious people. It would be hardly necessary if they wholeheartedly supported the five-year plan.

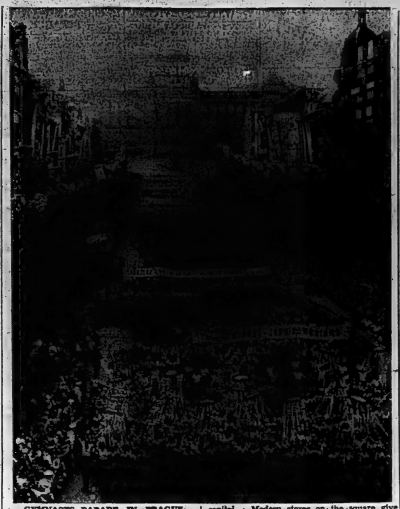
This may be attributable to a characteristic developed through long training under the Austrian empire.

"We have developed through centuries of oppression a sharp and subtle political intelligence," said a party member.

"We're Schweiks," said another. "We can be coaxed into doing something but never ordered."

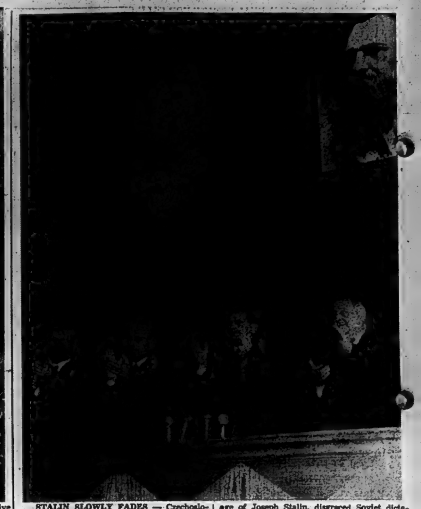
Jaroslav Hasek's tale of the Good Soldier Schweik, an epitome of the malingering soldier who refuses to recognize authority, now seems to be much more than a character in a famous Czech novel.

There is talk of apathy of the workers acting as a braking force on production. Perhaps, as one put it, current problems could be partially caused by re-emergence of some of Schweik's characteristics.



A few Communists bore this out when they said the problem now is to get people to work as hard under socialism as they did when they worked for themselves.

The party's main task would seem to be to stir up initiative again. Just how it will try to do this may become clearer when its first major conference is held in December.



Tomorrow: Five - year plan being overhauled.

About two-thirds of Sweden's 750 gypsies now are permanently domiciled, while 252 individuals of 52 families still are migrant.

Sanatorium Stay Reduced

Dr. G. C. Brearley, Hastings County T.B. medical adviser, reported that 98 days were taken off the average Ontario patients' time in TB sanatorium in the last three years. In 1959 the patients who were discharged averaged 283 days in sanatorium.

"No wonder there are few empty beds," he said, "the turnover of patients has been accelerated. The accumulated hospital time saved patients in the two years over 12,000 months.

"This helps the patient returning home as well as the new patient who is not delayed from beginning immediate treatment. This is a major advantage over being overcrowded, as the sanatoria had been until 1954."

Que. Premier Calls Election Nov. 14

Seeks Mandate To Nationalize Electric Systems

Legislature Will Be Dissolved Immediately

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage today called a provincial election for Wednesday, Nov. 14.

Mr. Lesage told a press conference that Lieutenant - Governor Paul Comtois had approved immediate dissolution of the Legislature.

"The government has decided to ask the people of the province of Quebec for a precise mandate to nationalize the electricity systems of the province," said Mr. Lesage.

The government, elected 27 months ago, feels, he said, that the program "demande nationalisation of all enterprises which produce power for private consumption."

He then read to the press a part of the campaign which the government would bring under the nationalization act if it re-elected. The list included the giant Shawinigan Water and Power Company.

Other companies on the list were: Quebec Power Company; Southern Canada Power Company Ltd.; St. Maurice Power Corporation; Gatineau Power Company; Lower St. Lawrence Power Company; Saguenay Electric Company; Northern Quebec Power Company Ltd.; Montmorency Falls Ltd.; Laurier Limitee; Electrique de Ferme Neuve Limitee and La Compagnie Electrique de la Sarre Liee.

Mr. Lesage said employees of these companies would become employees of Quebec Hydro and would not lose rank or acquired rights. Shareholders of the companies would receive fair compensation, he said, to be taken into strict account the legitimate interests of the shareholders and the taxpayers." The compensation would be subject to final settlement by the courts.

Replying to a question, the premier said the cost of taking the 12 companies will be about $600,000,000. The amount would be $700,000,000 if debt held by the companies and which would have to be assumed by Quebec Hydro. The remaining $350,000,000 would be raised by Quebec Hydro.

KENNEDY-LODGE BATTLE LOOMS FOR SENATOR

Primaries Held In Massachusetts

BOSTON (AP)—It's another Kennedy-Lodge election battle for Massachusetts — the fourth round in a long line of bouts for high political office by the two noted families.

The Democrats nominated Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, youngest brother of President John F. Kennedy, for the U.S. Senate by a landslide in Tuesday's primary.

The Republicans picked George Cabot Lodge, son of Henry Cabot Lodge, former UN ambassador who once held the seat at stake in November.

The nominees are both young men. Kennedy turned 30, the minimum age for a senator, just last Feb. 29. Lodge is 35.

Kennedy ran better than 2 to 1 in the voting across the state over his rival, State Attorney-General Edward J. McCormack Jr., nephew of John W. McCormack (Dem., Mass.) Speaker of the House of Representatives.

FIGHT CLOSER

Lodge was in a closer battle for the Republican nomination with Representative Laurence Curtis. The lead seesawed back and forth before Lodge made his victory speech at his election night headquarters.

Curtis' concession came later, with a complimentary message to Lodge and a promise of support in the election campaign.

Returns from 1,621 voting districts of the state's 1968 gave Kennedy 453,023 and McCormack 190,614.

On the Republican side, the tally of 1,621 voting districts gave Lodge 186,957 and Curtis 148,796.

NEGRO NOMINATED

The Republicans placed a Negro on their ticket, nominating Edward W. Brooke for attorney - general. Brooke was the first Negro on a statewide ticket in Massachusetts. Two years ago he ran unsuccessfully for secretary of state.

George Lodge's father, the former UN ambassador, served in the Senate from 1937 to 1942, when he resigned to go into the army. He regained a Senate seat in 1946, but lost it to John F. Kennedy in 1952.

McCormack, who is 30, said he had no further political aspirations. His term as attorney-general runs to January.

Both of Lodge's brothers, the president, and Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy, drew to Massachusetts to vote for their brother.

PEARSON WANTS NON-CONFIDENCE VOTE EARLY

Gives Blunt Warning in Talk

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson says he will press for an immediate showdown in Parliament on whether Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Conservative government enjoys the support of a majority of MPs.

Mr. Pearson's blunt warning is that this must take precedence over all other matters unless the question of whether the government will be able to avoid a vot on a non-confidence motion in the first week of the session which opens Sept. 27.

Mr. Pearson issued his warning in Toronto in an address Tuesday night in Toronto:

"I insist that nothing should be put before Parliament or by this Parliament until the question of confidence has been settled in the proper constitutional way. . . .

"The element of urgency and no excuse should be accepted by the elected representatives of the people for any further delay in settling the question as to whether or not the Diefenbaker government possesses the confidence and has the support of a majority in the new House of Commons."

MUST VOTE?

Mr. Pearson seemed to be saying, in effect, the government must take legislative action to get the Commons has voted confidence.

The strong interpretation of Mr. Peagen's words means the 100 Liberal MPs will make every effort to prevent the government passing over the throne speech debate in favor of prement legislative-business.

The throne speech debate is the traditional springboard for motions of non-confidence from opposition groups. Mr. Pearson is pledged to moving one.

There also may be amendments by Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, with backing of the 26 Social Credit MPs and by H. W. Herridge, House leader of the New Democratis, who is supported by the 17 New Democratic members. Together the three opposition groups outnumber the Conservatives by 146 to 116.

However, under the House rules, there are specified times within which votes taken on these motions. The earliest a vote could be taken would be on March 3, in Wednesday after the opening, unless the government chooses to exceed with other business instead of the throne speech debate.

DEFEATED

It is up to the government to make the choice. But Mr. Pearson has declared himself firmly against the House debating any matter other than a non-confidence motion.

If the government chooses to continue with the throne speech debate, it will be for Mr. Speaker to decide whether to block the government's measures.

It would be relatively simple for the Liberals to do so until a vote on the non-confidence motion is called.

U.N. Assembly president Muhammad Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan, addresses opening session of Assembly, with Acting Secretary-General U Thant in background.

Pakistan Foreign Minister Named Assembly President

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Enriched by four new member countries, the United Nations General Assembly set down 97 speakers for its 17th session today.

Former foreign minister Muhammad Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan was elected president of the assembly at its opening session Tuesday, succeeding Tunisia's Mongi Slim, who announced laughing that he had received one vote to succeed himself.

Zafrulla Khan, 69, a veteran diplomat who was represented on the Indian subcontinent in the League of Nations, received 72 votes, soundly beating his only rival, Mahaleskerwa of Ceylon, who got 27.

Ambassadors chuckled when Slim, in announcing the secret ballot vote, reported that two delegations managed to spoil their ballots and one voted for him.

The sophisticated Slim's smile set the tone for the opening session which Britain's Lord Caradon, active as the four new countries and Burundi in Africa and Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago in the Caribbean, was admitted to membership by acclamation.

WILL CONSULT WHEN MARKET TERMS KNOWN

Efforts to Obtain Safeguards Praised

LONDON (CP) — Leaders of 18 Commonwealth countries said in a communique on the conclusion of their summit conference here today that there should be consultations between the Commonwealth and Britain after the final terms for British entry into the Common Market are known.

The communique said the consultations may take place at official level, through diplomatic channels or by means of ministerial meetings.

It said the Commonwealth prime ministers "freely acknowledge the strenuous efforts which the British government have made and are now on the part of "the six" (Market nations) a full understanding of the safeguards required if Britain's entry was not to be on such terms and conditions as to impair their vital interests."

The communique came at the end of a historic Commonwealth conference into Britain's application to join the European Market.

The Commonwealth leaders expressed the hope that members of the Common Market would wish to preserve and encourage a strong and growing Commonwealth in furtherance of their own ideals of an expanding and peaceful world order.

WILL CONSIDER VIEWS

The communique said it was agreed that the applications of the Common Market are resumed the British ministers will take full account of the views expressed on behalf of other Commonwealth governments at the conference.

It said the representatives of various Commonwealth governments had expressed anxieties about the possible effects of Britain's entry into the Common Market.

"They insisted that should there be a closer association between Britain and Europe it should not be allowed to weaken the cohesion of the Commonwealth or to diminish the strength and progress in the world," it said.

The Commonwealth prime ministers drew attention to the difficulties which developing countries could give rise to in relation to their trade with Europe and with other countries.

They explained the economic points of special concern to their respective countries and the extent to which their interests had not so far been met in the Brussels negotiations on Britain's entry into the Market, the communique said.

NEXT QUESTIONS

It said the prime ministers took note that the negotiations in Brussels were incomplete, and that a large number of important questions had still to be negotiated.

"Only when the full terms were known would it be possible to form a final judgement," it said.

Fees Paid Several Times To Hold Jobs Inquiry Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Former members of the Seafarers International Union are appearing before the federal inquiry into waterfront violence and shipping disruptions.

Five seamen testified before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris Tuesday, charging high handed treatment by the Seafarers Union and testifying that they had to pay heavy union dues, even rebuilding the union and paying the $73 initiation fee several times to keep their jobs.

While their evidence differed in detail, there was a common thread that appeared himself firmly against the House dealing with anything other than a non-confidence motion.

If the government chooses to continue with the throne speech debate, it will be for Mr. Speaker to decide whether to block the government's measures.

It would be relatively simple for the Liberals to do so until a vote on the non-confidence motion is called.

United Ch. Fails to Agree On Disarmament Motion

LONDON, Oct. (CP) — The policy-setting assembly of the United Church of Canada struggled in this Tuesday night to produce an official statement on nuclear disarmament.

The church has any dependence on "megaton missiles" in its defence policy. But it rejects idea that a little sinful deterrence is essential.

Rival resolutions—both critical of self - contradictory—were referred to a committee of the chief protagonists with instructions to find a compromise acceptable to the 300 general council delegates.

Council meantime raised a near-unanimous voice in support of the world-government movement. The support for "the gradual and increasing transference of national sovereignty" to international organizations like the United Nations and the World Court.

Earlier, the assembly decided to commission a study of denominational influence and state control in Canadian education, with reference to changes in the population ratio between Roman Catholics and Protestants.

The formal resolution on disarmament was offered to council as a careful compromise hammered out by the 48-member church committee on international affairs.

Its four "whereas" clauses and its four "therefores" were attacked as weak and meaningless by the backers of the different substantive rival resolution's three premise clauses and two-part statement came under fire in turn as self-contradictory.

The first noted that war as a means of settling international dispute is sin and called for a Canadian defence policy that will "protect the proven values of a Christian society both by our efforts as a nation and in such combined operations as NATO to the end that any potential aggressor with war-like intentions may be stopped."

The rival resolution, proposed

Seized By Nine Mental Patients In Bordeaux Jail

Two Held as Hostages For Eight-Hour Period

MONTREAL (CP)—An eight-hour ordeal for two Bordeaux Jail guards ended when they daringly leaped four stories to freedom.

The guards were seized Tuesday night by nine mental-wing prisoners who threatened to stick them down from the fourth tier of cells unless their demands were met by jail officials.

Roland Chabot, father of seven children, and Gaston Mercier, a bachelor, leaped into firemen's canvas nets spread below when the prisoners' fury momentarily lapsed.

Both were taken to St. Luke Hospital, one with a dislocated shoulder and the other weeping from shock. Guards subdued the prisoners with tear gas and clubs and three prisoners were sent to infirmary.

Jail Governor Albert Tanguay said the prisoners grabbed one of the guards by one arm as he jumped and tried to haul him back up, but he struggled, they lost their grip and he plunged 50 feet into the asphalt courtyard below.

WERE DANGEROUS

The prisoners, all described as dangerous, were identified as Jean Parizer, Henri Lalonde, Francis Roland, Emile Royer and Normand Thouin.

Others were identified only as Toucette, Bernl, Cloutier and Chartrand.

Tanguay said Theroux and Poirier apparently were the ringleaders.

Lalonde is serving a life term for the murder of his parents 10 years ago.

Tanguay said the prisoners had one knife among them. They grabbed the two guards shortly after 7 p.m. on the top floor of the mental wing and dragged them struggling to the first floor.

"I and the prison psychiatrist tried to reason with them," Tanguay said, "but they wouldn't talk to us."

The prisoners demanded that Lucien (Frenchy) Jarraud be called into an intermediary. He is a disc jockey for the French-language radio station CKVL.

RELAYS DEMANDS

Jarraud talked to the men for two and one-half hours relaying demands. Tanguay said the demands were complicated, but prisoners mainly wanted to see their own doctors instead of prison doctors and wanted more visiting privileges for their families.

They asked Jarraud to spend the night in the prison, and arrange a meeting to iron things out.

Firemen were asked to spread safety nets in case the prisoners decided to throw the guards down.

About 4 a.m. a few seconds after the nets were spread, the hostages saw a chance and dived over the railing.

Bordeaux holds more than 1,000 prisoners, 140 of them in the mental wing. The last mental-wing riots were May 19, 1961, and Dec. 12, 1960.

She Nagged Husband Into Prison But Cure Could Be Worth Price

LONDON (AP) — A pretty young wife admitted today she had nagged her husband into jail.

"I nagged, and nagged and nagged," said Mrs. Sylvia Worley, blond and 26, "and now my endless nagging has landed him in prison."

Earlier, husband Raymond Worley was convicted of dangerous driving and given a four-month sentence.

Police said they stopped Worley's car after following it for several miles and seeing it continuously sway from one side of the road to the other, terrifying other motorists.

"I suppose it was because I was exhausted," said the 34-year-old husband.

After Tuesday's trial, Mrs. Worley said in an interview at her home:

"It's all my fault. I'll never forgive myself. I'm nothing but a shrew."

She explained that she wanted her husband to take her to Torquay for the weekend. He finally gave in.

Then, she says she nags about, she said:

"I spend enough money. A two room flat with no proper kitchen. No holiday for two years. And the long hours he has to work."

Saying she planned to visit her husband in jail and to appeal to the court against his sentence, Mrs. Worley added:

"When he comes home, I'll never nag again."

RESERVES RISE BUT MUST KEEP IMPORT CURBS

Outlook Not Clear Fleming Tells Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—Justice Minister Fleming told the International Monetary Fund today that Canada has restored confidence in her economy but the outlook is not clear enough to remove the import restrictions imposed last June 24.

Estimating that Canada's official reserves of U.S. dollars and gold, which fell to about $1,100,000,000 on that critical day in June, increased to $2,350,000,000 at the end of August, the former prime minister said:

"While we are confident that our reserve position will continue to improve, it is not to be expected that the rate of improvement experienced in July and August will continue. To the extent that the crisis was magnified by speculative considerations, an early reversal of such positions was to have been expected. Confidence was restored; but subsequent increases in reserves may come more slowly.

"It is not yet clear whether and to what extent normal long-term capital movements have resumed, and insufficient time has yet elapsed for evidence of the developments in our underlying trade situation."

Students Could Get Fees Returned in Seventh Term If Marks Are Satisfactory

Students attending Belleville high schools for a seventh term will have student fees refunded if they really apply themselves to their studies.

Under secondary school regulations students who have attended high school for six full terms but still wish to continue to get their senior matriculation must be charged special student fees. These fees are $34 per month for academic students and $37 per month for other courses.

Last night at the regular monthly meeting of the Bay of Quinte High School District Board, there was a request to from two students asking that they be allowed to attend classes for a seventh term without fees being charged.

Board members ruled that the fees would still be chargeable to parents, but if the student passed all subjects or if enough subjects were passed to receive an honor graduation diploma the fees would be refunded.

STEPS UP DEADLINE

The board stepped up to August 1st the deadline for requests from students wishing to transfer to another school.

Certain boundary lines have been laid down by the board within which students are expected to attend at specific high schools.

However, under certain circumstances and when good reasons are given, approval for transfers to another school have been granted in the past and such requests have come in as late as September 1st, but the deadline has now been stepped ahead to August 1st.

Mrs. Lena Dawson has been hired full time at the Moira Secondary School cafeteria, while Mrs. Mary Brown has been retained as cafeteria assistant at BCI.

Gordon Sprague and Roscoe Hubbs have been hired as caretakers at Moira and Quinte Secondary schools respectively.

The board set up a special committee to bring in names for the replacement of Dr. J. M. McLean on the Advisory Vocational Committee.

CHAIRMAN NAMED

Dr. J. S. Barlow was named as chairman of a special purchasing committee to purchase equipment for the new addition at the Quinte Secondary school.

And until the new school addition is completed, the basement rooms at Quinte will be used as study rooms. Last night the board authorized the installation of additional lights and unit heaters at three basement rooms at Quinte.

Quinte Roofing Ltd. were given the contract for the installation of a new roof parapet at the auditorium.

And with 140 teachers now on the payroll at the three Belleville high schools, board members never seem to get around to becoming acquainted with the new staff members each year.

So yesterday they approved that steps be taken with the teachers' committee to work out social functions at which board members may meet the teachers at the various schools.

Sales and Ad Club Hears Insurance Talk

Approximately 100 members and guests assembled at Corbyns Hall on Tuesday evening when Mr. J. J. D. Brunke, C.L.U., manager of the Dominion Street branch of Mutual Life in Toronto, opened the fall season with an address to Belleville Sales and Advertising Club.

A member of Mutual Life of Canada since the late thirties, Mr. Brunke approached his subject of life insurance from the standpoint of its importance to the Canadian economy, and the future that exists for the successful insurance salesman.

"Life Insurance is one of Canada's important exports," declared Mr. Brunke, "because Canadian Life Insurance can compete with life insurance in any part of the world. "In fact," he stated, "many large insurance companies in the United States do not even attempt to place their policies in the Canadian market, and, many of those who do, have a lower rate for Canadian customers in order to meet the competition of Canadian companies."

Mr. Brunke claimed that almost half the population of Canada is insured under policies of some type which means that more than half the population of the country is affected in one way or another, by the product.

The millions of dollars collected in premiums each year from Canadian policyholders are poured back into the economy in many forms, explained the speaker, through the purchase of securities, government bonds, mortgages, debentures and other forms of investments. In addition to these forms of investment, insurance companies also provide funds for research in many fields.

The speaker outlined why Canadian insurance companies needed Canadian as ideal country for the "manufacturer of life insurance. Reasons for this included: healthy climate, well developed population, greatly stable governments, strong family units and generally high standards. He also referred to the fact that insurance companies' activities are constantly under government supervision to ensure their ability to remain liquid and in a position to meet their obligations.

The speaker concluded his remarks by outlining the benefits accruing to any ambitious person who chose the field of life insurance sales.

Sister of OBC Head Killed Near Paris

Miss Ruth L. Nightingale, principal of the Ontario Business College here, is still leaving for England on Friday, after receiving news that her sister, Mrs. Norman Cutler, formerly Miss Florence Marjorie Nightingale, had been fatally injured in an automobile accident, near Paris, France.

Her husband, Norman Cutler, is reported to be in critical condition in hospital there.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutler, of Langley, Worcestershire, England, had motored to France on a holiday and were a few miles from Paris when the accident occurred. Their three children were not with them at the time.

Mrs. Cutler will be taken back to Langley for burial. Mrs. Cutler visited with her sister, Miss Nightingale, here last year.

Judo Class Nearly Full

Many Belleville youths from 12 to 15 years of age will be learning the finer points of Judo this season, as the YMCA it was reported by "Y" physical director Joe Ruddy this morning. The Judo class, which meets every Monday evening from 6:45 to 8:00 o'clock, has almost a full registration, but a few vacancies still exist for lads wishing to take part. Instruction is given in this ancient Japanese sport by Ron Pasie and John Denis.

Mr. Rose said that Feeley was making this objection to each and every question without the necessity of formally taking the objection each time.

Unattached Persons' Club Is Organized

A small but enthusiastic group met last night in the Recreation Centre to discuss forming a 20 Club in Belleville. It was decided by those present to visit the Kingston Club as they have upwards of two members to discuss this program.

The 20 Club is for unattached persons between the ages of 21 and 40 and includes single, widows, widowers, divorcees, and married persons. Initial plans are for holding monthly meetings.

Winter Works Program Will Start Oct. 15

Although the employment picture in the Belleville area is marginally improved over the same period last year, plans are already going about for this year's winter works program.

The county winter works committee held its first meeting yesterday at the employment office and has announced October 15th as the starting date for this year's works program.

"The local welfare and employment picture is slightly better this year, but that is no reason for us to let back," stated Cecil Hiluer, local employment office manager. "We must always work to improve our local situation."

WELL ATTENDED

Yesterday's meeting was attended by Mr. Hiuser and Vern Munroe, representing the employment office; George Whitman, city welfare administrator and committee chairman; Fred Barlow, The Ontario Intelligencer; Hanover Macdonald, CJBQ; Herbert Peterson, representing labor; Earl Dickenson, chamber of commerce; Ald. Joseph Rayeroft, representing the city public works department and county representatives Warden Harold Warty and Verne McMurray.

Purpose of the winter works program was to find "jobs, now" and "do it now" phases were outlined at the meeting.

Mr. Whitman said the committee's main purpose was to encourage winter works wherever possible with special emphasis on the winter municipal works.

Illegal Baiting
Moira River Hunting Area Posted, Closed by Mounties

Royal Canadian Mounted Police closed and posted an illegally baited duck-hunting area on the Moira River near Foxboro yesterday.

Roughly the area is located about halfway between the CNR bridge at Foxboro and the Highway No. 14 bridge.

RCMP Corporal R. J. L. Bush, acting on information laid by Lands and Forests conservation officer George Warner, said that both sides of the river in the area have been closed to hunting.

Two illegally-baited blinds were discovered by the officers on the Moira River at the time.

Map-wise the area is located one and two-thirds miles upstream from the CNR bridge and eight tenths of a mile downstream from the mouth of Crystal Creek.

Discovery of the illegally-baited blinds ended the effective duck season for the Foxboro district. They have, it was stated, reason to believe other areas in the district have been baited illegally.

It was further stated that illegally-baited areas will be closed and posted for the indefinite period.

However, closed areas will be revisited at a later date when in the opinion of the investigating officers, the bait will have disappeared.

If there is no sign of illegal feed, the area will be opened again. If there is evidence that new bait has been deposited, the area will be closed for the season.

Corporal Grainge said that three cases on the leased property of the Belleville Fish and Game Club (Operation Greenhead) have been officially posted and closed as legally-baited areas.

The ponds will be under the close surveillance of the mounted police force at all times, where service will be held on Thursday, September 20th, at 9:30 p.m. Reverend L. A. Page officiating.

Finishes Patchwork Quilt On Eve of 88th Birthday

Making old fashioned patchwork quilts will never go out of style as long as women like Mrs. Anne Masterson, 107 Humewood Drive, retain their nimble fingers.

Mrs. Masterson is celebrating her 88th birthday today and as a present for a lucky member of her large family, last night completed another quilt, - the fifth this year.

She also has the patchwork tops for three or four other quilts all ready to put together.

Former resident of the Stoco area where she and her husband, the late Joseph Masterson, raised their family of 13 children, Mrs. Masterson for the past 15 years has lived with her daughter Mrs. Leona Purcell.

The first break in her family of 13 adult children, six boys and six girls came a few weeks ago with the death of a son Fred. She has 45 grandchildren and 72 great grandchildren.

Four Awarded $23,305 Total Due Accident

Damages in the amount of $23,305.86 were assessed against John Joseph Ryan of Harold by Mr. Justice G. A. Gale at the Supreme Court of Ontario here, on Tuesday afternoon, as the result of a motor vehicle accident in May of 1961 in which Mr. William George Perkins, 70, of Campbellford, was fatally injured.

The jury, after deliberating for some time, returned to the courtroom, with their verdict, finding Mr. Ryan totally negligent.

The jury said he was proceeding at an excessive rate of speed under the circumstances and that he was not keeping a proper lookout. He did not allow the deceased's vehicle half of the road and he had the last opportunity to avoid a collision but failed to take advantage of it. The Whitton vehicle, driven by the deceased, was damaged beyond repair.

Evidence introduced to the court was that on May 31, 1961, about 8.15 in the evening, the deceased, Mr. William G. E. Whitton, was driving his motor vehicle west on concession road No. 6 in the Township of Seymour, about one half a mile west of the Hastings - Northumberland county line, accompanied by Wilbert Patrick Whitton, a farmer in Seymour township, and Edwin S. Boxall of Hamilton.

The Whitton vehicle was in collision with an eastbound vehicle driven by Mr. Ryan. The accident took place at the top of a steep hill.

Mrs. Marie M. Whitton, wife of the deceased, George William Patrick Whitton, was awarded $13,600 under her four year-old-son, Randy William Whitton, for admitting such.

As a result of the collision, Wilbert George Whitton sustained serious injuries including shock, concussion, multiple lacerations of the face and head, a multiple fracture of the jaw and severe internal injuries. Mr. Whitton was awarded $2,404.05.

Mr. Boxall of Hamilton, the second passenger in the deceased's vehicle was also seriously injured. He suffered shock, concussion, multiple abrasions, lacerations to both legs and internal injuries. Mr. Boxall was awarded $2,262.80.

Adjourn Hearing On Charge of Stealing Shoes

TRENTON: In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Thomas McMechan, 37, of Trenton, pleaded not guilty to a charge of stealing a pair of men's black shoes (value $6.98) from the Bata Shoe Company of Canada. After hearing evidence Magistrate T. Y. Wills enlarged the case for two weeks, to allow McMechan to call witnesses.

At the start of the hearing, McMechan told the magistrate that he had contacted his lawyer yesterday morning and that since he (McMechan) couldn't pay the lawyer's fee at the moment, he would like to have the hearing delayed.

"That's very interesting," observed the magistrate. "The person I see about having a hearing laid over is me, not your lawyer. The Crown has witnesses here. Are you prepared to pay these witnesses $13.50 for coming here today?"

"I haven't got thirteen dollars," said the accused.

Then said you had been employed," persisted Magistrate Wills. "Why haven't you got any money?"

"I worked at Bata for 11 months," answered the accused.

"I really don't see why that should be a reason for you not having any money," said the magistrate. The Crown is ready to proceed today and we'll go ahead. There's a limit to what you can do."

Police Chief Frank Loso of Batawa testified that McMechan had admitted taking the shoes when questioned.

"Did I say I took the shoes or did I say I was going to take the blame for taking the shoes?" the chief was asked by McMechan, conducting his own cross-examination.

Testifying in his own behalf McMechan told the court that after the shoes had been found in Wayne Menzies' car, parked in the Bata Shoe lot, Chief Loso had offered both of them to understand that one of them "had to take the blame for taking the shoes". Chief Loso had told them, said McMechan, that if neither admitted taking the shoes, both would "go home". He said that the chief had added that if one of them admitted taking the shoes, the other one would "go home" and that he had decided at this point to confess to taking the shoes as "I had more bills than I had". Later, McMechan said he had refused to sign a statement at the Trenton police station, as he had been given to understand that "you shouldn't sign anything that wasn't true", and he said a statement saying that he had taken the shoes, wouldn't have been true.

Several cases where town residents had neglected to buy licences for their dogs, were heard, Carl Charlton, assessor, appearing for the Crown in cases heard in court. Two cases were enlarged; two dismissed and other owners fined $5 and ordered to pay $3 costs.

Two Convicted Of Fraud Now Out on Bail

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two Toronto businessmen, convicted of conspiracy to defraud, have been released on bail pending the outcome of their latest appeal.

D. Robert Cox was released Tuesday and Hugh Paton the day before, each on $35,000 security bail.

They are appealing convictions and sentences for fraud and allied charges to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Last fall they were each given seven years in jail after conviction on the charges involving Brandon Packers Limited, a firm they once owned.

But last Wednesday the Manitoba Court of Appeal upheld only charges of conspiracy to defraud and issuing a false prospectus. Their jail terms were reduced to four years.

Work of Truce Commission Outlined at Kiwanis Club

An interesting account of personal experiences and observations of life in Vietnam was enjoyed by local Kiwanians yesterday afternoon, thanks to Captain Al Durand, recently a member of the International Truce Commission in Indo-China.

The speaker advised that the commission was independent of the United Nations, having been formed by several nations and sponsored by the United Kingdom and the U.S.S.R. with the former bearing the main cost of the operation. India, Canada and Poland administer the work of the commission, whose chief goal is to stop the importation of arms and weapons into Indo-China.

An interesting account was given of the mechanics of the operation of the commission and of several experiences which pointed out how its work was frustrated by both its framework, personnel and environment. It was important, however, that war between the north and south in Vietnam was prevented by the commission and this factor was its sole redeeming quality, Capt. Durand suggested.

In observing the differences in life, especially for the peasant and working man, North Vietnam, which is communist controlled, and South Vietnam, which is a police state ruled by a dictator, Diem, supported by United States aid, Capt. Durand listed several notable facts.

Under the communists the peasant has "never had it so good" as far as being ensured a square meal every day and being taken care of—but he has to exist under forced labor and schooling administered by the communists.

In the south there is no consideration given to the welfare of the little peasant by the rulers. Much of the aid sent by the United States gets into the wrong hands and is sold or used for the benefit of corrupt government officials in the closely controlled hierarchy cadred by the Diem family, the speaker advised.

BETTER OFF

Hence, comparatively, the peasant of North Vietnam is better off than his counterpart in South Vietnam and much is being done by the Communist "technicians" to indoctrinate the people with Russian propaganda. Propaganda messages are continuously played over loud public address systems in the cities of North Vietnam each day from early morning until 11:00 p.m., he advised.

The greatest achievement of a North Vietnamese is to file a petition against the United States accusing that country of all sorts of atrocities in South Vietnam. For submitting such a petition the North Vietnamese is rewarded by the Communist government with special privileges and over four million such petitions have been filed so far, Captain Durand said.

Collectively the Vietnamese are not Communist but nationalist in their political inclination and are hoping for an unified nation which will ensure the rights of the peasant. The most popular leader of this movement, who is at present himself, is currently a Communist leader in North Vietnam, the speaker concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Dick Kuntze and thanked by club member Jim Fowler. President George Rimme conducted the meeting.

WILL CONSULT

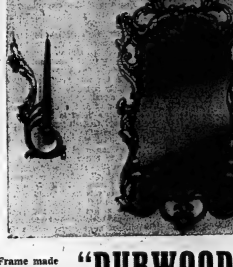
ernment's explanation of the position in Market negotiations, the communique said the representatives of other Commonwealth governments "took note of the consideration which had influenced the British government in deciding to join the Common Market if satisfactory terms could be secured."

"They recognized that after full and continuing consultations the responsibility for the final decision would rest with the British government."

The communique said some independent African countries considered association with the Common Market would not be acceptable to them.

On the other hand, Sierra Leone wished to consider further its attitude towards association.

Jamaica also wished to consider the attitude further while Trinidad and Tobago would be willing to accept association.



Ghana and Nigeria also mentioned that the federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland was willing to accept association.

It seemed likely, it added, that the majority of the present dependent territories would wish to accept association.

The representatives of India, Pakistan and Ceylon had urged that if Britain entered the Common Market, the trade agreements which they enjoyed Commonwealth countries would be the subject of negotiations with their governments should be concluded as soon as possible.

They also stated that means while no change should be made in their existing trade agreements with Britain.

Heading the Same Way?

Edward Crankshaw of the London Observer is a recognized expert on Soviet Russia. Some of the things that he has had to say in the past about the government of that country have been as harsh as a tirade by a leader of the John Birch Society. But Crankshaw's views are not unchanging. They alter because, in his opinion, the nature of the Russian government, which means of the communist party, alters.

Writing in the Toronto Globe and Mail, he refers to a recent series of articles on Poland by Patrick O'Donovan. If O'Donovan's picture of Poland provided a major surprise for readers, it could only have been because they had read little of recent articles on that country, for what O'Donovan had to say has been said by other observers. Poland, and to a lesser extent some of the other communist satellites in Eastern Europe, are countries which are building new social and economic systems, nominally communist yet far from copies of Russia in Stalinist days.

Crankshaw says that this is true not only of the satellites, but of Russia itself. Then he makes the suggestion that in the West we may be moving toward the same sort of system "for nowhere in the West today is there a true capitalistic society, in the classical sense understood and defined by Marx."

Crankshaw's suggestion will not startle some theorists, for what he suggests may be taking place is the synthesis of opposites, a well known phenomenon.

It is relatively simple for us in the West to grasp the essential reformation which the communists have to make in their system to make any such synthesis possible. It is the cherishing of individual liberty. But this is a natural yearning, old as the earliest civilizations. It ought not to be surprising if the communist society moves in this direction; it would be amazing if it did not.

As for our own changes, they are all about us. We have long since ceased to believe in laissez-faire, we have given up our insistence on economic liberty where that places too heavy a burden of poverty, or insecurity, on large sections of the population.

What is keeping us apart, of course, is distrust of each other's motives. But these motives may be changing, sometimes without us realizing it. If war can be postponed long enough, the drift of both economic systems from their original opposed positions may become so extensive that all but the fanatical and detachable will notice the change.

Another factor which may bring home to us the changes which Crankshaw sees is the opening rift between Russia and China, a rift which seems to originate in precisely the gradual change in the Russian outlook, which China, three decades behind Russia in the experience with communism, clings to doctrines now being discarded in the land where they were first tested.

It is not beyond the bounds of possibility that a generation or two hence may see the political democracies of the west and the so-called "iron democracies" under the Russian aegis uniting to meet the threat of a fanatical and expanding China.

Or, cruelest of ironies, Russia and the U.S. may eliminate each other at a time when their systems, far apart though they be, are heading towards a common objective, or at least are evolving in the same direction.

Referee

A Nationalist Chinese U-2 aircraft was shot down over the Chinese mainland Monday, according to both Nationalist and Chinese sources. The Nationalists, it appears, were quick to claim the credit in order to prevent complications between the United States and the communists.

According to the Nationalists, they have every right to fly over the Chinese mainland because it is their territory. The communists apparently, do not try to dispute the claim with words. Instead, they just do their best to shoot down any Nationalist planes that come within range.

The arrangement is admirable. The two Chinas, Nationalist and Communist, are at war. They are not allowed to attack each other openly, because the United States, which subsidizes one side, and impresses the other, stands between them with the Seventh Fleet.

The arrangement is so effective, in fact that it makes one wish there were a power large enough to stand between the United States and Russia. If they could declare war on each other, without being able to do any really serious fighting, it might be expected to keep the hotheads of each side happy, without endangering the rest of us.

Letters To The Editor

Criticizes Disavowal Of Vote 'No' Ad

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Recently R. P. Cooper inserted an advertisement in this paper advising the people of Belleville to vote "no" on the liquor question. He stated his reason for this quite plainly. I noticed it was a man's individual opinion, I presume at his own expense without affiliation to committee or society except that of his Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, which is his privilege in a democratic country.

A short time later, the vote "no" committee inserted an ad stating that Mr. Cooper's words were written without the support or approval of the said committee. It stated no reason why, nor gave any names of the members on said committee, so, who is the committee?

What was the vote "no" committee's idea?

Saturday's Ontario Intelligencer has ads for vote "no" by a church and also a minister. Will the vote "no" committee approve or disapprove?

Is the vote "no" committee simply trying to say they have no moral compunctions about liquor or just a dogmatic abstainer's idea of the evils of liquor? Or is it just one man's viewpoint?

I think the money spent in the disapproval could have been put to better use. I have said committee stuck to advertising vote "no" and if any person at an individual's request to advertise vote "no," could do so without their approval.

As a firm believer both moral and social of the inadvisability of more liquor outlets in Belleville myself at this time, I certainly shall vote "no."

Seeks Facts About Pioneer Artists

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Might I ask your assistance in the publication of this letter? I am working on a project directed to collect together information on the early artists of Canada and the memory of them has been completely lost. From various sources I have found the names of the following pioneer artists who were working in Belleville — George Brown in 1862, W. R. Gilmore in 1857, Miss G. C. Smith in 1860, Miss Fraser from 1886 to 1890, Frederick Richardson in 1880, and Wm. Windeat in 1840. Many of your readers know anything about these artists. We have they any knowledge of other early artists or sculptors who were working in the Belleville area? Any leads which they can give me would be most appreciated.

I might add that information received about Canadian artists and sculptors who were born before Confederation is to be incorporated into a dictionary which is planned for publication in 1967. It will be a real contribution to the history of one phase of the cultural life of Canada.

Fifty years ago, two communes — the "Elm Rose" and the "Reindeer" — crossed the Aldolphus (now Reach from Hastings Township to Hay Bay near Adolphustown where a hamlet was building in very dilapidated condition has been swept out for the hundredth anniversary of the first Methodist Church built in Upper Canada. It has been abandoned as a place of worship since the year 1960 and has since been used as a storehouse for grain and implements.

It was the mother church of Upper Canada Methodism, built by United Empire Loyalists in 1792 as a result of a revival of religion which made the home of Paul Huff too small. The congregation authorized the preacher, an itinerant from the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States named William Losee, to build a two-storey frame building 36 feet by 56 feet with a gallery. Paul Huff whose monument is across the road from the church, gave the land and 20 subscribers gave 120 English pounds.

In this ancient and venerable building on Saturday was celebrated the 150th anniversary of its opening, by a visit from the General Council, of the United Church as the guests of Belleville Presbytery in whose jurisdiction it lies. Rev. Dr. Morrison of Tweed presided at the service inside the ancient house of worship. The service was memorable in every way and it was evident that folk from far away and near, were aware that they stood on holy ground.

They Should Be Premiers

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

As every schoolboy knows, a great part of the British and Canadian constitutions is unwritten; that is, practices of many centuries have become accepted as law, but are nowhere to be found in the statute books.

The office of Prime Minister and the powers of the incumbent are not defined by legislation. Indeed, the most important political figure in the country is mentioned only casually in one or two statutes.

The reason, of course, is fact, it was common to hear the "first minister" referred to by the French as premier. Premier King is still heard among the older generation.)

Practice and usage, however have decreed that the head of the federal government shall go by the title of Prime Minister only. For example, we cannot recall one instance where Mr. Diefenbaker has been referred to as Premier Diefenbaker.

The latter designation has come to be associated solely with provincial leaders. In meetings the two terms are synonymous, but confining the use of one to the federal field and the other to the provincial distinguishes leaders on the two levels of government.

Unfortunately, while the Prime Minister has become the sole title in use in federal politics, three provincial premiers are giving rise to new uncertainty by adopting the term "Prime Minister" before their names. They are Leaser of Quebec, Robarts of Ontario and Bennett of British Columbia.

There may be something significant in the fact that they head the three largest provinces and that they wish to show that they are just a bit more equal than their seven other colleagues.

If any event, their lustre would not be dimmed, nor the dignity of their province diminished, if they resumed their former designations. To do so, would eliminate a source of confusion.

And it need hardly be said that our constitution is inexplicable enough as it is without needlessly adding to its mystery.

Another Lost Ancient Art

Windsor Star

One by one ancient arts are fading out, victims of technical progress. How long has it been since you saw a man strike a match on the sole of his shoe or overalls as the case might be?

The lighter, the book match and the small box with a striking area on the side have worked this change. The large box with its striking area on the end was activated by a swift stroke along rough cloth or denim has become a thing of the past, for all.

Striking a stick the old way was an art in that it called for poise and a certain amount of dexterity. Having selected a match the smoker lifted a leg for easier access to the striking surface and — "swish!" — it was gone. The wind being favorable, one match might suffice. Breezy days demanded a lot of balancing.

Has the change to simpler ignition methods been for the better? Have, for instance, the interests of safety been better served? Perhaps not, if the annual forest fire loss is a gauge.

Strictly Personal

Co-operation Is Key Word To Invention

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

My recent piece on the "100 percent American" and his drive a few indignant litters drew a few indignant litres from star-s-p-a-n-g-l-e-d readers. Most of them rebuked me for ignoring America's traditional "inventive genius" in modern times.

So far as it can be determined, America's chief claim to fame is industrial, not scientific. It is true that the construction and development of the mass-production system has revolutionized industry throughout the world.

Rasenoff's "History of American Invention" discloses that Robert Fulton's "invention" of the steamboat was anticipated by about 20 steamers built in England and on the Continent.

Very little of the automobile turns out to be American. Isaac de Rivaz built one in Switzerland in 1807; Lenoir built one in 1860, and Richard Marcus drove a gas-driven car in Vienna in 1875, until the police stopped it for reckless-ness. Daimler and Benz developed cars in Germany between 1885 and 1886.

Four-wheel brakes were invented by the Lancia firm in 1904. The Italian Lancia had "independent" as early as 1922. The straight-eight engine was introduced by Isotta-Fraschini in Italy about the same time, and from De Dion and Bouton in 1907. France.

"The American car is American," points out Kaempffert, "only in its methods, production methods and not because it is American in mechanical concept."

Similarly, in aviation, telegraphy, the cinematograph, pictures, steelmaking, incandescent lamps, the reaper, the cotton gin, the Bessemer process, the photoelectric cell, and even television — which the American first made practical in 1928.

Even the most impressive of modern scientific achievements — the splitting of the atom — was "American" only by adoption: the genius of a dozen different men, working independently for it, beginning with the equal, Lise Meitner, a German refugee living in Switzerland, and ending with the work of Enrico Fermi, an Italian refugee who emigrated here. Sciatica Is Enough to Ruin Any Person's Disposition

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about the sciatic nerve, the causes of its inflammation, and its treatment? Is this ailment ever cured completely, without danger of recurrence? — L.M.

The sciatic nerve has at its back of the thigh. The nerve emanates from the lower part of the spinal cord.

Pain in the trunk of this nerve is sciatica. Too often the term is loosely used for any pain in the leg. True sciatica is identified by tenderness over the nerve and other such signs.

The pain is variable, but it can be excruciating, and at such times it is enough to ruin anybody's disposition. Sufferers have my sympathy.

I remember quite a few years ago that a prominent actor, while appearing in a stage comedy, was in sheer misery from sciatica. He asked those who knew about it not to inform the audience because knowledge of his problem might take some of the fun out of the show for them. Doubtless he was right.

There are three major categories of sciatica.

One is infection of the nerve, a neuritis.

The second, metabolic disorders, such as diabetes or gout.

The third, and perhaps commonest, is some mechanical irritation of the nerve at its point of origin. A defective or "ruptured" spinal disc, some severe varus of the spine or bad posture are all possibilities, but these usually involve more than only one side.

For the pain is on both sides, the physician makes a careful investigation of the possibilities of a metastasized cancer or a tumor's affecting the spinal cord.

Men suffer more often from sciatica, but women sometimes are found in whom large pelvic tumors pressing on the nerve.

Heat, large doses of Vitamin B and pain-relieving medications are the principle temporary treatments. In some cases it is even necessary to resort to narcotics.

The permanent treatment, naturally, is dictated by whatever is present to be the basic cause. For one person antibiotics may be the answer to conquering infection, while for another it might, for example, be a specially made brace for the back which will take the pressure off the nerve.

If the cause can be corrected, the pain is ended permanently. As in recurrence: If something bothers the nerve, it will hurt. When conditions are normal, it behaves.

Cannot Keep Puff Secret

Stratford Beacon-Herald

It's getting harder and harder to hide anything from anybody.

Medical scientists have now found a way to keep up on the patients who do a little secret smoking, after they've been ordered by doctors not to smoke. The case being held under observation includes never did have much chance to get away with, a secret drag on a fag, unless he could persuade the nurses not to squeal on him. From now on it is also going to be tough for the case that is out of hospital, and reports to the physician prior to even necessary to resort to narcotics.

Man Declines 'Big Fat Job'

Vancouver Sun

There's a big fat job at City Hall, all packaged and waiting for the architect and builder, Mr. Hickstone. It pays $16,440 a year, and Mr. Pickstone doesn't even nearly that much now. It pays $3,000 or $4,000.

The job is that of director of the planning department. Mr. Pickstone has turned it down. He says quite frankly he doesn't want to be boss. We say hurrah for Mr. Pickstone.

Too often these days, the symbol of success is the number of people you have around or instruct, or govern, or dictate to.

"I have a staff of 200," says the successful executive, he means he's a man of standard and tranquilizers.

There are probably more ulcers among employees trying to be boss than there are among bosses trying to hold onto what they have.

That's why we say hurrah to Harry Pickstone.

He's happy as a good, efficient, well-oiled machine.

He doesn't want to boss anyone or anything, except his own happy life.

More power to him.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At our lunch table, we were talking about our holidays the other day and I noticed a bit of his disappointment on returning to a resort hotel he had visited several years, until four years ago.

"It had gone down terribly," he said. "The same people were operating it. But it was shabby; sort of worn out."

He others described similar experiences. A bank manager in our group then related that a few years back he had managed a bank in a small town in the resort area.

"I had numerous dealings with the people who run summer hotels and camps," he said. "Hardly any of them were business people. They had only the haziest notion of business. They invested all their capital and maybe all their relatives' and friends' capital in their attractive lodge. Anybody of imagination can dream up a beautiful lodge. Once they then proceeded to live on the income, letting nothing or very little flow back into the capital investment in way of maintenance, upkeep, repairs. In the course of a few years the place was so run down that the income dwindled to the point that it was no longer sufficient for the needs, let alone maintaining any renovation. That is the story of too many summer hotels and camps. It takes a real business head to run a resort profitably."

1,400-Pound Bull Moose Shot in North

PICTON — A bull moose weighing 1,400 pounds attracted much attention in Picton yesterday. It was shot in the north by a hunting party of Roy Crook, George Cooper, Jack Raycroft and Harry Marshall. Cole Bros., butchers who are dressing the animal, stated that it was one of the fattest moose they had ever seen. The party also got a 500-lb. black bear.

Several Cases Of Rabies Are Reported

PICTON — Several cases of rabies are reported in Prince Edward County. M.O.H. Dr. W. N. Turpel advises children to stay away from wild animals which may approach.

Bob May, R.R. 8, Picton, reported a fox shot in the barn on the farm there. It had bit a sow. It had also scuffled with a dog and this animal was shot and buried.

A cow in a herd owned by Noah Trumble, Bethel, became lame and went dry. Rabies was suspected and a government test proved the suspicion correct. Earlier it had been bitten by a fox which was beaten off by a neighbor, Cecil Thompson.

In Ameliasburg township, a fox believed to be rabid, attacked a cat and got away. Hunters failed to locate it. The cat was destroyed.

Varied Program At Picton Fair This Weekend

The opening parade Thursday afternoon is expected to see 2,000 school children march. That night, there is a colorful horse show under lights.

Friday night, sees death tempted as Paul Riddell's car and motor cycles put on a spine tingling dare devil show in front of grandstand.

Saturday afternoon has horse races and jumpers.

With a big entry of horses and ponies, these are judged each afternoon, with the Black and White Holstein day on Friday.

Of interest to ladies is the cooking school held Thursday night, Friday and Saturday afternoons in the Agricultural Centre on the grounds. Many prizes are to be awarded and there is no charge for admission.

Women's Canadian Club Now Accepting Members

The executive of the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville and district met on Thursday evening last under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. H. Forrester, to finalize plans for the 1962-63 term.

The membership campaign chairman, Mrs. W. S. Wills stated that the campaign was under way and that the fee would remain at $3.50 per member, also that gentlemen would be welcome to attend any lecture and the charge would be 50 cents for each lecture.

Membership is open to all ladies in the area and the above-mentioned fee may be forwarded to Mrs. W. S. Wills, 3 Eastwood Park Dr., Belleville together with name and address, or may be paid at the door, at the first meeting, or any subsequent meeting. Assisting on the campaign is Mrs. J. G. Demeza, 1st vice-president; Mrs. Gordon Bailey, Stirling, and Miss Hazel Farley, Trenton. Mrs. B. E. Burley, 3rd vice-president is in charge of publicity.

The annual dinner meeting under the convenorship of Mrs. Bruce Kerr, will be held at Hotel Quinte in November and the speaker will be Miss Angela M. Armitt, an Associate Professor, Extension Department, Western University.

Mrs. A. S. McConnell, 2nd vice-president reported that all meetings, except the dinner meeting, would be held at Queen Alexandra School at 8:15 p.m.

To open the 1962-63 series the Club is fortunate to have secured as guest speaker, Gordon A. Friesen, internationally known consultant in hospital work, whose topic "Building the Hospital of Tomorrow, Today" is most timely and certainly will be of much interest to the residents of Belleville and area. Mr. Friesen it will be recalled was Administrator of Belleville General Hospital some years ago.

Also included in the series will be such distinguished and well known personages as Mme. Rose-Desmeul Victor Odlum, Grant Mac Ewan, Ethel Brant Monture, Brig. Stephen Longridge.

What Is The Canadian Club? It is simply a number of people in a town who meet at intervals at luncheon or dinner, or in the afternoon or evening to hear distinguished Canadians or visitors from other countries speak on issues of national or international importance. Canadian Clubs try to get a large audience that represents a cross-section of the community who can feel welcome just to come and listen, without being embarrassed if they have no time to do service work. Such an audience provides a forum of Canadian citizens, representing all political and religious faiths and a wide range of social and economic viewpoints.

Japanese Women Find It Pays to Be Inventive

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japanese women have found that it pays to be inventive.

More and more Japanese housewives, working women and students are applying for patents for their inventions, most of them new gadgets for household or nursing use.

Six prize-winning inventions and 90 others chosen from 327 entered were displayed at the 12th annual women inventors' exhibition in Tokyo this summer.

They included piano pedals for children who cannot reach ordinary piano pedals; a knock-down chair for tots which can also be used as a bed; and a bag which could be folded into more than 10 different shapes and sizes with the help of zippers.

According to the Japanese Inventors' Association, 40 per cent of the exhibitors are filing applications for patent rights compared with only a few up to last year.

The number of exhibitors this year, too, was 30 per cent higher than last year.

MONEY COMES IN

The two top prize-winners at last year's exhibition have already made money from their ideas.

Masako Yoshioka, a 30-year-old college student, invented a device to ease the glare from the headlights of oncoming motor cars. It consists of a plastic sheet attached to the inside of a windscreen by suction disks.

The other prize winner, Mrs. Mizuko Shinozuka, now is a partner in a company producing her inventions.

Her best-selling idea if a porcelain cigarette case consisting of a collage and a dog standing on a piece of lumber.

The collage holds cigarettes and the dog has its mouth open. When the head of the dog is pushed down, the lumber revolves and pulls out the floor of the cottage. The dog picks up a cigarette in its mouth and resumes an upright position.

INDUSTRIAL NATION

About 40 per cent of Great Britain's civilian labor force is employed in the mining and manufacturing industries, four per cent in agriculture and fish. eries.

ASSEMBLY

by former church moderator J. S. Thomson of Montreal, declared that "the use of megaton missiles in war is contrary to the will of God" and said nuclear defence policy "should be such as to support an opposition to the use of all weapons of massive destructive power."

Opponents of the Thomson motion pointed out that it removed the NATO deterrent cause of the original.

"All the other questions we face in this council of an ethical nature fade into insignificance before the threat of atomic war," Dr. Thomson said.

He attacked the first resolution's promise that the nuclear arms race "imposes an intolerable burden on nations including even the most wealthy ones" as an inadequate premise for a Christian statement on disarmament.

"If we could get them for cheap, would it make it any better?" he asked in his Scottish brogue.

CRITICIZES STAND

Rev. George W. Goth of London described the committee's resolution as "wrenching" and seconded the Thomson statement for "speaking the message of the New Testament."

Rev. C. R. Catto, a missionary delegate from Northern Rhodesia, said Dr. Thomson's proposal would help the people in his mission field, who have trouble reconciling the idea that the message of the Cross and Holocaust both come from the Christian countries.

"One person who would like to have Dr. Thomson's resolution passed is Nikita Khrushchev," said lay delegate N. E. Jackson of Hobbema, Alta., amid groans of disapproval from some delegates.

Moderator James R. Mutchmor, secretary of the international affairs committee, proposed the attempt at a compromise between the two resolutions.

"Just over the hill is Russia," he said. "I'm not a John Bircher, but there is very great power in the U.S.S.R. They have some as high as 50 megatons . . . This is a terrible thing but talking won't make it go away"

In any case, he added, the Polaris-equipped submarines of the United States "have made obsolete having nuclear weapons on anybody's soil."

EXAMINE EDUCATION

Earlier, council approved the appointment of a special commission to examine "the extent to which . . . there may have been encroachment upon the rights confirmed by the Canadian constitution" in attempts to "compromise" between state-controlled and parsily denominational education.

Rev. Ernest R. Long, permanent secretary of the council, said the study was proposed by the executive in recognition that "the United Church needs a well-founded philosophy of education." The Roman Catholic Church, he added, already has "an excellent and well-articulated policy on education."

RESERVES RISE

leaders of 82 countries attending the fund's annual conference, Fleming declared that part of the big rise in Canada's reserves included $600,000,000 in borrowings from the fund, the U.S. federal reserve system and the Bank of England.

"Our reserves . . . are still considerably below a desirable level. We cannot yet take the view that our balance of payments problem is solved or that we can yet dispense with the emergency measures we adopted in June."

But Fleming said he wanted to emphasize that the higher tariffs of five to 15 per cent are "strictly temporary." The Canadian government has pledged to the fund and to member countries of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade "that these surcharges will be removed just as soon as our balance of payments and our reserve position permit."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker also had pledged in imposing the June 26 austerity program that the temporary measures would be replaced in time by a constructive, long-term program of maintaining Canadian stability.

"For the longer-term," Fleming said, "we know we must rely on positive and constructive measures designed to bring about a basic improvement in Canada's competitive position.

FIXED CAPITAL IMPORTS

"We shall, of course, continue to need some capital imports and we will ensure a climate acceptable to foreign investment in our country. But we must aim at continuing improvement in our current international accounts."

Centre piece of the government's longer-range program would be maintenance of the existing dollar exchange rate, pegged at 92.5 cents in terms of U.S. currency, Fleming said.

"We believe it (the rate) is already showing beneficial effects. We fully recognize, however, that we cannot rely on the exchange rate to achieve all that has to be done."

The government now is making a thorough study of the whole spectrum of Canada's international transactions in order to assess all possible courses of constructive action."

More would be said by the government "about all these matters" after Parliament reassembles Sept. 27, the minister added.

McNAUGHTON — SEXSMITH

Baskets of red and white gladioli formed a lovely setting in St. John's United Church, Tweed on Saturday, September 1st, 1963 when Joyce Marie Sexsmith, Toronto daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Sexsmith, Tweed, was united in marriage to Melvin Francis McNaughton, Minett, Ontario, son of Mrs. Fred Robbins, Bracebridge, Ontario and the late Mr. Edward Francis McNaughton. The Rev. James A. Payton, pastor of the church officiated.

Mr. Fred Porter, organist of the church, rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Miss Gwen Lea, Tweed, in her renditions of the "Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father was radiant in a traditional floor-length bridal gown and train of white peau de sole satin, featuring a fitted bodice with scooped neckline trimmed with French appliques and this design followed along the chapel train. Her headdress was a halo of seed pearls with scalloped and appliqued silk net veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor was Miss Jean Buchanan Reg. N., of Toronto, who wore a peacock blue dress of peau de sole satin, fashioned similarly to the bride's gown, at street-length. Her headdress was of matching material in the double tiny bows adorned with pearls and she carried a crescent shaped bouquet of white and peacock blue tinted 'mums. Miss Barbara Sexsmith, Toronto, sister of the bride, and Miss Audrey Jones, Belleville, cousin of the bride were bridesmaids and wore dresses and accessories identical to the maid of honor.

Little Miss Beverley Ann Lester, Willowdale, niece of the bridegroom was flower girl. Her dress was of peau de sole satin over-skirt featuring a peacock blue cummerbund. Her headdress was of matching peau de sole satin over-skirt featuring a peacock blue cummerbund. Mr. Beverly McNaughton, Maxville, Ontario attended his brother, while Mr. Ken Jones of Lindsay, uncle of the bride, and Mr. Keith Goonsest, Port Carling, cousin of the bride were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Stoco Lake Hotel where the banquet room was appropriately decorated with pink and white streamers large baskets of red and white gladioli, and the bridal table centred with traditional three-tier wedding cake. The mother of the bride received the guests wearing a champagne beige dress of peau de sole, enhanced with lace bodice; champagne beige shoes, gloves and purse, and a cerise colored hat of velvet and satin in petal design and a corsage of cerise rosebuds. She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom who was attired in a dusty rose lace dress, with white accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds. Guests were entertained at the bride's home immediately following the ceremony.

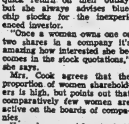
Four Women Hold Top Posts in Brokerage Firms

TORONTO (CP)—Stock markets are normally considered a strictly male preserve, but four Toronto women have proved their sex can compete successfully.

This four—Helen Revett, Ruth Hayden, Isabel Bradbury and Violet Cook—hold top positions with brokerage firms on the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Most of their clients are men, but they agree that women investors are on the increase. In fact, housewives are the largest single group of owners on the exchange.

Miss Bradbury says most girls who come to her want a quick return on their outlay but she always advises blue-chip stocks for the inexperienced investor.



"Once a women owns one or two shares in a company it's amazing how interested she becomes in the stock quotations," she says.

Mrs. Cook agrees that the proportion of women shareholders is high, but points out that comparatively few women are active on the boards of companies.

How does a girl go about making a career of stock-broking?

Toronto's four female brokers agree that a high - school diploma plus a business school training should be the absolute minimum of education. After that a girl would have to be prepared to start at the bottom and work her way up.

This is how Miss Revett, Miss Hayden, Mrs. Cook and Miss Bradbury started—among them they have 147 years experience in the business.

A little borax added to both rinse and final water will remove the soap or detergent residue which causes diaper rash. It also leaves things soft and fluffy for baby's tender skin.

Loafing on Labor Day

by Mary Moore

My sister-in-law's sister-in-law is a particular cook. When Nellie quietly described a Sultana loaf cake she had made to take North I knew it was good, and straightaway asked for the recipe.

After we were all back from Muskoka the recipe arrived in the mail. Over the Labor Day weekend I made three different cakes from it, starting with the Sultana variation. Then I tried the same, better adding sliced maraschino cherries instead of raisins. The third variation was a seed cake using caraway. All were successes. The fruits and seeds stayed suspended in the batter, glory-be.

I think you remember, still bless your cook-friend Mary for this highclass loaf cake with three variations. You could leave out the fruit or seeds if you would prefer a plain pound-type cake.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Calves' Liver with Steam-Fried Sliced Italian Onions; Buttered Noodles; Medley of Kernel Corn, Green Peas and Pimiento; Individual Dessert Salads: Bartlett Pear Stuffed with Nut-Coated Cheese Balls, Pineapple Crescents, Tiny Green Grape Clusters, Fruit Cream Dressing; Cheese and Sugar Twists (see Monday); Coffee.

SULTANA LOAF
(With variations)

1-4 lb. (1 cup) butter or margarine (room temperature), 1-1-4 cups white sugar, 3 large eggs, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 1-2 cups low 2 level measuring tablespoons all-purpose flour (stirred but not sifted — see note below); 1-3 cup milk, juice and grated rind 1 large lemon, 1 1-2 cups Sultana raisins.

Cream butter and sugar together until light, then beat in eggs, one at a time. Add grated lemon rind and juice and raisins. Add the baking powder to the carefully measured flour and add them alternately with the milk to the creamed mixture in 2 additions of each. Beat with wooden spoon until batter is smooth. Line a standard loaf pan, 9-1-2" x 5 x 2 1-4" with buttered wax paper. Turn batter in, pressing it into corners to make it level. Bake 1 hour and 25 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr., having loaf pan at centre of rack at centre of oven.

Note — Please do not temper with the amount of flour. The cake cracks a little on top every time but if you start to adjust the amount of flour or liquid the density of the batter would be changed and solids might fall.

Variations — (1) Substitute dried, sliced and dried maraschino cherries for the raisins and omit lemon rind for Cherry Cake, use 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

(2) Add 2 tablespoons caraway (or poppy) seeds and omit fruit and grated ring for Seed cake, use 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

Please see recipes for fruit breads next week.

Emanuel G. — She's too serious about her music. Her time belongs to the home.

Shirley G. — I've been told I have enough talent for a career in music. He should be glad.

Emanuel G. — My wife has let a lot of careless flattery go to her head. She's convinced that she's another Lily Pons and that nothing must stand in her way toward the Metropolitan Opera House.

Well, the first thing in her way is me! And next comes our three children. Only two of them are in school. The baby is three years old. But suddenly Shirley is all wound up about a career. Up to now her singing was just a pastime, a hobby. But now she has a singing teacher coming to the house twice a week. He's a character from right out of the comic page, one of those Latin-lover types.

The truth is, her voice is nothing special. Also, I don't need the money she says she can earn performing. And incidentally I don't want her throwing out my good money on all those lessons. She has all she can do now taking care of the children and our home.

Shirley G. — I think I have a right to follow through on a chance for a career. Many know I had a deep interest in singing when he married me. I used to entertain at our friends' homes and at amateur concerts. As long as I regarded it as a hobby, he took the whole matter lightly. He let me attend concerts and take a few sessions of lessons at a music school. But now that I'm serious, he keeps thinking up new objections.

If I'm as good as I've been told I am by people whose opinion I respect, then I'd like to train for a recital and get some professional criticism — not just the smackers and cold water my husband hands out.

In our ten years of marriage I've been patient and a good wife and mother. But now that two of the children are in school, I see nothing wrong with having my teacher come to the house. The lessons take place during the baby's nap.

The Council: Evidently what gets one member of this family frustrated (we mean Emanuel) lulls another member into hours of peaceful slumber (we mean the baby). So there must be more to this debate about Shirley's singing than meets the ear!

There's no doubt that certain fears are now assailing Emanuel, else he'd be glad that his wife was keeping alive an "outside" interest. All good wives are being constantly advised to do their very ingle as a hedge against becoming too child-centred and having nothing challenging to do when the children are grown and the home releases her. So what's really worrying this husband?

Can it be that he's afraid Shirley may actually be very gifted and may some day no longer "need" him as her provider? Does he require a wife he can dominate? And do the singing lessons represent the loosening of his hold on Shirley?

His arguments are ridiculous. In one breath he says money is no problem to him, he doesn't need what she might earn. But then he doesn't want Shirley to "throw out" his money on her lessons. A quick answer to that one would be for Shirley to accept modest engagements (if she can get them) to sing at weddings, to join a choir, to participate in music clubs — where the fees would take care of the tuition.

Emanuel's other kick, about the teacher coming to the house, sounds lame to us. Would he rather have Shirley hire a baby-sitter and leave the house for her instruction? Her solution is ingenious, for it permits her to remain on the premises, a-t reduce his gripes — by one!

RAYING OUT in the yard is popular with everybody, but a lot of extra lar work for you. Children who are old enough can carry out their own kitchen-enjoyed food on a tray all set with a place mat, and use the same tray to take their dishes back to the kitchen. One extra advantage managed tray can hold beverages and s-n-k- ...

tentive to her duty and, at the same time, reach out for the "pleases" beyond.

To make her venture smoother for Emanuel, Shirley must allay his fears of losing her, and of losing out to her in their present competitive relationship. She must remember he didn't marry her to make a coloratura out of her. He married her to have a lover and a partner. It may pay her to switch the lessons to the evening so Emanuel can keep an eye on that "Latin-lugubrious, for it permits her to lover type" teacher. That may remain on the premises, a-t reduce his gripes — by one!

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My problem is my husband's parents. They were wonderful to me before we were married so when we married, we bought our own little house and moved it onto the rented farm in the same yard with them. My husband and his Dad farm together.

Then they started telling me what to do all the time, and it got continually worse.

We fought, and finally moved out. I was really happy. Then as winter came and it was so far for my husband to go to do chores, we moved back.

Now his Mum cooks the meat for both houses and often the vegetables. My husband can't see anything wrong with this. We get along fine except we argue about his parents a lot. He thinks they are right.

I can't go on much longer not being able to have a life of my own. Please tell me what to do.—UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY—My crystal ball tells me things can only get worse. You are too close for comfort—ever.

You must run your own home, cook your own meals, raise your children yourself. Have a real showdown and insist on moving away. Insist.

SELECTING THE RIGHT COSTUME JEWELRY

Diamonds are supposed to be a girl's best friend, but few of us can afford such expensive companions.

Most of us are on closer terms with the types of gems on sale in the costume jewelry counters. But, when chosen with taste and worn with discretion, they still make a pleasing substitute until the real thing comes along.

Some really excellent jewelry is being made today, so it pays to select carefully since the quality of the workmanship more or less assures longevity with proper care. Consider the type of personality you are, and the sort of life you lead. "Dismonds" may be friendly on a soft, utterly feminine woman, but they're not so flattering on a big-boned, outdoor type who spends most of her time digging in the garden and precious little on cultivating the proper jewel-like complexion.

When selecting costume jewelry, it's really more satisfying in the long run to buy one really good pin or bracelet than a whole mess of meaningless bric-a-brac. A distinctive and well-styled brooch or necklace, earrings or clip, can do wonders in altering the appearance of a basic wardrobe. A well-balanced assortment can carry it through its social obligations with flair and individuality.

Most fashionable women choose one important piece of jewelry to accent a costume. The so-called matched set of earrings, necklace, pin and bracelet is frowned upon, especially when they're all worn at the same time.

Consider, also, where your jewelry will be worn. A simple gold pin and a scarab bracelet, for instance, can effectively enhance a crepe or wool dress worn to the office. Sparklers should be confined to after-hours. Drop earrings and jangly bracelets also have no place in the office, since they make distracting noises and it's a discourtesy to fellow-workers to subject them to yet another annoyance when they're trying to concentrate.

When buying costume jewelry it's a good idea to make sure that catches and safety locks are in perfect condition. They should be checked regularly as jewelry won't fall off or break at an inopportune time. Necklaces especially, should be tested before each wearing to make sure the chain or cord they're threaded on have not developed weak spots. It's embarrassing to have a necklace break at a crucial time, and it can be inconvenient for others who have to help round up the pearls or stones before anyone steps or slips on them.

Wife Preservers

Small washable three rugs, especially hooked ones, won't wrinkle if you apply stiffly boiled starch to the backs of them, letting them dry wrong side up on the floor.

Czech Communist Party Facing 12th Congress With Many Economic Problems

During a tour of Czechoslovakia, David Oancia found that even the economic showcase of the Communist bloc has its troubles. In this story he tells of efforts to deal with the failure of the current five - year plan.

By DAVID OANCIA

PRAGUE (CP) — The Czechoslovak Communist party approaches the final stages of preparations for its 12th congress in December against a background of growing economic problems.

The magnitude of these — the planners call them disproportions — was emphasized in late August when the government announced in effect it would scrap the current five-year plan not due to end until 1965.

The decision could have repercussions that ultimately will be felt far beyond the economic front. There is even speculation that it may result in further changes in the top echelon of present party leadership.

Abandonment of results from failure to hit the plan's target in metallurgy, heavy engineering, capital construction and agriculture.

"Despite clear directives from the party and the government, shortcomings are not being removed with sufficient determination," said Deputy Frantisek Kejda in the report of the planning and budget committee.

STEEL OUTPUT FALLS

"This unfavorable development at the beginning of 1962 is causing considerable difficulties in the second half of the year and is worsening the basis for the plan for 1963."

Part of the trouble is in heavy industry. Deficiencies of 1.8 per cent in steel production and 2.5 per cent in rolled stock have had a chain reaction effect on other sectors. The engineering industry, one of the workin most advanced, was strapped consequently by a lack of materials.

Agricultural production was roughly seven per cent below the planned level. This had an immediate impact on the hard-working Czechoslovak, who is a love their excellent Pilsener beer, meat, noodles and sauerkraut.

They spend hours in lineups at stores selling meat, butter, eggs and other commodities. They usually get something but often it's not the quality or the quantity they were after.

No one would comment on Western speculation that these difficulties may have put President Antonin Novotny, one of the country's most powerful figures for more than a decade, on the skids.

PARTY LEADER JAILED

The state planning commission has received something of a shakeup and now has a new chairman. There are also rumors that Dr. Jaromir Dolansky, one of the founders of the country's Communist party, may also go. He formerly was the government's planning chief and now is a deputy prime minister and member of the Politburo.

Political currents in a country where the party presence virtually an impenetrable wall are almost impossible to define. There does seem to be some popular disenchantment with the present leadership both over difficulties and the pattern of life that has emerged from 15 years of Communist rule.

During a two-week tour of Czechoslovakia, I was told that the Barak affair shocked not only public opinion, but many party cadres as well.

Rudolf Barak, one of the party's most able leaders, last year was dismissed from his post as minister of the interior. Earlier this year he was convicted of misappropriating state funds and sentenced to 15 years. His wife, who tried to obtain his release, was also locked up. Subsequently, she was said to have been released, but as yet there has been no official confirmation of this.

APATHY RIFTED

Some say guardedly that the real reason Barak went inside was because he was preparing to launch a public attack on Novotny and his trusted associates for their inefficient handling of the economy.

There are many riddles to perplex a Western visitor to what is described as the model socialist state. Is political life outside the active part of the party at a standstill as much as it appears to be? Has a crippling apathy overcome a people? Are they weary of ideology?

There are no precise answers to a Westerner. One sees youths carrying guitars singing American cowboy songs. One hears that the young are more interested in the twist, motor scooters, love and coffee bars. One also hears that they yawn wearily when activists try to kindle Marxist fervor.

Yet there appears to be nothing like a movement among them. The regime has brought higher living standards to a great mass of people. This appeals to pride in a car or scooter, a house and a well-stocked kitchen. Repeatedly I was told that the Czechoslovaks would never turn their backs on communism.

BORDER GUARDED

But people I met rarely by chance spoke with distaste about the security police and the strict party line. They appeared to want greater freedom of information and public discussion. They did not seem to care about going back to a system with opposition parties, but they did appear to want a little less lecturing.

And they spoke wistfully of a desire to travel beyond the confines of the Soviet bloc. They wanted to visit places like Vienna, Rome, Paris, London, Canada and the United States.

I saw why they couldn't when I crossed the frontier once by car and once by rail. Electrified barbed - wire barriers stretched away from the crossing points. Mined, plowed strips bordered them. Above all this in their towers were troops with sub-machine guns.

STRESS FARM PROBLEM

This appears to be the scene as the first general party congress in four years nears. To prepare the way, the party's central committee has circulated a number of documents for discussion by party, trade union and other public organizations before the December meeting.

It will likely be at these sessions that the formal step to scrap the current five - year plan will be taken. In its place will be substituted a plan for 1963, while a new comprehensive plan is being worked out for 1964-70.

These also seem probable outcomes of the December congress:

1. Farm and factory management will be checked and controlled more closely in a bid to hit planned targets.

2. Far greater emphasis will be given to raising agricultural production to overcome embarrassing food shortages.

3. Party rules will be revamped, partly to cut out some of the deadwood and partly to encourage more active participation.

Tomorrow: Agricultural crisis is big worry for government.

CZECH COMMUNIST LEADERS — These three men are powerful figures in the communist government in Czechoslovakia, currently beset by failures in meeting planned production targets. There is some speculation that the economic problems may result in a shakeup of political leaders, involving possibly President Antonin Novotny (centre). Chatting with Novotny are Prime Minister Villam Siroky (left) and Engineering Minister Karel Polacek. (CP Photo).

TO CONSIDER CRITICAL QUESTIONS—This is a session of the communist party congress of Czechoslovakia. The party's 12th congress scheduled for December, will be faced with critical economic problems that have forced the communist state to abandon its current five-year plan. (CP Photo).

HUGE STEEL WORKS—Although Czechoslovakia is the most industrialized of the communist countries, recent deficiencies in steel production have upset planned schedules in almost all heavy industries. Largest steel works in the country is this New Klement Gottwald plant in Ostrava. (CP Photo).

Seek Million For Research In Retardation

HALIFAX (CP)—Plans for a $1,000,000 campaign to stimulate research into mental retardation were announced Tuesday by R. F. Shaw of Toronto, president of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children.

"The CARC plans to stimulate research through a fund of $1,000,000 to be collected across Canada this coming year and to be expended over the next five years," he told the Halifax Rotary Club.

"It is significant, we think, that although our appeal has not yet been launched we have already received about $150,000 from those who have heard of our plans . . ."

Prime Minister Under Fire Of Liberal Leader on His Attitude at London Parley

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson Tuesday night ascribed to Prime Minister Diefenbaker a "deplorable display of diplomatic and political avoidance" at the London Commonwealth conference.

He said the prime minister had taken a "carping, negative" and "pietist" attitude toward British entry into the European Common Market.

Mr. Diefenbaker's position at London "is one more reason for getting rid of this Tory government as quickly as possible."

Mr. Pearson, speaking at a testimonial dinner for Toronto-area Liberal MPs, also said the success of the government's emergency financial measures will depend "on the speed that we are able to get rid of them."

"We must not allow the 'to become Tory protectionism' policy under the excuse of emergency and the need for austerity," he said.

ZERO DECEIT

He accused the government of "gross and unpardonable deceit" in withholding the austerity program until after the June 18 election and "complete contempt of Parliament" for not convening Parliament as soon after the election as possible. This was "indefensible and unconstitutional behavior" by Mr. Diefenbaker who talked so much about the sacredness of parliamentary institutions.

Mr. Pearson taxed the government with "timidity and deceit" for "concealing a serious financial crisis for political reasons (and) refusing to report it to Parliament."

The austerity program would not do as a long-range economic policy for dealing with the root causes of "our economic stagnation, of our lack of adequate growth, of our chronic unemployment."

Some of the restrictive features such as tight money and surcharges on imports would harm the economy, slow down production and create more unemployment.

CITES LIBERAL STAND

Mr. Pearson said a Liberal government would not have to put on surcharges or raised the bank rate to stir per cent. It would have declared with the United States, a decision to collaborate with the European Common Market and other free nations for the expansion of trade.

A Liberal government would have also declared "without the least of the importance and the desirability, on political as well as economic grounds, of Britain's new role in the developing European Community; a role which would help to ensure that the Common Market would contribute to the expansion of world trade, to peaceful free world strength; a role which would help to keep all the Commonwealth association."

Nickel Company Will Reduce Production

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, the world's largest nickel producer, announced Tuesday it will reduce production by 25 per cent in the fourth quarter of this year.

The company did not disclose which of its plants would be affected, but a spokesman for the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) said layoffs are expected in the area. The local represents some 15,000 Inco workers.

Output will drop to 80,000,000 pounds from 85,000,000 in the third quarter to bring supply in line with demand, the company said.

Copper production will also drop by about 1,500 tons a year. Nickel and copper are found in the Sudbury ore body.

Thomas Taylor, president of the pro tem executive of the Sudbury local, said in an interview the announcement came as a surprise.

He said that before Tuesday's statement, released in Toronto, there was talking Inco officials in Sudbury on other matters and they said nothing about production cuts.

U.S. Subs Being Serviced in Newfoundland

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A United Church report on the arms race says United States submarines equipped with Polaris nuclear missiles are "almost certainly" being serviced at Argentia, Nfld.

The statement is in a 25,000-word report the church is standing committee on international affairs, prepared to present to its annual meeting here Tuesday night.

The report, discussing disarmament debates and recent developments in the arms race, points out that the Polaris and other land-supported carrier-submarines can operate clear of national territory. It recalls that the United States has placed some of these underwater craft under Atlantic pact command.

It has apparent reference to the Canadian debate on whether Canada should accept a Polaris base or a on its territory, the report comments:

The NATO control of the above-noted missile submarines is shared by Canada. Further, the refitting work out in practice and might even harm newspapers they were supposed to help.

Inquiry Calls for Brake On Newspaper Mergers

LONDON (Reuters)—An independent commission of inquiry into the British press today called for a brake on large-scale mergers and newspapers amalgamations.

Set up in March, 1961, after the death of two London dailies and four Sunday papers as well as major changes in control elsewhere, the commission recommended that a special council decide whether big upheavals in press concentration or press power are in the public interest or not.

At the same time, it said the general council of the press — a voluntary body which polices professional standards — should be re-modelled and extend its scope to scrutinize and publicise changes in ownership, control and growth of newspapers.

The commission also recommended that no newspaper should be allowed a controlling interest in commercial television. At present, the only controlling interest is held by Canadian publisher Roy Thomson, in Scottish television.

ARENT BINDING

The three man commission, whose findings are not binding on the government, was headed by the eminent international jurist Lord Shawcross.

The commission said the proposed special council should apply itself to cases where the purchaser controlled — or would control—daily or Sunday newspapers with aggregate weekly circulations of more than 2,000,000.

It said the concentration of readership among the "big three" — Beaverbrook newspapers, Associated newspapers and Daily Mirror group — now amounted to 67 per cent of the circulation of all daily papers in Britain. This was an increase of 22 per cent since 1948.

Among the Sunday papers, The Daily Mirror group was the mass - appeal News of the World, and Beaverbrook newspapers shared 34 per cent of circulation.

Taking all daily and Sunday papers together, the present top three groups had 69 per cent of the circulation — down from three in 1948 had only 41 per cent.

KEEP ON ADES

The commission produced tables to show that small-circulation quality papers had to rely far more heavily on advertising than big-circulation papers with mass appeal.

In the case of quality morning papers no less than 73 per cent of their revenue came from advertising, but for the popular morning papers got only 45 per cent from ads.

The commission judged that the production side of national newspapers in London was "seriously inefficient." It found they were overmanned and productivity was going down.

A saving of about 34 per cent could be effected in the manpower employed on production and distribution, it said.

REPENT SUGGESTIONS.

Both management and labor were urged to set up better and more authoritative machinery for consultation and negotiation. The Press Council was also opposed to government subsidies for the press. It also rejected three proposals for modifying the forces of competition.

These would have put in place a statutory limit on the proportion of a paper's income could vote to ads in hope of diverting advertising to papers short of cash.

Another proposal was to reduce the advantages of big circulation by placing a levy on advertising revenue which exceeded a fixed limit. It also rejected a subsidy to assist low-circulation papers.

A third suggestion was that there should be "a duty on the proprietors of newspapers" to publish papers where this exceeded £2,000,000 ($5,600,000).

The commission rejected all three because it thought they would not work out in practice and might even harm newspapers they were supposed to help.

Rockefeller Will Be Nominated By Republicans

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Republicans renominate Governor Nelson Rockefeller today to lead the party in the November gubernatorial contest that his opponent promised would give voters a "clear choice" on all the issues.

Rockefeller will be acclaimed tonight by delegates to the convention in November during the final session of a harmonious two-day gathering here.

The Democratic convention, which names a gubernatorial candidate meeting, ended quietly in Syracuse Tuesday night after the adoption of a resolution saying lawyer James B. Donovan to run against U.S. Senate on a ticket headed by Robert M. Morgenthau, the nominee for governor.

Donovan, 46, has been negotiating with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro for the release of invasion prisoners. He also played a key role in the exchange of Soviet spy Rudolph Abel for U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers.

Democrats will challenge Senator Jacob K. Javits, New York Liberal Republican who won renomination by acclamation from Republicans here Tuesday.

Another Democrat selected Tuesday night was Mrs. Anna Kitch, first of his race to be chosen by either major party to run for statewide office.

He is Edward Dudley, 39, borough president of Manhattan and former U.S. ambassador to Liberia, named to run for attorney-general against the Republican incumbent, Louis J. Lefkowitz. Here Philip Coll, the Democratic ticket is Mayor John J. Burns, 32, of Bingham-ton, candidate for lieutenant-governor.

Ken Vivian, of Shannonville, sold and serviced new cars for nearly forty years, then began selling the same models again, as antiques. This Ford Model A is identical to the cars he was selling when he got his first direct dealership, back in 1932, and its condition is nearly as good as new.

K. Vivian of Shannonville Put 'Jalopies' in Storage Now Busy Selling Antiques

After more than forty years in the automobile business, Ken Vivian of Shannonville is almost back where he started.

He began with a diploma from the Ontario Motor Vehicle School, where he graduated in 1919, selling the cars of that era. Now, he is selling some of the same cars again, "as antiques."

Ken began his first business, a Ford sub dealership, in 1924, in Shannonville. He bought cars from large Toronto dealers, sold them from his Shannonville. He serviced cars of all makes and sizes that came through the town.

In 1932, his business was granted a full dealership. He moved him to buy cars direct from the Ford factory. His business expanded and it was about that time he acquired the car lot that he still used around his private lot.

It was as a dealer he first began to collect cars. Some of the oldest ones that came in interested him, and did not sell very well as used cars. At the time they were jalopies. Ken fixed them up and began selling them at the back of his lot. Now they are antiques.

In 1957, on his children grown and marrying, and grandchildren coming, Ken's wife, Mr. Vivian had the beginnings of a large car collection. In 1959 Ken, also collecting, were looking for antique cars, and the supply was running short. Mr. Vivian leased his auto business and concentrated on antiques.

HAS LARGE STOCK

He built a concrete block workshop behind his house, on No. 2 highway during 1960, and in 1960 added a large storage shed to the back of the shop, but found it keep piling up, and he is still crowded. He has about 40 cars in storage, all in good running order, and about another 30 outside in repairable condition. Another 20 or 30 cars are kept only as a source of parts. He sells cars and parts to all sections of Canada and the United States.

There is no set price on cars as old as these. A car of pre-1930 vintage might sell for from $100 to $300, if it has potential for restoring, it might go more than that, and there's much less. Restored, the cars sell for about their original new price if they are fairly recent, and for several times their new price if they are old enough.

Even the 1929 Ford touring car he is restoring now is worth big money. It sold new, in the U.S. for between $500 and $600. There is no price set on it today, but the new top and upholstery are worth $150 just about half the original cost of the car. With most parts nearly new, bought from dealers across the country, the car will be in perfect condition when it is completed. The car was partially restored in Trenton before Mr. Vivian bought it, about two years ago.

MODEL OF 1911 CAR

But Mr. Vivian's pride and joy is a car made in 1911. It is a two thirds size scale copy of a 1901 Ford, assembled by Mr. Vivian from parts imported from Florida. It runs a model, with horsepower motor, top and weighs about 250 pounds. The car is unlicensed, and not planned for normal use. Mr. Vivian drives it mostly in parades, such as the Shriners' parade in Toronto recently, and keeps it for display purposes.

Cars have changed so much in the past forty years that the lessons Mr. Vivian learned in the Michigan State Auto School back in 1919, do not apply any more, to the new ones. But the old car still runs the way they used to, and some of them still apparently run for a long time to come. So, after a lifetime of keeping up with the automotive times, Ken Vivian is working with the cars that started it all.

Describes Youth As Potential Mental Patient

HAMILTON (CP)—Four psychiatrists Tuesday gave evidence in the trial of a 17-year-old Hamilton youth charged with the non-capital murder of a woman neighbor.

One, Dr. Charles Dain, described the youth as a potential mental patient. But, he said, he has not found any signs of mental illness when he interviewed him several days ago.

The youth, Gordon Henderson, pleaded not guilty to shooting Mrs. Pearl Warner Aug. 8.

Defence counsel John Agro told the Supreme Court jury he did not deny Henderson shot Mrs. Warner.

"But he was temporarily insane at the time," he said.

Dr. G. G. Beacock, another psychiatrist, said the shooting followed a series of disputes between the two families.

Dr. John White of the Ontario Hospital said Henderson told him he was angry at Mrs. Warner for laughing at him. In his opinion, Henderson was not suffering from any mental disorder.

Dr. S. L. North told the court Henderson fluctuated between two extremes when he gave him a number of psychiatric tests. The trial continues.

CMA Says Banks Should Be Allowed to Make Loans To Industry at Good Rate

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association says banks should be allowed to make industrial mortgage loans at "attractive" rates of interest, to be determined by the royal commission on banking and finance.

But the 6,000-company organization, as such, refused to take a stand publicly on whether the general six-per-cent ceiling imposed by Parliament on chartered banks' lending rates should be either raised or lifted altogether.

The CMA also took issue with recent proposals for new banks, as suggested by the stock exchanges and others as a means of more frequent and fuller disclosure of financial and operating information by public companies.

It said present reports are adequate and by and large are as matter between corporations on one hand and the marketplace and shareholders on the other—not for law. It also would unfair to exempt private companies from such requirements simply because of different ownership make-up.

These views emerged as 14 representatives of the association answered questions by royal commission members.

ONLY SOME WANT

Commissioner W. Thomas Brown, Vancouver investment dealer, said he got the impression that CMA member firms who can already get bank loans want the six-per-cent ceiling unchanged, while those who can't get it want the ceiling raised. CMA spokesmen agreed.

Commissioner D. W. A. Mackinnon, vice-chancellor of Queen's University, said the reason for government direction to control prices of manufacturers' products is that it feels competition will take care of it. Did the CMA fear there was not enough bank competition to control free interest rates?

George H. Dobbie, president of Dobbie Industries Limited in Galt, said the CMA asked itself that question and decided there was a great deal of bank competition. But he said the association is not sure how much of this competition is regulated or controlled and how far into the future it will continue.

Would the CMA be satisfied if the royal commission recommended removal of the six-per-cent ceiling and at the same time recommended other measures to increase bank competition? Dr. Mackinnon asked.

"I think we would go along with that," said Mr. Dobbie.

MORE ATTRACTIVE

Dr. Mackinnon suggested that the banks now are much more attractive, "silly-ass," than they were several years ago.

The CMA brief, advocating opening up more capital to allow Canadian industry to modernize and grow in order to stay competitive, proposed a general lowering of income taxes, especially on personal—as well as bank mortgage loans.

Two Strikers, Union Official Heavily Fined

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Donald Graham fined a union representative and two strikers $50 each Tuesday on charges of watching and besetting.

They were given the alternative of 15 days' imprisonment.

The charges stemmed from an after a group of men picketed the home of Walter Kogler, who had refused to join a strike at the A. R. Clarke and Company Limited.

Charges against four other strikers allegedly involved in picketing were dismissed on Tuesday for lack of positive identification.

The charges disposed of are the first of about 50 involving 40 strikers since the strike of 1,500 employees, Dominion Bridge Company Limited and Canadian Steel Foundries Limited began May 28.

Convicted were M. J. Brierley, a representative of the United Steelworkers of America, and strikers Butcher Workmen of North Bay Gerald Reinard Gelner and Germano Salin.

Crown counsel John Vamplaw said the issue at stake was whether a man can be intimidated at his home. The place for picketing was at the strike-bound plant, he argued.

Magistrate Graham ruled the picketing interfered with Kogler's right to enjoy his private dwelling.

Western Europe Far Ahead Says Douglas

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—T. C. (Tommy) Douglas, national leader of Canada's New Democratic Party, told the United Steelworkers of America Tuesday that Western European countries are outstripping Canada and the United States in economic growth and workers' pay increases.

Douglas, whose party was formed from the CCF party and labor groups, addressed 3,000 steelworkers from Canada and the U.S. at their convention here.

He said: "Western Europe is the main bas planned its economy, increased the money supply to promote increased productivity, and has extended labor has controlled its social security programs."

Thus these countries were surpassing Canada and the U.S. in growth and workers' earnings, he said by the means which the moguls of finance are advocating as "anti-inflation" namely a balanced budget, reduction of welfare payments and tight money.

The U.S. and Canada, Douglas said, also lag behind other industrial nations in health care.

Halted by Police, Douks Decide To Stay in Camp

PRINCETON, B.C. (CP) — Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, halted in their westward trek by more than 60 RCMP officers because officials at their destination declared a state of emergency, decided Tuesday to stay here.

The upwards of 700 trekkers demanded that Attorney-General Bonner bring Alex Lubbedoff, the leader of a splinter group, to Princeton camp site for a face-to-face meeting to thrash out their problems.

Bonner declined. Lubbedoff government. Lebedoff is often blamed by Freedomites for their troubles.

They were prevented from heading westward when Mission tain Prison, near Agassiz in Kent county, 80 miles east of Vancouver, by RCMP roadblocks.

Last a bylaw passed under the emergency powers section of the Municipal Act stopped Freedomites and anyone associated with them from entering the municipality that contains the prison of 63 sect members sentenced for terrorism.

The Municipal Act section had been invoked because of "activity directed at flood emergency some years ago.

TAKE OVER CAMP

The Freedomites have taken over a tiny government camp site near Krestova and imagining community 130 miles east of Vancouver.

The RCMP walked into the camp Tuesday morning and told the Freedomites they could go no farther and should return to their homes in the Kootenays.

The Municipal Act section used by Kent says when normal powers and authority are inadequate to deal with an emergency, a council may declare a state of emergency and exercise such powers as are necessary to deal effectively with the emergency.

In a long preamble the bylaw, which received three readings Monday and became law Tuesday, said: "Whereas organized bands of anarchists and undisciplined and lawless devices and whereas the arrival of a group of this kind . . . is disruptive to the educational system of the school district, and to the health and safety of the council of the district of Kent that . . . an emergency exists."

It sets fines of up to $500 or imprisonment of up to six months, or both, as penalties for Freedomites who enter the municipality.

Meanwhile, Freedomites arriving from the Kootenays replenished dangerously-low food stocks of the trekkers, many of whom have no money.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

There is nothing wrong with the proposed new City Hockey League that a few sponsors won't cure.

Jerry Joyce who has tossed more books than wild broncbos at an Apache rodeo, into city sports, headed the list at the meeting the other night. Vaytan Mills, another good sports-minded organization, was a close second.

What is vitally needed now to make the City League more go is three or four more sponsors. The more the merrier—and the "cheaper" for the gentlemen and organisations who decide to take a fling at sponsorship.

It works this way. The league will be a four-team circuit. That was made necessary because ice facilities permit only one night a week league operation.. At that it will necessitate double-headers.

The approximate tab for a potential sponsor was estimated at between $200 and $250. The initial outlay will be the sponsor's total contribution. There are no travelling expenses since the league is purely a city circuit.

Supposing we get eight sponsors (a guy can dream, can't he?), and the league is a four-team organization. The four extra sponsors will be gladly accepted with their names carried by a combined two-team form on the sweaters of participating clubs.

Most important, to the sponsors, that is, is the fact their financial contribution will be cut in half. This would bring the tab down to $100 or $125.

There has been talk in some quarters that the new city loop was proposed, not only because of lack of upper bracket hockey in the city this winter, but to dethrone the City Commercial League.

This is not the case—and Commercial hockey league fans know it. In fact the teams in the proposed loop will be auctioned by last year's Commercial League stalwarts.

Potential sponsors will be approached some time this week by members of an officially appointed committee consisting of this agent, Garry Alexander, Bert Faulkner and Doug.

Please, gentlemen, don't slam the figurative door in our face or "vie" the family or office bloodhound on us. We bruise very easily. Kindly listen to the commercial, then if you desire you can turn off the set.

And in passing I might state that the league is strictly a "home-brew" affair. No imports will be permitted. Ex-senior "A" players are near home-fide city residents and come under the home-brew category. Comment on ever-age juniors is not necessary.

Some mention was made at the Monday night meeting of bringing in outside teams. The idea was shortlived. No outside clubs, such as the suggested Napanee and Trenton RCAF clubs will be permitted to enter.

And all efforts will be made to put the four clubs of the league on an equalization of strength basis. No packed teams will be entered because the league executive or a special committee named for the purpose will distribute the ex-senior and past-junior strength equally among the teams. This, it is felt, will make for better hockey and a better feeling among the league clubs.

And here is a memo to the ex-seniors and over-age juniors who wish to play in the league; Will you please send or phone your names to me or Garry Alexander as soon as possible for registration purposes. This is very important. Do it now.

Now, it seems, a Belleville hockey cycle has completed itself. From senior "B" to senior "A", to group, provincial and an Allan Cup championship to a world title in Europe.

We're back at scratch but danged if I don't still experience a thrill when I look at those championship banners in the arena.

Free Pheasant Hunt

Fish and Game Meet

Members of the Belleville Fish and Game Association have a jewel prize to "shoot" for.

Ten lucky members vis the draw system will get a free pheasant hunt with bags guaranteed.

The club approved the idea at its well-attended fall inaugural meeting at Club Canara last night.

Director George Woodhouse conceived the idea. He will secure and "loose" 25 pheasants on the club property and the ten ticket winners will share the feathered loot.

Details of the modus operandi of the club's successful "Operation Greenbeard" (the raising of wild mallards) was given the club by vice president George Whitman and director Woodhouse.

The story of "Operation Greenbeard" appeared in this newspaper last Saturday.

Whitman told the club how the original idea of raising 100 birds mushroomed to over to 285. "We hope, with good luck to raise 1,000 mallards next year" he said.

Woodhouse detailed the feeding and raising of the wild birds, predator hazards of cats and raccoons and other interesting incidents of the successful project.

Director Don McKinnon outlined a visit to the Lands and Forest Conservation Workshop held at Bon Echo Park during June.

Of interest was the operation of fishing gear in Marmora Lake for a two-day period in conservation club delegate were able to see something of the game fish that exist in the lake.

President Jack Layton chaired the meeting which enjoyed several films on hunting and fishing.

Several door prizes were won by members while the "big prize" a Remington shotgun went to Bill Parmenter of Stoney Creek.

The deer painting was taken home by Howard Emory.

Aussie Skipper Tacks Yankee Dizzy

'Gretel' Wins Second Race

By CHARLES FLOOD

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Bus Mosbacher has been acclaimed as the world's best yachting skipper. But he may have met his match in Australian helmsman Jock Sturrock.

Stunned American yachtsmen or deliriously happy Australians will wager considering this thought today after Tuesday's upset victory by the Australian challenger Gretel over the U.S. defender Weatherly in the second race for the America's Cup race here.

Gretel's magnificent triumph —the first over the Americans since 1934—tied the best-of-seven series of races at one apiece and put the Australian 13-metre sloop back into the world series of yachting.

At the start, Sturrock used an Australian boomerang and turned Mosbacher's favorite tactic against him by chasing him from behind.

Usually the red-haired American is the one to terrorize opponents from astern by controlling the second-leg "jog" before the start, but Tuesday Sturrock chased Mosbacher downwind and won the starting line, leaving him in a corner. The American skipper had to accept Australian superiority and cross the extreme leeward end of the line, with Sturrock blanketing him from a favorable windward position.

STARTS TACKING DUEL

After nine minutes on the first tack Weatherly's great speed had worked to him a safe leeward position, but Sturrock had an answer for that one, too.

The Aussie skipper initiated a tacking duel in which Gretel's crew executed 15 tacks in five minutes with such breathtaking speed and efficiency that Mosbacher tacked away and broke his carefully-nursed lee of covering an opponent because the Aussies were tacking him dizzy and the Americans were losing every time they came about.

Mosbacher later acknowledged that he lost two boat lengths in the duel.

Observers thought they had seen the Australian bag of tricks on the windward leg, but Sturrock was saving his Sunday punch for the turn of the second leg, a beam reach, onto the downwind run. With complete poise, the 42-year-old Sturrock gave the 41-year-old Mosbacher another lesson in the American's specialty of how to do to your opponent from behind.

MOVES INTO LEAD

Sacrificing closeness to the mark for a more advantageous windward position, Sturrock boldly let the American go ahead and gambled that he could find the right spot to take over the wind out of Mosbacher's spinnaker from astern. The manoeuvre worked perfectly, and Gretel sailed past the American boat to take a commanding lead that she held to the end of the race.

Although Weatherly broke a spinnaker pole on the final leg, Gretel was already passing her at the time she did it. There is no reason to suppose that the outcome would have been different if the Americans had not broken gear, since they were already in an unfavorable position.

After the race, Mosbacher said:

"I've said all along that they sail her very well and very fast and she's a good boat. Now we have proof."

Gretel won Tuesday's race—a nautical cross-triangular test — by 67 seconds, in the elapsed time of two hours, 46 minutes and 36 seconds. It was the fastest time for a triangular course in the 12-metre is an America's Cup race.

Today is a "lay day," a day off from racing required by the Australians. The third race is scheduled Thursday at 12:10 p.m. over a 24-mile windward-leeward course—six miles into the wind, and with it, twice around — such as that over which Weatherly won the opening race Saturday.

Harvey Yet To Join Rangers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bronco Horvath, centre for New York Rangers "H" line, and goalie Gump Worsley have been signed by the National Hockey League club.

Horvath, who scored 19 goals with Cleveland Chicago Black Hawks, was drafted by the Rangers for $20,000 this year. He is centre of a line composed of Andy Hebenton and Camille Henry. Worsley tended the Rangers 11 years ago.

Rangers are holding training camp here with 60 players, 20 necks of the Western Hockey League.

Left winger Beri Olmstead joined the club Tuesday. Defenceman Doug Harvey, playing coach last year, has not arrived and club officials could not say when he is expected.

Rangers meet Vancouver Canucks in an exhibition game tonight, the first game of the club's training camp for Vancouver.

Tigers Trim Twins

Mick Hits 2, Yanks Smell Flag

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

They're getting down to champagne-drinking time in the American League. And New York Yankees, who have popped a few corks in their day may have administered the knockout blow to their closest American League pursuers by slipping them a mickey.

The mickey would be Mickey Mantle, the slugging centre fielder who lugged them Chesney, 31, strikeout pitcher, for two homers and drove in five runs as the Yankees whipped Washington Senators 7-3 Tuesday night.

Victory for the Yankees, trying to nail down their 12th pennant in 14 years, reduced their magic flag-clinching number to one over the second-place Minnesota Twins. Any combination of six New York victories and/or Minnesota defeats will put the Yankees in the world series against the National League champions.

The Twins lost ground by losing 3-1 to Detroit Tigers as Jim Bunning put on a stunk pitching performance, allowing only five hits in eight innings, stranding 11 base runners, and turning back Minnesota four times with the tying run on base.

ANGELS SLIDE

The third-place Los Angeles Angels continued to stagger. They lost their sixth straight game on a 5-4 decision to Baltimore Orioles and fell 7½ games back of the Yankees with 10 games remaining. The Yankees and Twins each have nine games to play.

Boston Red Sox finished Early Wynn's bid to get his 300th career victory, belting the 42-year-old pitcher for 13 hits and eight runs in five innings en route to a 10-3 triumph over Chicago White Sox. Kansas City Athletics won their sixth battle, 9-1 over Cleveland Indians.

Cheney, who struck out 21 batters in a 16-inning game against Baltimore in his last outing, started off that way Tuesday night by striking out Yankee leadoff man Tony Kubek. He then walked Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh.

Mantle, still suffering from a muscle pull in his right side, then hammered his 30th home run of the season.

In the third inning, Richardson singled and Mantle hit a 2-0 pitch for home run No. 31.

Mantle's wallops provided Ralph Terry, 11-11 with more than enough to beat the losers with a seven-hitter. Terry lost his shutout in the eighth inning as Rob Johnson's pinch-hit single to double by Ken Hamlin and an infield out.

TWINS MAKE ERRORS

Bunning (13-8) had what he needed in tight spots, but the Twins' infield didn't and that was the difference. Detroit moved ahead with an unearned run in the second inning on an error by Zoilo Versalles and Dick McAuliffe's double, but Bob Allison's double, six steal of third and Bernie Allen's sacrifice fly got the Twins even in their half.

The Tigers snapped the tie in the sixth frame with another unearned run when Chico Fernandez reached first on a wild pitch by third baseman George Banks, raced around to third when Allen threw into left field trying to catch him at second base and scored on Billy Bruton's single. That made Jack Kralick (11-12), who allowed only four hits, the loser.

The Orioles added three runs in the fourth inning after an error by Angel starter Ike Delock (6-11) opened the door. Brooks Robinson followed with a double and Dick Williams was hit by a pitch, loading the bases.

John Powell drove in two runs with a single and one out later Marv Breeding knocked in what turned out to be the game-winner with a single.

Gus Triandos' single gave Baltimore two more runs in the eighth inning. Chuck Estrada (9-13) won.

Winning pitcher Don Schwall (9-13) drove in three runs, as did Gary Geiger, and Frank Malzone chipped in with a two-run homer as the Red Sox pounded Wynn (7-15), Boston chased Wynn and put it out of reach with a four-run fifth inning.

The Athletics broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth frame on doubles by Red Charles and Wayne Causey before breaking things open with four runs in the eighth. Causey and Gino Cimoli each got three hits in support of Dan Pfister (4-13).

Dodgers Drop Another, Giants Idle

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

A hot team forced the cooled-off Los Angeles Dodgers to take a backward step in their march toward the National League pennant—but it isn't likely the Dodgers are upset at things.

Despite their third straight loss, the Dodgers still have a 1½-game lead over second-place San Francisco Giants. Also, the crick in lefthander Johnny Podres' aching back appparently isn't serious.

Led by the Aaron boys, Milwaukee Braves trounced the Dodgers 10-3 Tuesday night. Hank Aaron socked his 40th homer and a double while younger brother Tommie got a double and two singles as the Braves won their fifth straight battle.

Podres, who has had back trouble during most of his nine-season career with the Dodgers, had to leave in the sixth inning when his back stiffened.

Los Angeles manager Walt Alston had a bad scare at the thought of losing Podres, the Dodgers' other top southpaw, strikeout artist Sandy Koufax, has been in the sidelines since mid-season with a sore finger and the relief staff already is heavily burdened.

Alston's anxiety was relieved when Podres' ailment was diagnosed as temporary.

Maury Wills salvaged something out of the setback with his 93rd stolen base, leaving him three shy of the major leagues' modern-day record set by Ty Cobb in 1915.

The third place Cincinnati Reds beat Pittsburgh Pirates 7-4 with a three-run uprising in the 10th inning. The Reds are 8½ games back of the Dodgers and one behind San Francisco.

Houston Colts downed last-place New York Mets 6-3 and 3-0 and Chicago Cubs edged St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

The sore back forced Podres out after a leadoff walk to Frank Bolling. The walk was enough to pin the loss on Podres, Lou Johnson lashed a triple and Joe Torre hit a Ron Kroboch breaking a 4-4 tie, and scored himself on an error.

Hank Aaron hit a double in the seventh inning and scored on a single by Joe Torre. A triple by Ed Mathews and Tommie's double led to three more Milwaukee runs in the eighth frame off Jack Davis.

After the Reds had see-sawed through the first three innings, Tommy Davis broke a 3-3 deadlock even for the last time with a two-run homer in the sixth. Curt Willey replaced Milwaukee starter Denny Lemaster soon after and wound up the victory, although Jim Grabarkewitz went the final three innings. Willy doubled and stole third in the third frame.

Track, Football, Soccer

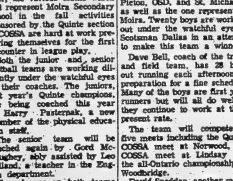
Moira Athletes Readying

Now that classes are in full swing for another scholastic year, the various teams which will represent Moira Secondary School in the fall activities sponsored by the Quinte section of COSSA are hard at work preparing themselves for the first encounter in league play.

Both the junior and senior football teams are working diligently under the watchful eyes of their coaches. The juniors, last year's Quinte champions, are being coached this year by Harry Pasternak, a new member of the physical education staff.

The senior team will be coached again by Cord McGaughey, ably assisted by Leo Holland, a teacher in the English department.

The players on both teams are working well together and are awaiting their first game, September 27, against Quinte Secondary School.



James Dallas of the technical department will be coach of the school soccer team which will be playing in a league formed this year for the first time. The league will be made up of teams from Quinte, Trenton, Picton, OSD, and St. Michael's as well as the one representing Moira. Twenty boys are working out under the watchful eye of Scotsman Dallas in an attempt to make this team a winner.

Dave Bell, coach of the track and field team, has 28 boys out running each afternoon in preparation for a fine schedule. Many of the boys are first year runners but will all do well if they continue to work at their present rate.

The team will compete in five meets including the Quinte COSSA meet at Norwood, the COSSA meet at Lindsay and the all-Ontario championship at Woodbridge.

David Sneddan, another member of the physical education staff, will get the intramural program rolling this week when the grades 11 and 10 classes will compete in soccer while the grades 9 and 13 students will compete for interclass championships in English rugby.

THEY RE-GREW HAIR!

IN 12 MONTHS IN 3 MONTHS

Hair Specialist Here Friday

Will Show Men and Women How to Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

OTTAWA, Ont. New home treatment methods for saving hair and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Belleville, Friday, September 21st, at the Hotel Quinte.

Specialist G. A. Tander will be in charge, representing the dynamic Roberts Hair and Scalp Studio organization. He will personally examine hair-worried men and women from 1.00 to 6.00 p.m.

This new treatment is neither "mail order" nor "curse-all". It is adapted to the individual after a personal examination and progress is checked at regular intervals by a Roberts Specialist.

Who Can Be Helped?

Will the new Roberts treatment cure baldness? "No!" For we cannot help men and women who are slick-headed after years of gradual hair loss. But if you still have fuzz and your scalp is still creating hair, you can at least save and thicken what you have. Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time.

Other conditions that usually bring on excessive hair-loss—dandruff, itching, over-oiliness or dryness, follicle clogged with sebum or seborrhea— can be corrected by the Roberts home treatment if caught in time.

"DON'T WAIT UNTIL IT'S TOO LATE"

Baldness won't wait for doubters to be convinced, you are going to keep right on losing hair 'till you're BALD—unless you get your scalp in healthy, hair-growing condition again.

Examine You Free

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself. We do not accept cases that will not respond.

Guarantee Satisfaction

The Roberts Specialists will give you a written guarantee that you must be satisfied within 30 days or it will cost you nothing.

For a free examination and discussion of your hair problems ask the desk clerk for Mr. Tander's room number. He does not make appointments, so come in at your convenience.

Examinations are given in private.

Seventh Game Saturday

Flyers Win 5-3

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

RCAF Flyers played great clutch ball and took advantage of the opposition's mistakes to down Joyce Real Estate in Trenton last night by a 5-3 score.

The victory evened their Belleville and District Softball league finals at three games apiece.

The seventh and deciding game will be played at the Belleville Fairgrounds Saturday night at eight o'clock. Saturday's winner receives the Bill Ott Trophy.

Joyces scored two runs without a hit in the top of the second inning, the first runs of the game, and they didn't do much right after that. RCAF came right back with four in the bottom of the second and made it 5-2 in the third.

Pat Maracle came in with two on and one out in the third, struck out the next two batters and pitched a one-hitter over the rest of the route.

Trenton's Hewes Cole, while allowing two runs on walks, passed ball and a fly ball in the second, left a no-hitter going into the sixth inning. He walked Carr and Bert Faulkner slammed a solid blast between the right and centre fielders, chasing Carr to ahead of him and apparently putting the RCAF lead to 5-4. However he was called out for missing a coud base, ending up with a single and a 5-3 score.

Joyces filled the bases in the eighth on two walks and a wicked second baseman's infield hit with two out. Cole caught Batchelor looking at a third strike to kill that rally.

Coach Jack Elliott Sr. drew a walk pinch-hitting with one out in the ninth and after Plaxo took a third strike Maracle lined a single to centre. Elliott tried to score from second on the play and Billy Mitts cut him down easily with a strike to the plate, widing it up.

Don Cole got the Flyers' initial run when his hard blast to left was misjudged for a home run. An error and poor judgement on a fielder's choice play tied it 2-2. Willy Kennedy followed with a solid home run with a mate on to put his club ahead for good, 4-2.

A walk, error and Corscadden's single through second gave Joyces one in the third and brought on Maracle.

Cole ended up with a three-hit victory, his second straight. He struck out seven and walked eight but got air-tight support from his mates. Mitts robbed Wannamaker of a homer, Don Cole stole an extra-base blow from Jackie Elliott and Doug Alexander played a great game at shortstop. The team did not have an error.

Maracle gave up only an infield hit to Lem Mowatt in a tremendous relief job, fanning nine and passing two. Bob Butterfield lost, touched for four hits, two of which should have been outs, while fanning two and walking one.

Willy Kennedy and Don Cole, with home runs, Doug Alexander and Lem Mowatt with singles, and Corky Corscadden with a double, looked after the RCAF hits.

Ben Faulkner's pair and one by Maracle was it for Joyces.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs has his theories about Chicago Black Hawks, but apparently he has not commented on his players or their validity.

"I can beat Chicago. I'm sure of that now," Imlach said Monday night at Leafs' training camp in Peterborough.

The words must have been ringing in his ears Tuesday night. The Hawks defeated Leafs 3-1 in an exhibition game at Peterborough.

It was the second time the teams, finalists for the Stanley Cup last spring, had met in pre-season games and the second time the Leafs, winners of the Cup, had lost. Chicago won 5-4 in St. Catharines Saturday night.

Bobby Hull, who last year became one of the three National Hockey League players ever to score 50 goals in a single season, scored the goal Tuesday night, duplicating his output Saturday night. Ron Murphy and Leo Lemelin scored the other Chicago goals. Bob Pulford was the lone Toronto scorer.

Lemieux Is Removed

Imlach is also losing out to the other NHL clubs in the race to sign this season's teams. Leafs' rivals are signing better-shelter while the Toronto manager-coach, although he refuses to talk about it, is known to have talked to his players into terms.

His biggest problem is Frank Mahovlich, the high-scoring left winger who left camp for four days, returning Monday night, because he couldn't get the $30,000 he was reported to be asking. He didn't dress for the game Tuesday night.

Montreal Canadiens Tuesday got signed contracts from right winger Claude Provost, centre Henri Richard and rookies Brian Smith and Jean Gauthier at the start of Montreal training camp. That makes it about 19 the Canadiens have signed, and only two regulars of last season's team—defencemen Tom Johnson and Lou Fontinato — have not come to terms.

Chicago announced Monday it has 21 players under contract and Tuesday New York Rangers, trying to Vancouver added centre Bronco Horvath and goaltender Gump Worsley to their official list of 1962-63 season roster.

JEFFREY SIGNS

In Detroit, the Red Wings announced that left winger Larry Jeffrey who turned pro with Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League last fall and saw 14-action with the Wings, has signed his contract. The Wings now have 15 pledged for this season.

Left winger Bert Olmstead, acquired from Toronto Maple Leafs in the draft, arrived at the New York camp Tuesday, but defenseman Doug Harvey, playing coach last season and just a passer this season, has yet to make an appearance and club officials could not say when he is expected.

Detroit, practising with farm clubs Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League and Edmonton, kicked a Pittsburgh-Edmonton combination 7-1 Thursday. Right winger Gordie Howe scored twice and Alex Faulkner and Bishop Allin, Wild, Ed Joyal, Bruce MacGregor, Earl Balfour and Howie Glover once each for the Wings. Forbes Kennedy of Charlottetown, Nfld., scored the lone Pittsburgh-Edmonton goal.

New York takes on Vancouver, its WHL farm club, in the only exhibition game tonight.

'Waltzing Matilda' And Beer

Aussies Celebrate Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — This crusty old seaport town rocked and reeled until early today to the tune of Waltzing Matilda.

The stirring ballad was the theme song from Down Under rang through every pub from Brenton Point to Middletown as the lionloving Australians, shouting for "another round," toasted Gretel's historic victory over Weatherly in the second race for the America's Cup.

It was the first time in the last 36 years of the 111-year international yachting series that an American boat had been beaten. The Aussies, challenging for the first time, knew how to celebrate it.

"We had to call a lay day (a day of idleness, asked by the Australians) for tomorrow," one of the Australian crew comented. "We knew no Aussie would be able to sail Wednesday."

CURFEW LIFTED

Members of the Gretel crew had their curfew lifted Tuesday night. They rushed to a nearby bar, frequented by seamen, where they ordered beer by the jugfuls and sang and danced in unbridled merriment.

Oscar Robertson, 32-year-old deputy skipper and a veteran of 36 years of yacht racing, led his fellow crew members in dancing the twist.

A barman jumped on top of his bar and yelled: "Let's drink a toast to the finest bunch of sportsmen who ever came to Newport."

Everybody thought it was a good idea. The suggestion was adopted, followed by three more rounds of beer. The ritual was repeated until the celebrators' vocal chords, for all the lubrications, finally collapsed.

Tuesday's stunning victory out on the Atlantic was doubly sweet to the rugged Aussies, whose pride had been nicked by taunts from the Weatherly camp.

ANGERED BY O'DAY

George O'Day, an Olympic 12-metre champion and official spokesman for he American crew, was the main culprit, putting a severe strain on relations between the international rivals with his smug overconfidence.

Before the opening race, O'Day told reporters: "This is something like the University of Vermont playing Ohio State in football."

On Monday, a lay day, the U.S. spokesman in effect accused the Aussies of hanging on Weatherly's tail during a workout in an effort to steal secrets.

"It's like an amateur skier following a professional down hill," he said.

Then O'Day wrote a signed newspaper story crediting Sir Frank Packer, the Australian syndicate head, of ruining Gretel's chances through his constant interference.

"If Australians want to say that, it's our privilege," said one Australian correspondent who has been sharper critical of Sir Frank in his own paper. "But where does this O'Day get off doing it. He doesn't know it, but he has soldified our ranks.

"We decided we would show him—and we did."

Retains Junior Ring Tittle

HALIFAX (CP)—Les Sprague of Amherst, N.S., retained his Canadian junior welterweight boxing title here Tuesday night when challenger Fernand Simard of Quebec City was unable to come out for the eighth round.

The 20-year-old Nova Scotian used stinging lefts to the head to wear Simard down. Both fighters were bleeding at the end of the seventh when Simard's handler decided to throw in the towel.

Sprague, who won the vacant title here last month over Ty Gardiner of Sydney River, N.S., weighed 136½ for the scheduled 12-rounder. Simard weighed 135.

Documentary Programs Will Be Promoted This Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It is expected that most of this season's real excitement in U.S. television will be generated by the public affairs, information and documentary programs.

During the last few years, while U.S. television entertainment has been slipping gradually into the hands of Hollywood's facile manufacturers of 26 feature-length movies, departments and private packagers have been learning to build meaty, professional and illuminating programs based on reality.

There is considerable irony in the vast difference between the often shoddy pieces of fiction and enthusiastic, painstaking efforts in reporting the times.

The irony is that the vast television audience, in every survey ever made, has shown a clear preference for entertainment, however feeble. It is a rare news show—the launching of an astronaut, the critical balloting at a political convention—that can begin to compete with the popularity of the shabbiest most cliche-ridden western or situation comedy.

Mary Martin's Peter Pan will be repeated on NBC Feb. 9—fourth TV outing for the Barrie children's classic.

Recommended insight:

The Virginian, premiere, NBC, 8:30-10 EDT—big, scope-size western with Lee J. Cobb and James Drury;

Wagon Train, return, ABC, 7:30-8:30—The Tom Ewell Show, starts the show's new season at an earlier hour.

Suns Shade Crackers, Lead 2-0

ATLANTA (AP) — Southpaw Ray Sadecki will mount the hill for Atlanta Crackers tonight in an attempt to plant Jacksonville's grip toward the International League playoff crown.

The Suns downed the Crackers 7-3 last night at Jacksonville to take a commanding 2-0 lead in the four-of-seven series.

Jacksonville, regular season champs, will counter with Ike Sanders, 13-8 southpaw.

Jacksonville, regular season champs, will counter with Ike Sanders, 13-8 southpaw.

Big right-handed gunner, Ron Taylor, of Leaside, Ont., as the series moves up to Atlanta for the next three games, if necessary.

Mike De La Hoz' single in the bottom of the ninth drove home the winning run Tuesday. The rap gave reliever Ed Bauta, third Atlanta hurler, the decision. Ted Abernathy, who relieved Suns starter Joe Schaffernoth in the eighth, was the winner.

The Suns gave up five runs in the first stanza, then came storming back. Dan Morejon drove in four runs with a two-run double and a two - run homer, while Jacksonville outhit Atlanta 10-7.

John Glenn's grand slam homer in the first inning and Doug Clemens' loner in the eighth highlighted the Crackers' attack.

eral government after SIU-CMU rivalries on the lakes resulted in violence and disruptions to shipping.

Mr. Justice Norris has made it clear on many occasions that he plans a full investigation of the situation, including the power to subpoena witnesses and demand records.

He reserved his invitation to top American labor leaders, including International SIU President Paul Hall to come to Canada voluntarily to testify about harassment of Canadian shipping in American takeports.

JUDGE HOPEFUL

The commission has no power to call anyone before it, but if Canadian union chiefs, Mr. Justice Norris said he hoped that as a "number of high officials" in U.S. unions would participate in the inquiry.

While no names were mentioned, he is believed to want George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, Capt. William Bradford, president of the International Longshoremen's Association, and other top Maritime Union leaders, to come to Canada to testify.

Two seamen witnesses at Tuesday's hearing said their pay in 1961 was docked for union dues running up to $20 a one month. Other witnesses said they were placed on the SIU's "do not ship" list without ever being told why. They were forced off their ships and denied further maritime work under the SIU rules.

CHARGE MURDER

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Mary Harring, 28, Tuesday was charged with the non - capital murder of James Steele, 34. Both are from Toronto. Steele's body was found Monday night in the furnace room of a North York apartment building. He had been stabbed through the heart with an eight inch steak knife.

Won't Make Prediction

Patterson Not 'Vicious'

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson says he cannot work up a "vicious attitude" toward challenger Sonny Liston for his world title match next week. But otherwise he's mentally and physically in peak condition.

In his hilltop training site at Marycrest farm—far from the rock 'n' roll record playing that times the footwork in Liston's camp — Patterson calmly, appraised his championship defense next Tuesday night at Comiskey Park:

"I have never made a prediction and I won't now, other than to say it will be a very interesting fight . . . I look for Liston probably to be the aggressor because that's the way he's been in all his fights. I am in good condition and am prepared to go 15 rounds at top speed. But I don't think it will go that far. According to the press, this will be my toughest fight. I don't know.

"Regardless of what Liston says about me, or my chances, I do not have a vicious attitude—not the kind I had in my second fight with Ingemar (Johansson). That was the only time I have felt vicciousness toward an opponent."

Patterson was floored seven times and stopped by Johansson in th third round of their first fight. In the second match, he kayoed the Swede in the fifth, becoming the first heavyweight to regain the title. In a return bout, he fought back from two first - round knockdowns and scored a knockout in the sixth.

"I will not gamble against Liston," the champ continued.

"I don't think Liston will surprise me and I know I won't face him with any gambling ideas.

Patterson denied reports that he will retire if he beats Liston.

"I will retire only when I no longer have an interest in fighting or when I am physically unable to continue, whichever comes first."

Track Men Seek Police Help

OTTAWA (CP) — James W. Baskin, executive director of the newly-opened Rideau Carleton Raceway said Tuesday he has asked the provincial police anti-gambling squad for help in combatting off-track betting in Ottawa.

Speaking to an Ottawa service club meeting, Mr. Baskin said that steps to prevent raceway programe from getting into the hands of bookies already had increased the amount of on-track bets by $43,000 in one week.

He said the "bookies were making a killing until we abandoned the sale of our race programs on the newsstands downtown."

"They didn't stop there either," he said. "The night after we took the programs off sale, the bookies came out and bought programs at the track and then ran them back downtown."

"We've settled that issue by confining the sale of programs to two per person."

The $5,500,000 raceway opened a 70-night meeting on Sept. 1. It operates six nights a week at the new track four miles south of Ottawa.

Mr. Baskin said bets at the track in the first full week of racing totalled $305,704 and that in the second week, after sale of programs was restricted, they increased to $346,985.

HOOVER BETTER

NEW YORK (AP) — Former U.S. president Herbert Hoover, 88, was released Tuesday from the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Centre where he underwent surgery Aug. 28 for removal of a malignant intestinal tumor. A hospital spokesman said Hoover's condition is considered excellent.

Cronin Spikes Transfer

NEW YORK (CP)—President Joe Cronin said Tuesday there is no present sentiment on the part of the American League to expand or transfer any of its franchises.

This was interpreted as a defeat for Charles Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics, who had hoped to obtain permission to move his club to Texas in the Fort Worth-Dallas area.

Cronin emphasized that Finley made no such official request at the three-hour league meeting in which the club owners listened to a request by a Fort Worth - Dallas delegation for an American League franchise.

Wall Street Has Recovered About 40 Per Cent of Losses Taken in Toboggan Ride

Editor's note: "Where do we go from here?" they ask in Wall Street. A period of uncertainty has settled over the financial community since the market crash of last May. In the following first of two articles, AP business news writer Ed Morse outlines the present state of the stock market.

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Four months after "Black Monday," Wall Street stands at the crossroads, wondering which way the market will go.

What has happened there since the plunge of May 28, the worst day since the 1929 crash? Has the character of the market changed since the dizzy decline of last spring?

"First, the market itself has come back, recovered about 40 per cent of the losses taken in the toboggan ride from the peak of last December.

But, having done so, it's acting uncertainly now. Analysts called the rebound "a normal technical recovery."

What next?

"We're just not sure where you stand," says one veteran floor trader. "There's a lot more nervousness. For a fellow who is a real, long-term investor, this is a good time. Many stocks are cheap. But it's impossible for a trader. The market may look good for a few days and then it breaks. Even the professionals can't make money."

The market character has changed considerably. Big institutions such as pension funds and mutual funds are more prominent, the small investor less so.

LESS INDIVIDUALS

"A 3,000,000-share day now has an entirely different makeup than a 3,000,000-share day before the drop," said Victor Cook, manager of the biggest office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the world's largest brokerage firm. "Then the public was very much in the market. People were buying and selling actively. Now the activity by individuals has fallen off while the institutional investors are accounting for a greater proportion of transactions."

But the small investor is gradually getting back his courage and returning to the market.

Nevertheless the wild enthusiasm of the surging 1961 market is gone. In its place is a more logical, cautious approach to stock buying.

"A lot of customers are still licking their wounds," said Cook.

LOSE OPTIMISM

The ratio of a stock's price to its earnings a share has always been a favorite standard for judging value in the market. If a stock sells for $10 a share and earnings are equivalent to $1 a share, the price-earnings ratio is 10 to 1, or simply 10.

Says Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange: "People were very optimistic a year ago. Therefore they were willing to pay a much higher price-earnings ratio for stocks than they were later."

"Today," Funston adds, "market conditions and the public mood obviously have changed. The average price-earnings ratio of leading stocks has fallen to 16½-17 from around 23 at the market high. This ratio, after all, is but another measure of the investing public's mood and it will fluctuate, like prices."

Some analysts say that even present price-earnings ratios are on the high side, historically.

Two big future events overhang the stock market atmosphere: Prospects for tax changes in 1963 and the results of the investigation of securities markets by the Securities and Exchange Commission due next spring. One engenders hope, the other fear.

Feeley Explains How Banks Used As Bookie Joints

Rented Safety Deposit Boxes to Use Cubicles

TORONTO (CP) — Gambler Vincent Feeley rambled amiably through a long—and apparently legal—trial of his financial transactions before the Ontario royal commission on crime Wednesday including a guaranteed loss-proof adventure in the stock market.

He admitted readily to some minor league lawbreaking—including the use of bank and trust company premises for bookmaking operations—but quickly denied more seriously earlier evidence that he "looked after security measures" (police protection) for a Toronto gambling club.

The reputed kingpin of Ontario gambling, when the commission has been trying to get under questioning for months, was by turns voluble, puzzled, confiding, sometimes short on recollection.

The commission got some fascinating personal history out of the deal from a man who keeps no records, but little of apparent criminal significance in this opening round.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS

The 38 - year - old Feeley brought himself for his commission appearance, testified under a Habeas Corpus writ to give evidence that would tend to incriminate him, but he did not refuse to say anything except in the first five hours—he he did in another appearance that led to a court battle to establish the authority of the commission to issue him bail.

Among his evidence in this long-delayed second encounter:

1. When he and a group of fellow gamblers bought mining stock in 1959 on a tip that it would rise, they had the brokerage firm put up $50,000 to guarantee them against loss—and they collected the money when it fell. The company's name was kept out of the commission record.

2. He rented many safety deposit boxes under fictitious names, putting nothing in most of them but getting the use of the financial corporations' compelling cubicles — with telephone service — to keep his bookie sheets and call customers.

3. He had a 50-per-cent interest in the gambling concession at Cat Cay Club in the Bahamas this year and discussed possible land purchases with Sir Harold Christie, Bahamas political figure and friend of murdered Canadian millionaire Sir Harry Oakes.

COULDN'T RAISE MONEY

4. A Quebec City club last year came to him for help in swinging a mortgage loan of between $80,000 and $200,000. He could not raise the money.

5. He and gambling partner Joseph Dumont — last week now awaiting appeal court decision on a conviction of conspiring to obtain police information — made around $40,000 in the purchase and sale of a Toronto apartment house in 1959. Feeley thought he invested his share in a helicopter.

6. He kept no account books. "You can't keep books when the police are trying to arrest you."

7. Between 1954 and 1959, his

FORMER CHIEF FOR TRUJILLO TO BE DEPORTED

Faces Weapons Offence in Court

OTTAWA (CP) — A former secret police chief and major-general who helped the late dictator Rafael Trujillo control the Dominican Republic was due to appeared in an Ottawa magistrate's court today on a minor weapons offence and was remanded.

Arturo R. Espaillat, who admitted he faces a federal order to leave the country by Oct. 18 or be forcibly deported, was arrested Wednesday on the street and charged with having an unregistered shotgun in his residence. He could draw a fine or a maximum two-year jail term.

The arrest came just a few hours after the news broke that Espaillat, 51, had been living quietly in Ottawa for 10 months and spent most of that time fighting deportation.

He posted $50 bail and then called a press conference in his lawyer's office that night in order to make a scrutiny attack on the United States in which he accused American agents of plotting assassination of Trujillo in May of 1961.

ACCUSES AMERICANS

Espaillat also accused the American government in the Caribbean, ensuring the Canadian government to expel the Cuban consular police that he had an unregistered firearm in his apartment here.

He issued an 800-word written statement which listed the alleged U.S. persecutions against him. He charged secret flights by unnamed U.S. agents will kill him if they get a chance.

Espaillat said Tuesday that the immigration appeal board's rejection of his bid to stay in Canada would be reviewed and upheld. He was told he had 30 days in which to find another country which will take him.

Mr. Feeley said that at the moment he owes no money to anyone except the income tax department and the lawyer representing him before the royal commission. He said he has cash but he put up last year while being tried on a conviction was his own money.

6. He named Lehigh Security Corp. as the company which he said put up $20,000 to indemnify Canadian Bank for the purchase of mining stock recommended to him and McDermott by a Toronto broker. At Feeley's request, the name of the company was kept out of the commission record Wednesday.

Feeley appeared before the commission first on Wednesday.

Kennedy Hails Senate Passage Of Trade Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has hailed the Senate passage of the foreign trade bill which gives him revolutionary powers to cut U.S. tariffs.

The 78-to-6 vote Wednesday, the Senate approved the measure that would open the way for a new economic partnership with the booming European Common Market.

Argentine President Tells Troops To Crush Rebels Who Support Him

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Troops from the provinces converged on this capital today to crush rebellion in a counterplot that navy planes dropped flares on tanks operating from Magdalena to the outskirts of the city.

Calling the president a virtual prisoner of the army high command, Oscanga said Guido acted with "astonishingly tragic weakness" in giving an order "for forces whose objective always has been to defend us from the coups and treasons suffocating him."

Oscanga's troops, strongly entrenched at Campo de Mayo, claimed support of the mechanized army contingent in democratic rule. The rebels accused the military command of moving toward military dictatorship.

Thus defied, Guido ordered a joint operation against the rebels by the army, air force and navy.

But the air force commander in chief, Brig. Cayo Antonio Alsina, said his forces would not take part.

The decision was announced by the navy. However, Campo de Mayo said in a communique that navy planes dropped flares on tanks operating from Magdalena to the outskirts of the city.

Mixed Reaction on Lesage's Announcement of Election

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Premier Jean Lesage's decision to hold a snap election by Nov. 14 in Quebec on the issue of expropriating private power companies resulted in opposition reaction ranging from confidence to infection.

Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale opposition, said the announcement was "the best news the province has had for two years." He said his party is "ready for an election now and ready to govern."

But he said the expropriation issue is "all out of proportion" and the government was using it as a "red herring to hide its failure." Mr. Johnson twice told a Quebec City press conference he is confident the Lesage government cannot be a vote against expropriation.

The Union Nationale was not committed on public power ownership. But Mr. Johnson said he will issue a statement on the issue after consulting his colleagues at a caucus to be held Friday and Saturday in Matane, Que.

However, he indicated the Union Nationale will concentrate on "the increase in taxes during the Lesage administration" and will attack the Liberal plan to revise the electoral map by taking away seats from rural areas and giving them to Montreal.

Shawinigan Water and Power Company, Canada's largest privately-owned power company, said in Montreal the election announcement on the expropriation issue "came as a great surprise."

President J. A. Fuller said in a statement the company felt strong support it received in the province would, "once resulted in a decision permitting the company to continue their strong contribution to the economic development of Quebec."

The election announcement resulted in unusually heavy trading of Shawinigan shares on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges. The value of the stock fell 25 cents to $25.5 while 36,450 shares changed hands.

Sons of Freedom Halted In March Toward Agassiz

PRINCETON, B.C. (CP) — "Go ahead and march, there is no law, I know of to stop you."

Standing on a picnic table, lawyer George Heebrick called this advice to a group of about 1,500 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors.

There were words of disbelief from some of the Freedomites, packed into a river-side campsite.

They had been there since Monday on a trek to Agassiz and Mountain Prison where 63 of their numbers are serving sentences. They are 106 miles short of their destination.

Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, spokesman for the group, said after the lawyer finished talking: "Thanks anyway for your service, but we won't leave. We're ready to meet (Attorney-General) Wesley Black."

The Freedomites had carried the banners that Bonnet meet them at the camp to discuss their problems.

Canadian Satellite to Be Given Task to Probe Belt

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's satellite, scheduled for launching next Wednesday, has been given a nifty-silly-sounding task: Probing the American-created nuclear radiation belt around the earth.

Defence Research Board scientists responsible for the project said Wednesday that the satellite, known as Alouette or S-27, will make the first thorough investigation of the radiation belt called by a U.S. physicist test in July high over the South Pacific.

Dr. J. H. Meek of Toronto, superintendent of the communications laboratory, and J. S. Johnston of Moncton, N.B., superintendent of the electronics laboratory of the defence research telecommunications establishment at nearby Shirley Bay said in an interview that the satellite's orbit 600 miles above the earth will be in the radiation zone.

Mr. Johnson, responsible for design and instrumentation of the S-27 said the radiation belt probably will reduce the active life of the satellite because of its effect on its 6,500 solar cells. But the "dead" satellite may remain in orbit for five centuries.

Dr. Meek said the project will be well worth while if the satellite transmits information back to earth for a month. Otherwise it likely would transmit longer: At least three months. The original plan was for it to transmit for one year.

Main task of the satellite will be to collect data on the ionosphere an electrically - charged layer 60 to 1,000 miles above the earth. The ionosphere is all-important to radio communications because it reflects radio waves back to earth, or lets them through into space when disturbed by solar activity.

The satellite will be launched by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. It will be the first NASA launching from the West Coast and will be done with a Thor-Agena B two-stage rocket.

Cost of the entire project, conceived in 1958, is about $15,000,000. Canada's share is about $3,000,000.

Once in orbit, the Alouette will be commanded from Ottawa and Resolute Bay, N.W.T., ground stations by satellite controller Dr. A. H. Mckonie of Georgetown, Ont.

SEAMAN TELLS OF SEEKING AID FROM P.M.

Many Complaints Found in Files

OTTAWA (CP) — Government files back to 1950 contain "many, many complaints" about the Seafarers International Union, Charles Dubin, counsel for the federal inquiry into waterfront labor violence, said Wednesday.

Mr. Dubin made the comment after producing a 1956 letter to Seafarers from Premier Ian H. Laws of Owen Sound, Ont., seeking help from Prime Minister Diefenbaker in a bid to erase his name from the SIU's "do not ship" blacklist.

Mr. Laws told the shipping inquiry that he appealed to the prime minister, the transport minister and the labor minister after a futile fight to win back his right to a sailing job from the Seafarers Union and its U.S. American-born president, Hal C. Banks.

He said he was put on the "do not ship" list—which bars a seaman from taking any job on an SIU-manned ship—for allegedly using $33 in fares in dues nine years previously.

OFFERED PAYMENT

He told the inquiry he offered to pay $150 to get his job back— but was always told that only Mr. Banks himself could deal with DNS seamen.

"I was desperate for a job," said the 34-year-old sailor.

He said his wife had been undergoing a course of expensive skin grafts to remedy burns that scarred her body from chin to waist when she was a girl.

Even when he explained his plight, he added, he received only the answer—sorry, only Hal Banks can help.

But letters, phone calls, even a letter from the labor department official, failed to bring a reply from Mr. Banks.

Mr. Laws was one of several seamen who went before Mr. Justice T. G. Norris Wednesday to testify under oath about their experiences in the SIU.

Earlier, Lt.-Commdr. Leroy Fleming, 31, of Port Colborne, Ont. said he quit sailing in 1956 after being forced to join, then rejoin the SIU three times, putting up $50 each time as initiation fees.

PM Says He Is 'Well Satisfied' With Parley

But Green Says Meet Altered Nobody's Mind

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today that the Commonwealth conference just ended has taken place in a frank and fair manner "with no diversity such as found its way into the press."

Diefenbaker was asked at a press conference if he was going home happy or despondent. He replied:

"What has taken place is exactly in keeping with what I expected when I arrived. I said then that this was an interim conference; negotiations had not been completed and that this conference would be in the nature of a report by the British government respecting negotiations so far, as well as anticipating further representations.

"That is the essence of the communique.

"I think, generally speaking, the attitude of all was one devoted to the interests of the Commonwealth, to its strengthening and to its preservation. The discussions took place in a manner and atmosphere, no time was there any diversity such as found its way into the press, I am glad to say.

"Our meetings were conducted in keeping with the traditions of the Commonwealth. We sat down together with no agenda and talked over and in a way which no other institution in the world has been able to achieve."

The Canadian leader spoke before leaving for the Canadian capital with Pakistani Ayub Khan of Pakistan who accompanied him on the same aircraft for an official visit to Canada.

The announcement of the proposed construction of the new newspaper building was made today by Dr. Gerald Morton, president of The Ontario Intelligencer Ltd.

Dr. Morton said the new building, details of which are still in the planning stage, would incorporate facilities for both The Ontario Intelligencer and The Quinte Broadcasting Company radio station, CJBQ.

"The new newspaper and radio building will be a credit to the downtown area," Dr. Morton stated. He noted, however, that the final details of the building are now being worked out by the architects.

The building will be a two-storey structure taking up the entire width of the north end of the post office lot, while the south end of the lot facing McAnaney Bowell will be retained as a parking lot for company cars.

THE OLD POST OFFICE

The old post office being wrecked by Murray Howe of Stoneclick, was built in 1909 and was occupied by the postal and customs department until 1962 when they moved to the new Federal building at the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge Streets. The post office building and lot were purchased by The Ontario Intelligencer in 1966.

A newspaper has been published in Belleville at present site of The Ontario Intelligencer since prior to 1870 when the paper was known as the Intelligencer. It later became known as the Daily Ontario and was purchased in 1910 by the late W. F. Morton and the late Owen Hardy Dafoe, Chairman.

Mr. Morton bought out Mr. Hardy's interest in the paper and in 1929 The Daily Intelligencer was purchased from the Sir Mackenzie Bowell estate, the paper then becoming known by its present name, The Ontario Intelligencer.

Fire Rating

Tweed Forest District

Temperatures dropped to a new September low in the Tweed Lands and Forests District last night.

The average temperature over six southern and northern areas was 31 degrees.

Bancroft held the record with a degree mark of 27. Dacre had a 34 degree temperature.

Forest ranger officials said this morning that last night was the "coolest" September 29 in a period of ten years. The same date in 1956 registered 32 degrees average.

No fires are burning at the present in the wooded areas with the fire hazard quoted as normal.

The weather this morning was clear and cool with the thermometer standing at 36 degrees at 8.30.

Ornamental Swim Classes Will Be Held

Ornamental swimming classes will be under the auspices of the local YMCA's intermediate and "youth girls' program this season. Although restricted more locally, there will be classes held at the Bayview Pool at 6.30 to 7.30 p.m. starting a week from tomorrow.

The rest of the intermediate girls' program is already underway with gym classes being held every Tuesday and Friday between 5.15 and 6.00 p.m.

This program allows for double the number of girls allowed this group during past years and is an answer to the greater use of the YMCA's facilities by the increasing number of youth in the community.

There is increased time for swimming allowed also and the classes for beginners and all-star tests are held Friday evenings with the former's classes starting at 6.00 o'clock.

Many TB Cases Not Detected Until Advanced

Analysis of recently released Ontario Department of Health figures reveals that three out of four persons admitted to Ontario sanatoria* with tuberculosis of the lungs have moderately far advanced cases and that one in ten of the TB deaths was not diagnosed until "shortly before or after death", says Dr. G. C. Brearley, Hastings County health unit director.

This situation can be corrected if the public is made aware of the extent of the tuberculosis problem and uses the chest X-ray facilities that are available, the doctor states. Last year sanatorium admissions in Ontario totalled 4,248 persons, who represented all walks of life.

Early diagnosis contributes to the infection of other persons and therefore the disease is perpetuated, while at the same time treatment time is made longer and the TB death rate sustained, Dr. Brearley says.

Women's Hospital Aux. Hears Talk on Nursing Services

Tuesday afternoon, September 28, was the opening meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. T. P. R. Jones presided. Reports given by the various convenors for the year 1964-65 gave an up-to-date picture of the work being accomplished.

The Quota Club requested donations of clothing and household goods to replenish depleted stocks. The Candy Date Neighbors' Aid recently had a bake sale for the Shop in the home of Mrs. R. Bird and this was much appreciated.

During the summer the Coffee Shop had been re-decorated. This, along with the new curtains made by the sewing committee and the new goods purchased for the summer workers, gives it a completely new look.

To date this year, 865 puppets have been made for small patients and 940 books and crayons distributed to pediatrics. Plans are under way for the Christmas Tea to be held on November 14.

MADE TB SURVEY

Mr. R. Lynch, from the TB Survey, spoke briefly on the mass tuberculin survey currently being held throughout Belleville. The only way to stamp out this disease is to find all those who have come in contact with TB and to treat those who have it. Mr. Lynch outlined the two tests given in the survey—the skin test and the chest X-ray—and everyone to take the test at the clinic nearest them.

Mrs. N. Tyrrell, member of the teaching staff of the hospital, outlined the new "Team of Tomorrow" as it operated at the Belleville hospital. This past summer, two groups of teen-agers, interested in hospital careers, were given the opportunity of learning about hospital work while still attending high school. The first week of their course was spent in classes. The remaining three weeks were spent in the various departments of the hospital, helping in many ways but always working with a graduate or a student nurse.

GUEST SPEAKER

Miss Margaret E. Kilpatrick, the Associate Director of Nursing Services at the Belleville General Hospital, was introduced by Mrs. J. Casey. Miss Kilpatrick is a graduate of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing. She continued on to take post-graduate studies at the University of Toronto.

The spkr be-e ETAOI INNN

The department of Nursing Services assists and guides the nurses in giving a high standard of care to each patient. It is responsible for their organization. Each member of the hospital staff should know for whom she is responsible. The director holds bi-weekly meetings to "check any changes in policy, any problems or complaints. Similar meetings are held once a month for the general duty staff. There are also meetings with the auxiliary staff—the ward aides, nurses' aides and orderlies.

The planning and directing done by the Department of Nursing Services can be for either a long or a short term. An example of short-term planning is the education program carried on in the hospital. It is planned for a whole year. Nursing Services sets up examples of how the teaching should be done and must plan the weeks so that the most effective use of hospital personnel, Surgeons coming from the medical staff are asked upon. Effective nursery programs are planned for patients and personnel. Nursing care is planned for the various lenience of patients and routines are relaxed, if possible, when this would benefit the patient.

SPECIAL STAFF

Staffing is an important part of the administration of Nursing Services. New staff members must be recruited when needed, interviewed and assigned to the type of nursing preferred by the shift desired, whenever possible. A new member is given a tour of the hospital, meets the heads of all the departments and has hospital policies outlined during the first week in the Belleville Hospital. A more extensive training program is given those who return to nursing after an absence of some years. An orientation program is carried on in the hospital with a constant check on the personnel and with periodic interviews with them. A rotation plan is in operation. Each nursery in one department for a given length of time but are assigned differently from the ward. Vacations, legal holidays and part-time workers are taken care of in the rotation system.

Inter-departmental co-ordination is necessary for a smooth running hospital. Nursing Services must promote this with the dietitian, social worker and others. This co-ordination depends on many things. The attitude of all hospital personnel is very important. Staff meetings and in-service help and reports on all levels. Some departments with which Nursing Services are looked after by Nursing Services on Saturday, Sunday and all other odd times Nursing Services Department are closed while.

Miss Nellie Merry thanked the speaker for giving the Auxiliary such this insight into a little-publicized phase of hospital work.

Tea and cookies were served.

Napanee Turns Down Liquor Sale in Hotels

Napanee residents yesterday turned down the sale of liquor in licensed premises by 1,400 votes to 1,200 votes.

At the same time, however, residents of Sheffield township to the north of the town voted in the affirmative on the same questions.

With final returns not yet tabulated it was reported the Napanee majority vote in favor of the sale of liquor in hotels at 1 a.m. was about 200 votes short of the necessary 60 per cent against the liquor vote while in Sheffield township 75 per cent in favor.

The question before the voters was the sale of liquor under a by-law that would allow sale of liquor in hotels at 1 a.m. and during lunch hours.

Next Wednesday Belleville residents will vote on the same two questions. An advance poll will be held Friday and Saturday at Queen Elizabeth School for those who expect to be out of the city on the 29th.

Quinte Marksmen Weekly Shoot

The scores for the Wednesday evening shoot at Redpoint Rifle range. High powered rifles will be used. Several good prizes will be offered.

Sunday, September 30th, at 1 p.m. has been the time set for the John Labatt Challenge Trophy shoot by the Bay of Quinte Handgun League. Two Belleville teams, one Picton, one Trenton and one Campbellford team will compete for this trophy.

by possible expropriation. Quebec Power, lost 50 cents to $21.50 in lighter trading. Speculation that the provincial government would announce an immediate take over previously urged Shawinigan shares higher at the last week.

HOLDS UNCLEAR

The senior political parties —Social Credit and the New Democratic Party — were not clear on what role they would play in the provincial election.

Réné Caouette, Quebec leader of Social Credit party, said his party will not participate officially in the election. However, he said he might publicly oppose expropriation. Gerard Pelletier, he said, is free to work for any political party.

NDP Provincial Leader Réno Maltais said the election campaign caught the party by surprise. The provincial NDP was scheduled to hold its provincial founding convention next spring.

However, Mr. Maltais said the government "will have to do so to the people on the issue of expropriation" because the majority of the people are not ready shown themselves to be "more and more."

WON'T ATTRACT

In Washington, Justice Minister Donald Fleming said the government's decision to buy out the private power company will help attract foreign capital to Canada. He said the move may leave foreign investors with a feeling of insecurity about long - term investment prospects in Canada.

Mr. Fleming said from Monetary Fund talks, the former finance minister said he would hope that, on matters where provinces have sovereignty, they would take into consideration the impact of their decisions on the broader requirements of national scale economy.

Roger Provost, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor (CLC), said in Montreal that the government was "corrupting" the electorate by seeking re-election on the expropriation issue.

He said the workers and leaders of the Quebec CLC delegated to re-elect a government "as plain and simple as we have strong, legitimate grievances" rather than miss the chance to nationalize the privately-owned private power companies.

Mr. Provost said the Liberal administration was "jumping on the band-wagon of a popular cause" in order to gain power in the election at a time when its popularity had hit the bottom."

CONVENTION IN MONTREAL

It will be Quebec's second general election campaign in 27 months. To most people it came as a surprise.

Premier Lesage met Wednesday night with his cabinet ministers to begin mapping his campaign. His plans will not be made public for at least a week, it was disclosed.

Standing at dissolution was Liberals 54, Union Nationals 40, Independent one. Nomination day was Oct. 21. In 95 ridings.

The electricity move, which the premier said would cost about $600,000,000, is "clearly the most important and the most fruitful economic measure that is to be introduced in Quebec," he said briefly at his press conference.

"We met the magnitude and complexity of this project, but that we should not proceed further without a specific mandate from the people."

MOVE IS POPULAR

The electricity issue already has received support from farm, labor and nationalist groups.

An apparently popular issue, plus a feeling among Liberals that the Union Nationale has not recovered from the battering it took two years ago, are being put forth as the political reasons behind the Liberal decision to gamble on a fall election.

This seemed to be an awkward and inauspicious time to call an election. But there are indications the Liberal government might have found itself in an even tougher battle in 1966.

The Union Nationale, which has been crisply rebuilding—many say it has rebuilt—would have certainly been a stronger opponent then, many observers feel.

ANOTHER PARTY?

And there is every indication at least one more political party will be on the provincial scene by then.

"We would have been ready to launch ourselves in 1964," said Gaston Foulin, president of the Quebec branch of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale. "But now we must wait at least four more years."

The movement, a major separatist group, is now busily pulling for a 1964 election. It has strongly supported public ownership of hydro-electric resources. "But I doubt that we will decide to support one party more than another," Mr. Poulliot said.

RUSHLOW — In loving memory of dear brothers Arthur, who passed away September 30th, 1954 and Harry, on September 30, 1963. Remembrance is the comfort we find.
Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to hold, then to part,
Is the saddest pain of the heart.
Loving dear sister,
Ina Rose.

The years may wipe out many a day,
But this year wipe out never.
The hurt of those heavy days,
When we were all together.
—Lovingly missed by sisters and brothers.

Some Stations Selling Gas For 36.9 Cents

Belleville's gasoline war is continuing to expand.

A week or so ago most local stations dropped the price for regular gasoline from 40.9 cents per gallon to 38.9 cents.

But this week the price reduction has gone slightly further with many stations yesterday quoting a price of 36.9 cents.

G. Russell, Miriam Russell and Fred Cooper have been selected as qualified trainers for Course No. 1. Stuart Taylor, Mardi Steenburg, Sid Sharman, and Murray Maw are qualified assistant leaders for Training Courses.

Mr. C. Leggat attended his last meeting with District Council. After many years of faithful service to the Scouting movement members all wished him well on his departure.

D. C. M. Maw gave the following report indicating that this was a busy summer for the Scout staff. Many camps were visited and A. D. C. Sharman and Mrs. Sharman chaperoned at the Joint Rover Scout Camp in July. Scott and Miriam Russell were leaders at a Part 2 Course (Cubs) at Blue Springs.

With the help of Mr. Pickering and Mr. Glover the district staff arranged for the Scout exhibit and participation at the Belleville Fair. The first attempt of this sort of venture proved fairly successful. From 6th to 12th they camped on the grounds, for the duration, and on Thursday, Friday, 20th, 21st, and 15th, The 35th (Sea Scouts) were responsible for the monkey bridge, and the unique inverted tower; the 15th for the gateway. There will be a Basic Akela Course in Belleville on Oct. 12th and 13th to which all Cub leaders, Ladies' Auxiliary and Group committeemen are invited.

The Scout Show "Hi-Jinx" is progressing nicely. Several rehearsals have been held throughout the summer. A tentative program has been set up, and a music director, choreographer, general manager, stage manager, organist, and scenic designer have been appointed. There is still a great need for producers, and assistants. If any scouters would like to tackle some of these jobs, and have a lot of fun in a first Class production call the chairman, Mr. Ford Bray at WO 2-7979. The next meeting of the show committee takes place at St. Andrew's Church Sunday School room on Monday, Sept. 24th at 8.00 p.m. All scouters are invited to attend.

Toastmasters' Presidency Changes Hands

TRENTON — What retiring president Les McKenna termed "one of the most successful meetings in many months" was held by the Quinte Toastmasters' Club Tuesday night in the Gilbert Hotel in Trenton.

Douglas Rushnell, 1962-63 president, took over his official duties at this meeting.

Special speaker, Jim Day, Fred Barfield and Jack Reid took part in a Table Topics session, which was conducted by Jim Rombough. Topics ranged from the European Common Market to Fidel Castro's Cuba. Speakers were Roy Smalley, Douglas Rushnell and Douglas Tufford.

Mr. Smalley and Mr. Rushnell took their audience through the eyes of a camera, from home and buggy days to the unknown reaches of space. Mr. Tufford asked the toastmasters, "Are You Playing the Game?" and said that each of us should contribute his ideas to society, as such contributions were the real foundation of a free society and set it apart from a "sl ve" society.

General speech evaluator was Tom. Minacola and he was assisted by Jim Byers, Les McKenna and Jim Rombough.

Jack Reid was introduced to the club members by the former commanding officer of the Air Cadet squadron at Mount Elinor and the public relations officer at this year's Air Cadet camp at RCAF Station Trenton. He has plans to start an Air Cadet squadron in the district. Meetings are north of Trenton where teenage boys find it difficult, if not impossible, to attend meetings in town.

Some Cafes Not Up to Standard Board Told

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Board of Health aired several complaints at their first fall meeting, yesterday afternoon.

Board member Mrs. Marjorie Gothard charged that some Trenton residents, and east side residents in particular, were burning leaves, weeds and garbage in open "tin cans" in defiance of regulations to use approved incinerators for this purpose, and that this practice, which she termed "illegal" had given rise to numerous complaints from more law-abiding citizens.

Health board chairman, H. S. Pane, reported that while Trenton eateries had had good reports for the month of September, thus far, 19 of the town's 30 restaurants and beverage rooms were not up to standard as far as hygienic conditions were concerned. Dr. E. W. Dow, M.O.H., suggested that Mr. Pane order some of the worst offenders closed down for a month, but the board chose not to take such action.

Dr. Dow told the board members that no oral polio vaccine would be given at Trenton clinics until such time as it had been proved or disproved that there was any paralysis in Canada were connected with the vaccine. Dr. Dow said that the injections would be given at the polio clinic to be held in Trenton on Friday next. The vaccine has never been a case reported in Canada where the person had contracted polio after taking Salk injections.

Board Dismisses Claim Of Royal Trust Company

TRENTON — In Trenton yesterday, representatives of the Ontario Municipal Board dismissed a claim for $60,000 brought against the town for "injurious effect and trespassing" on the service station property of the late Thomas Moran, during construction of Division Street last year.

The Royal Trust Company of Kingston, executor of Mr. Moran's estate, claimed that the service station at the intersection of Division and Front Streets, had lost business and the value of the property had decreased, partly because of "negligence" during reconstruction of the street.

Hugh Gibson of Kingston, solicitor for the trustees, charged that the town had been negligent in causing unnecessary damage to service station property; that the level of Division Street in the area had been lowered; and that there had been interference with access to and from the service station by the creation of general depreciation in the value of the property.

Mr. Gibson said that the placing of a traffic island at the intersection, together with lowering the street level, had "materially" interfered with access to the service station.

Town Solicitor Roderick Campbell replied that the whole area in front of the service station was now open to traffic. He said workmen had taken down the town-owned sidewalk in front of the property and created a ramp in its place.

Mr. Campbell disagreed that the value of the land had depreciated. He said service station sales have increased under a new operator and since the estate didn't want to sell the property to the Shell Oil Company, the lessee, it must feel the property is valuable. Mr. Campbell said that in his opinion the value of the property had appreciated.

Harry Hamilton Gratton, manager of the trust company said it was hard to assess the value of the property, since there had been a "definite depreciation," but the proposal places the value at between $35 and $40,000 for tax purposes.

PAYING RENTAL

Under an agreement held between the Moran estate and the Shell Oil Company, Shell holds a lease on the property, and the service station property, and pays the estate $225 a month rental, with the estate paying the annual property tax.

Representatives of the estate, which Mr. Gratton said had incurred liabilities since Mr. Moran's death, is 17-year-old Peter Moran, now attending school in Trenton.

Mr. Campbell denied that there had been any negligence during reconstruction of the street, adding that the installation of a traffic island and a ramp around the front of the triangular property had in fact added traffic going in and out of the station.

Mr. Gibson said the estate had protested the taking of the property after work on the road had been completed, but there was no evidence to suggest that the estate didn't want to sell the property to the company.

He suggested that the OMB representatives, W. Greenwood (chairman) and V. S. Milburn, view the service station before making a decision.

Mr. Greenwood replied that he and Mr. Milburn had done just that during the lunch hour and that in their opinion, the claimant was "entitled to no compensation whatsoever."

Mr. Campbell said that there was some evidence of irregularity in the construction at the start of work on the street, but the OMB felt that this had nothing to do with actual construction.

He said it was the board's job to assess the value of land on curb level and that, if anything, much of the street had been raised two inches rather than lowered.

He said the board couldn't agree there had been depreciation in the land value and was satisfied that the property of Town Engineer Eric Alderson, chairman, traffic committee) that the new layout had assisted the flow of traffic at the intersection.

Sidney Informs Frankford It Plans Own Fire Dept.

TRENTON — Reeve Harleigh Hamilton and the members of Sidney township council met with Reeve Frank Rahel and the members of the Frankford village council, in Frankford last night, to discuss a proposed agreement between the two municipalities concerning the charge for village fire fighting services in the township.

Reeve Hamilton dropped a bombshell by announcing that after due consideration, the township council had decided to set up a fire fighting unit of its own, and had, in fact, advertised for a truck and pumper. However, the reeve made it clear that the township would appreciate it if the Frankford fire department continued to answer calls in the township until such time as the unit was set up and the township residents educated to the fact that they should call their own department. In fact, the reeve said, Sidney council would appreciate it if the Frankford firefighters continued to answer some township calls in areas more easily accessible to Frankford than to the potential township fire fighting unit.

Reeve Rahel started the discussion by explaining that Reeve Hamilton and his council that fire fighting costs in the village had risen in keeping with the times. He said that Frankford had been forced to raise its fire fighting rate to Murray township and that, while Murray council had agreed to the increase, there had been dissention over the fact that Sidney township was still being charged the old rate (around $27 per fire call).

Reeve Rahel said that he had tried to set up a meeting with Sidney council to discuss an increase in rate structure, but had been unsuccessful.

"Well," said Reeve Hamilton, "you could have expected us to call a meeting to ask you to raise our rate."

Reeve Rahel asked Frankford clerk Glenn Mills to read out the terms of the proposed rate structure, this is, in effect, the same rate structure used with Murray township).

By the proposed set-up, Sidney would be charged $150 for the first hour of any fire and $50 for each subsequent hour. The village department would answer calls from any township resident and would cover a large area. It would reserve the right not to send men and equipment if they were needed in the village and to recall them if a local fire warranted such action.

Reeve Rahel said that, taking a 3-year average, 31 fires had been fought annually in Frankford, Sidney and Murray. In 1961, 12 fires were fought in Sidney, two in Murray and 15 in Frankford. Fire costs in Sidney had been something over $6,000, taking a 1961 township population count at 6,000 and dividing this into the cost to Sidney last year for fire fighting services from Belleville and Frankford, it would work out to approximately $1 per cents per township resident. The reeve said that the proposed new rate structure had been based on costs of equipment, insurance, radio service and the debenture on Frankford's new fire hall. He said that no allowance had been made for depreciation.

"We don't want to make money," said Reeve Rahel.

"You're getting cheaper fire protection than we are ourselves," Frankford councillor Carman Mikel told the members of Sidney council.

"Up until tonight we didn't know what you had in mind about rates," Reeve Hamilton told Frankford council. "As far as charging what you charge Murray, Sidney has a lot more in common with Frankford than Murray."

Reeve Hamilton went on to say that Sidney was interested for a truck and pumper and that the tenders would be opened at the end of this week. He said that if the prices were right, the township would set up a fire-fighting department of its own. He said that Belleville had raised its rates for township fire-fighting, too.

"Our costs have gone up too," Reeve Hamilton said, "I can't see any other alternative than to go into business for ourselves."

"You're the boss in your own house," said Reeve Rahel. "You have the blessing of this council, and we'll go to calls in the township if we're needed."

"The more equipment around the better we like it," agreed Councillor Mikel.

Reeve Rahel then suggested that Sidney township might like to house its equipment in the Frankford fire hall but this did not seem to be within the set-up approval of the group from Sidney.

Leaders Present Platforms In Gay Stunts at Quinte

Quinte Secondary School's "Student Parliament" is the result of the students' voice in school management, decided on the basis of Commons-it arranges dances and special events, exercises some control over the school's clubs, and represents the student body in dealing with the administration.

The leaders of the two parties seeking election presented their platforms to the student body today, in an assembly complete with a band, placards, and a campaign song.

The band, a collection of trumpets, drums and comic hats, represented the B-G, or Better Government party. The party is led by Dale Sullivan, a grade 13 student. The Proteen Party, led by Dnaba Dalcar, also of Grade 13 had a cheering section and a song, and were aided by short renditions from the B-G band. The band was noticably closer to the correct key when playing for the B-G party.

The platforms, as presented, were similar in their precision. Few sweeping promises were made, but each outlined a program of definite goals. Both were about equally balanced between improvements in school organizations and activities, and physical additions and improvements to the recreational equipment.

From the first day of school, both parties have been campaigning with posters inside the school building, and with stunts outside. Today's assembly is the only official time off school for the campaign, but out-of-class electioneering has been going on, the election of representatives from each form, to be conducted Friday.

Good Reason For Amazement

We plead guilty to considerable sympathy with U.S. Senator Kenneth Keating.

The other day he said it was "intolerable" that the Canadian government should permit the flight of Soviet planes over Canada in order to supply additional equipment for Cuba.

He made two mistakes, one of facts, one of the choice of language. It is now clear the Russian planes which flew over Canada, in fact, landed in Canada and were guided on their flight by Canadians, did not remain in Cuba, but returned home. And he should not have said "intolerable." The U.S. will just have to put up with this kind of thing, from Canada and from Britain, where the Russian planes also landed. Neither British nor Canada consider themselves at war with Russia, and they persist in acting as if they were not at war.

The U.S., on the other hand, regards Russia as an enemy. And you can hardly blame her. For what, do you suppose, would be the reaction of Russia is the Americans asked Mr. Khrushchev to provide pilot navigators for U.S. planes on the way to South Viet Nam?

So we sympathize with Senator Keating. It is a strange world when, the more nations are opposed in theory, the more alike are their reactions in practice.

Like Senator Keating, the Russians probably thought the Canadian government had taken leave of its senses when it acted in accordance with normal international practice.

The Cost Of Peace

Critics of the United Nations, especially in the U.S., sometimes stress the cost of UN operations. One of the biggest drains has been the upkeep of the United Nations emergency force, now active in two areas, in the Gaza Strip between the United Arab Republic and Israel and in the Congo.

Tuesday Acting Secretary-General U Thant requested $19,256,870 to operate the Gaza Strip force next year.

The same day the U.S. House of Representatives appropriations committee recommended a slash of 19 per cent in new funds for the foreign aid program. The reduction would amount to $1,372,000.

In other words, the Gaza Strip operation costs approximately one-seventieth of the amount it is proposed to cut from the U.S. foreign aid program, or, to put it another way, the U.S. was proposing to spend $350 for foreign aid for every dollar which all the United Nations combined are asked to pay for the peace-keeping force in the Near East.

Peace, it seems to us, would be cheap at many times the UN price.

Would Widen Divorce Grounds

The General Council of the United Church of Canada has called for a study by a royal commission aimed at widening grounds for divorce.

The Council envisions this extension of divorce grounds as part of a general program to strengthen the institution of marriage.

Some may consider this approach paradoxical.

But any gardener knows that skimming and pruning are essential procedures which enhance, rather than diminish, the value of the crop.

Nothing can bring an institution into such low repute as to permit it to foster conditions the precise opposite of its avowed purpose. Marriage ought to be an instrument for creating healthy, happy families; never a yoke which hampers individuals from achieving this goal.

One may quarrel with some of the Council's suggested additional grounds for divorce, wilful desertion, gross mental or physical cruelty and insanity, but no responsible person will suggest that adultery is the only, or even the worst, infraction of the marriage vow.

Pistols At 134 Paces

At Kingston, Constable Roy Bulloch has been demoted from first class to second class constable. On Aug. 25 Arthur Jackson was arrested on a charge of possession of liquor. Jackson said he was shot by Bulloch while fleeing. Crown Attorney John Sampson is quoted as saying that he considered it probable Bulloch shot the man, but that, as Jackson and Bulloch were more than 400 feet apart, he did not consider the shooting showed "a wanton or reckless disregard for the lives or safety of other persons such as would constitute a criminal defence."

The only possible inference from this statement is that, in the view of Crown Attorney John Sampson, potshots at distances of 134 yards or more are permissible.

This could make Kingston the duelling capital of the world.

Misunderstanding Causes Undue Alarm in Sabin Use

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(From The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

Ottawa — Federal health authorities have reaped a crop of trouble not anticipated when they issued a caution against use of the Sabin polio vaccine.

The warning came out last week and had the desired effect of halting use of the vaccine in the eight provinces in which it was being used.

This part of the action was satisfactory — another part was not.

Indications of public alarm began to appear quickly after news stories told of the federal action.

This alarm is something which may inhibit the success of the general anti-polio campaign and, if it does, it will do so unnecessarily.

The incidence in Canada of poliomyelitis — or crippling, killing disease — has been almost ended by introduction of two vaccines and nobody in the National Health and Welfare Department wants to see the disease again spread.

Millions of Canadians have been treated with Salk vaccine, promoted and half paid for by the federal government. This action slashed the polio infection rate to a fraction of what it was a few years ago.

EFFECTIVENESS PROVED

Proof of the effectiveness of this vaccine has been shown this year when, among a total of 58 cases of polio in Canada to the end of August, 37 have been unvaccinated. In areas where the Salk vaccine was used most recently and not as widely as in other provinces, Hull, Quebec, (across the river from Ottawa) and the neighboring communities were among the last Quebec municipalities to adopt the Salk program.

They have produced the greatest number of polio cases in the province.

Those relatively few cases which occurred after Salk vaccination were hoped to be curbed by the Sabin vaccine, which acts in a different manner.

Some 4,000,000 people were provided our with the Sabin vaccine (a "live" one as opposed to Salk's "dead" one) in recent months and, among them, four cases of paralytic polio developed.

Aiming at 100 percent safety, authorities requested a stoppage of use of the vaccine. Protocols complied. An investigation is going on.

But the public alarm which followed appeared out of all proportion to the possible danger. The two vaccines apparently offer a real end to polio in Canada and government doctors are afraid that the current scare may push the public away from their use.

This would be wrong on two grounds:

1. Nobody has proved there is anything wrong with the Sabine vaccine.

2. It would disrupt a national program to end polio in Canada.

The Salk and Sabine vaccines working together will, respectively, provide immunity against the paralytic effects of polio (while not protecting the individual against contact with carrier); and immunize the individual against multiplication and spread of polio virus.

But now a fear is spreading that either vaccine could produce the disease.

This is not right, say federal health authorities, and widespread dissemination of this idea could mean tragedy for Canadians.

Thus, the stop-use order on Sabin vaccine is very temporary and the investigation of its effects is being pushed.

In addition, orders have gone out to use it only where there is any indication an epidemic might be in the making.

The hope of federal health authorities is that the entire Salk-Sabin program may be re-introduced soon.

Their fear is that warnings issued recently may make the public unjustifiably leery of the whole program.

Laughter Wed to Tears

Montreal Gazette

Stephen Leacock once wrote out his definition of humor. He put it this way:

"The basis of real humor lies in the incongruities often created by life itself, the strange incongruity between our aspirations and our realities. There, here, in its larger aspect, humor is blended with pathos, for the two are one, and represent as they have in every age, the mingled feeling of tears and laughter that is our lot on earth."

It is a penetrating view of humor. And perhaps it is all the more remarkable for being so far from original or unique. As long before Stephen Leacock's time as 1819 the English essayist, William Hazlitt, said in his book on "English Comic Writers":

"Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps, for he is the only animal that is struck by the difference between what things are and what they ought to be."

And in modern times a very eminent humorist, Sir A. Herbert, echoed Hazlitt's definition. "All men, in different degrees," he says, possess or should possess, this sense, this perception of the difference between perfection and fact. The humorist is the one who, with a lively phrase, or a sharper look is able to exhibit the difference more tellingly than others.

Stephen Leacock's view of humor as inextricably mingled with laughter would certainly be borne out by Goiran de Fonclina, when he wrote of the Esquimaux in 1941 in his book "Kabloona":

"Here was a people living in the most rigorous climate in the world, in the most depressing surroundings imaginable, haunted by famine in a grey and somber land, where suffering—held on in fact to supposedly joyful under; his roars.

Perhaps this strange alliance of humor with sadness is best summarized in the story that Charles Dickens told about the great clown, Grimaldi.

Once a famous London physician was visited by a friend who was troubled with a profound melancholia. After considering the case with great care, the physician concluded that what he needed was some amusement, something to distract his mind from his worries.

"I would recommend", he said to the guest, "that you go to see the next performance of that most delightful and laughable clown they call Grimaldi. That will make you forget your troubles."

But the patient, with a sorrowful face, replied "I am Grimaldi!"

Mechanical Stresses Can Break Hair Shafts

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a teenage girl who goes through the nightly agony of sleeping on long hair rollers. I have lost considerable hair and is places it is getting thinner. Could I be going bald? If so, can anything be done? — Doris.

You probably are not becoming bald, but I know how this sort of thing worries girls. Recently I ran into a case of this same description which was solved quite easily. How? By getting a different and shorter haircut, so the girl could arrange her coiffure by brushing and combing in the morning.

It's true that women can become bald, although not nearly as often as do men. Some hair loss is common after pregnancy and the menopause.

We do know, however, that gentle massage of the scalp (not from brushing) helps keep it and the hair healthy.

Many young girls think they are becoming bald is because hairs break off at the top of the scalp. This is not baldness; it is the result of brittleness. The hair does, in fact, become somewhat thinner. The difference between thinness and baldness is that the roots remain active. The hair will grow again.

Many of the concoctions plus the mechanical stress of the curlers every night, can break the hair shafts.

Dear Dr. Molner: After reading about a boxer who got pneumonia while in a coma, and died, our group has been discussing it. What causes it, and does it turn into cancer? — O.H.

Pneumonia is infection or inflammation of the lungs. It is caused (in the case you cite) because, with the patient lying motionless, his ordinary body processes were slowed down, and the readily fatal victim is one of the many germs which can cause pneumonia. Leading a life of normal activity, he probably would have thrown off the germ before it did any harm.

The situation is much the same as with an old person who breaks a hip and has to stay in bed for a long time with the least possible movement. A great number of such people die of pneumonia.

Today (as with Sir Winston Churchill, to cite a famous example) the pneumonia is a potential ones to repair the hip, so the patient can get up, and sooner ready to move around. This hip-pinning process has saved countless lives.

As to cancer, no! I can understand a reasonable concern over cancer, but I am at a loss to know why so many people concentrate on it as related to al-

How About Carrot Oleo?

Windsor Star

Eating of carrots once was regarded as a method to improve the complexion but this theory now is in dispute. Investigators, however, have found that addition of carrot juice results in discoloring of the body into a reddish orange shade.

The strong coloring propensities of carrots were well-known to our grandmothers before the era of artificial coloring, housewives used to grate carrots into their butter until they got it to the proper tinge. These are times of the year when the natural elements in cream are not sufficient, leaving the butter pale and lacking in appetizers. Carrots were a pioneer answer to that.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The finest demonstration of private enterprise, of course, is to be found in Russia. Its government is a private enterprise in the richest sense of the word. It started with a small band of private conspirators, and people at heart, that in the early days of their enterprise, they took anybody who could spread their right to take over the government. They then formed a private little party into which only carefully screened individuals, their fitness for privacy having been thoroughly demonstrated over, say, a bloody grabs and two a.m. visits up dark streets, were admitted.

Our big private enterprises, such as the C.P.R., General Motors, the United States A.T. and T., have been immensely successful but they labor under a handicap the great Communist private enterprise is free from.

If somebody gets up at the annual meeting and asks questions, over there, he is taken out and shot. It is said that is what is to be supposed to happen, when somebody gets up and asks questions. Only the chairman asks questions.

Maybe the chairmen of the boards of our great private enterprises sometimes envy their Russian counterparts.

DIEFENBAKER

irritation was apparent in Anglo-Canadian relations over the Common Market issue. Questioned about the hostile tone of some British press comments, Diefenbaker said there were got bitter words, "such as were reported in certain clandestine sources to certain reporters."

There prevails in Whitehall, however, a feeling that Canada's attitude has not been particularly constructive.

Private Eye, a British satirical publication, reflects the edgy situation humorously in a cover photograph, taken from Life, showing Maurice Macmillan exchanging a joke with the chancellor of the exchequer, Reginald Maudling.

The "Balloons" of imaginary dialogue have Diefenbaker saying that the "irony" British have soil Canada down the river, while Maudling replies its "a pity you don't speak for Canada, you boneheaded old backwoodsman."

Diefenbaker in his major speech to the conference dug up quotes from speeches Maudling made in 1960 to show how Britain's European approach has changed from lukewarm to torrid.

SONS OF

Mrs. Storgoff said the campers would decide whether to move at a meeting today.

Several hundred yards west of the camp, police called reinforcements to a road block when the meeting started. Upwards of 20 officers and a pair of police dogs milled around a camp fire.

The Sons' trek from the Kootenays, interrupted by a long lay over in the Grand Forks, started Sept. 2.

Further progress was stopped when Kent municipality passed an emergency bylaw making it illegal for the Doukhobors to enter the Mountain Prison area.

Police road blocks later were set up near here and at Hope, 20 miles west, to prevent them from heading in that direction.

Mr. Boxer informed of Mr. Herbrick's recommendation, said in Victoria his order to RCMP to prevent the Freedomites from moving into Kent still stands. He did not amplify.

Mr. Herbrick said he had spoken with fellow solicitors but none of them felt the Doukhobors, should be stopped from marching to the border of Kent Municipality.

Earlier Donny Sailer of Surrey, near Vancouver, arrived in the camp with a truckload of bread, potatoes and candy for the children. The world tree climbing champion said he was making the attention as an "upholder of human rights."

At the same time he invited the Sons to march west and camp on his four-acre farm. Mr. Herbrick told the crowd "go to Surrey by all means."

Excavation Started on New Building

Excavation for still another apartment building on the East Hill was commenced this week on the South side of Bridge Street at the corner of William. The owner is Victor A. Yachuk of Kingston.

Plans call for a 32 unit structure on three floors with one and two bedroom apartments.

The permit for the apartment building was taken out in December of last year and was extended in June of this year to allow the owner to complete plans.

'Maroons' Form Moira Student Parliament

The election is over and the Maroons returned victorious over the Greys!

And today the new cabinet ministers of the Moira Secondary School Student Parliament are in office.

"It was quite a campaign," noted school principal James Musgrove. "We had placards and trombones and campaign speeches."

The new president of the student parliament is Bill Finkle with Bob Ross as deputy prime minister and Maxine Meale as secretary of state. Minister of finance is Bob Murray and minister without portfolio is Bill Stover.

Campaigning for the student parliament offices has been going on night and day for the past week at Moira. Placards and election posters even appeared on the school bulletin board adding strength to the personal appeal.

Final campaign speeches were made at assembly yesterday with the voting following in the afternoon.

Spencer, Young Family Trees Now on File

Descendants of the pioneer Spencer and Young families of the Bay of Quinte district will now be enabled to trace their family trees much more easily than heretofore.

Mr. Claude Young, Charter President of the Bay of Quinte United Empire Loyalist Association experienced so much difficulty tracing the needed branches of his family trees that he has spent considerable time researching the family histories of both the Spencers and Youngs.

The result of his efforts will now be found in the Archives at Ottawa and Toronto, and also in the reference departments of the Belleville and Picton Public Libraries under the titles "Several Spencer Families, 1966 to 1902" and "Some of the Young Families of the Quinte District".

Foxboro Swamp Hunt Area Illegally Baited, Closed

Another well known district duck-hunting area, the second in two days was posted and closed by Royal Canadian Mounted Police today.

Early today the investigating officers closed part of the area known as the Foxboro swamps, located one mile north of the village off the sideroad that branches westerly from the Adolphustown highway.

The area is roughly one mile in depth, north and south and a half-mile east and west. The Thurlow-Sidney townships boundary runs through the closed area.

Discovery of extensive illegal baiting in the swamp area led to the closing and posting.

RCMP Corporal R. J. L. Grainge said the area had been heavily baited.

The marsh is practically all wet lands and difficulty was encountered in posting.

The area closed early today comprises roughly two-thirds of the hunting section of the Foxboro swamp.

Corporal Grainge said that due to posting difficulties, signs were posted on and just outside the fringe of the baited areas.

Hunters are warned that no hunting is permitted within a quarter-mile of any baited area.

The RCMP officer urged that bona-fide hunters who have blinds in the closed area go to the swamp and locate the postings.

There will be keen disappointment among the "good" hunters, the RCMP officer said but the law is the law and must be carried out.

A prominent Belleville Fish and Game Club official said: "These people who bait hunting areas illegally are fully cognizant of the law, and get in their work with the hope they won't be caught, or the areas closed. They are not good sportsmen and care little about the effect their acts have on law-abiding hunters. If caught they should be severely dealt with."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Glenda T. — I want to write his parents to cut their trip short.

Neil T. — Why spoil their vacation? Maybe he'll stay out of trouble.

Glenda T. — We moved into a new neighborhood and were overjoyed to find the house next door occupied by such compatible people. Our husbands play chess, go hunting together, while we wives both enjoy gardening.

They have two children, a son of 19 and a 16-year-old daughter. When they left for an extended trip through Europe last week, they took the girl along but asked us and a few other neighbours to "keep an eye on Don." Well, the minute the boat sailed Don went into his act. He has let another young man move in with him; they throw wild parties every night; and the neighborhood is in a turmoil. When I spoke to him about this he said he didn't have to take orders from me. I wasn't his parent.

I think it's my duty to notify his parents about the goings-on before things get out of hand and he gets into trouble.

Neil T. — I don't think Don's parties are any of Glenda's business. We weren't asked to act as the boy's guardians or chaperones. It's not up to us to protect him. He's a big boy. I'm sure all that his parents expect of us is to be neighborly towards him if he calls on us for aid or a favor. Anything else would be butting in.

Why spoil his parents' trip? At that distance, any alarming news would sound much worse than it is. Besides, we're not the only neighbors concerned, yet if the complaint came from us we'd look like the crankiest ones. None of the others are kicking. To his parents, Don is perfect, and we'll be marked as sourpusses.

If there are unpleasant things to tell, let's wait until our neighbors get back. Face to face is better. And even then, I'd rather Glenda let the report come from someone else.

The Council: Glenda wants to avoid a sin of omission, that is, not doing something in her power to do in order to avoid a catastrophe. We agree with Neil that what she plans to do is too extreme a measure, and that she and the other neighbors may come up with a better solution for toning down Don's high-flying ways.

She was asked to keep an eye on the boy. That means she can shut the other eye to a few things, too. When she called Don on the carpet he must have concluded she was using sarcasm on him! Evidently with his parents away, he feels like the master of the house and he resented being called to account by Glenda in her role of mother substitute.

Perhaps Neil and others can do a better job of awakening Don's feelings of responsibility. It's understandable that in the first flush of being "on his own" he decided to celebrate. Perhaps he'd been kept under too many restraints when his parents were around. He may have felt like a sailor with his pockets full of money on the first day of his shore leave. But now that he's had his friends over and the joint was jumping a few times, he may be more amenable to friendly counsel and exhortations.

Glenda paints a picture of a boy running amok with no holds barred. If dire portrait is valid, emergency measures would truly be in order. But Neil feels that she exaggerates. So let's proceed here in a preventive spirit, starting with "an ounce."

A couple of the adults can approach the young man as their neighbor representing his absent parents. Talking man-to-man, they might speak to him of neighborhood pride, reputation, standards, "Just based from your folks," Neil might say, "they want me to write. What should I tell them?" This sort of emphasis may serve to counteract the urge to show off among his pals. If they remind him of his commitment to hold the fort for his parents.

And if there's a impulse char, acter defect in the youth, the parents will know it soon enough, without Glenda's intervention. If asked, however, she can then contribute her present impressions.

Mother's Helper

SAVING for a small but special treat carries many incentives for a young child if he can watch the saving process. Let him tape a penny a day to a wall calendar. He can see his wealth growing, count it each week, figure out exactly how many days before his goal can be reached. Good practice for true mathematicians.

U.C.W. Meetings

MARMORA — St. Andrew's United Church Women held their first meeting of the fall season in the church hall last Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Maurice McLeod was in charge of the devotional period and led in prayer.

Five new Canadians were welcomed to the district and were the recipients of lovely corsages, made and donated by Mrs. Manley Lavender, for which they voiced sincere appreciation.

The catering for two weddings, a banquet and a wedding anniversary were in the planning. These are to take places in September and early October.

Each of the units of the UCW met on Tuesday evening after the devotional and program. Each membby was allotted their part in the coming dinners.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

The pendulum swings.

Not long ago, parents believed it wise to let their children fend for themselves. It was good, they believed, for youngsters to get bumped and bruised. Bounding back, they would learn the art of self-reliance.

Nowadays, "togetherness" dictates that father assembles the airplane kit for the 8-year-old boy, while mother must write her daughter's book reports and term papers.

Good intentions on the part of the parents are, however, insufficient substitute for wise behaviour. Sometimes, if we are helped too much, too early, we've learned too little how to cope with life - and don't know how to make the proper decisions until it's too late.

Small children derive much more benefit and learn exceedingly more from the opportunity to nail two pieces of wood into a make-believe airplane than from sitting on the sidelines, watching Dad put together a sleek model jet.

The proper help our youngsters need is not given them when we do their homework. This mercy provides them with a hopeless crutch. What they require from us as parents is home-life, an atmosphere of calm and quiet, where knowledge is respected. Then "homework" will be regarded not merely as a chore, but as a personal responsibility and challenge - the kind of job nobody else can do for somebody else.

The swing from "isolationism" to "interventionism" in parent-child relations produces poor, sometimes catastrophic results in the later years.

Two extremes need to be avoided.

In the first place, parents must recognize that overindulgence prevents a child from developing his own skills. Long after they've been weaned, we still treat our children as infants. Nor that alone: We continue to do their thinking and working for them when we should be helping them to do these for themselves. To be sure, a co-lateral participation is necessary, for young people still need our guidance and our direction. But while a life-saver might be necessary to protect us in dangerous waters, wearing it in the shallows will never help us learn how to swim.

In order to meet life's challenges, we must have free access to our own powers for self-expression. Often, we spoil our children's chances for growth by limiting their freedom to develop. We have trained them to expect help; we come running to their rescue even before they cry out for assistance. Result: They've been schooled in the wrong freedom - they are free only to follow whim and fancy, as they please, when they please.

There is too, still another parental folly - the overprotection we offer our children. Overprotection is really underprotection; it prevents young people from building up their own resources. One expert suggests that parents test themselves with these questions: "Ask yourself if your child has freedom in his everyday life. Can he make mistakes? Has he the right to be wrong? If so, he has room for growth, and will acquire new skills that will result in pride and a sense of self-worth. If not, you are standing in the way of growth. You are making your child over-dependent!"

Those who have been taught to cultivate their own inner power, to stand up to the shifting circumstances of life, are more likely the products of parents who know the secret of building self-reliance. Softness is not a quality calculated to produce character. Wisdom suggests something other: firmness tempered with love!

MARCHAND — EGGLETON

Baskets of pastel colored gladioli formed a lovely setting in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, when Jean Marjorie Eggleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Eggleton, Stirling, was united in marriage to LAC. Donald I. Marchand, R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Marchand of Tilbury, Ontario. The Rev. F. J. Homerson performed the double-ring ceremony.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Harry Brown who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Walter Warren, as she sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony, and "O Perfect Love," during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a floor-length nylon taffeta bridal gown featuring a scalloped neckline of Chantilly lace adorned with sequins and long lily point sleeves. The full skirt was enhanced with a lace insert down the front panel and was styled in the back with a ruffled train of Chantilly lace. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a crown of pearls, and she carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses, white carnations mingled with trailing ivy. She wore a single strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Bill Fitchett, Belleville, and the bridesmaid, Miss Eleanor Anderson, Bancroft, wore matching gowns of regency blue organza in ecclilength with wide hems etched in Battinberg lace of the same shade. These featured scooped necklines, short sleeves and full bouffant skirts. They wore matching shoes and their headdresses were of the same blue organza adorned with sequins, and they carried bouquets of pink carnations with white streamers.

The groomsman was LAC R. M. Hope, Trenton, and the ushers were Cpl. A-T-Rtes. Trenton and LAC R. Johnson, Trenton, all wearing blue Air Force dress uniforms.

The reception was held at the HOOP Hall, Stirling, which was decorated with pink and white streamers and baskets of colorful gladioli. The bridal table was prettily appointed with white damask linen cloth, centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of pink and white and bridal bouquets adding to the lovely nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a turquoise organza over taffeta dress, beige accessories and corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's parents were unable to attend.

The bride chose for the wedding trip to Western Ontario and Niagara Falls, a dress of blue chiffon over taffeta, accented by a satin cummerbund, shoes to match, beige accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Guests were present from Bancroft, Belleville, Trenton, Madoc, Colborne, Campbellford, Batawa, Frankford and Stirling.

Showers honoring the bride were held previous to her marriage at the home of Mrs. R. M. Hope in the form of a kitchen shower; a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Charles Devolin, Stirling, with Mrs. Bill Fitchett as hostess, and at a miscellaneous shower held by her fellow workers in the office at Batawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Marchand will reside at 245 Mill Street, Stirling.

APPOINT MINISTER

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Torsten Nilsson was appointed foreign minister of Sweden Wednesday to succeed Oesten Unden, 76, foreign minister since 1945. No reason was given for the resignation of Undon, an uncompromising advocate of Swedish neutrality, but it was understood in political circles it was because of his age and health.

U.C.W. Hear Talk on Philippines

The United Church Women of Bridge Street Church met on Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. A. J. Clare presiding and Mrs. K. M. Bird as pianist.

The devotional period was led by Mrs. G. Shaver assisted by Mrs. F. Ingram who read the Scripture lesson. Mission-ary work of the Christian Church provided the theme. A story was told of the visit by a world traveller to a orphanage in Hong Kong where a spirit of co-operation and helpfulness prevailed. Reminding us, it was stated that "we cannot help the unhappy peoples of the world by our superior scientific knowledge but we can win them only to go in Christian humility to help them help themselves." A gospel solo by Mrs. R. Rieder concluded the worship service.

The business meeting included a report by the secretary, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds of the minutes of the last general meeting and the report of the treasurer, Mrs. W. Dallas.

DELEGATE'S REPORT

Mrs. Bryson Leslie, delegate to the Synod for leaders at Whitby, brought back an interesting, enthusiastic, helpful inspirational leadership provided by such leaders as Mrs. Beatrice Wilson and Miss Millicent Hutchinson every minute busy, exciting and worthwhile.

Mrs. Ross Jeffries, director of Christian education for Bridge St. Church was speaker this afternoon. She took her audience on an imaginary flight to the Philippine Islands where she served as a worker in the Christien Church.

The Philippines made up of 7,038 islands from the air look like a beautiful coral reef on a blue background. The people are of a mixed background, Chinese or negro nationalities being represented.

Mrs. Jeffries wore a beautiful yellow gown made of pineapple fibre and was assisted by Mrs. Jeffrey, Mrs. George Wishart and Mrs. C. MacDonald who modelled the dresses of various districts. Many beautiful articles on display demonstrated the skill of the people in embroidery and carving. In the short history of 50 to 60 years the Protestant Church has grown rapidly in the islands. Mrs. Jeffries told of her work with the young people in training classes for teachers and leaders.

In answer to the question "What can we as Church women do in relation to missionary work around the world," the speaker suggested three courses to follow: the need to be alert, to grow by study; the need for total commitment to God's work and the need to continue in prayer, the heart of Christian witness and faith.

The speaker closed her address with a prayer for the people of the Philippines.

Mrs. S. Gilmour thanked Mrs. Jeffries on behalf of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gordon Joseph Kennedy of Kitchener, are shown following their marriage in St. James Roman Catholic Church, Seaforth, Ontario. The bride is the former Kathryn Ruth Sills, daughter of Mrs. Charles F. Sills, Seaforth, Ontario, and the late Mr. C. P. Sills. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Edward G. Kennedy, Belleville, and the late Dr. E. G. Kennedy. (Photo by Personal Studio, Waterloo.)

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a full-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over satin, fashioned with a square neckline edged with seed pearls and crystals and long tapered sleeves over the wrists. Double-Decked and Stuffed Pork Loin

by Mary Moore

For years I have been going to stuff and roast one of those double loins of pork with the bones removed. Actually it is the cut from which back bacon is made. It looks like it too, but is fresh and uncured.

I'm still on my rampage to find high class meat dishes that do not cost a fortune so beef does right now. This was no bargain for it was 79c per pound but the cost was low enough to mollify me.

place. I tied the loins firmly together fat sides out, and sprinkled the top with salt, pepper and paprika. Because we were going to the football game I put it in the oven at 1.00 p.m. at 175 deg. Fahr. At 6.00 p.m. I turned on the broiler for 5 minutes to brown the top. It was cooked through and moist and just as I wanted it. I removed the strings and it sliced neatly too.

NOTE:

I recommend this low-slow roasting method for pork (whether you are going out or not) because it results in the moist and tender meat we all desire.

This slices perfectly cold and is highly recommended for a buffet meal.

I served it hot with

STEWED ROSY APPLES (to serve with pork or ham):

8 medium tart apples, 1 1-3 cups water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ½ cup sugar, 1 stick cinnamon (optional), red food coloring.

Wash, pare, quarter and core apples. Bring to boiling the water, lemon juice, sugar, adding cinnamon stick if used. Add red food coloring to give a rich red hue. Drop in apple quarters. Bring to boiling, uncovered. (Boil hard 1 minute if fuel is gas. Turn off heat and let stand on burner until cold.

STUFFED DOUBLE PORK LOIN:

Buy a double loin weighing 3½ to 4 pounds. (They are tied snugly together, fat sides out.) Untie it and put together again with this Stuffing between: Melt 3 tablespoons butter or margarine and gently saute in it 1 tablespoon chopped green onion or ordinary onion or green onion flakes, ½ teaspoon thyme, ½ teaspoon tarragon, ¼ teaspoon celery seed, ½ teaspoon salt until these seasoning are soaked with the butter. To them add 4 slices day-old white or whole wheat bread (crusts on) cut into tiny dice (or pulled to make crumbs) and mix well. I made some extra slots in the lean sides of the meat into which I tucked the stuffing to make it stay in

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

ENTERTAINING FOREIGN GUESTS

While millions of Canadians have been flocking to far-away lands during the annual vacation exodus, a reverse tide of foreign visitors has been landing daily on our shores in answer to the government's invitation to see something of Canada and gain our brand of hospitality.

As a result, thousands of Canadians will get a chance to entertain foreign guests in their homes for the first time. Naturally, some will have misgivings about how our own rules of etiquette should apply.

When we contacted People-to-People International Headquarters about their thoughts on the subject, they agreed that basically the rules for entertaining foreign guests are no different from those that govern hospitality for any other visitor, and offered these simple suggestions as a guide:

Treat them as you would treat your Canadian friends and neighbors.

Familiarize yourself with the culture and customs of your guests' country and plan accordingly. For instance if a religious custom prevents your guests from eating a particular kind of food, knowledge of it will save you and your guests embarrassment.

Show your visitors how it's done as Canadian family life — in other words, don't drag out your best china for breakfast or, generally, try to "put on the dog."

Respect the beliefs of your foreign visitors, even though they may differ from your own.

Do not criticize your guests' country or culture. Do not compare their country's achievements with ours.

Do not preach or talk down to your foreign guests.

Speak of things about your guests' country that you like and admire — don't harp on things you find strange or disagreeable.

Never refer to your guests' countrymen as "natives."

And, above all, advise the People-to-People people, please and be casual. Show your guests a good time, and you can't will enjoy the visit — and the understanding it brings — much more.

Needs Ideas for Great-Grandma

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—This problem is not mine, it's my great-grandmother's. She is, as the expression goes, blind in one eye and can't see out of the other. She can have an operation but it costs $300. per eye and that money isn't easily come by. The welfare will help, I know, but that hasn't come through yet.

Also, what are some things she could do to take her mind off it? She is quite old (seventy-something) and has bad feet. She can't bake like she used to because she can't walk or see.

I really feel sorry for her and want to help even more. I would like your advice before I dive into anything, as it might be childish.—HELP ME.

DEAR HELP ME—Bad feet and blind! Bless you for being concerned!

A little radio, even second hand, could be a good friend to her.

But best of all, here is a chance to give yourself. You can bring her your world. Set aside a time every day when you talk to her about what you do. When you read her the paper.

Ask her about when she was your age. Seek her advice about dates, hairdos, clothes. Would she teach you to bake?

We miss a lot when our very old do not visit with our very young. She has wisdom you could use.

DEAR DORIS—Disaster is not around the corner; it stares me right in the face. Why can't I run?

I know my husband might be crazy. No normal man could possibly act the way he does at home, but this knowledge is no comfort for me or my children. I have been at the Family Bureau, at the Child Welfare, at the Police and at the lawyer's and have accomplished nothing. We have been listened to politely and told that by now we both must be sick and then we have been left to ourselves again to get worse.

Several times I have found myself with a weapon in my hand and a strong desire to shut his filthy, poisonous mouth for good. God help me, but maybe next time I will.

Please, somebody, help me to find the strength to go away before it is too late.—ALONE IN CANADA.

DEAR ALONE—What's keeping you? If the abuse is serious, you can leave and sue your husband for support. Canadian resources will help you. But you have to make up your mind first. And don't do anything violent!

* * *

TO SHOWER-GIVER—Showers are supposed to be a surprise—but you could ask her mother what she needs. About entertainment, I am sending you a copy of my release describing the Bride's Scrapbook, the assembling of which can occupy a couple of hilarious hours.

TO CONFUSED WIDOW—Right. I should have said that a widow may put "Mrs. John Jones" on calling cards. But her legal signature is "Mary Jones." As you suggest, she may put the name "Mrs. John Jones" in parenthesis underneath if it is necessary to indicate this. According to my legal adviser, the signature "Mrs. John Jones" would probably stand up on a legal document as long as there was no intent to deceive.

WHICH IS THE WIG?—Women today, even those with plenty of their own hair, are reviving the custom of wearing wigs. Wig creators say the more hair a woman has the better she can be fitted with a wig. Anneke Franck, superintendent of makeup for the CBC in Toronto, demonstrates. That's her with a wig (left) and with her own full mass of hair (right.) (CP Photo).

The Experts Say

Wigs More Comfortable Over Lots of Hair

By PATRICIA RUSAK

TORONTO (CP)—Remember when women wore wigs only if they didn't have hair of their own?

Today, the more hair you have, the better you can be fitted with a wig, says Louis Collins Cohen, president of Wig Creations of Canada. And fashion wigs are more comfortable when a woman has lots of her own hair to act as a cushion.

Mr. Cohen says fashion-conscious women are reviving the custom of wearing wigs which dates back to the early Egyptian era.

More than 200 fashion wigs are sold in Canada every week, and he predicts that in a few years women will change their hair as casually as they change their hats.

Wigs range in price from $100 to $500 each, depending on the quality and length of hair used, and the way they are constructed.

EXPENSIVE WIGS ARE MADE

Expensive wigs are made with fine, lustrous and wavy human hair bought from peasant women and nuns in Ireland, France, Germany, Italy and the Scandinavian countries, most of whom have never seen the inside of a beauty parlor.

SOME MACHINE-MADE

Machine - made wigs, which cost about $100, use fur East-ern or Indian hair. Hair from India is fine but tends to lack vitality, while hair from Oriental countries is course and has little tendency to curl.

"A fashion wig, made of good quality thick hair, and which will hold any type of modern style, can be bought for about $250," says Mr. Cohen.

Wigs cover the hairline completely and so can be any color, but Mr. Cohen suggests the first wig a woman buys should be nearly the shade of her own hair so she won't feel self-conscious and will get used to wearing it quickest.

If properly fitted, a wig will stay put, no matter what the activity, says Mr. Cohen.

"I once drove five models in my convertible at 60 MPH and their wigs only looked windswept when we stopped."

Cheaper wigs are measured to fit just one dimension; whereas the custom, hand-made wigs fit all the critical areas of the head — the nape, headline, hairline and sides.

LASTS FOR YEARS

In a year, the average working girl will pay a minimum of $150 to have her hair done once a week, whereas a good fashion wig, if well-cared for, can last anywhere from seven to 15 years, says Mr. Cohen.

Women skilled in setting their own hair can reset a wig, and a wig worn every day needs resetting every sixth or eighth time it is worn.

Rules for the care of a wig are simple. Hairsprays and lacquers should not be used on wigs, and under no circumstances should a wig be washed, tinted or bleached. Mr. Cohen does not recommend backcombing a wig, although this can be done very carefully.

When a wig is not being worn it should be kept covered on a wig block to retain its shape and remain free from dust.

"And a woman wearing a wig should always carry a plastic rainhat." Moisture is not good for a wig.

An excellent time for a woman to buy a wig is when she is letting bleached or tinted hair grow out, says Mr. Cohen. A wig will save her embarrassment and she will always look neat and well-groomed.

Handwoven Tweeds Most Exciting New Fabrics

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—The most exciting new fabrics in the Paris couture collections for winter are handwoven tweeds imported from the Hebrides Islands off northwest Scotland.

As a result handwoven is likely to diminish in France through the efforts of couture to make it more exclusive. Paris designers have turned to the peasant families who work their looms in their own cottages on Lewis Island in The Hebrides in their search for something new.

As these fabrics cross the English Channel to the dollar-by-permitted couture salons of Christian Dior, Robert de Rigaudy, Lanvin-Castillon, Pierre Cardin and other leading Paris designers, a four-century cycle is complete.

BROUGHT PROSPERITY

For, by the 16th century, the beginnings of the textile industry on Lewis Island were fostered by a French prisoner, Marie de Guise, who married King James V of Scotland. Under his patronage, the inhabitants of Lewis Island enjoyed a period of unprecedented prosperity.

Marc Bohan of Christian Dior has reserved 10 different tweeds for his current winter collection. Hubert de Givenchy chose 12 and Pierre Cardin eight.

Fabrics chosen by Bohan include tuggle woollen crepes, used for dresses and afternoon dresses, and tweeds in small check and shadow plaid designs woven in soft pastel colors for coats and suits.

Cardin prefers hound's tooth check suitings, while one of the most outstanding coats in the Givenchy collection is made of a dark grey and tobacco-colored tweed with a long-haired surface.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lowe Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

CAMPBELLFORD—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lowe of Carry Street, Campbellford, were at home to their friends on Sunday afternoon when they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. The anniversary date was September 18th but the couple planned a trip to visit their sons in Niagara Falls and Kingston this week.

The couple are well known in the town. Mr. Lowe is a veteran of the First World War, having served with the second battalion of the First Division on the continent, and also in the reserve army during the Second World War.

He has been a member of the Campbellford band for more than 55 years, and competed as a member of the band at the C.N.E. in Toronto a few weeks ago when the band won second place in its class.

Mr. Lowe also has served for almost half a century on the Campbellford Fire Department, and was a familiar sight as he drove the horse-drawn vehicles with clanging bells and galloping horses in the early days of the department. He retired from the department several years ago. In his earlier life, Mr. Lowe was a blacksmith by trade and also worked for some years for the Trent Canal Division Dept. of Transport.

Mrs. Lowe, the former Laura Aikens, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Aikens. The couple have lived in Campbellford all their married lives. They were married at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. G. A. Brown of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, who is now at Kingston.

Numerous gifts and messages of congratulations were received. They included a personal message from Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, sent from London, England, messages from W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Highways and from Harry Bradley, MP, for Northumberland. They also received an illuminated scroll from the provincial secretary, John Yaremko.

Mr. and Mrs. Lowe will spend several days this week visiting their sons Ronald in Niagara Falls and Adin of Kingston. There are two grandchildren.

FEELEY

reported income for tax purposes rose from $5,000 to $25,000 and then dropped to $13,367 in 1960. He designated himself on the returns first as a commission agent, then gambler, then gave no occupation.

5 He admitted falsifying his address on some of the income tax returns—for "no particular reason"—but insisted he always got the income figures correct to the best of his ability, sometimes rounded out to the nearest $1,000.

QUASE RUMORS

As inquiry officials had this preliminary ending with their long-sought quarry, police outside the commission set at rest reports that two other prospective witnesses had disappeared.

They are gamblers Doodles Simone and Ralph Clarke. It was a private examination of Clarke by Commissioner Mr. Justice W. D. Roach in June that prompted Feeley to seek disqualification of the commissioner, a bid finally lapped down Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Canada.

"The gamblers have heard they made themselves scarce and they have, but we know where they are and it's in the commission's jurisdiction," said Insp. Harold Graham, chief of the Ontario Provincial Police criminal investigation branch.

Feeley's own appearance after his long series of court wrigglings to get off the commission's hook was almost too peaceful. He was smiling and affable — particularly in the afternoon after his first big noisy jail lunch—and a symphony in brown suit, tie, shoes, belt and (hip-pocket) handkerchief.

He jerred with shell-rimmed spectacles, scribbled calculations with a pencil and occasionally leaned over, elbows on the commissioner's desk and talked into Mr. Justice Roach's ear.

"Don't be so confidential," the commissioner admonished him once, turning him back to the microphone.

WRITES FIRM'S NAME

On the occasion when Feeley deliberately sought to be confidential, the examinee per-mitted the gambler to write down, for himself and commission counsel Roland F. Wilson only, the name of the company that underwrote his stock market venture.

Feeley said that making the same public might be unfair to someone connected with a public mining company.

He said his partners in the transaction were sprinkling sidekick Joseph McDermott; Sam (Gizzi) Hirsch, another gambler employed off-and-on by the McDermott - Feeley combine; David Downes, also a gambler; and a man identified only as Lambert Albury.

Feeley said he and McDermott put up $55,000 for the five-way partnership, and at the firm of Davidson and Company a $50,000 "special account" for them was opened up to the name of broker A. B. Monteith to cover possible loss.

Though the stock went down, the partners broke even, Feeley said. There was no explanation of why the company absorbed the loss.

NOW EXPLAINED

Feeley said the stock deal was "only half" of a transaction involving Simone Finance Company, a small loan company he and McDermott incorporated several years ago but never activated. The connection had not been explained when the commission rose until today.

Feeley's tale of using the elegant premises of financial district banking houses as an adjunct to his bookmaking operations between 1948 and two or three years ago, intrigued the commission.

"Just like your own office," Mr. Justice Roach observed in some wonderment as Feeley told of his deposit boxes and settling down to business, with his betting sheets and bank-supplied telephone instead of the securities and shears of the coupon clippers.

"I don't remember any telephones in the cubicles," the judge remarked.

"You can get a girl to bring a telephone and plug it in for you," Feeley explained.

Feeley said he sometimes had three or four deposit boxes simultaneously but now has only one. He had trouble remembering the various banks in which he operated.

REPORTS INCOMES

Feeley's income tax returns—which he provided readily Wednesday showed he had reported successively this income:

For 1954, $3,640; 1955, $6,000; 1956, $10,000; 1957, $12,000; 1958, $21,500 (I guess I was a little luckier that year); 1959 $21,480.92 (he was employing an accountant); 1960, $13,397.28.

"I think I was cut of business then," he said of the last entry, the major item of which was shown as $12,000 in "other income," which he described as gambling.

The 1956 account showed $1,200 as the cost of a cruise on the liner Empress of Scotland. Feeley said he put this down as an asset, but did not explain.

Feeley had frequent trouble recollecting details of his financial dealings, and he also could not pinpoint exactly his partnership arrangement with McDermott.

"Sort of loose?" Mr. Justice Roach suggested.

"Oh yes, he wasn't my father and I wasn't his."

Under questioning by Mr. Wilson he said he and McDermott acquired a property in Bertie on Township in 1936 from Felix Borelli, whom he described as a gambler, and subsequently sold it for about the same price.

The property was a vacant lot about two miles from the McDermott-Feeley Frontier Club in Bertie.

DESERONTO

Seventy Now Enrolled at High School

DESERONTO — On Monday morning the enrollment of the local High School reached the seventy mark with the expectation that there will be more students in the near future.

There is promise of a fairly heavy schedule for the students for included with the social activities already announced the boys have entered the Senior B Interscholastic rugby for this area. This will make for a full season because it is the policy of the staff that school work comes first and after that, the extra curricular activities. The results of this system are again shown with the entry of Larry Rendell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Rendell in faculty of Science at the University of Toronto. Larry who completed Grade 12 at the local school was a Grade 13 student at the Belleville Collegiate last year and finished his year in the top ten. As a result he was granted a bursary amounting to $500 to encourage him to continue his education.

The rugby schedule for the year is:—

Sept. 19 Deseronto at OSD,
Sept. 27 Deseronto at Nicholson College
Oct. 3 Albert Col ge at Deseronto.
Oct. 10 OSD at Deseronto
Oct. 18 Nicholson at Deseronto
Oct. 24 Deseronto at Albert College.

It is anticipated that the Deseronto School will provide good competition for the other teams because of the very good results they have had in the past few years on the rugby field and the team this year are eager and willing to try to improve on past standings.

CAN'T BE TRUSTED

NEW YORK (AP) — "The trouble with criminals today," says 70-year-old Tessa Bernman, "is that too many of them are crooks." Herrmann, who marks his 50th year as a bail bondsman at the end of this month, lamented in an interview that modern-day criminals can't be trusted the way their counterparts could 30 and 40 years ago. Too many of them jump bail.

is something of a rimless wheel, in which the spokes all bear down on Britain.

In this view, the countries on the periphery are regarded as always prepared to look hopefully toward Britain in the centre, of the Commonwealth, but are not invariably eager to sacrifice their own special interests for the larger ideal.

Thus there are those who ask whether the conference now ending — marked by occasional suggestions of something less than comradely feeling—will be seen in history's perspective as marking the moment when Commonwealth countries abandoned the fading fiction of partnership in economic affairs, and recognized the brutal fact that they had become sovereign rivals."

RESHOVE ILLUSIONS

In West Germany, the independent Frankfurter Allgemeine said: "The brutality, hardly disguised by politeness, with which . . . one leader of a delegation after the other fought for the special interests of his country, without giving the least consideration to the whole or even to his neighbor, will presumably have removed at least the silliest . . . of the illusions about the Commonwealth.

"The Britons' capability for pious self-deception, of which the senseless prostitution of the importance of the Commonwealth was and still is perhaps the strongest expression, has suffered a hard blow."

The Commonwealth countries had reacted with "aggressive resistance" to Britain's decision to join the Common Market. By withstanding these attacks on his policy, Mr. Macmillan had given proof "of his firm will to pursue his European course against any resistance, however strong," the Frankfurter Allgemeine said.

In Hamburg the independent Die Welt said:

"The Commonwealth was shaken to its foundations by the British decision to join Europe. Only the future can show whether it will survive the shock."

WONDERS of NATURE

By Ripley

Living in trees, he actually glides from tree to tree rather than flies. Also, a fold of skin between his wrists and ankles makes a perfect chute.

The flying squirrel is found in North America, Eastern Europe and parts of Asia.

He has no actual keeps him from wildly off course. He simply glides to the top of a tree and then glides to another tree. Gliding to the top of the second tree, he glides to a third tree, and so on.

Holding out his tail level with his body, he moves both his tail and his feet to steer direction in flight.

The flying squirrel can travel from tree to tree for considerable distances and glides are many as thirty yards at a time.

Stock Market Plunge Last Spring Has Left Wall Street In a Period of Transition

(Editor's note: The May 28 plunge of stock market prices in New York ended a period of transition. In this, the second of two articles, AP business news writer Ed Morse describes some of the after-effects of "Black Monday.")

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The big stock market plunge of last spring has left Wall Street in a period of transition.

Hardest hit have been the get-rich-quick types who made fortunes dealing in "hot new issues" of companies selling stock in the public for the first time when the bull market was in its most feverish state.

The market drop and an investigation being conducted by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission have cooled off the hokum.

"A lot of the fringe operators have been shaken out," said one Wall Street expert. "The manipulators, the corner-cutters, the used-car-salesman type of security dealer are more cautious."

While the seasoned stocks in the over-the-counter market have made a recovery comparable to the 45-per-cent rebound since June of issues listed on the stock exchanges, the market for new corporate securities, especially for small companies, remains blue.

SLACKEN OFF

"There is a definite slackening off in the highly speculative new issues and a slackening in the firms who dealt in them," said Llewellyn P. Young, regional administrator of the important New York-New Jersey area of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

It is believed this is the first such ruling in Canada. The decision will be appealed.

About 50 charges of watching and besetting were laid against striking employees of the A. R. Clarke and Company Limited bannery, alleged to have picketed homes of non-striking workers and company officials.

Six persons have been convicted and fined $50 with the alternative of 15 days' imprisonment.

In the first two of the three cases, pickets went to the home of Walter Kopko, woke him by ringing the doorbell and asked him not to go to work. In the third case, two pickets paced outside the home of Lide Kopko's home.

APPEAL APPEAL

Defence counsel David Lewis said he intends to appeal the ruling in the third case. He said picketing involves freedom of speech and the right to picket is labor law. Mr. Lewis said he also may appeal the other verdicts.

The magistrate said the picketing was done in such a way as to intimidate Kopko and in an insidious manner what his private views were on a particular subject. The third case a strike at his place of work.

"The line must be drawn somewhere in regard to picketing where it interferes with an individual's privacy to enjoy his own home," he said.

Mr. Kopko testified that two groups of pickets came to his house early on the mornings of July 17 and 18 and woke him up by ringing the doorbell. They told him not to go to work and asked him to join the union.

M. J. Brierley, full-time representative of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America (CLC), was convicted of picketing on both days.

Mr. Brierley and Patrick Donnelly, who was convicted on the same charge for peacefully picketing with a sandwich outside the house for an hour the following day.

Mr. Brierley was fined for the first offence and received suspended sentences on the other two convictions.

Magistrate Rules Picketing of Home Illegal

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Donald Graham ruled Wednesday that peaceful picketing f a person's home is against the law.

It is believed this is the first such ruling in Canada. The decision will be appealed.

Getting to Work on Time At UN Difficult Problem

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Incredible as it may sound, the question of getting to work on time has been raised at the United Nations General Assembly.

In an organization charged with maintaining peace in the world, it is true that diplomats find it tough to be at their desks for the beginning of the day and sometimes they don't show up at all.

The opening of the 17th General Assembly Tuesday was delayed a half hour but that delay was considered light in comparison with previous sessions which opened an hour or more late.

Muhammad Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan, the newly - elected president of the 17th assembly, was sought out the delay during his first press conference when he ranked punctuality with dignity in proceedings at UN meetings.

NICE PLAY

The problem seems to be particularly acute when political leaders are absent from the assembly and things are left to professional diplomats, who emulate a circle's head to make them.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was the ranking major-power representative at the assembly opening although there were some 40 other foreign ministers from smaller countries.

One UN source dragged up the old story about "when Hitler's away the mice will play" to describe the attitude of diplomats when the political ringleaders are not around to apply pressure.

The standard reply to queries about tardiness is that much UN business is done informally off the assembly floor, and that promptness in arriving at meetings doesn't necessarily mean anything.

An explanation that is at least equally valid is that many small countries — some with countries smaller populations than Montreal or Toronto — just haven't enough people to go around and can't always be present for meetings.

SESSIONS GO ON

Zafrulla Khan's comment was in the nature of a followup to recommendations by Ali Khemisse, Mongi Slim of Tunisia, that assembly meetings begin on the first Tuesday of September — rather than the third Tuesday — in an effort to clear up business before the Christmas season.

For the 16th assembly, there was not one but two resumed sessions after Christmas, and they dragged onto March in a leisurely way. Delegates were on hand the Atlantic in 1492 under the command of Christopher Columbus, left shore on a similar voyage Wednesday. Her crew hopes to follow the same course Columbus followed.

African Lands, Canada Back Thant on Congo

By ALAN DONNELLY

LONDON (CP) — A jointly-held Canadian - African viewpoint on how to deal with internal disorders in The Congo was put out Wednesday at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

The conference also agreed that Congo matters be discussed Tuesday by External Affairs Minister Green, that it give a full report on the Congo at government talks.

The two issues were covered in the only parts of the conference's communique not dealing with the Commonwealth and British Common Market membership.

Green told the conference that Canada favors sanctions, as proposed by Acting United Nations Secretary - General U Thant, to extend the central Congolese government's control of secessionist Katanga province.

EXPRESS SAME VIEW

Some African members of the Commonwealth expressed the same view. Green said he did not think sanctions would lead to the use of force, a fear unexpressed but obviously held by British Foreign Secretary Lord Home.

The final conference communique said Common wealth ministers expressed the hope that the U Thant proposals "would prove to be the basis for a peaceful and constructive settlement" in The Congo.

Commonwealth leaders accepted Green's urging that it reaffirm the principles of last year's Commonwealth statement on resolving complete world disarmament under effective controls.

The communique said the 18-nation disarmament committee at Geneva should continue its efforts towards a treaty "in accordance with the principles thereof."

Prime Minister Diefenbaker told a press conference later that Canada is entitled to credit" for the stand he took on both the Congo issue and disarmament.

Weeds in Fence Corners Support Flies Which Attack Crop Pests Says Biologist

Those prettily flowered weeds which clutter up the fence corners during the early summer are a nuisance as well as being a nuisance.

At least that is the stand taken by Dr. Kaarel Leius, recently retired from the staff of the Entomology Research Institute for Biological Control at Belleville.

Dr. Leius notes that crop pests are attacked and killed by parasitic flies, but these flies must get their food from the flowers of wild carrot and other weeds before they will attack the crop pests.

A native of Estonia Dr. Leius was with the forestry department in England before he came to Belleville about ten years ago. He is now on retirement leave but still works mornings at the laboratory in an advisory capacity to the new man who is carrying on his studies on the benefits of certain weeds in biological control of crop pests.

He points out that when wild flowers are absent there are few parasites and consequently many pests.

MATTER OF BALANCE

"It's all a matter of keeping the proper balance in nature," he says.

Proof of the fact that the weeds have their uses in helping to control pests is the experiment in unsprayed apple orchards in the Belleville district which has been carried undergrowth. In such cases less than ten per cent of the leaf rollers and tent caterpillars are killed by parasites, while in orchards with a rich growth of spring flowering weeds 60 per cent of these pests are killed by parasites.

Dr. Leius would be the first to admit, however, that chemical control of orchard pests is also necessary.

Orchardists cannot wait for the parasites to do the work for him; they must get results immediately if they are to make money.

The purpose of the tests being made at the Belleville laboratory in connection with Dr. Leius' retirement is the best conditions for the release of parasites.

RUSSIANS SOWED WEEDS

It seems the Russians a few years ago, making a practical application of experiments done at Belleville in connection with biological control of orchard pests, scattered wild carrot around one of their orchards. The experiment was reported a success.

All of this indicates, of course that the destruction of vegetation at field margins by cutting or by chemical weed killers can be harmful because it destroys insects, birds and other animals that attack crop pests. When this happens the pests increase.

But detailed investigations are still needed to measure the effects of different pests on different crops. This is now being done by Dr. Garth Bowden, formerly of the University of Manitoba and now Dr. Leius' successor at the Belleville Institute.

And a way of destroying particular kinds of weeds without harming other plants is being investigated by Dr. Peter Harris.

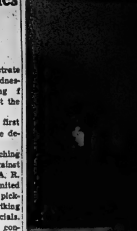
MOTH PARTICULAR

The moth was made in Europe for insects that destroy toadflax. These insects were then tested instead of Dr. quarantine and one of them, the toadflax moth, passed the tests. / It will not eat anything but toadflax.

It is planned to release this moth in Canada with the expectation that it will spread and help control this pest.

The chief European collaborator in these studies is Dr. H. Zwolfer, of the Commonwealth Institute of Biological Control, Switzerland. He is at present in Belleville working with Dr. Leius and Dr. Harris on the final stages of this experiment.

The next weed to be tested is the Canada Thistle.



Unofficial Translator At 'Lab' Retires in Fall

The Entomology Research Institute for Biological Control on Dundas Street in Belleville, is shortly to lose its unofficial translator.

With the frequent visits by research personnel from European countries, the local "lab" often runs into a language block which for the past ten years has been filled by staff member Dr. Kaarel Leius, 432 Bridge St., who speaks no less than six different languages.

But Dr. Leius is now on retirement leave and although still working in an advisory capacity, will leave the Institute this fall. Besides his native Estonian language, he also speaks English, French, German, Finnish and Russian.

Officially, I hasn't been my job to act as interpreter, but I

Dr. Kaarel Leius, expert in the field of biological control of orchard pests, is seen in his laboratory. A native of Estonia, he is on retirement leave from the Entomology Research Institute, but still works in an advisory capacity.

ems handy and the role fell to me," he said.

WOULD HELP OTHERS

Dr. Leius feels that the ability to speak Russian will become more important with the years as the country continues to take a part in world affairs.

Press and radio people in particular would find a knowledge of Russian helpful in their work without resorting to interpreters.

Now in semi retirement he has taken steps to relieve to some extent the language barrier that could crop up at the "lab" and is giving lessons in Russian to a few staff members at his home.

He would be interested however in starting another small group but before a week even- ly study.

Socreds, NDP Critical of Prime Minister

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Thompson, national Social Credit leader said Wednesday Prime Minister Diefenbaker will have to answer for Parliament for his lack of "inspiration and leadership" at the London prime ministers' conference.

Mr. Thompson, commenting on the conference's windup communique, said Mr. Diefenbaker's performance in London is characteristic of the kind of government the Progressive Conservatives have given Canada in the last five years.

"Apparently he hasn't learned the lesson of the last election," he said.

Malcolm MacInnis, MP for Cape Breton South, said on behalf of the New Democratic Party "We suggest there is no judgment to be made. What is required is not a mere adjustment rather than judgment, so as to expand international trade and thus compensate for any trade problems that result for the Commonwealth countries from Common Market."

Mr. MacInnis said Canada cannot continue to refuse to accept the important changes in international trade and international relations and to attack any consequent problems with courage and energy.

Mr. Diefenbaker had been absent in London when the Commonwealth communique was issued. The impression Canada is only interested in protecting the International status quo.

Any matter serious enough to come before the government will not receiving competent attention and administration, the government "could constitute a basis for non-confidence in the government."

He said the NDP notes with satisfaction that members of developing nations will continue to receive consideration and assistance.

Mr. Thompson, in his statement, said:

"It is a prime minister returns he certainly does not have the slightest grounds of hope that he might have had for Canadians, and he obviously will have to answer for it in the House."

Thirty Strikers Face Eviction From Homes

HAMILTON (CP) — Some 30 striking employees of the Dominion Glass Company face eviction if they can't pay rent for their city - owned homes.

Mrs. H. A. Ricker, chairman of the housing committee, said Wednesday night she feels sorry for those who face eviction, but that the committee must stick to its rules.

Eviction notices have arrived for the rent of the strikers who did not pay rent on the due date.

Evelyn Dumas, president of the welfare committee of Local 301 of the United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America (CLC), said private landlords and the housing committee have indicated they will wait until the strike is settled before pressing for rent.

A union delegation appealed Wednesday to the authority do do the same.

Mrs. Ricker asked whether the union would be willing to sign a written guarantee of payment. Miss Dumas, union president, said it could not afford to do so.

Blackmailed Into Spying Says Accused

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (Reuters)—A former West Berlin state prosecutor told the federal supreme court here Wednesday that he was blackmailed into spying for Russia.

Peter Fuhrmann, 47, a former West Berlin state prosecutor, is on trial for treasonable activity and one-time Nazi party member, Otto John, 52, stands found out about his love affair with a married woman and blackmailed him into working for them.

Fuhrmann is on trial for treason, accused of working for the Soviet intelligence service between 1954 and 1958. He still has arrest in November last year.

He told the court: "I am guilty, but I did not engage in espionage activities for the sake of money."

The Russians offered him 100,000 marks (about $27,000) for his work but he refused the money as "abominable." He said, but admitted receiving a total of 7,000 marks.

Expropriation of Power Said Important Step for Economic Emaincaption

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Lesage Wednesday described his government's plan to expropriate 11 privately-owned power companies as "the most important and the most forward economic measure ever to be introduced in Quebec."

Supporters of the proposal feel that it represents an important step in what is sometimes referred to as the fight for economic emancipation of the province's 4,000,000 French-Canadians.

Public ownership of power resources is not a new issue in the province, which has the largest hydro-electric potential of any in the country. The question has been discussed for more than 20 years.

It is felt that public ownership of all power resources will permit a better balanced economic development. That was considered the main reason why public support is being sought by the government. Lesage has carried out revolutionary projects in other fields since it took office in 1960.

RATES VARY

While there is an abundance of electricity in the province, some feel that its distribution is inadequate and that there is too much variation in rates from one district to another.

The Mattis area in the northwest and the Gaspe area in the east are at present the only areas not served. Both areas are economically weak and the shortage of power is generally given as the main cause.

Supporters of expropriation feel that Shawinigan Water and Power Company, the largest of the 11 the government plans to take over, now pays $2,000,000 a year to taxes to the federal government. This amount would remain in Quebec, follow ing expropriation, they say, because a publicly-owned enterprises are exempt from federal taxes.

Looking ahead to the election campaign, some observers are predicting that opponents of the government will not fight on the expropriation issue, but will hit at the government on other points.

OPPOSES PLAN

A question that is being raised concerns the role of private enterprise in the campaign. Private enterprise generally has indicated it is solidly opposed to expropriation.

In Quebec it is felt a major role is possible.

In a recent speech, Premier Lesage said that every time a government withers to change something, certain influences started a move to try and stop it.

"And almost always these influences win. We expropriate land, because we yielded or because we were afraid," said Mr. Lesage.

The question now is being asked whether the continued influences mentioned by Mr. Lesage will be powerful enough to stop the government which in his works is seeking a decisive expropriate the power companies.

Prof. Advocates Clean-Cut Mandate for Central Bank

OTTAWA (CP)—A firm stand in favor of more publicity and frankness by central banks, such as the Bank of Canada, was taken here Wednesday by Professor Jacob Viner of Harvard University.

The Montreal-born professor told the royal commission on banking and finance that he abhors "secret persuasion" applied by central banks to corporations outside their legal control. He also opposed "back-room" government directives.

"It's much easier to do what you don't have to disclose your reasons," Prof. Viner said. "I'd rather you do it openly before them, the reasons have to be pretty good."

When asked by one commissioner if he favored the practice of publishing the central bank's lending rate as a "signal" to the business community of changing conditions.

WHY NOT ENGLISH!

Sure, said the professor, "as long as central bankers think there is virtue in being dumb." Why not use English as the language to tell people?

Prof. Viner said he advocates general mandates of directives to central banks, so they know what is expected of them. But if this mandate was to aim, say, at price stability, the bank would have to decide when the finance minister "to go somewhere" if he complained, as perhaps now on the question of interest rates.

This clear mandate would enable the central bank to operate more efficiently, and to pursue its goal with more vigor.

But the arrangement would not affect the ultimate authority for central bank policy.

"I would not share the sovereignty of the Dominion of Canada with the Bank of Canada. I would keep it in the Dominion of Canada."

Asked whether such policy resolutions might become Statutes, Prof. Viner said that if a central bank pursued an objective "even though the heavens fall," the same minister who handed out the mandate could take it away.

SUGGESTS 'COUNCIL'

The arrangement would call for a council or a formal, dignified meeting between the central bank and the cabinet "at least once a year" so the government would not take the intervening action.

From this, if necessary, would come a new mandate for the central bank, or a "no backroom thing," but with written directives, "stating the nature of the case, clearly announced to the public. Parliament would have to be consulted and would commend the step.

At no time in the hearing was there any reference to last year's festering dispute between the government and central bank governor James E. Coyne, who subsequently resigned following an unsuccessful government bid to have Parliament fire him.

Prof. Viner, a former McGill University staff member, said he is in favor of a central bank's use of "moral persuasion" as long as it is kept on the public record. "Secret persuasion, I abhor."

Fine Rescinded Against Woman Selling Baby

TIMMINS (CP) — Magistrate J. G. Gardner rescinded Wednesday a $300 fine against Mrs. Rita Tubman, 36, convicted under the Canada Welfare Act of selling her year-old baby girl for the purpose of adoption.

Mrs. Tubman was charged in charge of procuring a child for the purpose of adoption against Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Skolsky.

Police had charged Mrs. Tubman had bartered the child to Mr. and Mrs. Skolsky for $300 in December, 1961.

Magistrate Gardner upheld a motion by lawyer Gregory Evans, counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Skolsky, that the charges be withdrawn.

Mr. Evans said that under Section 823 of the Summary Convictions Act a charge must be laid within six months of the date of the offence.

He said police did not lay charges until 11 months after the alleged offence.

Mrs. Tubman told the court she thought the baby's parents she received for her child to re-establish herself and her two remaining children. After the sale, she moved to Kitchener and then to Cleveland, returning here to face the charge.

Nursing Home Operator Fined, House Filthy

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (C—Twenty - six crippled and deformed children were living in "filthy" conditions, some semi-naked and dirty in a room in which one-quarter of an inch of filth covered the floor, a Peel County medical health officer told a magistrate's court.

Mrs. Alice Mann, operator of the Cooksville nursing home for crippled and deformed children, was fined $25 for keeping an unsanitary house.

Health officer, Dr. D. G. H. McKinnon, said he found the home Aug. 15. It contained 26 children, 16 of them boarding children and receiving care.

He said attached to the house were premises over a garage where the children ate meals and dirty children.

"The stench was extremely powerful," he said, "enough to make your eyes water.

"All the children were closed and it was hot and full of flies."

Paper Claims Egypt Abducted Rocket Expert

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — The Israeli newspaper Haboker has claimed that Egyptian intelligence agents abducted West German rocket expert Helmi Krug.

The newspaper alleged that Krug, 46, was abducted to prevent "a second missile" deal between him and an Israeli firm which suffered by Krug-Ankara Trading Company, which makes materials for the construction of rockets.

Krug, former manager of the Stuttgart Research Institute for Jet Propulsion Physics, was said to have been supplying Egypt with materials for the rocket centre near Cairo.

But Haboker said Krug's Intra Company recently negotiated with an Israeli firm which was to have given the company and all its staff.

The newspaper said Krug was due to leave for a West European capital to sign the takeover agreement but he was abducted.

He disappeared in Munich eight days ago and his wife told reporters: "My husband was kidnapped."

Munich police said they did not confirm or deny reports of abduction by the secret service of a Middle East country. It was reported today that Israeli spoi was called in to help the search for the scientist.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant, or visit an income tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Income Tax Dept.

In this article we will deal with the income tax status of unmarried mothers with illegitimate children to support.

The income tax act states that until the contrary is proven, the illegitimate child is dependent on the mother. When she has the custody and control of the child an equivalent exemption status is allowed which gives her an overall exemption of $2,000.

She does not necessarily have to maintain a home to get this exemption. She may pay the child's board, if it lives elsewhere and still retain this exemption. Even if she pays, retains custody and control this exemption applies.

If the courts have ordered the father of the child to make certain payments to the mother on its behalf, she does not have to include these payments in her income. On the other hand, the father of the child has no claim whatsoever. He may not deduct payment of this nature from his income or claim any exemption for the child.

If the father has the custody and control of the child and the mother has given up any claim, then the father would be allowed whatever exemption that applies. A person who may be divorced, legally separated or a widow(er) may claim the equivalent to married status on the child for a total of $3,000 exemption.

For this claim to be allowed the absolute custody must come from the mother of the child to his return to verity that she has given up all claim to the child.

When in doubt as to the validity of your claim you should consult with the income tax office nearest you.

Question 1 - I have an illegitimate child and both of us live with my parents. I pay my board and also give $10 a week for the child. I buy the child's clothes and pay its doctor bills. Can I claim the child or do my parents claim exemption for it?

Answer - You are supporting the child, you have the claim. You are allowed the equivalent of married status, which is $1,000 exemption for yourself and $1,000 on behalf of the child. Your parents have no claims.

Question 2 - I have an illegitimate child and the court have awarded me $30 per month from its father. Do I have to show this $30 per month on my tax return?

Answer - No. The father of the child may not deduct this amount from his return, therefore, he pays the tax on it.

TURTLES ABROAD

Hoofs comes the marine green turtle, home from the sea—providing he has managed to stay out of the soup.

To provide gourmets with their delight, green turtle soup, the fishermen of Ascension Island and The Caribbean have hunted the green turtle. But now it is being bred by biologists as well.

They've found that the turtle seems instinctively to find its way to the sea, as soon as it hatches from the egg. And the green turtle navigates like a Magellan. Turtles tagged on Ascension Island have been found 1,400 miles away near Brazil. By some sense, the adult female recognizes and returns to nearly the same place on the beach over and over again to lay its eggs.

Dr. Archie Carr of the University of Florida has been studying the green turtle and trying to devise ways that would ensure it would not become extinct.

The green turtle used to nest at a number of places in The Caribbean. But it has been so well hunted that now it concentrates only at Tortuguero on the Costa Rican coast.

PEOPLE UNLIMITED

By the middle of this year, the population of the world had grown to 3,115,000,000, and 50,000,000 more people are added each year, say population scientists.

Some 70 per cent of the world's people now live in member nations of the United Nations, says the Population Reference Bureau. Another 22 per cent live in Communist China.

SALT LAKE SAFARI

Dr. Louis F. Gebhardt, his son Michael, and John Stanton, an assistant, hunt the state of Utah for bats, snakes, rodents and mosquitoes.

Their aim: to find the animal or insect that harbors the virus of western equine encephalitis, a severe brain disease, transmitted by a mosquito bite.

"We are convinced that the virus is harbored over the winter months in one or more of these animal reservoirs," says Dr. Gebhardt of the University of Utal. "We are trying to learn which one is the culprit."

The incidence of encephalitis rises in the spring with the rise of mosquito populations, decreases again when the cold weather comes.

Czech Govt. Stepping Up Pressure on the Farmers To Produce More Food

The Czechoslovakian government is worried about the slow growth rate of agriculture under communism. This story tells of efforts to get state farms to produce as much in fact as they were expected to in theory.

By DAVE OANCIA

PRAGUE (CP) — Czechoslovakia's Communist government is stepping up the pressure on the nation's farmers to get them to produce more food.

The planners want more grain, meat, butter, milk, eggs and other products to eliminate the food queues one now sees in major population centres.

The method being used is old-fashioned talk and advice. The government already has invested millions of crowns to provide the new collective farms with modern buildings and machinery.

It now feels further effort is needed to induce the workers on the land to shed their peasant mentalities for something more compatible with the machine age.

The food problem is one of the most intractable confronting the regime. Industrial production has climbed at the rate of seven to 10 per cent a year and the annual output now is said to be about four times the pre-war figure.

WON'T RAISE PRICES

Agricultural production, on the other hand, has been struggling up at a meagre one or two per cent annually. Only within the last couple of years has the pre-war figure been surpassed, a fact that has prompted the regime to give top priority to bringing agriculture up to the level of industry by 1970.

"We must try to get people to work as hard on the collective as they did when they worked on their own plots," said one Communist. "Give us a generation and we'll have solved the problem."

No thought is being given in the country to the idea of raising prices to provide greater incentives so farmers as has been done in the Soviet Union.

Instead the emphasis will be on education and on improvement of social conditions in the villages where the collective farmers live.

Peasants who once used primitive tools to eke out a living from plots ranging in size from two to 10 acres are to be encouraged still more to learn how to use and care for modern machinery and how to farm on a large scale.

OFFER BETTER LIFE

New houses, schools, cultural and recreation centres are being built as part of the effort to make farm life more attractive. Through mechanization and other improvements, the regime hopes to stop the flight of young people from the land to jobs in industry.

The current agricultural crisis comes in the wake of four gradual, but major, upheavals on the land since the Communists assumed full power in 1948. Ninety per cent of the land now is in what officials call the "socialist sector." Only isolated farms in the mountains of the east still are worked by their owners, but thought is being given to merging these into collectives as well.

The Communist farm program has altered the face of the countryside. The small, narrow strip farms familiar to those in Quebec have disappeared. Larger fields, comparable to those on the larger Ontario farms, now are the rule.

RETAIN SOME LAND

As you drive through the country you can tell whether you are passing a state farm or a collective by watching for the patch of one-acre strips near the village. The state farms, about 18 per cent of the total, are worked by salaried managers and hired hands.

On most of the collectives many of the members still have private half hectares where they can grow a few vegetables, keep a pig or two and either a cow for their own milk or, if they belong to a collective, started in 1949 after land had been parcelled out among the peasants. They cultivated it themselves and delivered a portion of their produce to the state.

Then, just as the peasants were getting used to this, phase two started. The farmers were pressured into surrendering their plots to collectives which they would farm with the assistance and under the close supervision of the state-run machine and tractor stations.

Stage three was complete collectivization. The peasants were told to pool their livestock, except for a cow and a pig, as well as any machinery they possessed. Payments based on the size of land and other contributions to the collectives were still made to members.

FEWER FARMS

In phase four these "soil rank" payments were abolished and a drive was made to integrate small collectives into larger units. Integration has reduced the number of farms to 8,000 from 13,000. Their sizes range from about 1,000 to 3,000 acres.

With the introduction of the fourth phase in 1959, the machine - tractor stations which used to do work under contract were virtually abolished. All but the heaviest equipment was turned over to the collectives.

A new stage now seems to be emerging, one in which the farmers will be encouraged to give up their private plots to put them in a position where they can give their undivided attention to work on the collectives.

"In the whole national scale there are two types of farms—the good and the not-so-good," I was told by the professional political officer on a collective in eastern Czechoslovakia.

"The view now is being advanced that the most efficient farms are those where private plots no longer exist."

BOUGHT MACHINERY

The transformation of the farm system went hand in hand with a country-wide investment program. The state provided the funds for modern machinery, collective cow barns, pig sties and better-quality seed.

Officials admit the big upheaval involved, in eradicating private owners has had an impact on production. Few in the small country know anything about running a big farm. Often influential positions went to those who demonstrated not their skill, but their political reliability and fervor.

The kulaks, as the larger farmers were called, were given work around shoulder when cooperatives were formed. Their hands were gradually taken over by the collectives. They usually were forced to go to work in other fields.

WATCHED CLOSELY

They can work on the collectives, but only under a certain amount of close control," a Prague planner said. "They are never given executive jobs on farms. And their children are being re - educated to change their attitude to collective farming."

Despite the atmosphere of crisis, officials insist they now are at a point where they can boost food production—a problem that has always been an Achilles' heel of Communist systems.

"We needed time to build the structures needed for large-scale farming," one said.

"Now we have good conditions for increasing livestock and other products and we're confident that figures will increase."

But, as I was told frankly, collectivization can only succeed in the long run if older people are stirred out of their apathy and if the younger generation can be kept on the farm.

Tomorrow: Slovaks cling to nationalism.

British Immigration To Commonwealth Countries Seems to Be on Upswing

By ALAN WALKER

LONDON (CP) — British emigration to Commonwealth countries seems to be on the upswing again after three years of pessimism about overseas opportunities.

Immigration officials from the four main Commonwealth receiving countries of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland said here they are happy about prospects.

"We hit rock bottom last year with only 12,000 British immigrants," a Canadian official said. "This year the figures are on the way up and we'll probably have between 15,000 and 18,000."

Australia expects its usual 35,000-40,000 Britons this year. "Immigration was down in the last few years because of the adverse publicity surrounding the Canadian recession," an Australia House official said. "This still sticks. It's hard to live down, but things are improving."

New Zealand last year had its biggest immigration year since the Second World War and took in 12,000 Britons.

"As a matter of fact this year we've even had to limit the numbers," an official said. "We expect about 10,000."

SKILLED MEN SOUGHT

An official for the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland said there is no room there for unskilled or semi-skilled workers.

"The demand will be heavy for years to come for skilled men," he said. "We get about 5,000 Britons each year."

Observers here doubt there will be a repetition of the 1957 immigration boom that saw queues forming daily outside Commonwealth immigration offices. In that year 136,598 Britons left for the Commonwealth. By 1960 the total had dropped to 70,446.

"We had a few bad years when the press in this country was lousy," the Canadian official said.

He referred to reports of disgruntled Britons who came home. Canadian salaries that had looked attractive turned out partly to be mirages as the new Canadians found themselves sending more money in Canada than they had at home trying to keep up with their neighbors' standard of living.

Jobs were less plentiful than had been expected and once out of work the British immigrants found Canadian welfare facilities below British standards.

BETTER CONDITIONS

"But now conditions are better," the Canadian official said. "The largest single factor in the increased interest in going to Canada is correspondence from friends and relatives already there."

He said the immigrants told their relations not to worry about press-figures on Canadian unemployment and that "we are all living quite well, thank you."

Although in 1958 for the first time Italian emigration exceeded British in Canada, this year the trend will be reversed, Canadian government figures indicate.

Meanwhile, people coming to Britain from the underdeveloped Commonwealth countries have dwindled since the cold shoulder of the Commonwealth Immigrants Act came into effect July 1.

Competition From Trailers, Trucks Sounds Death Knell Of St. Lawrence Schooner

MONTREAL (CP)—Competition from trains and trucks as well as the high cost of replacement are sounding the death knell of the St. Lawrence River schooner—for generations the backbone of transportation in Quebec.

While they may never disappear completely, their number is expected to drop from well over 100 today to a dozen by 1970.

Whereas they are still playing the major role of supplying most ports on the river, this is becoming limited more and more to serving ports not yet accessible by trucks or trains.

Few of the famous little ships are being replaced because the high cost of steel hulls—about $250,000—makes the operation barely economical for the family concerns that have traditionally run them.

Many other river boats are being used beyond their normal life and are definitely on their last sailings.

Capt. Joseph Gagnon, 73, ual master of the 150-ton Comte boats, Charlevoix, sees little hope for the future of the craft, "each ever beat our rates."

"Everything now is done in a hurry. Someone places an order for 30 tons of cargo from Montreal and they want it right away. A ship can't satisfy a demand like that."

But the captain, isn't one of those sailors who predict eventual termination of the river

"For one thing, no truck will year the demand for our services decreases."

His latest arrival in Montreal with no cargo was not unusual, he said, for the two-way trade of better years has been replaced with one-way freight downriver from here.

This is breeding uncertainty in Capt. Gagnon's family which doesn't know what line of work it will turn to in the event their Comte Charlevoix is forced out of business. Previously, the vessel was considered much in the same way as a family farm — property to be handed down from generation to generation, forming the basis of their livelihood.

The change in the relatively leisurely pattern of the old days also disturbs Captain Gagnon.

Many Haunts of Potentates On French Riviera Now Cater to Tourist Traffic

By PAUL WESTBROOK

CANNES, France (CP)—The French Riviera is the place where you can see steak spelled three different ways in the same block.

"Steack and egg, English spoken," advertises the chrom-lum - plated bar. "Sleck and egg, U.S. provided," offers the fishbowl bistro. "Welcome to the U.S. fleet, sick and egg" runs the menu of the multi-street restaurant in Cannes.

Whatever the spelling, the end product is the same. A waiter, apparel wearing sneakers and perspiration, bearing what at first looks like just a fried egg. By tilting the egg the "steak" is found nestling under the yolk.

This is the modern Riviera, the gilded strip of coast in the south of France that once served the world's aristocracy. It still has its high life, but many places now unashamedly cater to the "baked-bean brigade" with self-service cafeterias — dispensing quick - frozen versions of famous dishes — have swung in the pace-quickened resorts of the Cote D'Azur.

Many of the old haunts of princes and potentates have gone overboard for the tourist trade. Camping sites dot the hilly hinterland and motels do a roaring trade.

The rich have sought new standing ground. They are replaced by tightly-budgeted middle classes and package tours. Only here and there resides some of its old atmosphere and this is rapidly being lost. It is too small to hold the masses.

Yet, despite the increased number of British, Germans, Dutch and Belgians flocking to Cannes, Nice and Juanles-Pins this summer, the Riviera is having its worst season for years.

However much the status-seekers, the sun addicts and the coach tripped social, they can't produce the sort of wealth that has made the coast famous. The Riviera is geared to big money.

The casinos are packed with people watching the fate of their 10-cent flutter. But they need the customer who will gamble $1,000 a time — and this sort of money is seen only in private rooms and "closed" these days.

BLAME BRITISH

The old guard tends to blame the British tourists for the Riviera's loss of face. The British abroad has a traditional distrust of foreign food and a reluctance to learn a foreign language.

He would rather stick to "good old baked beans on toast" than risk a filet mignon. He prefers a gesticulable and point to the phrase book that suffer the embarrassment of uttering a couple of words of fractured French.

So the restaurateurs and shopkeepers pander to their patrons and hastily slap together pidgin-English menus, while expert chefs are diverted to preparing "Scientific Anglais."

Wrote Daily Mail Columnist Noel Barber after a trip to Nice:

"I can only describe the scene today as the decline and fall of the French Riviera."

ALBERTA OIL

Alberta contributed 72 per cent of Canada's record production of crude petroleum in 1961.

Federation of Malaysia Consisting of Five States Will Be Born in Aug. '63

By PETER SMART

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (Reuters)—Committees in several cities have begun intensive work aimed at binding together five territories into a new nation spread in a crescent across the South China Sea between Thailand and The Philippines.

This work should lead to the birth in August, 1963, of the federation of Malaysia. This was the date set in an agreement reached recently in London between the British and Malayan governments.

But how firmly the five units will be bound together, and how these bonds will stand the test of time, will be decided by the answers which the proposed nation can find to a number of complex issues.

Malaysia will be composed of five states in very different stages of development, all multi-racial and all former units of the British Empire and present components of the British Commonwealth.

Malaya, the largest unit in the new nation, has been independent since 1957. The other four units are still subject to London in some degree. Singapore is a self-governing city-state subject to Britain for defence and foreign affairs. North Borneo and Sarawak are crown colonies, while tiny Brunei is a sultanate under British protection.

Ethnically, the federation will be one of the most multi-racial in the world. Among its population will be Chinese, Indians, Malays, Eurasians, and members of many indigenous tribes in the Borneo territories.

Economically, the federation should be viable, with Malaya's tin, rubber, palm oil, coconuts and expanding industrialization; Singapore's lumber, tin smelting, shipbuilding and port facilities; Brunei's oil, natural gas and rubber; Sarawak's sago, pepper, gold and rubber; and North Borneo's rubber, copra, hemp, tobacco and timber.

The currency of all the states, the Straits dollar, is strong and steady.

The main problems of the central government will lie on the tiny, teeming island of Singapore, where 1,700,000 people crowd 227 square miles of land connected to the Malayan mainland by a causeway.

Of this population, 1,300,000 are Chinese, many of them resentful of the fact of the Malays controlling the new federation politically, because the merger proposals will make most of the Chinese citizens of Singapore and nationals of Malaysia, but not Malaysian citizens.

Many of the Chinese still look to Peking as the centre of Chinese culture.

It Is Remarks Such as These Which a Hermit Could Do Without

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that a hermit gets tired of hearing:

"He came all the way out here to get away from it all, and now he doesn't have the carfare to go back."

"As I understand it, he has to earn one more merit badge —and then he'll be an eagle scout."

"They say he's trying to interest Hollywood in an autobiographical movie entitled Son of Thoreau."

"Excuse me, sir. May I have your permission to survey these woods? I'm from the state highway department and we're planning to build a ..."

"He isn't really lonely except in winter after the tourists leave. Then there's nobody around except the field mice to hear him explain about how civilization is nothing but a rat race."

SNAKE A HARE

"Murgatroyd, your mother sent me over to tell you that if you don't share a rabbit today, she won't be able to cook you nothing hot for dinner tonight."

"Boy, the lengths some husbands won't go to in order to avoid helping their wives with the dishes."

"I'll all started with Murgatroyd liking to hold charcoal cookouts in the back yard. He kept building the fire farther and farther from the house—until he finally disappeared in the trees."

"His only real victory is the day he fills out his income tax return, puts it in a bottle—and throws it into the river."

"Murgatroyd isn't afraid of work. He just likes to watch it from a safe distance."

MAKE LIKE APE

"Hey, nature boy, let's see you swing from limb to limb."

"No, junior, that's not Tarzan. That's probably just his nephew."

"Marry me and let me take you away from all this; you're too cute for words."

"This looks like a nice place to hold our picnic—if that funny fellow with the beard would just go away."

"Excuse me, sir, I'm the local representative of the Audubon Society. Have you seen any spellbound, mottled-coated Grosbeaks lately?"

Ole Moe (they call him the ironman defenceman down Omaha way) Benoit, has signed a new two-year contract with the hockey Knights of the Nebraska city, the club's general manager announced the other day.

MOE BENOIT

The big, likeable French-Canadian who made a host of friends here during his sojourn with the world champion Belleville McFarlands, had one of his best years with the Knights last season. He scored 11 goals and had 34 assists to rank sixth in the Knight's scoring parade.

Big and rugged as ever, the 190-pound Moe was a stalwart performer for the Knights, playing in all 68 games without relief. He logged nearly 40 minutes a game of playing time, more than average for a defenceman.

Moe is now in his third year with the Knights. He makes his home in Omaha, having moved there with his family in 1961. He works for the club, doing promotion, advertising and season tickets during the off-season.

Friends of Big Moe here will get the opportunity to see the big fella in action sometime this winter.

The Eastern Professional Hockey League clubs play a home-and-home series with teams of the International Hockey League. Omaha is an IHL club and will be seen in action against the Frontenacs in Kingston.

And another grand guy of the former Belleville McFarlands is seeing action on another front. Lionel Botly is not pushing pucks this winter but is doing a neat job with a pen signing new policyholders to insurance contracts. He is now with the North American Life Assurance Company. Best of luck, m'lad, in the new venture.

WRESTLING

Yukon Eric, mighty-muscled Alaska lumberjack, has volunteered for the chore of smashing the unbroken record of Stan Stasiak. Yukon issued a challenge to take on the rampaging Arvida Assassin and Stasiak boldly took his dare.

They'll meet in Friday night's mat feature at Memorial Arena and it is the fond hope of the fans that this will be Stasiak's finale, as it has been for many others who have come up against Yukon's amazing strength and rugged physique.

The semi-final on the card should be a mat classic. Gentleman Jim Hardy, after several months' absence, will be going all-out to top Tony Marino in the scientific wrestling department.

Opening bout on the mat show will have 300-pound Gino Marella, Rochester Italian, attempting to flatten Howard Martin.

SOFTBALL

Ontario Amateur Softball Association championship series are in full-flight with some of the top dogs already mantelling their trophies.

OASA president Don Lee is flitting hither and yon attending as many tituliar battles as possible, as befits his position.

Competition is keener than a new razor blade. Of the 478 games reported played, 82 have been decided by one run. Seventy-seven have been tied with 21 gone into extra innings; 71 series gone to third games and ten games have resulted in 1-0 scores.

Standout hurling performance to date was the 15-inning thriller between Virgil and Dover Centre. Wally Dick of Virgil, whiffed 25 batters while Bill Covery of Dover struck out 26.

Dover Centre won by a 1-0 score on a single and a three-base error which enabled the batter to score the only run of the game. Dover executed the only reported triple play to retire Virgil in the 11th inning.

Dodgers, Giants Shake Defeat Jinx

Wills Two 'Steals' Shy

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Don Drysdale applying the stop and Maury Wills the go, Los Angeles Dodgers are back on the track in their stretch drive for the National League pennant.

Drysdale put the stopper on the Dodgers' three-game losing string Wednesday by firing a five-hitter for his 25th victory of the year as Los Angeles beat Milwaukee Braves 4-0.

Wills got into the attack by opening the game with a single, stealing second base, moving to third on a bunt and scoring the only run Drysdale needed on a double-play grounder.

Wills has 34 steals, with one game left to match or surpass Ty Cobb's 35-game record of 96. His chance to better the 47-year-old mark in 84 battles will come Friday against St. Louis Cardinals.

The Dodgers maintained their 3½-game lead over San Francisco Giants, who powered their way out of a six-game batting slump on homers by Willie Mays and Tom Haller and beat the Cards 7-4.

PITCHES SIX-HITTER

Bob Friend pitched a six-hitter and Don Clendenon homered as Pittsburgh Pirates edged Cincinnati Reds 1-0, stopping the Reds' seven-game winning streak.

Philadelphia Phillies defeated Chicago Cubs 4-3 in a double header opener shortened to six innings by rain. The second game was postponed, as was a doubleheader scheduled at New York between the Mets and Houston Colts.

Mays whacked his 45th homer, tops in the majors, and Haller, rookie catcher, connected for two as the Giants hopped on Larry Jackson and the Cards for all their runs in the first three innings.

Lefthander Billy O'Dell also was shelled early, yielding all four St. Louis runs in the first frames, but pitched shutout ball the rest of the way for his 12th victory.

Haller homered in the second inning, making it 4-2, then the Giants routed Jackson with a five-run explosion in the third when Mays homered with two on and Haller with one aboard.

Bob Priddy of the Pirates became an 18-game winner with his first shutout of Cincinnati. Clendenon settled matters in the seventh inning with his homer off Jim Maloney. The shutout was only four hits.

By winning their abbreviated match with the Cubs, the Phillies made it five straight victories and moved into a virtual mark for the first time since May 31. Chris Short was the winning pitcher, with the aid of a three-run third inning that put Philadelphia in charge.

Has Temper, Plate Control

Drysdale Changed Hurler

By DAVE O'HARA

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ace pitcher Don Drysdale of Los Angeles Dodgers credits an improved overhand delivery for helping him become the major league's biggest winner. But manager Birdie Tebbetts of Milwaukee Braves has another opinion.

"He stopped being a bully," Tebbetts said Wednesday after Drysdale snapped the Dodgers' three-game losing streak by blanking the Braves 4-0 for his 25th victory of the National League season.

"I have no feelings about losing a game like this," Tebbetts said after Drysdale's five-hit nine-strikeout effort. "He was great, just great. He's a completely different type of pitcher out there.

Drysdale, 26, a towering righthander who had not won more than 17 games in any season since joining the Dodgers in 1956, was noted until this year for his fiery temper — and his batsmen. He often has denied throwing intentionally at batters.

HIT 9 BATTERS

Drysdale hit Dennis Menke of the Braves with a pitch in the fifth inning. He has struck nine batters in 260 3-3 innings this year.

Los Angeles manager Walt Alston said Drysdale is "throwing a ball not more from the top and it has helped every pitch. He gets a little more wrist into his delivery. His fastball is livelier, his sinker sinks more and the curve breaks better."

Drysdale, who has lost seven games, said he has been able to get into a pitching groove and stay there."

Burgess Out for Season

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates said Wednesday catcher Smoky Burgess will not play the remainder of the season.

A team spokesman said Burgess had been having stomach trouble, and doctors advised he take a rest. The veteran catcher has been bothered by stomach trouble much of the season.

He was hitting .326, had 13 home runs and 60 RBIs.

Upsets Mark US Amateur

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — A bundle of upsets struck the fourth round of the U.S. Amateur golf tournament Wednesday and moved former kings Deane Beman, Harvie Ward and Dick Chapman and British champ Dick Davies to the sidelines.

Only the defeat of Chapman, the amateur titlist in 1940, now 51 and better geared for senior competition, could have been classed as expectable. The rest were shockers that kept the galleries buzzing throughout the day at the 7,050-yard par 35-35—72 No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club.

Champ Speed Over-Rated

CHICAGO (AP)—Floyd Patterson, world heavyweight boxing king, has a reputation for speed. But Sonny Liston thinks it's vastly over-rated.

"I hear and read how fast Patterson is," Liston said Wednesday after a rugged workout for his title bout against Patterson here next Tuesday. "What do you mean by fast? One thing I judge it by is how fast he can knock a man out. Can Patterson knock out a man any faster than me?

"Then I read about the speed he has with his hands. What do they mean by that? Did he ever catch a bullet with them?"

The question of speed seemed to be on Liston's mind as he trained at Aurora Downs race

Crackers Defeat Suns

ATLANTA (AP) — Johnny Kucks will try to keep Atlanta Crackers' playoff charts. Kucks was 14-7 on the regular season.

Errors by Suns shortstop Tony Martinez set up Angel Scull to be driven in by Doug Clemens. Scull came home on a ground out in the first and a base hit in the fifth.

Atlanta's other unearned tally came with a Phil Gagliano crossed the plate on Glenn's lofty, first inning sacrifice fly. Gagliano had advanced on Martinez' miscue.

Americans Like Light Airs

Heavy Weather Favored 'Gretel'

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Steadily worsening weather conditions have cast a pall over the once-bright America's Cup picture for the United States' Westerly.

The best-of-seven series for the sentient, battered cup stood at 1-1 today as Westerly went to the starting line against Australia's Gretel.

High winds and heavy seas had the Americans frankly worried and the challenging Aussies jubilant.

"If these conditions get worse, it could be awful bad," said Westerly's designer, Phillip Rhodes of New York, after the United States team went through a four-hour drill in winds up to 22 miles an hour Wednesday.

"Naturally, we prefer to race Westerly in the light air conditions which are most suitable for her," U.S. team spokesman George O'Day admitted.

Westerly scored a resounding Saturday victory in the opening race in light wind and a week, causing many observers to predict a four-race sweep.

WON IN WORSE WEATHER

But Gretel came back to capture the second race on heavier seas Tuesday as Westerly's crew had trouble tacking to windward and displayed slow spinnaker work.

"It can't get too rough for us," gleefully asserted Australian skipper Jock Sturrock after a glance at the dark, threatening skies Wednesday. "We're used to much heavier weather than this off Sydney heads," he said.

The Australians spent most of Wednesday installing a longer traveller, which was taken from the trial horse Vim. They also

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League have found a new look, at least in goal.

Two newcomers, Bobby Perreault and Ed Johnston, are expected to share Bruins goaltending this year in Boston's new dual-goaltender system.

Bruce Gamble, who finished the season as Boston's goaltender last year, has been sent to Kingston Frontenacs of the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Gamble took over the job last season from Don Simmons, who was returned to Portland Buckaroos of the Western League. Simmon finished last in 1961-62, the second year in a row.

Perrault, 24, a veteran of the American League, was obtained from Hershey Bears this summer in a trade. Ed Chadwick of the Kingston goaltender, went to Hershey.

Johnston, 26, was with Spokane Comets in the Western League last season but Boston plucked him from the Montreal Canadiens organization at the draft.

DEFENCEMEN MOVES

Another Boston regular who won't be with the club to open the season this year is young defenceman Ed Westfall.

Westfall, who stepped from Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series directly to Boston last year, has also been assigned to Kingston.

Meanwhile, the talk in Toronto Maple Leafs camp has nothing to do with goaltending.

Leafs and coach Punch Imlach aren't hitting it off in their contract negotiations. Frank Mahovlich walked out of camp and returned, but says he hasn't spoken to Imlach.

Most of the players want to sign before making an exhibition jaunt through Western Canada.

MOORE OUTSTANDING

At Verdun, near Montreal, where Canadiens are training, veteran defenceman Doug Harvey is making his braces smile.

He was in sharp form at practice Wednesday. He scored a picture-play goal, set up another by defenceman Lou Fontinato and was absolutely outstanding.

At St. Catharines, Chicago Black Hawks were given a morning off by coach Rudy Pilous after a two-period straight exhibition win over the Stanley Cup champion Leafs.

All but three were on the ice for the afternoon scrimmage.

ARE ABSENT

Absent were John McKenzie, with pulled leg tendons; Ab MacDonald, who has contusions of the left knee, and Wayne Hillman, who has a bruised foot, missed the workout.

Eric Nesterenko, who has been in camp 10 days recuperating from a hernia operation, skated for the first time Wednesday.

Rigney Signs for Two Years

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Field manager Bill Rigney of the Los Angeles Angels has been signed for two more years, General Manager Fred Haney said Wednesday night.

Terms of the contract were not announced. Rigney is believed to have been getting about $25,000.

Rigney, 43 next month, has managed the Angels since they were organized in the American League in 1961. He previously managed San Francisco Giants of the National League.

FIGHTING GOES ON

LONDON (Reuters) — Leaders of the Nagaland nationalists' struggle for independence from India claimed here Wednesday that in eight years of guerrilla warfare the Indians have killed 100,000 Nagas and imprisoned 400,000 more. The delegation of 40,000 nationalist troops are matched against 300,000 Indian troops. Gen. Kaito, leader of the Naga guerrilla army, said "the fighting is continuing."

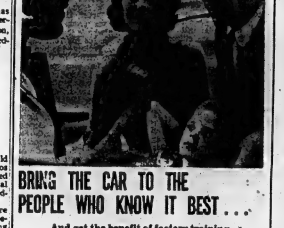
Brampton Drops 2nd Game

By PAUL RIDSTEAD

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — If seven really is a lucky number, Brampton Ramblers might finally win a Mann Cup game here Friday night.

They've lost six in a row — four straight to Vancouver last year in the Canadian lacrosse final, and two in a row to New Westminster this week.



Their most recent defeat was a 10-5 loss Wednesday night to the classy New Westminster team. Monday, they dropped the opener of the best-of-seven series 11-8.

Gwilym Evans, Ramblers' manager, said Tuesday that players receive salaries in the West and it's like a professional team playing off against amateurs.

The Westerners helped prove Evans' point here Wednesday night. Their zippy passes, confident style of playing and strong defence were too much for Ramblers.

sent a diver down to check and clear the area.

The race today is scheduled at 12:30 p.m. EDT on a windward-leeward course twice around a six-mile stretch of sea for a total of 24 nautical miles.

Lightfoots Down Trudeaus

Lightfoot Construction moved into a commanding lead in the City Commercial Softball League finals last night when they tripped Trudeau Motors 4-3 for a 3-1 margin in the best-of-seven series.

The fifth game is slated for the CNRA Park Saturday night at six o'clock. Sixth and seventh games, if they are necessary, will be played next Monday and Wednesday nights.

With Percy Long again throwing fine ball the winners jumped into a 3-0 lead in the third inning and added a final pair in the sixth after Trudeaus had cut the deficit with their loner in the fifth.

Long hurled four-hit ball over the distance for his third consecutive victory. Trudeau's lone win came in the series opener. Long struck out four and walked one.

Gerry Cameron drew Long's good ball in a losing effort, touched for half a dozen safeties. He slipped one to strike and passed a pair.

A walk ignited the Lightfoot rally in the third and a lonesome golder's choice put another on with one down. Long helped to score one run and the other runners moved along on an error before Rowbotham singled for the 2-0 score.

Whiting doubled and rode home on Baker's single for the losers' lone marker, making it a tight 2-1 game.

Singles by Rowbotham and Smith, plus an error, put two on in the Lightfoot sixth. A walk to Dolan loaded the bases and Rowbotham singled two men home for the final 4-1 score.

The Lightfoots hits, all singles, went to Chuck Rowbotham with two, Tom Lynch, Jim Smith, Rusty Garvin and Jack Canning.

Jack Whiting had a double, Bob Wannamaker, John Casey and "Shadow" Baker a single each for Trudeaus.

Twins Still In Contention

Yankees Move Step Closer To Flag

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Power clouters usually take the glory when the most valuable player awards are bestowed in major league baseball. But don't be surprised if Bobby Richardson of New York Yankees, a fellow not noted for the long ball, gets it in the American League this season.

The 27-year-old second baseman had four hits in five trips to the plate Wednesday night as the Yankees defeated Washington Senators 5-3 to take a giant step closer to their 12th pennant in 14 years.

Richardson became the first American Leaguer to reach the 200-hit mark. He raised his total to 201, increased his batting average to .305, scored his 95th run and drove in his 57th tally while helping the Yanks reduce the Twins' pennant-clinching number to five.

Any combination of five Yankee victories and-or Minnesota defeats will clinch it for New York. The Yanks remained in contention in second place as Harmon Killebrew topped two homers by Vic Power hit a grand-slam homer in a 12-5 walloping of Detroit Tigers.

ANGELS SNAP STREAK

Home runs by Leo Burke, Jim Fregosi and George Thomas gave the third-place Los Angeles Angels a 9-4 triumph over Baltimore Orioles that snapped the second game losing streak. Southpaw Ted Bowsfield (9-7) was victim. The Angels are 7½ games behind New York with nine to play.

Yanks and Twins have eight games remaining.

Pitcher Juan Pizarro and John Romano drove in all the runs and Dick Donovan became the second American League hurler to win 20 games this season as Cleveland Indians blanked last-place City Athletics 10-0. Mike Hershberger, Cleveland outfielder, is the 10th frame gave Chicago White Sox a 3-2 decision over Boston Red Sox.

Richardson is making a strong bid to join Nellie Fox of the 1959 White Sox as the only single-type hitters to grab the batting crown in the league's history. Roger Maris, Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra of the Yankees have been hurt by a little twice, with Jackie Jensen of Boston, Mickey Vernon of Cleveland and Fox the other winners in the last nine years.

The Yankees had a battle on their hands against the Senators, but pulled it out with a four-run uprising in the ninth inning after two were out and the count was two strikes on Berra.

MARIS DRIVES IN TWO

Berra doubled, and Hector Lopez followed with a run-producing single that tied the score. Richardson singled to keep the rally going and Tom Tresh and Mantle followed with walks that drove in the tie-breaker. Maris wrapped things up with a two-run single.

The victory went to Marshall Bridges (8-3). Steve Hamilton lost.

Killebrew continued his campaign for the home run and runs batted in crowns by bringing his season total to 42 and raising his RBI mark to 118, both tops in the league.

Killebrew's second homer and Power's grand-slammer highlighted a seven-run sixth inning that put things out of the Tigers' reach.

Dick Stigman (14-8) was the winner with a five-hitter, although touched for homers by Norm Cash, Steve Boros and Billy Bruton. Hal Aguirre (12-8) lost.

Burke, Fregosi and Thomas accounted for six of the Angels' runs, while home runs by Jim Gentile and Charley Lau took care of three Orioles tallies. Fregosi's blow was a three-run, inside-the-park blast in the sixth inning that made it easy for Bowsfield, who came on for Dean Chance in the fifth inning and allowed only one run the rest of the way. Jack Fisher (10-11) was the loser.

Bond drove in six runs with two homers and a double for the Indians, Romano knocked in innings.

DETROIT (CP) — Coach Sid Abel of the Detroit Red Wings announced Wednesday that Wayne Muloin and Harrison Gray have signed professional contracts and will be assigned to Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

Muloin, a 20-year-old defenceman from Flyers, Ont., has been with Edmonton Oil Kings for the last three seasons. Gray, 21, is a goaltender from Strathmore, Alta., who played his amateur hockey with Weyburn, Sask.

Abel said Gray will back up Glen Hall when Edmonton returns as the Flyers' regular netminder.

Argonauts Lose Star Prospect

TORONTO (CP) — Hopes of Toronto Argonauts to bolster their sagging offence by adding another National Football League castoff to the roster were dashed Wednesday when it was learned Hugh McInnis will remain in B.C. Lions for the rest of the season.

McInnis, a 215-pounder who was Stanford offensive end with the Cardinals for the last two seasons but was placed on waivers recently, telephoned Argos general manager Lew Hayman Wednesday and said he would not be available.

The Eastern Football Conference club and McInnis had held contract talks Monday. McInnis gave no reason for his decision.

Toronto won its first game of the year Sunday against Ottawa after losing its first five of the season.

GETS TWO YEARS

TORONTO (CP) — Hubert C. Champagne, 26, who stole $16,835 from the two firms who formerly employed him as office manager, was sentenced Wednesday to two years less a day by Judge Robert Forsyth. Champagne pleaded guilty to stealing the money between 1950 and 1963 by padding accounts and payrolls.

Build One Or Lose Other Stadium Or Ball Club!

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley, owner of Kansas City Athletics, unable to move baseball club to another city immediately said Wednesday he will ask the city to build him a new 50,000 seat stadium or else.

The alternative would be Kansas City's loss of the American League team, he said.

In New York Monday, American League clubowners listened to a three-hour plea from him for help and then said they did not plan to change the status of the league next year. Finley mentioned as a possibility between the clubowners at a Texas delegation from the Dallas - Fort Worth area which wants a major league club.

He said he will ask the city council to hear him Friday and that league president Joe Cronin had consented to attend such a meeting with him.

Sports Snapshots

Canadian Press Sports Editor

Old-timers in Northern Ontario recall the great days of junior hockey in that area 30-odd years ago when teams from there were powers in Memorial Cup play. Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, Sudbury Wolves, North Bay Trappers, Kenora and others were clubs that were up there with the best in the country.

The north country was loaded with talent and National Hockey League scouts were there to grab it. The north had always produced stars and even today the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leaf roster alone has a distinct northern tinge to it.

There is left - winger Frank Mahovlich and defenceman Allan Stanley from Timmins, centre George Armstrong from the Sudbury area; wingers Eddie Shack, Sault Ste. Marie, Dave Keon, Noranda, Dick Duff, Kirkland Lake, and Bobby Nevin of South Porcupine. Other northerners are well sprinkled throughout the NHL and other pro leagues.

They got their minor hockey experience in midget and juvenile leagues, in the north but moved to Toronto and other parts of the country for junior competition. The reason: Junior leagues in the north folded in the late 1930s.

REVIVAL UNDER WAY

Now, hockey in Northern Ontario appears to be going full cycle. The juniors are back with a six - team league and, although they may not be a power in Memorial Cup play this year, league officials are looking to a bright future.

After the juniors folded more than 30 years ago, the seniors took over. A powerful league was built up with a generous sprinkling of old pros on the rosters, but they soon priced themselves out of existence. Then the Eastern Professional Hockey League was formed with Sudbury, Sault Ste. Marie and North Bay holding franchises in the north.

Again, financial difficulties were encountered and now only Sudbury is left to represent Northern Ontario in the EPHL. The swing is back to the juniors.

They've got teams in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Espanola, Garson, Sudbury and North Bay. The idea is that they will go with home-brew talent and with no sponsorship from NHL clubs. Maybe, in the 1963-64 season, they will allow their clubs to import a few players from other sections of the country.

It may take a few years to put the north back in contention for the Memorial Cup and the Canadian junior title. In their rebuilding, they'll have to contend with junior clubs sponsored by NHL teams in Cup playoffs, but don't sell the north short.

It still has budding Mahovlichs, Hortons, Armstrongs and Keons.

The Trots

OTTAWA (CP) — Mountain Way, owned by Colbourne Hess of Trenton, Ont., and driven by Roy Buchanan, won the featured pace for three-year-olds at Rideau Carleton Raceway Wednesday night.

The race was won by a length over the place horse, Patsy G. Jr2d, pacing the mile in 2:07 3-5. Third was Pleasant Way.

Across the board payoffs on the winner were $13.10, $4.80 and $3.10.

REJECT LOUNGES

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP)—Voters rejected dining lounges and cocktail lounges in a plebiscite conducted Wednesday in this town 20 miles east of Kingston. Vote figures were not available.

Lake Winnipeg Being Cleaned Of Coarse Fish

WINNIPEG (CP) — A new method of taking coarse fish from inland waters is proving a success on Lake Winnipeg.

The use of trawl nets is expected to be of value in removing normally unprofitable rough fish from inland waters at reasonable expense.

C. H. Witney, minister of natural resources, says the increased use of rough fish will also be an important development in the fishing industry.

Using a 40-foot boat and a three - man crew, the department hit a peak of 2,200 pounds of maria and tullbee in one hour.

The nets, designed specifically for the lake, were 30 feet wide, 10 feet deep and 72 feet long.

It was found that many fish were in mid-lake and not near the shore where the experiment took place. A mid-water trawl had to be developed.

Mr. Witney says this trawl has not been as successful and that further refinements now are being made.

He said that in the first 16 days of the season 30,000 pounds of coarse fish were taken, to be used principally as fertilizer or animal food.

As well as aiding in finding better means of catching the fish and determining many of their habits:

An echo-sounding device was rigged to the ship to show the men where to fish.

The success of the venture has indicated that two fish processing plants should soon be built to utilize the rough fish caught.

APPROVE LIQUOR

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Sale of liquor in dining lounges was approved Wednesday by a 210 to 112 vote in the combined townships of Burleigh and Anstruther, about 30 miles northeast of here. The townships rejected a similar question three years ago.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING . . . PROVIDES . . . BEST RESULTS

SEARS-ROEBUCK INVESTS $53,000,000 A YEAR IN NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

72% OF ENTIRE ADVERTISING BUDGET IN NEWSPAPERS

The supremacy of the newspaper as an advertising medium was factually documented during the recent Montreal conference of the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association by an executive of Sears Roebuck. The company now spendst more than $53,000,000 a year for newspaper space in more than 900 newspapers.

The speaker was Ashley Offill, manager of media and research for Sears' national retail sales promotion and advertising, who "told all" about how and why Sears spends 72 percent of its advertising appropriation for newspaper space.

"The reason we spend most of our advertising dollars in newspapers", he said, "is that traditionally they have afforded us the best results on our investments. "They give us mass audience locally fast action and a low cost channel of local consumer contact."

Before finishing his talk, he added: "No other medium touches so intimately the lives of retailers as the home town newspaper."

Remainder of the Sear $75,000,000 advertising budget is divided between miscellaneous media, including magazine, radio, TV and circulars.

Six Million Children Daily See Romper Room Edition

By RAY WEBB

BALTIMORE (AP) — An ex-vaudeville producer and his wife divined nearly a decade ago that in children lay a vast, untapped television audience crying for the right program.

The couple, Bert and Nancy Claster, created Romper Room in Baltimore and proved their point.

Their show, a televised kindergarten mixing entertainment with instruction, now reaches about 6,000,000 viewers in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico.

In 1953, Mrs. Claster became Miss Nancy, teacher on Baltimore's Romper Room. They told her she was crazy.

Today, she still is Miss Nancy. She also serves as dean of a "faculty" with 88 members presiding over romper rooms in as many television studios.

Mrs. Claster says she and her husband conceived Romper Room as a Baltimore enterprise.

"But the reaction from parents and children was astounding."

ENTERED TV

The death of vaudeville at Baltimore's Hippodrome Theatre sent Claster into television. He became an independent producer, meaning he rented an office.

"It was about as big as a closet," says Nancy, "but it had a desk."

It was then that the Clasters decided the preschool child be taught useful things and amused at the same time—through the medium of television.

In February, 1953, Romper Room went on the air, appearing from 9 to 10 a.m., five days a week. For three weeks it sustained itself, then a drug store chain grabbed it up. Romper Room had arrived.

Forty Romper Rooms had blossomed by 1956, and, during the three years following, their number nearly doubled.

Each of the Romper Room teachers is Nancy-trained. Who trained Nancy?

"I had my own nursery school for a while after I graduated from Goucher College (in Baltimore). Then I got married, and that was the end of that."

CHILDREN GUESTS

Nancy sets an awesome example for her counterparts to follow. For a solid hour before the television cameras, she emits a constant stream of patter. It is directed both at six tots who are guests on the show and at viewers.

She tells stories, talks about animals, defines words. She leads her guests and viewers in games and exercises, says grace with tots on the show before serving them milk and cookies, and asks her guests to tell something about themselves.

She tells children to brush their teeth, to go to bed early, to stay away from matches, to play on the sidewalk rather than in the street, learn to swim and take polio shots.

Miss Nancy also sings the praises of dairies, peanut purveyors and the like. Seven minutes of her hour-long show is devoted to commercials.

Claster now is negotiating for a possible British version of Romper Room.

Racial Troubles Being Reported From Red China

By SUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMDAY (CP)—Racial troubles are being reported from Communist China, which Premier Chou En-lai once described as "a heaven of tolerance and harmony between various peoples and communities."

In recent weeks a number of incidents involving African and Asian students and local Chinese have taken place at various educational centres in Red China. Some were accompanied by violence.

The diplomatic correspondent of the Hindustan Times of New Delhi says China's program of fraternization with African countries is running into serious difficulties. Travellers from Hong Kong also report that riots have taken place at many universities between Chinese and African students.

Thirty students who went to Red China from Cameroon have returned home with complaints of racial discrimination. They said that they were "shunned" by the Chinese and socially ostracized. They were also denied access to shops open to other foreign students.

A riot was reported to have broken out recently at Peking's Peace Hotel. Some Zanzibar students who went there for dinner got into an argument with the hotel staff and were beaten. Following the incident, 30 Zanzibar students applied for exit permits.

Trouble has also been brewing at Peking's Institute of Foreign Languages. African students, particularly from Ghana and Mali, have protested against bad food and inadequate living accommodation. The protests were followed by restrictions on their movements.

Foreign students in some colleges are said to have refused to sign "anti-imperialist" manifestos and pledges and join protest rallies. They said they had gone to Red China only to study and not to take part in political and other activities.

PUTS OUT OWN FIRE

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP, Pa. (AP) — Thomas Johnston, 46-year-old volunteer fireman, was driving home Tuesday night when fire trucks sped by. He followed, intending to lend a hand if needed. The trucks stopped at Johnston's home and Johnston helped put out a minor fire behind his refrigerator.

Bomarc Crew In Florida To Hold Tests

NORTH BAY (CP) — Thirty-one officers and technicians from the Bomarc-B surface to air squadron missile launching station Wednesday flew to Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, site of the United States Air Force Bomarc missile test and launching headquarters.

For the next two weeks the men will undergo proficiency tests on the assembly and checkout of a Bomarc missile.

The squadron, headed by Wing Cmdr. A. G. Lawrence, will launch its missile against a drone "enemy" aircraft under live conditions.

It will be the first firing by an RCAF unit since Canada's first launching site at North Bay was handed over to the air force in February this year.

"The Virginian" May Add New Life to the Old West

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The characters — or reasonably exact facsimilies—have been seen for a thousand and one nights of television, but NBC's new 90-minute The Virginian may add some new life to the Old West.

One wonders how the producers can maintain a fast pace while turning out, in effect, a full-length film feature a week, but the opening show of the series Wednesday night was interesting and offbeat.

All that is left of Owen Wister's novel are the names. Neither the Virginian, played by newcomer James Drury, nor Judge Garth, his ranch-owner employer, played by Lee J. Cobb, had much to do Wednesday night. Neither did the other regular characters: The town newspaper editor—a pretty girl —a pair of fun-loving cowhands and the ranch owners' teen-age daughter.

The interest centred on the guest stars. Hugh O'Brian played the mysterious, avenging stranger as if he had never heard of Wyatt Earp, and Colleen Dewhurst was a frustrated, full - blooded spinster schoolmarm. Both were excellent.

The series, handsome indeed in color, ought to attract a big audience. Like Bonanza there's something in it for everybody.

Recommended tonight:

Wide Country, premiere, NBC, 7:30-8:30 EDT—Earl Holliman and Andrew Prine co-star in a series about modern rodeo riders; The Alfred Hitchcock Hour, CBS, 10-11 new hour-long series hosted by the master of suspense, and moving to another network and time spot; also returning with new shows, Mr. Three Sons, ABC, 9-9:30 and Hazel, NBC, 9:30-10.

Recover Bodies Of Oakville Couple in Lake

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—The bodies of an Oakville couple were recovered from Lake Ontario Wednesday 24 hours after the couple set out for a two-hour sail in their new 16-foot boat.

Donald Kitchen, 35, and his wife Gwen, 33, parents of two small children, were reported missing Tuesday night when they did not return from an outing begun in the morning.

An RCAP Albatross search aircraft from Trenton spotted the over-turned craft Wednesday, about 21 miles east of Hamilton off Grimsby Beach, across the western end of the lake from this town 20 miles west of Toronto.

An RCMP search boat, directed by the airplane, located the capsized sailboat. Mrs. Kitchen's body was found floating nearby, supported by a life jacket.

Mr. Kitchen's body was found nearly two hours later and taken to Hamilton for identification by volunteer searchers aboard the Rip Tide.

Police believe the couple were caught in a 30 to 40-mile-an-hour squall.

Mr. Kitchen was manager of procurement with Ford of Canada here.

Canada's Concept for Care Of Arthritis Victims Being Closely Studied by States

By DAVID SCOTT

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's concept of care for arthritis victims is a pilot plan for the United States.

Canadian workers in the field are doing a far better job in the treatment of arthritis than we are," said Dr. Ronald Lamont-Havers, medical director of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Society of the United States.

Dr. Lamont-Havers, a Canadian now living in New York City, was Toronto hearing more about the methods used in Canada for treatment of more than 1,000,000 arthritic victims.

"Treatment in Canada is based on the idea of having the sufferer in the home as well as available, and combining use of correct drugs with physical therapy, rest, surgery, and general regulation of the patient's life.

"In the United States we have only a few hospitals devoted solely to the treatment of arthritis. We are following Canada's example entirely, but because the medical system is different it is difficult to transpose the system in its entirety. We're just able to pick up some of the ideas."

HURTS ECONOMY

In Canada, arthritis is blamed for an annual income loss of more than $75,000,000, and is rated among the top three leading causes of serious disability. The number of victims in the United States is 10 times greater.

The U.S. director said that although arthritis is one of the oldest diseases known to man, research into it only started as a separate disease until 1948.

One of the reasons, he explained, is that arthritis is not one specific disease—but a classification for more than 90 bone joint disorders.

Cortisone — suppressant of rheumatoid and arthritic symptoms — was discovered in 1948, the same year the latex agglutinized sheep cell test was first made.

The sheep cell test was the discovery that some parts of a sheep's cell could be made to react against other parts—a technique now being used in combatting rheumatism.

In the same year, the department of national health and welfare set up C. A. R. S. the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

The society has a five-part program of research, training of skilled personnel, which includes research, professional education, public information, hospital arthritis clinics, and patient-care service.

WORK AT UNIVERSITIES

Special arthritis units have been set up in the departments of medicine of the University of British Columbia and University of Toronto.

The establishment of additional units at other universities has a high priority in the society's planned program of expansion.

Although only 14 years old, the society now has more than 100 professional staff members and provides 150,000 treatments annually in thousands of 12,000 referred patients.

Since 1950, the society has been awarding about 30 fellowships a year, and there now are hundreds of physicians in the almost every teaching and main regional hospital in the country.

The society carries at the national, provincial and local levels under the supervision of poor people's other hand!"

Church Issues Statement on Communism

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An United Church statement on communism warns Christians against blind opposition to Communist ideology.

"Communism is more of a Christian heresy than a pagan philosophy and has stressed some Christian ideals which are effectively proclaimed by many Christian communists," says a statement drafted by the church's committee on international affairs.

While recognizing communism's allegiance to many Christianity and the Western world, the statement warns against "the temptation to oversimplify communism." The statement forms part of a 15,000-word report on international affairs presented Tuesday night to the general council of the United Church.

Many Communist churches against religious are true, the report says, and in some cases throughout the Communist world often been "an opiate of the people."

EXPLOIT ERRORS

"The Communists exploit past and present errors in the name the multitudes of Asia and Africa with much that is bad in the record of persons who profess a belief in God."

The old religions of the East have come to terms with it, permitting the unequal distribution of wealth, superstition and fear.

"The religions of the West, too, which have brought people into the modern world in fear, poverty and superstition are sometimes at variance with the strange caricatures of the early church, which shared all things in common . . .

The Christian must guard against confusing religious principles with "the Western way of life," the statement says.

CAMPBELLFORD Registration Up In Two Schools Board Is Told

CAMPBELLFORD — The September meeting of the Campbellford District School Board was held in the senior Bridge St. School with two members absent. Principal of Bridge St. School, Wm. Rodwell, had just returned from Germany previously and W. A. Murray presided.

Secretary of the staff summer courses with Mrs. A. Whitfield, Mrs. Blande and Mrs. Nicolson having taken advantage of the course given by Belleville. Miss MacArthur finished her first group of 4 extra courses with a course in physical education. There are no changes in the staff except Kent School's assistant to the principal, Mrs. Shirley Dowd leaving the place of Mrs. Ruth Haig. Mrs. Clarence Roberts is also doing some substitute work for Kent School assisting a few hours a week in a very crowded school. Mr. Whitfield reported that several schools had looked over the work done here and had expressed their praise in the advanced courses offered by the local system.

R. B. Bennett, chairman of finance, showed the school board's finances to be in the red. This, he expected to be cleared in a few days by receipt of the Seymour contribution to the funds. He made recommendations that a resolution be sent to O.E.A. asking that a larger part of the provincial grant be given before October 1st since all supplies and repairs, and upkeep must be done by the opening of the fall term.

W. A. Murray gave the property chairman's report in the absence of Chas. Ostrom. Only 3 pairs have been made in to the janitor since erecting the fence around the property with the expense shared by Mr. Atkinson, Public Utilities and the Public School Board.

A discussion ensued concerning the lack of kindergarten. This has been given much thought by the Public Relations Committee of the Board that the kindergartens remain as they are.

The October meeting will be held on October 3rd in Sr. Bridge St. School.

Scuba Divers Work on River For Antiques

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The search for antiques in this part of Eastern Ontario is usually concentrated on the old-fashioned attics of old farm houses and the like.

But five young men have found a new and most unlikely source—the bottom of the St. Lawrence River.

The five, all university students, they have discovered the cargo of a mammoth ship sunk back in the 1800s and have already brought up a considerable portion.

Wayne Jackson, Sydney Fowler, Donald Hogg, Gordon Brown, and William Thomas are the modern-day salvagers. Brothers, two naturally, decided to playdive the location of their find.

No available shipping records indicate where the ship sailed and the divers haven't located the hull, although a number of the rudder and a large anchor have been found.

Among the items brought up is a cannonball, a number of bottles and a "mystery" object which is thought to be a candlestick holder.

The cannonball is one of at least 200 clay pipes, all a type smoked by sailors and, there you may be sure, that's what sailor smokers can be found.

3,000 School Children Will Parade at Fair

PICTON — Prince Edward County Fair swung into action at noon on Thursday and continues until midnight Saturday.

Nearly three thousand school children made up the opening parade which was headed by the Odd Fellows' Band, and also included prancing saddle horses and ponies.

The colorful banners, and many of the children wearing costumes, made the long parade one of much interest to spectators who lined the streets.

For the brief opening, platform guests included Mayor H. J. McFarland, County Warden John Fox, Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., and Norris Whitney, M.P.P. The welcome on behalf of the Agricultural Society, and appreciation of support given the fair, was voiced on behalf of President George Atkinson by Vice-president Leland Dozend. Past - president Creighton Lockyer was master-of-ceremonies and A. A. Benvie led in the singing of "O Canada" and the national anthem.

A MAD RUSH

Once the parade was dismissed there was a mad rush as half of the children rushed to enjoy the midway rides and shows, while the remainder dashed to the huge County Centre (arena) building to see what prizes they had won among the 3,000 entries by schools, Mayor H. J. McFarland provided 3,000 tickets for free midway rides.

Activity in the afternoon centred on the horse ring and in front of the grandstand where 4-H Calf Club members hold their competitions. In the Centre, nearly 100 babies competed for prizes.

Thursday night's main attraction will be the horse show in front of the grandstand and the finals of three hydro cooking schools in the Centre.

Friday afternoon sees the Black and White Holstein show, horse judging, another cooking school and other events. At night, Paul Riddell's stock and motorcycle daredevils present precision driving and stunts in front of the grandstand.

Saturday is expected to be the "big" day with horse races, hurdle jumping, a cooking school in the afternoon, with the night performance to be the Doc Williams' Jamboree from Wheeling, West Virginia, and dance, in the County Centre.

COLORFUL ARRAY

Famous for its display of agricultural products, Picton Fair seems to have outdone itself again. The interior of the County Centre 85 x 180 feet, not only has the floors filled, but the walls too. Many exhibits are set in unusual artistic arrangements. The big hall upstairs is crammed with ladies' work, art and crafts and includes Mrs. Frank Harris' Zenobu button collection.

Three horse barns are filled with all kinds of animals shown by 56 different exhibitors.

One of the notable features is a four-pony hitch by Ray Cochrane of Enniskillen.

More than one hundred head of cattle fill a barn and, while sheep entry is low, swine are not permitted at this fair.

The central buildings, known as the Crystal Palace, not only houses well arranged commercial displays, but a tempting array of cooking which includes 100 pies and 96 cakes, cheese, dairy bar displays by Prince Edward Power Squadron, W. H. A. Red Cross Blood Donors' Clinic, articles made by residents of the County Home for the Aged and an unusual display of photography.

Few visitors are unaware of the poultry show beneath the grandstand as the roosters vie with one another. There is a big entry of bantams, pigeons, rabbits, pets, pheasants, guinea hens with all breeds of poultry with guinea pigs as an added attraction.

"We feel we have entertainment which will appeal to all ages no matter the time they attend the Fair at Picton", says president George Atkinson. "I believe it to be a wonderful show and given good weather should have a record crowd".

According to Phil Dodds, secretary-treasurer for 12 yrs., the entries are not only more numerous but are of higher quality. "Fairs are called show windows of the community, but are not always attractive examples, but we believe the exhibits effort put forth in displaying makes that here unusually attractive. We have lots of lay-door space and many willing workers, and this makes better display possible", said he, secretary who is a Director of Ontario Class "A" and "B" Fairs Association.

Prince Edward's fair is limited to County residents, except in horse classes, and the displays reveal an amazing amount of talent. Picton's invitation is "Come to the Fair".

United Church Council Tackles Many Motions

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — General council of the United Church of Canada wrestled through a list of resolutions on doctrine, financial policy and administration Wednesday night as it tried to clear up a pile of leftover work.

The 30th biennial council, which opened here eight days ago, left today and Friday open for winding up on a stack of reports and recommendations adjourned from earlier in the session.

Council launched its clean-up operation on the 700-page book of reports Wednesday night.

In other business Rev. James R. Hord, 46, pastor of Royal York Road Church, Toronto, was picked to head the Board of Evangelism and Social Service when Rt.-Rev. James R. Mutchmor leaves next June after 25 years in the key post. Dr. Mutchmor, 70, was elected church moderator at the current council.

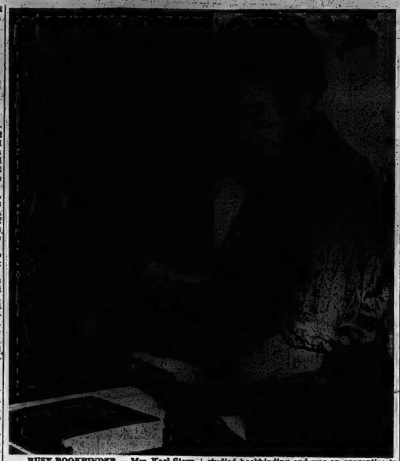
ACCEPT GUIDE LINES

Proposed new guide lines for church practice, presented by a committee on Christian faith, passed after sharp discussion and a flurry of amendments.

In general, the recommendations call for stricter application of doctrine in church membership, baptism and communion.

An amendment altered a resolution that infant baptism be administered "only" to children whose parents have been baptized and confirmed and are in "good standing" with the church. Otherwise, a sponsor who meets the requirements can take the place of the parents at baptism.

The amendment changed the resolution from a fixed rule to a general rule by replacing the word "only" with "normally."



AMEND REGULATION

On the acceptance into the United Church of members from other churches, the original regulation specified that applicants must give a clear assurance that they had been baptized and confirmed.

An amending addition says members can be accepted in the United Church if they have been received into another church "pursuant to a public profession of faith."

Delegates also agreed that the church's central missionary and maintenance fund should be distributed over all other financial demands made on individual churches for purposes beyond their local requirements.

Henceforth, regional committees must clear local projects at general council level. Meetings at least once a year between national and regional officers will decide how the budget will be split up.

BUSY BOOKBINDER — Mrs. Karl Stern, probably the only woman bookbinder in Canada devoting her full time to restoring old books, works in her Montreal shop. She studied bookbinding and was an apprentice in Montreal as a journeyman bookbinder professionally again five years ago in Montreal. (CP Photo).

First Love Is Bookbinding For Montreal Woman

MONTREAL (CP) — Slim, active Mrs. Karl Stern of Montreal says that if you know one trade well you have the discipline to pick up others more quickly.

Mrs. Stern should know. She's a bookbinder—engaged full time restoring old books—a teacher, a writer, painter, therapist and weaver.

Her first love is bookbinding. She calls it "the restoration and preservation of cultural records," an opportunity to "create."

"Sometimes it takes days or weeks before I start a job," she says. "It takes that long to get acquainted with the problem."

At Stratford, Ont., she has on display an illustration showing the stages of repairing a book. It accompanies S. T. Fisher's private collection of rare Shakespeare editions.

Mrs. Stern studied bookbinding in Munich as a young girl, serving an apprentice for four years before attending art schools and work shops to get her master's diplomas.

She gave up the trade after marriage to tend three small children, returning to it professionally five years ago.

She finds binding a time-consuming task. Each page takes a half day. One collection of papers on which she's working dates back to the 15th century.

Mrs. Stern holds classes for pupils interested in bookbinding as a hobby. All are women, many interested because their husbands are book collectors.

Often, says Mrs. Stern, a woman will come to her hoping to be taught leather binding with a scroll decoration. She usually tells them: "If you want to learn sewing, you must start with an evening gown."

Mrs. Stern's interest in bookbinding was aroused when as a child of 11 she wrote children's stories and illustrated them. But she ran into trouble putting the pages together. Her mother suggested she go to a bookbinder for help.

Mrs. Stern and her husband, a psychiatrist, lived in London for six years before coming to Canada 23 years ago.

When her family was small, she taught painting, weaving and handicrafts in schools. Recently, she worked as a therapist teaching calligraphy to mental patients in an Ottawa hospital.

Protection Was Never Paid Says Gambler Feeley

Admits Getting 'Cut' From Many Operations

TORONTO (CP) — Vincent Feeley testified before the royal commission on crime today that Cpl. W. Jack Shrubb of the provincial police anti-gambling squad initiated meetings with him in 1956 after complaining that Feeley was blocking his police career through political interference.

Shrubb, now police chief at Peterborough, told the commission last spring that the gambler opened up meetings with him and offered him large bribes for police protection.

Feeley said today that Shrubb telephoned him at "intensely" several times seeking a meeting and had told him that he was "fed up" with the policy of the provincial police and wanted to get into business for himself.

He said the officer told him Chatham on the understanding he was to be put in charge of the anti-gambling squad and "accused me of interfering with promotions and keeping him out of the job."

"He was very discontented," Feeley added.

SOUGHT INFO

Feeley said that around the same time Shrubb also had tried out through businessman Donald Lloyd of Chatham, a friend of Feeley's, to find out if he had "a personal vendetta against me."

On a raid at the Cookeville gambling club run by Feeley and Joseph McDermott shortly after Shrubb arrived in Toronto the officer looked him up on the premises and told him he was going to put me in jail."

He said Shrubb told him he knew that Feeley had been boss open by crooked politicians, that there was a lot of money in it and he was going to put this club out of business.

Feeley, discussing his dealings with Shrubb, Feeley denied that John Cronin, Kingston hotelkeeper and owner of one of the anti-gambling squad, at one time had any interest in the Cookeville enterprise.

Shrubb had told the commission that Cronin told him in 1955—after the latter left the force—that he had a share in the club.

Feeley said Cronin had no interest in the club at any time.

WERE PARTNERS

He said he and the former Kingston police chief had once been business partners in marketing a patent ointment, and had been advised by their lawyer to get evidence, but said this was after Shrubb had left the force.

Feeley said that after Shrubbs conversation with him on the provincial police force and the approach to Lloyd—a former employer of Feeley's—Shrubb left the force on the strength of a mutual friend, Peterbrough gambler Nevill Harrington.

Feeley denied under questioning by commission Counsel Donald Carter, Q.C., that he had asked Lloyd to serve as a go-between and that a "pact" between Shrubb and gambling operators.

He also said he never had Lloyd take Shrubb money for protection to some gambling operations, but Lloyd has testified Feeley told him he had such support.

The commission, popeal recalled today that Lloyd also had testified that when he asked Feeley whether he had protection the gambler replied that he had a few friends.

Feeley said he did not recall ever saying that but would not

Diefenbaker Still Wants Another Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker, in a reply to opposition criticisms of his position at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London, said today he was seeking protection of "Canada's legitimate interests."

At a brief press conference, Mr. Diefenbaker said he still thinks there should be another full press conference before Britain makes its final decision on entering the Common Market.

There had been no reference to such a Commonwealth summit meeting in Wednesday's communique at London because there had been no unanimity on the subject in the 15 - nation meeting.

Mr. Diefenbaker also said 66 hopes Commonwealth members will approve his proposals—to be adopted at London—for a free-world trade conference to reduce international tariff barriers, and "accept the invitation that Canada be the host nation."

CITES EXPORTS

Mr. Diefenbaker said that some $425,000,000 in Canada's $800,000,000 in exports to Britain last hear enjoyed tariff preference that will disappear if Britain joined the six - nation European Economic Community without special safeguards.

He said that when he reached the end of himself by opposition parties in Canada, he wonders whom they would have to represent Canada's interests at Commonwealth conferences.

"Can anyone be justified in not pointing out the effect on Canada, on agriculture in general, and also in the industrial field and raw materials, should Britain not secure the safeguards that were the essence of the British government's undertaking?"

Trade preferences on Canadian exports in the British market had meant a great deal to Canada.

"They cannot be loosely dealt with without hasting a detrimental effect on the economy of the country."

Mr. Diefenbaker's press conference — entirely a statement by the prime minister to reporters gathered in his office — was interrupted by the arrival of Pakistan's President Ayub Khan, here on a five-day state visit to Canada.

CANADA'S SUB DEAL WITH U.K. IS SHELVED

Austerity Program Cause of Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's proposed submarine deal with Britain has been shelved, for the foreseeable last, defence officials said Thursday.

No hope of reviving the scheme is foreseen during the current fiscal year when defence expenditures are being reduced by $96,000,000 in line with the government's austerity program.

Defence Minister Harkness announced Aug. 16 that three Oberon class conventional submarines would be purchased from Britain "subject to satisfactory completion of negotiations with the British government."

The negotiations concerned an equipment swap. Canada wanted Britain to buy the Canadian CL-44 cargo plane in return for a $30,000,000 submarine order. Britain declined.

Since then, officials said, the matter has been at a standstill. It may figure in high-level talks here early next month when Sir Caspar John, Britain's first sea lord, visits Canada.

WERE PARTNERS

Meanwhile, officials said two other major navy programs will go ahead as planned.

One is to establish a C landing platforms on destroyers in carry anti-submarine helicopters. Cost of this program is estimated at some $22,000,000.

The other program is concerned with the eight missile-equipped frigates to replace rapidly aging destroyers built during the Second World War.

Construction is not scheduled to start in Canadian shipyards until late next year and the first step will not be ready until some time in 1967. Cost of this program is estimated at $240,000,000.

Plans to install ship-to-air missiles on Canadian warships now in service as a substitute for air defence provided by Bomarc missiles have been temporarily shelved. The Bomarc program is being cutback at the end of this month, leaving the fleet without air cover.

SALES UNCHANGED

Sales of field milk and cream amounted to 107,178,000 pounds in July, unchanged from a year earlier. However, sales in the 3-month period were 2,960,081,000 pounds were three per cent larger than a year before.

White Buckets Atop Utility Poles House U.S. Atom Blast Detectors

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Nuclear bomb explosion detectors help in operation in the United States.

The detectors are white buckets perched atop utility poles. Their existence was disclosed at a press conference of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

A network of these detectors has been installed in 39 critical target areas. There are three detectors, located 11 miles from ground zero, in each area to detect any major military and civilian centres.

All the detectors are on utility poles, but an air force spokesman said that's a good place to put them because they are not noticed and serviced by Western Union.

The first force said the network of blast sensors will give almost instant notice of attack by several military command posts, including the Pentagon.

This, it is noted, is the air force said, will help authorities "in making decisions that can spell the difference between survival and annihilation."

Each detector is housed in a white-painted aluminum cylinder about 12 inches high and nine inches in diameter. On top of the cylinder are photo cells sensitive only to a type of light peculiar to nuclear detonation.

Heavy Fighting Breaks Out Between Argentine Factions

CP from Reuters-AP

BUENOS AIRES — Heavy fighting between rival military factions raged today in the suburbs of Buenos Aires, news agencies reported. The reports came after Provisional Jose Maria Guido had ordered troops of both sides to the feud into their barracks and also followed the resignation of the entire cabinet in the make way for a settlement of the latest military crisis.

There had been a night of rising tension in which rebel troops were reported to have clashed with loyal forces while advancing on the capital.

Guido's cabinet resigned to give him a free hand.

The rebel leader, Gen. Juan Carlo Ongania, demanded a return to democratic rule.

Reports said fighting persisted north and south of this capital as the president issued his communique announcing the was cease - fire. The communique was a product of a session with his cabinet and the rival generals that dragged on into the early hours.

(There were no details of casualties in the first outbreak of fighting since 16 persons were reported killed and three rebel tanks destroyed in a clash Thursday near La Plata, Reuters news agency said.

(Local news agencies reported the death figure after a column of 36 rebel tanks fought its way through government artillery positions. The state-owned hospital at La Plata was reported overloaded to receive the wounded.)

Ousted war time war secretary, Gen. Cornelio Saravia, and the communique said resignations would be accepted from his two top army officers—Gen. Juan Loilo, commander-in-chief, and Gen. Bernardino Labayru, chief of staff. These two will turn in their resignations later in the day, the communique said.

Guido himself assumed the post of war secretary. There was no immediate comment from Corneio Saravia.

A presidential communique said "the military situation is normal. The troops have been

President of Pakistan Given Welcome at Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Pakistan's Mohammad Ayub Khan, soldier-turned - statesman whose move, he says, was prompted by fear of the military flavor, today begins the business end of a four-day state visit to Canada.

President Ayub, making his first call here since taking over the leadership of Pakistan in a military coup nearly four years ago, met Thursday afternoon with Prime Minister Diefenbaker from Ottawa airport.

There they had attended the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference.

The leaky, 55-year-old president lost no time in putting in a good word for Mr. Diefenbaker.

Replying to addresses of welcome from the prime minister and Governor-General Vanier, he said Mr. Diefenbaker made a "great contribution" to the conference which ended ex with Britain's proposed entry into the European Common Market.

The conference had faced the delicate task of almost

Gromyko Says Russia Won't Pay for Congo Operation

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—In advance of a speech he will address today to the UN General Assembly, Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko served notice his government will not pay one cent to support the UN force in The Congo.

Gromyko indicated he might deal with UN finances in his address, which is expected to range over a wide area of cold war issues, including charges of U.S. aggressive designs on Cuba.

Gromyko's views on UN financing clashed with those of Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.S. delegate. Stevenson told the assembly Thursday it should affirm "a policy of collective financial responsibility" for UN actions.

Gromyko stated the Soviet position on UN financing to a reporter who asked if he expected the assembly would approve the July 20 advisory opinion of the World Court that all UN members are obliged to pay for the special peacekeeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

"The only thing I can say," Gromyko remarked, "is that we are not going to pay for that — not one penny."

"We refuse to pay for the crimes they committed in The Congo . . . the colonialists and their agents! It is against our policy, against our convictions."

Asked which crimes he meant, he mentioned the chaos in The Congo, the killing of onetime premier Patrice Lumumba, Sir Katanga province and the continued secession of that province.

Stevenson had said that the United Nations had a $150,000,000 deficit "brought about largely by defaults or delays in payments for peacekeeping operations."

The Soviet Union is one of more than 20 UN members who do not help pay for the UN force in the Middle East and owes part of almost $5 that do not help pay for the UN force in The Congo.

MUST REPLENISH DWINDLING MONEY SUPPLY

Can Pay Bills Until End of Oct.

OTTAWA (CP)—Shortly after Parliament opens next week the government will have to take some action to replenish its dwindling supply of money.

Before Parliament was dissolved for the June 18 general election, the government was given authority to pay bills until the end of October.

The authorization was for $2,370,368,872 out of the total of $2,976,281,396 the government estimated early this year it would need for the 1962-63 fiscal year. Some money was used from since this estimate was presented to Parliament, the election has been held and the government's austerity program has been introduced.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has indicated that the government wants to cut the total spending in the fiscal year by $500,000,000. The federal departments and treasury board, the cabinet committee which oversees government spending, have been wrestling with the problems of reducing expenditures ever since.

HAVE THREE CHOICES

There are three possible courses of action for the government to finance operations between now and October.

One would be the introduction of a baby budget to replace the announced the 1962-63 budget presented last April by then finance minister Fleming who has since become justice minister and replaced at finance by George Hees.

Neither the spending program in the budget, indicating how the money was to be raised was approved before Parliament's dissolution last spring.

A second course could be to ask Parliament to give legislative approval for the revenue-raising measures of the Fleming budget and, meanwhile, put the charges, financing day-to-day operations until this is done by asking for additional authority to spend beyond Oct. 31, perhaps for another month.

BY WARRANTS?

The third course would be to finance operations by governor-general's warrants, a cabinet

Soviet News Bulletin Tells Of Rowdy Times by U.S. Students

OTTAWA (CP) — A tale of American students in Russia stagging nude performances, drinking orgies and ribald singsongs in public was published Thursday in the Soviet news bulletin, issued by the Soviet embassy here.

It carries the report as a reprint from the Sept. 9 Komsomolskaya Pravda, a Communist youth newspaper which entitled its article Wild Men in the Express Train.

"O comrades, among 46 American university students there were some well-fed young 'men and women' who behaved quite correctly" the report says. "But there were also quite enough of hooligans"

MOSCOW, (AP)—The official Soviet military newspaper Krasnaya Zvenda (Red Star) declares today that the recognition on Cuba and said Soviet nuclear submarines are ready to put to sea.

The Senate resolution declares that the United States will use force to resist the advance of communism into the western hemisphere.

After mentioning the resolution, Krasnaya Zvenda declares:

"The situation in the Caribbean Sea remains very tense and the Soviet people are attentively following the intrigues of the enemies of peace. Fulfilling the orders of their government, Soviet servicemen are in a position of highest military readiness to crush the aggressors."

In still another front-page editorial, the newspaper says:

"The (Soviet) servicemen are vigilantly following the intrigues of the war mongers and of the frantic aggressor should force us to do it, the submariners of the Soviet fleet will immediately take to the sea, ready to bring down upon the enemy the inevitably blight of rocket blows and to strike with its accurate torpedoes."

After mentioning Soviet atomic submarines, Krasnaya Zvenda said:

"There is not a point in the world's oceans where these powerful ships, unseen by the enemy, can not come."

"There is not a target on land which would be inaccessible to them."

SHIPMENTS LOWER

Manufacturers shipped an estimated $2,124,500,000 worth of goods in Canada during July, $108,100,000 less than shipments in June and $232,200,000 more than shipments in July last year.

House Members Want Tougher Caution To Cuba

Senate Motion Warns Both Havana, Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders in the House of Representatives sought quick approval today of a resolution warning Havana and Moscow against any military buildup in Cuba that endangers the United States.

But some members insisted on a chance to argue for tougher language than the Senate approved Thursday in the resolution now awaiting House action. This could mean a delay until Monday.

The determination of objecting members was increased by word Thursday from official U.S. sources that the Soviet Union has dropped its arms deliveries to Cuba. Since late July, officials said, 65 to 70 Soviet ships have arrived in Cuba a ports, about half of them carrying cargoes that included military equipment and personnel. The number of Soviet military personnel now in Cuba is put at 4,200.

These sources said the Cuban regime has at least one latetype MIG jet fighter as well as 40 older ones. Also reported there said, 18 short-range surface - to - air missile sites have been established by the Soviets in Cuba, many on the northern opposite the United States.

WANTS BLOCKADE

Representative John R. Pillion, Dep., N.Y., who wants Congress to authorize a naval blockade of Cuba, said he will demand that the Castro government expel all foreign troops, said he expects to object to any shortcuts.

Pillion said the new information about the Soviet military buildup in Cuba "of course makes it more important than ever that we adopt a stronger resolution."

The related actions Thursday night, before passing the foreign aid appropriations bill the House approved amendments to halt aid to countries which allow their ships to carry goods to Cuba.

These amendments would have to be approved by the Senate and by President Kennedy before they could become law.

MIGHT CAUSE WAR

The most restrictive—denying all aid to a country whose ships carry trade of any kind to Cuba—was offered by Representative Walter Rogers, Dem., Tex.). Representative John J. Rooney (Dem., N.Y.) urged Rogers unsuccessfully to withdraw it "it might cause World War III." Rooney said.

The resolution before the House declares the United States will not tolerate any military force in Cuba capable of Hastings county Judge J. C. Anderson yesterday dismissed the application of Larry Jones, 16-year-old East Huntingdon township high school boy for a writ of mandamus ordering the principal of the Tweed High School to admit him as a student.

The motion originally came before Judge Anderson on September 13th with judgment being reserved following an adjourned hearing on September 18th.

The order on behalf of the youth sought after more than 30 East Huntingdon township students who had formerly attended Tweed High School had been directed by the Centre Hastings High School Area board to attend classes at Madoc high school at the opening of the September school term.

Exactly this year the township of Hungerford and the villages of Tweed were granted permission to withdraw from the Centre Hastings High School Area and form their own area using the present Tweed high school for classes.

DONE FOR CONVENIENCE

However, the withdrawal of the two municipalities does not become effective until January 1st, but the Centre Hastings High School Board members felt it would be advisable for East Huntingdon township students to start the fall term at Madoc rather than change schools in the middle of the school term in January.

But when school opened in September, East Huntingdon students failed to attend at Madoc and the same three were refused admission at Tweed.

Judge Anderson in dismissing the application said the law made it abundantly clear that a school board, which is operating more than one school has the right to set the boundaries within which students must live if they are to attend certain schools.

He said the allocation of students to schools change from time to time.

ordered to return to their barracks."

It was not known how soon the cease-fire in the four-day crisis could be put into effect.

TROOPS CLASH

A new clash was reported between government and rebel troops in Venezuela Varela, where 3,500 government troops battled rebels 15 miles north east of Buenos Aires in the path of rebel tanks. Reports said the rebels were driven on by anti-aircraft guns and returned the fire. There was no word of casualties.

The rebels penetrated Thursday to the industrial suburb of Avellaneda, across the Riachuelo River from Buenos Aires, but were beaten and several truckloads of troops were seen in the area. Rebel forces guarded bridges with light machine-guns.

The first clash between loyalist and rebel troops was reported Thursday at Olmos, about 30 miles from Buenos Aires, where a rebel tank column was held and several broken government lines.

Rebel forces also Campo de Mayo garrison 10 miles from Buenos Aires. Troop movements were known to be around this capital, but there was military activity as far away as Salta, 775 miles to the north-west.

Cheese Prices Much Higher On Exchange

Cheese milk producers have been wearing bigger smiles during the past week as results of better cheese prices being received on the Belleville Cheese Exchange.

The price this week is approximately 4 cents per pound better than was received two weeks ago. Last week's board sale saw 1,350 boxes price quoted by buyers.

This week a top price of 38 1-8 cents for first grade white and 38 1-16 cents for first grade colored was received on the Belleville Board. A falling off in the number of cheese being offered was given as the main reason for the price increase.

This week's board saw 5,152 special cheese offered. There were 1,650 first grade white regulars, and 2,131 first grade colored. The average price for white was 37 3-4 cents for white and 36 cents for colored.

There were 2,481 boxes of first grade white square cheese 4,077 boxes of first grade square colored and 1,432 stilltons, offered.

Ministers Get Increase in Pay

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The United Church of Canada Thursday granted its ministers a salary increase of $150 a year for 1963 and another $150 a year for 1964.

The increases will bring the minimum salary next year to $3,950 plus travel allowance and $4,100 plus travel allowance the following year.

Not all ministers of the church are included in the salary increases. Financially independent churches make their own salary arrangements with their ministers.

O'Keefe Centre Plans Exciting Theatre Season

The 1962-63 O'Keefe Centre season got under way this week when Victor Borge opened his one-week engagement in Toronto's famous theatre.

The Danish comedian's visit heralded the commencement of the most exciting season which promises to be an entertainment block buster for theatre lovers.

To begin with, the subscription series is offering ten outstanding attractions which have enticed over 19,000 subscribers to enrol and it is expected that this number will be added to considerably. It was announced recently that the London West End production of School for Scandal, which will star Sir Ralph Richardson and Sir John Gielgud in its North American presentation, had been added to the list of subscription series attractions. A few days later the box office reaction hit entertainment headlines—Jack Cole, Tyrone Guthrie's famed choreographer, was added to the list. The Canadian Opera Company, which last season played to record-breaking business at O'Keefe Centre, was also signed. This year the Opera Company will stage four productions: "Madame Butterfly", "Rigoletto," "Hansel and Gretel" and "Die Walkure". Another Broadway hit, Milk and Honey joined the season. A new musical by Richard Rogers and Alan Jay Lerner, is sure fire hit of the coming New York season, is also booked for a Toronto viewing prior to its appearance on the Great White Way. Add to these, two Broadway plays, Mary, Mary and A Shot in the Dark, which have been great box office successes this past year. These last two attractions, although on O'Keefe Centre subscription series, will be seen at the Royal Alexandra Theatre.

Other shows scheduled to make the Toronto scene during the season are: a return engagement of Mary Martin after two weeks of the world famous Peter Pan at the Centre Opera. This distinguished English company, which last played in Toronto in 1955, will present four operas during its run here in April. They are "The Barber of Seville," and "Tolanthe" and "The Pirates of Penzance".

A number of other outstanding presentations will also play at the Centre before the year season is over, including the fabulous Royal Ballet.

W. N. Hurst Is Elected To High Post

William N. Hurst, Registrar for Hastings County, was elected president of the Registrars of Deeds Association of Ontario at that organization's annual meeting held early this week in Toronto.

Mr. Hurst, who was appointed local registrar in 1950, has previously served his organization in the capacity of vice-president in 1961-1962 and was president of its subsidiary branch, the eastern district association, for two years in 1959 and 1960.

The association represents the 88 registrars of deeds in the Province of Ontario.

Prince Edward Duck Areas Closed, Posted

Prince Edward county, yesterday felt the force of the law governing duck-hunting regulations.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers closed and posted two areas, one near Picton, the other just north of Wellington. Closed until further investigation are areas near Wellington and a few miles southeast of Picton.

The area posted near Picton, the officers said, is on a private pond near Greenbush. This is a private pond some four miles southwest of the county town, that has been illegally baited.

The other is located a short distance east of the village of Wellington.

It ranges between Highway No. 33 up to a quarter mil to the CNR tracks. Watch for the signs.

The Air Transport Command Band is conducted during a concert style recital at Trenton Military Tattoo, by F/O E. J. Robbins, CD, LGSM. F/O Robbins is director of the Belleville Municipal band until his re-enlistment in 1951.

PUC Capital Expenditures Authorized

TRENTON — At yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission, attended by commission chairman Charles Hilton, commissioner Clifford A. Baker and utilities manager James Page, a letter from the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission was read, authorizing the local commission to expend $153,480 in 1962 on capital expenditures. As 1962 is on its way out, the general feeling was "better late than never."

As regards capital expenditures, Mr. Page was authorized to sell bonds, valued at $35,000, to cope with some of these. This year, the commission has been burdened by having to install an east Trenton sub-station and an automatic operations system at the filtration plant. It was felt that it would be better to sell the bonds rather than borrow the money in another manner.

Town clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry will be told that the commission "is not easily" mean it would "not be seeking funds from the sale of debentures during 1962 through to 1966." My Larry had intimated that this was his understanding in a letter to the commission. Mr. Hilton said that while it was hoped that this commission and any incoming commission could cope with expenditures out of current funds, this commission could not say with answer for other commissions.

The commission decided not to sponsor a public speaking contest as suggested by Ontario Hydro, as there are enough groups sponsoring such events locally. Mrs. Patricia Graham of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will also be told that while the commission cannot give this group permission to sponsor (jointly with the local PUC) Hydro Showtime this year, the club will be given first chance next year.

Proceeds to go to the retarded children's school, says Beta Sigma Phi.

All presentations were made by Councillor Duncan.

In the first half of 1962 Britain exported £76,300,000 worth of farm tractors and machinery, 10 per cent more than the same period the previous year.

Santa Claus Parade Plans Are Underway

TRENTON—At this week's Trenton Chamber of Commerce directors' meeting, building chairman Jack Goldberg was instructed to seek an early meeting with the Trenton Parks Board to inform the board that the Trenton chamber was incorporated, under the Dominion Board of Trade Act. One of the arguments against leasing Victoria Park to the chamber on a long-term basis, brought down by a special parks' board committee, was that the chamber was not incorporated. The chamber wants to erect a permanent chamber office on the Division Street park. Parks committee members, Marion Baker and Clyde Mason had other arguments against leasing the parkland, but chamber heads would like to correct the one regarding its official status.

Plans are going ahead for Trenton's annual Santa Claus parade, (a tentative date of Nov. 26 has been set) and the retail merchants' section of the chamber will meet later this month to plan special sales and advertising in connection with the parade.

Meantime, chamber membership is nearing the 200 mark. A dinner to highlight the membership drive is the 'Fall-Fling'. Also in the planning stage is the annual meeting, and committees have been set up to plan these events.

Carries Children From Burning House

TRENTON—A fire on Quinte Street in Trenton last night resulted in damages, estimated at $300. John McLaughlin, 30, who occupies the house at 30 Quinte Street, said that he was sitting in his kitchen reading when he smelled smoke. The McLaughlin children, John, 4 and Scotty 2, were in bed. Mrs. McLaughlin was at work. Mr. McLaughlin carried the boys outside and then tried to put out the fire himself with water, but was forced to call the fire department.

Murray Council Refuses to Lift Firearms Ban

TRENTON—A large delegation of township residents appeared before Murray Township council last night to present a petition asking that a by-law restricting the use of fire arms of any type, over a designated area of township land, and particularly in the vicinity of Fox's Pond, adjacent to the Wooler Road, be rescinded.

Council examined the petition and drew the conclusion that signers were, for the most part, non-residents of the township.

Council refused to take the requested action, as it was felt that the area in which the restrictions are imposed is thickly populated and that the by-law should remain in force.

John McCormack asked council to approve the development of a 38-unit sub-division in the vicinity of Pine Acres. He was told to go ahead with plans for the area and to present them to council.

A deputation of persons who wish to build summer cottages along the Trent River came before council to ask for information as to required lot sizes etc. This information will be supplied.

Present at last night's meeting were Reeve McMaster, township clerk, Angus Gunter, deputy reeve Fred Bruyea and councillors Leo McAuley, Ronald Webb and Norman Fildall.

aligning" the economies of Commonwealth countries with populations totalling 700,000,000. Mr. Diefenbaker, he said, conducted himself "with great wisdom and direction."

PUTS IN PLUG

In a discreet way, President Ayub seemed to be putting in a plug for Mr. Diefenbaker—"for whom I have the greatest affection and regard"—against whatever attacks the prime minister may face in Parliament and elsewhere over his performance at the London conference.

Political opponents, led by Opposition Leader Pearson, have criticized Mr. Diefenbaker for taking what Mr. Pearson describes as a negative and sterile approach to the Common Market problem.

President Ayub was greeted on the tarmac by Gen. Vanier, at whose residence the president will stay during his three days in Ottawa—he flies to Quebec City Sunday morning.

The governor-general told President Ayub he came "not as a stranger" but as a leader in the world-wide family of the Commonwealth.

"Between the peoples of Pakistan and Canada there is a spirit of understanding which transcends the oceans which separate us," said Gen. Vanier.

President Ayub's first scheduled engagement today was a morning conference with Prime Minister Diefenbaker. Later he was to hold a press conference, place a wreath at the National War Memorial, and visit the National Research Council.

Military Tattoo Rehearsal Draws Thousand to Arena

TRENTON — Last night Mayor James D. MacDonald granted the "Freedom of the City" to the Boy Apprentice Drill Squad of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers, during the rehearsal for the Trenton Military Tattoo. The mayor read a proclamation, as passed in council, to the unit, then handed a copy to Lance Corporal C. R. Shaw, 17 years old and the youngest man in the unit. Finally, soldiers marching in a town or city uphlr bayonets. Normally, soldiers marching in a town or city unfix bayonets as a mark of respect to the civic authority.

The Tattoo itself involves more than 300 servicemen, including eight bands. Originally performed at sunset, in main peacetime use was to warn the early innkeepers to stop serving liquor to soldiers. During wartime, in the early days, the Tattoo warned soldiers outside a fortified area to return to their camps before the compounds were sealed off for the night. It has remained almost unchanged in form, as a modern ceremonial event, involving the bands of several units.

The retreat, a separate ceremony, now often included in the Tattoo, had the same general origins, and eventually became a similar ceremony on the same pattern. In fact, the "drummers' call", of three long rolls on the drums that preceded the original retreat ceremony, gave the Tattoo its name. The retreat, as included in the Trenton Military Tattoo, was played at the rehearsal last night by the band of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, from Vimy Barracks, Kingston, with the Hasty Pees and other bands providing silent support.

The rehearsal last night, M.C.'d by Ted Snider, of CJBQ, attracted perhaps a thousand people to Trenton's Municipal Arena. Attendance during the actual show, Friday and Saturday nights, is expected to top the 2,000 mark, according to arena officials.

Questionable Procedure

Old proverbs are not always true.

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec has started us wondering about the accuracy of one old saw, "Better late than never."

It strikes us that, when applied to public ownership of power companies, this may be far off the mark.

Few residents of Ontario, having enjoyed the benefits of the Ontario Hydro system, would welcome a change whereby electricity was supplied by a private company—and still less would they be eager to see the province served by some dozen companies.

But Ontario Hydro came into being when the use of electricity was still in its infancy. True, some small private power companies existed until comparatively recent years. If memory serves us right, the last large take-over of a private company by Hydro was from the Foshay Interests, at the time of the crash of the Insull financial empire, in the thirties.

There is a vast difference between this method of creating one big publicly-owned supplier of electricity and the method proposed by Premier Lesage in Quebec. He intends to seek the authority of the electorate for nationalization of eleven private firms, whose assets he values at about $600,000,000. Administration will be transferred to Quebec Hydro, which will have to assume $250,000,000 in debts from the companies and raise an additional $350,000,000 to compensate shareholders. At five per cent interest, carrying charges would be $30,000,000 annually.

One is tempted to ask what Quebec citizens will get for this sum. It is no adequate answer to reply that these charges will be met out of revenue from the sale of electricity. We needs to know what reason there is to believe that this will prove preferable to the present setup, where interest on funded debt and profits to shareholders are also met out of revenue from users of electricity. We need to know, also, what additional benefits may reasonably be expected from nationalization. And then one needs to be able to assess accurately the validity of these claims. We are not at all sure that the average Quebec voter is qualified to sit as judge on this question.

Offhand, the only obvious advantage which we can see to nationalization, as opposed to strict regulation of the operations of private power companies, is in the field of future expansion. There are only so many potential sources of hydro power and in a province with Quebec's reputation for political patronage and corruption there are self-evident reasons why it would be preferable to eliminate the temptation for governments to play favorites in the allotment of undeveloped sites. There is also the argument that water power is a natural resource belonging to the people as a whole and that private individuals should not be permitted to make a profit out of what belongs to the public. But that is an argument which is most effective before, and not after, the investment of huge sums of private capital in the development of these resources.

Straight Talk

Hon. Donald Fleming's address to the International Monetary Fund gathering at Washington Wednesday is required reading for those Canadians who desire to have a correct understanding of the nature and extent of Canada's financial problems.

Speaking to experts, Mr. Fleming could not, had he wished, camouflage the situation. As a result, we got some plain talk. We were told

...ity that the improvement in our reserves ... dollars and gold is not sufficient to war... ...ssation that our balance of payments is solved. We were told, too, that the ... measures taken immediately follow... ...ne 18 election will not, of themselves, ...ills.

...the fact that the audience Mr. Fleming ...ressing was so knowledgeable has one ...vantage. He does not seem to have ...ceived that the Government became aware that ...critical situation was developing. We presume ...that the delegates to the meeting of the Fund ...would know approximately the time when it ...must have become evident that some changes ...in financial policy were essential; but the average ...Canadian does not possess this knowledge and ...many of us find ourselves very curious about this ...point. It might even prove a factor in determining how we vote at the next election.

I don't know anything about the game except that they all make a noise and kiss one another when a goal is scored.—Mrs. Mabel Jones, 70, of Bristol, England, who won $174,420 in a soccer pool.

The Art of Growing Up

Guelph Mercury

We have a tendency to take things for granted, very often, when we are hardly justified in doing so. Indeed, this as a complaint often heard from wives, for instance, who feel neglected because their husbands take them for granted, or mothers whose children take for granted all the many things that mothers do for their children without hope of even a word of thanks. Many people, if you referred to "the art of growing up" as the "Art of Growing Up," would find it difficult to concede that there is such an Art. Growing up, in their way of thinking, is just "doing what comes naturally." Like Topsy, in Uncle Tom's Cabin, they would say: "I just growed up." Yet they think of "growing up" as a normal process, and as something to be taken for granted. In the individual sense, this may be true, but what about the people who grow up physically, and yet remain emotionally and mentally infantile? If you don't feel it somewhere in your own nerves, you can see them every day, in the broader, more public sense of the phase. These are the parents of infantile children, the Peter Pans who never grow up, and who go through life on a child's level.

The child's mind, housed in the adult body, poses a real problem for society. Dr. Brock Chisholm, who was minister of our adults a few years ago by suggesting that there was no Santa Claus, blames much of our current trouble on the fact that there have been immature people at strategic points, and crises have arisen in recent years which, in a more mature hour, with any degree of experience, can tell you that behind the crises, and the problems for which they are contrived, there

Divorce Now a Luxury

Toronto Telegram

Misery, not money, should be the overriding consideration in severing the bonds of marriage.

Under existing law it is not. Desertion, insanity, brutality are not considered to be legit grounds for divorce. Adultery is the only grounds.

So long as this situation exists, people who desire to dissolve their marriages legally and who can afford the expense of the publicity, manufacture of faked and witnessed adultery can do so. Collusion often accompanies these unethicticals.

Those who cannot afford illicious chits of a legal divorce are forced to live with their problems. More and more in Ontario alone during 1961, 2,278 husbands had escaped the responsibilities of wedlock by simply packing up and going away. More significantly, they left their wives with the sole burden of supporting children.

Divorce should not be a luxury; it should be a decision ruled upon by a law guided by a compassionate conscience, hard common sense and a respect for the well-being of our society.

This is one of those subjects that is difficult to talk about. Religious conscience enters deeply into it. Certainly none wants to see divorce encouraged or even easier than it is at present. And it is unfortunate today with the resources of wealth and a disposal to collusion.

It certainly is difficult to talk in terms of easing, liberalizing, or loosening the divorce laws. If any word is used it should be to recognize in law the existence of a situation that can destroy partnership and allow the innocent parties at least to have the opportunity to try to repair an unhappy life.

Especially in these times of teen-age marriages in a complex world demanding arduous efforts from its youth, the means of repairing disrupted lives should not be the responsibility of any but the wealthy.

In two church conventions during the month, this case situation has been examined thoughtfully. The Anglican Church, which deprives divorced people of communion, has heard voices within its membership appealing for compassion and understanding.

Now the United Church of Canada has dealt with the situation.

It is particularly significant that the United Church has grasped the nettle because it is aware of the fact that it has consistently in the past recognized the validity of the just justification of divorce.

The progressive forward reform has been going on sluggishly for years in Canada. The United Kingdom was moved by the learned and witty lawyer Sir Alan P. Herbert — long overdue recognition in law that adultery was not the only misery of marriage that could be relieved by the courts.

rises an elusive figure of sheer persistence, which might well be labelled, "immaturity." We hear much talk about Juvenile Delinquency, but the Perpetual Juvenile, or the Infantile Adult is a much more serious problem in our society, and in fact, we are told by those who should know, that these Infantile Adults are a menace to civilization.

This sounds like a serious charge — and it is — but Dr. A. Streeker a psychiatrist of considerable reputation says, "What do we mean by a mature person? It involves a complex balance of personal qualities; the ability to get through no matter what; the inherent ability to give more than is asked for, in any given situation; it involves the quality of dependability, the capacity to co-operate to work with others; to work under authority, to work in an organization and to accept responsibility. The mature person is tolerant, patient, adaptable, capable, and is able to handle trouble in a constructive way".

For a definition of an immature person, we quote him, he Dr. J. H. Seliger, of John Hopkins Hospital, in Baltimore, who describes the typical schizoid in these words "The typical schizoid is a defective personality, inadequately adjusted to life, who refuses to tolerate anxiety and anything unpleasant, sorrowful, disturbing, frightening, or worrying, and who promptly seeks escape from these things".

None of the qualities of maturity are inbred. They have to be acquired. Parents who are themselves immature, and who try to guarantee 24 hours of sunshine every day for their children need to be reminded that if their children fail to grow up, How mature are we, anyway?

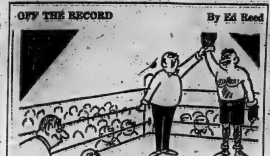
Should Act On Rail Study

Financial Post

"I deplore the fact that the Royal Commission, Report on Transportation seems to have stopped out of current thinking and to have lost sight of its discussions about the economic problems of the day."

So states Donald Gordon, Canadian National Railways president. That's a man I which will find wide agreement among Canadian, merits careful attentions and in an area where government policy is made.

Certainly in a business system such as ours, and where there are two competing railways, much of the well-being of the companies concerned depends to a great extent upon the imagination, sagacity and determination of the management. But the railways pool their resources, are dispatched by government policy and politicking that any basic reorganization can be dispatched by intelligent government action.



It is true that the Canadian cabinet has much reason to be preoccupied with matters other than Canada's railways. Certainly in the months immediately ahead the government must propose foreign exchange loans obtained during the exchange crisis, and must speed up possible British entry into Europe. It probably is not in an election. It very possibly will find it has to mitigate the effects of a new recession.

There is, however, one very real reason why the railway questions should get high priority.

It is this: Canada's long-run prosperity depends on the ability of its producers to compete at home and abroad with foreign producers and a very large factor in Canadian pricing is transportation cost.

Mr. Gordon estimates that the report of the Royal Transportation costs — every method of moving goods and people — equals about 24 per cent of the gross national product or around $3 billion. No wonder that every Canadian, as he points out, has a personal stake in making sure that all transportation systems do their job efficiently and at the lowest cost.

Making the most of the transportation facilities and advantages which this country possesses may not always be what Gordon suggests, a well-planned national system in which each mode of transportation complements the other by doing, economically, what it is best fitted to do. The immediate requirement, however, is for action, starting up the great Canadian rail mess — and the MacPherson report points the way.

Mothers Often Bark up the Wrong Tree

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

During one of his riding lessons this summer, a 6-year-old boy I know — whom we shall call Tommy — took a tumble off his horse and broke a bone near his wrist. For four weeks, his arm was in a cast up to the elbow.

After the initial shock — and the reassurance from the doctor that the arm would be as good as new in a month or two — his parents' chief feeling was one of mounting anger over the fracture prevented him from none of his vacation pastimes.

Including this amazing exhibition of dexterity for, more properly, sinisterity for he was using his left arm only) in which proficiency increased day by day, I thought how peculiarly sorry about the wrong things in their children.

Particularly, a child is much hardier than we think. We fret about accidents, wet clothing, missed meals, infections, but given the large numbers of accidents and diseases a child is exposed to, it is something of a miracle that any child reaches the age of six.

That most of them do reach this age intact is compelling testimony to their hardiness and adaptability. But only in the grown physical sense. In the emotional area (which parents rarely think about until it is too late), the child is highly vulnerable to influences that we, as parents, may be scarcely aware of.

The things that really cripple children are not the accidents — are not falls from trees or horses, not viruses or dietary deficiencies, but rather the pervasive daily atmosphere of a home, the unspoken tensions, the inconsistencies of mood, the anxieties about themselves which parents unconsciously project upon their children.

Perhaps we worry so much about the broken bones, the fevers and the chills, as a way of concealing from ourselves the more subtle — and therefore more insidious — damage we may be causing our souls with our children. And it does seem to be true that the classical "anxious mother", no matter whether her child is wearing a sweater on a chilly day, often the one who is doing psychic harm to her child in ways that a doctor cannot and could not protect from.

The boy got along beautifully with one arm. Where the crippling really counts is where it cannot be seen, in the underneath the cast, but underneath the skull.

Last Few Pounds Hardest To Remove When Reducing

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: You recently suggested on a diet you prescribe to stimulate excess weight and I am interested.

I am 21 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh 150 pounds. Three years ago I weighed 138. With my own will power and my own diet I eliminated 13 pounds.

Since that time whenever I have tackled a new diet I have failed. Many people have told me that because I lost so much at one time, it would be harder to lose more now, than for a person just beginning.

Can this be true, or have I just lost my will power? The weight I desire is 128 pounds. — John V.

You've done a splendid job of reducing. You've started on something about your weight at a sensible time of life. If other people would do what you have done, they'd live longer and also be happier.

However, to answer your questions, here are the 3 unvarnished facts.

Yes, it's easier to lose a lot of weight when you are much too heavy. It isn't because you lost so much weight at one time that you find reducing more difficult, but that you are much nearer your normal weight.

It's easy for any athlete to run 100 yards in 15 seconds. To run 100 in 13 seconds requires some doing. To do it in 11 seconds is a feat and from there on, each tenth of a second means a great deal of work.

Losing weight is something like that. The more you've lost, you reduced has nothing to do with it — although frankly I find several very valid reasons for reducing at a moderate rate instead of trying to lose too much in a hurry.

However, the closer you come to your best weight, the slower the process will be.

I'll make two suggestions:

First: Are you certain that 128 is the poundage you should seek? It may be, but then again you may be rather heavily boned, meaning that you should weigh a little more for best health and, incidentally, for best looks. I wouldn't go on a special trip, but next time you visit your doctor, ask him to give his opinion as to whether you have a large, medium or light frame. It will take a dexterity of seconds to give you his opinion, and it will be a more valid one than yours because he (not being you!) has better perspective.

Second: I don't think my leaflet on "Lost Secret of Reducing" would do you any good because you've done pretty well already. But I do think the "ounce a day" aspect, as included in another leaflet, "Calorie Counter," would be of real help to you. If you want it, just send 10-cents in coin (no stamps) to cover mailing costs, and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P.O. Box 186 Dundee Ill. ("Lost Secret of Reducing" is also included in a self-addressed, unstamped envelope is required.)

Dear Dr. Molner: I was told by a physician that I could not be vaccinated against smallpox because I am epileptic. I'm 36 then, and now am 36. Since so many things have changed in medicine in 14 years, I wonder if I could be vaccinated now. — J.N.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Nobody in real life talks the way Canadian radio and TV actors talk when they're supposed to be one of the English actors. In fact, even the English don't talk the way English actors talk. They have to talk like a loppy running-on style of speech that must be one of the most difficult things you find in the theatre. They say Sir Martin Harvey did it back in 1905 on the way Robertson or Tree did it goes on and on. I heard an English actor going on like that of a Canadian father in a radio serial about a domestic effect. Thank goodness it was one of those programs being run for the benefit of the director of it and the prestige of the C.B.C., so probably nobody was listening.

Tony Hancock the English actor whose BBC shits have enlivened the Canadian TV teapot couple of summers talks the way English talk. He warbles, His style of speech is as distinctive as that of Talullah Bankhead, who, after years when she talks, buys like a parrot learning to talk.

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel continued its sharp decline during light stock market trading today, while Canadian Oil bounced ahead to another peak price.

Inco fell two points to 60 amid moderate turnover. Its decline began earlier this week when the company announced fourth quarter output will be reduced 12 per cent from that in the third quarter.

Meanwhile, Canadian Oil surged, almost, climbing 1½ to 46½ — highest price since its listing on the exchange—on a volume of almost 5,000 shares in the first hour of trading.

Speculation continues to fly, concerning a possible takeover bid for the company. Power Corporation, largest Canadian Oil stockholder, rose one point to 62.

In general, the industrial list weakened, with losses ranging to ¾ going to such issues as Shawinigan, Gulfeau Power, Interprovincial Pipe Line, Calgary Power and Dominion Foundries and Steel.

On the exchange index, industrials dropped 1.00 to 539.79, base metals to 119.39 and western oils .73 at 110.64. Golds gained .11 to 94.87. The 11 a.m. volume was 974,000 shares compared with 949,000 at the same time Thursday.

Among base metals, Falconbridge fell ¾, while Denison rose ½. Speculatives were quiet.

The market weakened Thursday.

Widespread losses drove the main list down more than four points on index; base metals declined 2.

Hardest hit was International Nickel — listed on both the industrial and base metals indexes. The stock dropped 2¾ to 62.

Investors turned a disappointed eye on Gatineau Power and Shawinigan, following announcement that Quebec Premier Jean Lesage has plans to nationalize certain provincial electric utilities if he is successful in the November election.

Gatineau slipped to 28¾—lowest price of 1962—before rising to 29⅛, down 1¼. Shawinigan fell ¾ amid moderately active turnover.

Most active industrial issue was Rogers Cable, showing a 68,000-share volume—much of this coming in a special transaction between brokerage house branch offices. The stock rose ½ to 9.50 after closing at 14¾.

Labor Party Split Is Seen On Common Market Issue

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Controversy flared on the home front today as the great debate on Britain's ties to Europe moved from a Commonwealth context into the sphere of domestic party politics.

With post-mortems still coming in on the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers, a possibly significant development within Britain's opposition Labor party showed the complexity of political alignments on the Common Market issue.

This came in the form of a statement from a moderate-minded Labor MP, Roy Jenkins, opposing the idea of a general election on Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Jenkins is the chairman of a party committee strongly favoring British membership. The committee has 255 MPs and half a dozen peers among its members, but it claims support of some 85 of Labor's 250-odd strength in the Commons.

Estimates are that about 30 strongly oppose the Common Market, with the rest undecided.

The importance of the pro-Market move is that it comes just as Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell has been moving from an undecided position toward outright opposition.

SECRECY SUPPORT

Some political commentators suspect that Gaitskell, generally is a secret supporter of the European idea, but that he is swinging away from it for sensitive convictions partly in pursuit of a political opportunity, partly because he genuinely feels that the Commonwealth is in danger of being gravely weakened.

Party strategists are thought to have urged him to take an anti-Market stand in the belief that Labor could win the next election on this one issue. There are some signs that British public opinion is souring on the Common Market, but there is equally the possibility that sentiment might take another turn if Commonwealth countries appeared to be adopting a selfish view of Britain's aspirations in relation to Europe.

The Labor split, meanwhile, was emphasized by speeches from former defence minister Duncan Sandys and former minister Emanuel Shinwell, both demanding an early election. This was opposed by Hugh Delargy, an MP of the dissident group, who said that if an election were held he would vote in favor of British entry.

The Labor confusion is of considerable importance. It may simplify the political task of Prime Minister Macmillan, who wishes to go to the election with Britain's application to join the European Economic Community is settled one way or the other. Recent byelections have indicated the Conservative party has lost popularity.

WILL REPLY

A further indication of Gaitskell's Common-Market views will be forthcoming tonight when the Labor leader replies to the television broadcast made Thursday by Macmillan, in which the prime minister outlined the reasons why he thinks Britain must enter the European club.

Gaitskell demanded the right to reply to Macmillan on grounds that the broadcast was in effect a party political talk.

In his speech Macmillan said he is "growing in heart" as more convinced that Britain must play its part in Europe. Without referring to Prime Minister Diefenbaker by name, he said some people had suggested that there might be an alternative to Britain membership, but "I do not think this idea would be practicable."

Rosicrucians Commemorate Great Event

On Sunday, when the sun on its ecliptical journey crosses the celestial equator for the autumnal equinox, Rosicrucians throughout the world will commemorate the building of the Great Pyramid.

Louis W. Hill, Master of the local AMORC Rosicrucian Pronaos, states that Rosicrucians throughout the jurisdiction of the philosophical Order will gather for the ceremony at which time they will symbolically re-enact the building of the Great Pyramid of Cheops.

Reconstructed from ancient traditions, states Louis W. Hill, the Pyramid of Cheops at Giza was begun about 4000 B.C., on the occasion of the fall equinox. Unlike the other pyramids built during the Pyramid Age of Egypt, it was not intended as the building of for a vain Pharoah who desired a monument of his reign, but as a temple of learning. The construction of the Great Pyramid, it is said, required a knowledge of all the known sciences of that period. Its mathematics and physics and considerable knowledge of those fundamental of an astronomy recognized today.

Since the pyramid, it is said, trace their traditional origin back to the year 1350 B.C., when Amenhotep IV was Pharoah of Egypt and historically known as the first great personality in history, they commemorate their ancient origin by the ritualistic construction of a miniature pyramid. The laying of each stone represents to them the cultural accomplishments of the Order during each year of its existence. The apex will be placed upon a miniature pyramid at this time when the ideals of the Rosicrucian movement have been realized.

The outdoor fete and ceremony will be enacted locally at the Quinte Sanitorium, Wallbridge Road, Picton at 2.00 p.m. The public is cordially invited to witness the ritual and participate in the fete.

Seems Barbara Was Really In the Pink

WAKEFIELD, England (AP) — The sight of pretty Barbara Smith wiggling around in her skin-tight ski pants almost halted operations at a shirt factory.

Barbara, a shapely 22-year-old brunette, wore her pink tights to the shirt factory Wednesday because the wind was blowing cold.

Dozens of mechanics stopped work and — this is hard to believe—complained to their manager. George Woodcock that her curves distracted them. They were afraid they'd have an accident or damage a machine while watching her.

Woodcock told Barbara to change into a skirt. Barbara refused. Other male factory men were put to work in another part of the factory where they could keep their minds on their work.

"I've never been grown men to make such a fuss over a matter of pants," Barbara giggled.

1,750 Pound Moose Shot By Herb McCabe

The reeve of Sophiasburg, Lorne Cumming, and Herb McCabe, of this city, have returned home from the northern woods with one moose which tipped the scales at 1,750 pounds and another of 1,200 pounds was left with the French guides as the half-ton beast they would not attempt the load.

The hunters secured their game at Bell Moose Lake on the Pivabiska River, situated 80 miles northeast of Kearnley. They drove by car to Hearst and then by train to the river and then twelve miles by boat and two portages to the camp. The first night in camp was an exciting evening. The guides started to call moose and soon through the still air could be heard the gruff answer of a bull moose. It was stated by the guides there were at least eight moose in the swamp and it was a possibility there was one that was the boss. "It was easy to find out" said one of the guides. He started to call and soon there was a loud bellow answer and not a sound from any of the others. "He is the boss," said the guide and we will get him in the morning."

"Sure enough," said Mr. McCabe, "the next morning we were out bright and early and soon after being placed on the runway along came Mr. Moose and Mrs. Moose and got the first shot but did not bring him down. The next shot from my rifle stopped him." Hunting the hunt two black bears were also bagged. The antlers on the moose measured 50 and one-half inches and there were 16 points. Mr. McCabe intends to have the head mounted as a trophy of the hunt. The party of the hunting flies were still going strong when they left the north country.

Teen, Pre-Teen Programs Open This Evening

Beginning tonight, Friday, September 21, the junior and pre-teen programs of the Recreation Department will be in full swing. Five young people's group or pre-teens will be glad to hear that the Quinte Young Canadians will be in operation again with dancing every Friday night in Prince Charles School and also at Queen Elizabeth, for those living on the East Hill.

Those who attended Queen Elizabeth last year will be glad to hear that Mrs. Poste and Miss Bonnie Hibberd will once again be in attendance at Queen Elizabeth, while Miss Jane Ketcheson and Mr. Lorne Cornell will be responsible for records and providing the entertainment at Prince Charles. In both cases, dancing begins at 7.00 and lasts until 9.00 p.m.

These dances for the pre-teens provide fun and enjoyment and parents can be assured that the dances are being conducted under good supervision and will have a pleasant evening with children of their own age group.

This Friday night will also see the beginning of the Belleville-Teen Town for the coming season. Teen Town has been in operation for some four years and during that time has done much to supply the teenagers of Belleville with wholesome entertainment and fundamental training in parliamentary procedure and executive duties. Some of the club's projects in the past years have been the participation in the annual Santa Claus parade, donation of gifts to the needy at the club's annual Christmas time, and donations to UNICEF. It is hoped that these projects and others can once again be carried out in the coming year.

The Belleville Teen Town holds their teenage dances each Friday night in the Memorial Recreation Centre, from 8.30-11.30 p.m. On Friday, October 5 will be the first dance of the season and as experience has shown us from previous years, a large crowd is expected.

Although these are only two specific areas in the club organization program, they are important for the teenagers in fun and enjoyment, while at the same time offer valuable training for those assigned to the youth of Belleville.

Jodoin Defends Strike Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Labor Congress President Claude Jodoin issued a policy statement Thursday defending strike action as "the natural right and traditional method" by which workers have improved their wages and working conditions.

Mr. Jodoin said he issued the statement at the request of delegates to the CLC's following recent statements in the press and elsewhere that strikes are obsolete.

Belleville's public schools have an enrolment of 4,718 pupils, increased from 4,626 at the closing of school in June, and there are 147 teachers on the public schools staff.

The above attendance figures were presented to the schools board at the September meeting held this week. Schools Superintendent L. A. Kells reported the teaching staff had been increased by 11 members since June and that enrolments per teacher had been decreased from 34 to 32 pupils.

Commencement of the fall term early this month saw 32 new teachers report for duty with the Belleville Board.

Custodial and maintenance employees of the Belleville public schools now have an Employees' Association and a contract has been awarded to McKenzie Feeds Limited at a quoted price of $12,58.32, this fance to follow the east and south boundaries of the site.

Members present were Chairman Wm. Townson and trustees Hazel Pugh, F. F. Clarke, I. A. Langabeer, Morley Lovelace, J. N. McKibbon, Ross Bonter, Dr. Wm. Mills, Smith, J. R. Sproule, G. H. Tyll and W. A. VanTassel.

AUSSIE PIPELINE

A 200-mile oil pipeline will be built from the Moonie oil field to be reached over a period of seven years.

The previous maximum was $300 per month, reached after three and a half years.

Agreements reached between the employees and the board included procedures for meetings and discussions, the prosecution of grievances and revision of working conditions and responsibilities.

Mr. Kells also submitted recommendations regarding advancement and salaries to give teachers credit for Department of Education summer courses completed this year. The major number of teachers represented had attended the Junior Education Course held at the Harry J. Clarke School in Belleville. Belleville's specialized teachers took Department of Education Courses and the number attending Belleville summer Schools brought the total number seeking improvement to 49.

Jack Field representing the Hydro-Electric Power Commission appeared before the board to present information regarding the heating of new school buildings.

The report of the school Sanitary Inspector presented by Dr. McColl Metcalfe, MOH, indicated numerous minor items of lack of cleanliness and need of repair relating to sanitary facilities.

The boiler inspection report for Queen Alexandra school disclosed the board was facing an estimated $13,000 expenditure for replacements in the year 1962.

A special committee was appointed with G. H. Tyll as chairman, to further investigate the possibility of securing suitable access from Lemert Drive to the Harry J. Clarke school site. Reports presented by this and individual legal entanglements that gave the board concern.

A further special committee with Trustee Mac Smith as chairman was named to prepare for an official opening of the Harry J. Clarke and Parkdale schools.

Contract for construction of a fence at the Harry J. Clarke School was awarded to McKenzie Feeds Limited at a quoted price of $2,58.32, this fance to follow the east and south boundaries of the site.

Elderly People Do Not Want To Settle Down

TORONTO (CP) — The idea that elderly people want to settle down to nothing but peace and quiet is nonsense, says Malcolm McGee, of North America's foremost housing experts.

First woman to hold the port of commissioner of public housing administrator in the United States, she came here from Washington to give the keynote address at the recent 10th annual Ontario housing conference.

Her work in the field of housing for the elderly has won her international recognition.

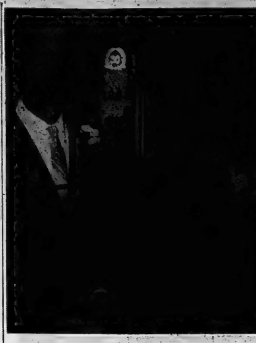
"We used to think that the elderly person wanted to commune with nature and was hustled them out to what we considered the ideal situation where all was peace and quiet," she says.

"This is nonsense. Our senior citizens want to be where there's some life. If they can't take part in it, they want to be where it is by—children to school, workers to the office and factory, the military to the posting community in action."

On appointment by President Kennedy last year was the climax to a career in public housing that started when she was 17.

She was working during school holidays on a government survey which was trying to establish the adequacy of housing in a distressed area," she recalled during the interview.

"I had to do it the hard way —by knocking on doors and asking questions."



Mrs. McGuire was deeply moved by the shocking conditions she saw and has been working for better housing conditions ever since.

Mrs. McGuire has come full circle to her native Washington where she is a dean of public school and university.

She is not the only member of her family to be known nationally.

Her identical twin, Margret Collins Schweinhaut, is a senator for the state of Maryland.

The annual ladies' closing Field Day tees off at 10 a.m. on a course that should be par excellence for the tournament.

Fifty-seven members of the ladies' golf division have entered, while eight young ladies of the junior division will seek honors in their class.

The club's co-captains, Agnes Walker and Helen Smith, have made all arrangements. A post-tournament dinner will precede the presentation of prizes and awards.

Weddings

LOPUCHOWYCH — PIWAK

FRANKFORD — A lovely wedding was solemnized in Sacred Heart Church, Batawa, Ontario on Saturday, Sept. 1st when Rev. Father O'Neil united in marriage Helen Jaroslava Piwak, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Piwak of Frankford and Jerry Lopuchowych, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. Lopuchowych of Rochester, New York.

The traditional wedding music was rendered by Sister Mary Francis of Rome and the soloist was Mrs. R. Mikas of Batawa.

Large vases of colorful early autumn flowers adorned the altar and white bows decorated the guest pews.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of white satin. The bodice was accented by lace sleeves and a scoop neckline. The skirt had wide box pleats and embossed embroidered flowers with small chapel train. Her veil was a three-quarter length style held with diamond shaped crown of pearls and crystals and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Victoria Piwak, sister of the bride wore a pale green gown with elbow length white gloves. A large bow at the waistline completed the ensemble. Readings were also given by Mrs. Jack McLaren, Mrs. Ken McKeehan, after which Mrs. Weese and her assistants served lunch.

QUESTION:

. . . A cake I have tasted was lovely. Since then the lady has passed on and something is missing in the cake as I made it 3 times and it was a flop — a gold and angel cake.

I have a grandson whose birthday is in September. If I could make this cake I would decorate it like your circus cake you gave us a few years ago. I saved the decorating recipe when I hoped to be a grandma . . . If you can solve this cake, Mary, please send it to me so I can practice before my darling grandson's birthday — Mrs. M. B.

ANSWER:

You are referring to

DEVILS FOOD CAKE:

Try this — it is a beauty.

Measure sifted flour, add ½ cup of the sugar, and sift together 4 times. Combine egg whites, salt, cream of tartar, and vanilla in large bowl. Beat with flat wire whip, egg beater, or at high speed of electric mixer until the whites are stiff enough to hold up in soft peaks, but are still moist and glossy. Add the remaining sugar in 4 additions by sprinkling 4 tablespoons at a time over egg whites, and beating until sugar is blended. When beating by hand, beat 25 strokes or turns after each addition of sugar; sift about ¼ of the flour mixture over the fluffy egg whites; fold in with 15 fold-over strokes, turning bowl often. In this way, fold in the remaining flour mixture in 3 more additions. After last addition, use 30 to 35 extra strokes. In another bowl, beat yolks, rind, juice and 2 tablespoons of sugar until thick and light. Fold in 1-3 of white cake batter with 15 strokes. Pull batters in ungreased 10" tube pan, alternating yellow and white mixtures for a marbled effect. Finish entire top with white batter. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes. Cool in inverted pan for 1 hour. Then loosen from sides and centre tube with knife and gently pull out cake.

Thousands of Students Facing Trick Questions

sailors in heavy seas."

"In the train car, the guests from across the ocean again started drinking. After several rounds they quarrelled and chucked pillows at each other and - bang! - on each others' heads with shades from lamp tables.

"Later two of the hooligans made up their minds to go out for a breath of Adriat Mechanic but upon alighting from the car confused the platform for the water closet. Others had the same delusion without saluting forth from the car at all.

"As soon as the train pulled out the wild men tore off their clothes and chased girls."

"The girl sent him about his business with the result that the hooligan spat in her face.

"When the train chief interceded, the drunk punched him in the face. But it was only when he picked up a tin-opener trying to stab the train chief with it that the hooligan was tied up and locked in a separate compartment till sobered."

endangering U.S. security and will use force if necessary to resist any move used to advance communism in this hemisphere.

The statement was welcomed by State Secretary Rusk.

Rusk said in testimony made public Thursday by the Senate committees that it has been made clear if the Cubans or Soviet personnel in Cuba attempted to move arms illicitly into other Latin American countries, or if any elements of armed forces embarked from Cuba into other neighboring countries, the armed forces of the United States would be used to intercept such traffic."

During Senate debate on the resolution Thursday, Senator Joseph S. Clark Jr. (Dem. Pa.) said, "This is no time for war talk . . . This is no time for a blockade . . . no time for careless old men to send young men to war."

Senator Winston L. Prouty (Rep, Vt.), who cast the lone Senate vote against the resolution, described it was not strong enough.

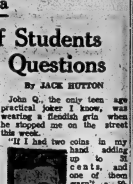
Some other Republicans including Senators Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska and Jack Miller of Iowa, protested that the resolution is not strong enough but they did not join Prouty in voting against it.

Curtis called for a "Pacific blockade" but Senator John Sherman Cooper Rep. N.Y. said it's blockade is an act of war" and must be we understood.

Cooper said he feels "adoption of this resolution coupled with firm action by the president can prevent war." He added the situation is "too dangerous in the country" to be used for political purposes.

The action came as the Havana radio broadcast a pledge by Communist Cuba to support Cuba in its "fight against the aggression of North American imperialism."

The Communist Chinese note, Havana radio said, included a preparation for an invasion of Cuba."



In his two key paragraphs the congressional resolution puts the U.S. government on record as being determined:

1. "To prevent by whatever means may be necessary, including the use of arms, the Marxist-Leninist regime in Cuba from extending by force or threat of force its aggressive or subversive activities to any part of this hemisphere.

2. "To prevent in Cuba the creation or use of an external supported military capability endangering the security of the United States."

ONE KILLED

CAPRI (AP)—A tornado hit this romantic vacation island Thursday. One person died, 30 were injured and damage was widespread.

"If I had two coins in my hand adding up to 20 cents, and one of them wasn't a 50-cent piece," he whispered, "what would they be?"

When I hesitated, he spoke up in triumph. "A 50-cent piece and a penny. One wasn't a 50-cent piece — but that doesn't mean the other one isn't."

Thousands of young Canadians will face similar "trick" questions, this fall on tests which supposedly measure that slippery something that psychologists call "intelligence."

Almost every student will at least one question with a first that appears to be sheep from the goats. You can't really hope up for them, but the zone old "trick" reappear constantly.

For the second year in a row, I'm offering a few of them to you. Some of them take a bit of puzzling so don't fret if the answer doesn't leap to your mind. Fair enough?

A gentleman had just started holidays when his butler wrote to say he couldn't send him mail because he'd taken the mailbox key. He immediately mailed the key back and received his back mail in a few days. What's wrong with this story?

The answer, of course, is that the butler couldn't possibly have got the key out of a mailbox. Easy! If you don't think so, sink your teeth into this next one and chew.

Savages prepared to burn a missionary at a stake made him a proposition. He said it would make a positive statement. If it were a true one they'd shoot him with a poisoned arrow, or if it were a false one, they'd roast him.

The missionary whispered to the tribal medicine man who promptly announced that they'd have to let the prisoner go free. What did the missionary say?

His statement: "I will die by fire." Now, if this statement were true, the savages had promised to shoot him with a poisoned arrow. Therefore, it wouldn't be true.

But if the statement were not true, they had promised to roast their guest. Either way left the logical savages stymied so they allowed the missionary to proceed on his way.

Perhaps you've already heard the next one about the gentleman who asked his blind butler to bring him a pair of either black or white socks from his drawer. If the drawer had 20 black and white socks mixed together, what was the minimum number the butler would bring back?

The answer: Three socks.

Or what about the 195-pound chap who has to carry three billiard balls, each weighing two pounds, over a bridge that only supports only 200 pounds? How does he do it?

The answer: He juggles them so that one is always in the air. Therefore he never has to support more than two at a time, weighing four pounds altogether on either side in safety.

One last question, for which I'll supply the answer next week A theatre manager carried the letters T, T, E, N, and I outside to his marquee but can't remember which word he had finished with. What are the two possible words?

Send us any others that you think might be "stumpers".

TEEN JARGON

An American magazine claims that several new words have invaded the teen world during recent months.

A "twink" is supposed to be an out-of-date person. A "drink" is something or someone stupid. And when a fellow says, "I'm shafted", that signifies that he's in trouble.

What about Canada? Do we have any slang words on this side of the border that teenagers have originated?

RUSSIANS HERE

"Russian students seem to be more serious than we are. They don't have the cars, clubs, books or magazines that we do, and so their life seems toned down a bit".

That was Hagarat-old Izenman of Montreal talking after a recent five-week visit to the Soviet Union as a party of young American students.

Philip, who has just entered Harvard University in the U.S., said two things impressed him about the young Russians he met, their ability to speak English and their surprising knowledge of Jazz.

"They knew more about American Jazz and Jazz bands than did anyone on our trip", he said. "We spent a whole night teaching one fellow the words to When the Saints Come Marching In".

order signed by the governor-general authorizing spending on a particular sum for a specified period.

This course probably would be followed only if Parliament is dissolved suddenly for another election before it authorizes the government to spend money beyond Oct. 31.

Introduction of a baby budget and a revised estimate of 1962-63 spending by Finance Minister Nowlan is regarded by observers here as the most probable course of government action.

However, either a baby budget or a move to get further temporary spending authority means the government soon would face a crucial test of strength in the Commons where the Progressive Conservatives are outnumbered 149 to 116 by the combined Liberal, Social Credit and New Democratic forces.

Sunday School Lesson

Misusing Our Blessings

By ROY L. SMITH

One of the most popular diversions of a certain class of people is finding fault with God's administration of the affairs of this world.

In Babylon the Jews had enjoyed a considerable prosperity. They had been permitted to share in the prosperity of the empire, to take their place in the culture of the land, and to enjoy a considerable degree of liberty in the practice of their religion. Actually, so many found it comfortable and congenial in Babylon that when the permission to return to Judea was offered, they found it to their advantage to continue in Babylon. In Jesus' day the number of Jews living in Babylonia outnumbered those in Palestine by tens of thousands.

Those who returned from Babylon were the idealists, the super patriots, and the adventurers who were attracted by the prospect of an easy fortune, and, perhaps, a rise in power.

WHEN DECAY SETS IN

The situation actually found in Judea, however, was disillusioning in the extreme. In the first place, the land was sterile and poor—altogether unlike the lush valley of Babylon alongside the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Those who returned to farm the barren hills soon discovered that they had never had it so hard.

The farmers, as a class, never designed to support any great population. Moreover, with the exception of some few valleys, it was never designed for agriculture. Being quite without forests or mineral deposits, it was a poor and barren land that offered a prodigal living to any people.

The fathers, in Babylon, had looked back on the days and the land of their youth with wistful and idyllic and astonishing eyes and had reported beauty and resources to their children that did not actually exist. Therefore, the facts were utterly discouraging.

Cynical, disillusioned, sometimes bitter, and uninspired, the repatriates grew spiritually careless and perfunctory. Many of them, no doubt, shared the discouragement of the original exiles who came out of Egypt and found themselves in the desert. Face to face with hardships they had not anticipated, they said, "It would have been better for us if we had never left Egypt."

Along with discouragement and defeatism there went a spirit of self-deception. Wearied with the struggle, and infatuated with secularism, the people began offering the lame, the bruised, and the discredited animals on the altars. The tithes, which had become an identification of the faithful, were rescinded and went unpaid. The ancient ceremonies at the temple and inside the home had lost their charm. And a secularism that was at one and the same time cynical and callous, possessed the people.

MALACHI AFFEARS

In the midst of the misfortunes of the people there appeared a messenger who declared he spoke in the name of the Jehovah. Precisely who he may have been we do not know. Just as John the Baptist called himself a Voice Crying in the Wilderness, this spokesman for God described himself only as the Messenger." With the passing of time he has come to be known as Malachi, Rhine valley of Germany.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for Sept. 23: "O Call to Spiritual Renewal," Book of Malachi.

which is the ancient Hebrew word for messenger.

The indictment which Malachi brought against the nation is a serious one. Although the Bible does not indicate the exact date at which the book was composed, Bible scholars are of the opinion that it must have been about 460 B.C., which would be about 60 years previous to the arrival of Ezra and Nehemiah. The charges are, therefore, levelled more at the people who remained in Judea than at the expatriates in Babylon.

In general, however, it may be said that Malachi indicted the nation for its carelessness, indifference, immorality and lack of reverence. Again and again he charged them with the sin of treating Jahovah worse than they would have treated even the most despised king.

Liberty and freedom had resulted only in license and demoralization. It takes a strong people to endure and appropriate freedom. As John Scott of Time Magazine has said, speaking of large areas of the underdeveloped world, "Democracy is not enough."* Under the liberty of an inner sense of honor, and appreciation of individual worth, even democracy cannot exalt a people."

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

With so many Fall wedding showers in the planning state, we've been deluged with questions concerning arrangements. Here are some of the questions asked:

1. Who usually gives a bridal shower?
2. How far before the wedding should a shower be scheduled?
3. Who should be included in the guest list?
4. How should guests be invited?
5. What is the usual time for a shower?
6. How long should it last?
7. What sort of refreshments are served?
8. Do guests wrap their own gifts, or should the hostess do it?
9. Is the groom invited to attend the shower?
10. May a shower gift be considered the same as a wedding gift?

Answers:

1. A friend of the bride-to-be gives the shower. The maid-of-honor or a bridesmaid often gives it. Neither the mother of the bride nor the mother of the groom may give it, and neither should any other female member of either immediate family.
2. About a month before the wedding. The bride's mother should be consulted before a date is set, in case other showers are being scheduled.
3. Since guests must bring presents, only close friends of the bride-to-be are invited, as well as the bride's mother, the groom's mother and other close female relatives.
4. Printed shower cards are used most often, but invitations can be phoned, or they may be in the form of informal notes.
5. It may be held any time during the day or evening — at luncheon, in the afternoon; it may be a tea or dinner or a party in the evening.
6. Most showers last about 2 hours.
7. This depends on what time the party is held. A light salad entree, dessert and beverage may be served at luncheon. Sandwiches and cakes are served at tea. A dinner menu may consist of a casserole, salad, dessert and coffee. After-dinner coffee and a light repast may be served for an evening shower.
8. Presents should be brought or sent to the home of the hostess (already gift-wrapped).
9. Not if it's an all-female party. The groom and other men may be invited to join the group in time for refreshments after the gifts are opened.
10. A shower gift usually is given in addition to a wedding gift, which is why shower gifts should be small and generally inexpensive.

Charlotte H. — For weeks he's been saying "Elia" in his sleep.

Gordon H. — How can I be held responsible for what I say while asleep?

Charlotte H. — I'm 26, considered beautiful, and hold a responsible job in a textile firm. I've been married 2 years. My husband is a dress buyer. We're completely compatible and in love with each other — at least I am. Lately I've not so sure about him, because in the past few weeks he's been mentioning an "Elia" in his sleep. He talks quite distinctly when he's dreams, and since my name is Charlotte, I'm mystified.

In the morning when I ask him "Who's Elia?" he says "I don't know what you're talking about." Either he's a good actor or he leads an exciting dream life I know nothing about. But he still ought to be able to give me a better explanation.

Gordon H. — I didn't even know that I talk in my sleep, much less what I talk about. For all I know, Charlotte makes speeches out of dreamland, too, but I'm a deep sleeper and I have no proof. Maybe we should wire out bedroom for sound so I'll have a playback the next morning and be able to translate that Elia business for Charlotte.

Maybe it's a name I read in a book, although I don't recall anything closer to it than Cinderella. We have no employees named Elia in the plant. None of our friends is Elia. And Charlotte knows I have no time for an Elia. I meet her for lunch, which means we have our 3 meals together, plus our evenings. So her suspicions make no sense.

The Council: Oh, come off it, Charlotte! You're sure scraping the barrel looking for trouble. You insist on making Gordon a most unhappy fella over "Elia." A confident, lighthearted wife would think of a half a dozen possible interpretations of the sound, all innocent, and would turn over peacefully to finish her night's slumber. Example: Maybe he's yelling "Ella-vator!" during a nightmare in which he keeps missing it on his business calls. Example: He's calling for vanilla ice cream?.

If that's the only reason for your distrust, you must look within yourself to learn why you feel so insecure and what you're afraid of. And, at the same time, Gordon, you'd do well to pay a little more flattering attention to Charlotte in the plentiful hours in which you are together. Evidently she's a girl for whom a flood of compliments completed her daily fare. With her beauty and brains, she could have moved among ego-bolstering excitement during most of her premarital life. So, look up from your paper more often. Some domestic buttering-up is in order.

When a marriage has been moving along normally, a wife can sense any serious rift in the fluff. She doesn't need sleep-talk as her clue. In fact, a wise wife discounts this unconscious babble. Either Charlotte hurts Gordon, or she doesn't. If she doesn't — and she indicates no real reason not to — all that's left for tracking down "Elia's" identity is a lie detector applied to Gordon. But there wouldn't be much left to their love and marriage after such an extreme tactic, either. So our advice is for Charlotte to think up a few more "light" explanations, similar to those we invented above, for the nocturnal pressure of Elia. (Might be a nice name for their first daughter!)

Bachelors, however, might take a tip from a prominent physicist, who boasts: "My wife's name is Jane, my nurse's name is Jane, my secretary's name is Jane. So, if I talk in my sleep, I'm safe!"

U.C.W. Meetings

FOXBORO — The September general meeting of the United Church Women of Foxboro was held in the Sunday School room on September 18.

Unit 4 was in charge of the devotional which was based on Thanksgiving and opened with the reading in unison of the general Thanksgiving Hymn. Mrs. Spencer read the Scripture reading from Deuteronomy 8. The commentary, given by Mrs. P. Kilpatrick was followed by prayer by Rev. R. Hollinger.

The minutes of the July general meeting were read and approved. Thank-you cards from Mrs. R. Wannamaker, Mrs. R. Groh, Mr. J. Cox, Mrs. Demorest, Marie and Enid Wall, Mrs. J. Stewart and Mr. J. Gould were read, also an invitation to Wesley tea and bazaar on September 26. It was decided as many as possible would attend.

Mrs. Bean reported $130.06 in the treasury.

Some fine work has been done by Mrs. Hermon and Mrs. Bean in searching for new chairs for the Sunday School. It was decided to use the $100 as budgeted and borrow the remaining necessary money in order to take advantage of an excellent bargain. The finance committee was to see about the disposal of the old chairs.

Final arrangements regarding catering for the Cranbright — Fisher wedding were discussed.

Books to read are to be given to public school children when sick or in hospital.

Miss Cook gave a most interesting account of the Leaders' Training School in Whitby, and had an excellent display of good books she bought at the school.

A display of articles already made for the bazaar in November was in evidence and Mrs. J. Ewing read an article which gave some particularly fine suggestions and ideas for bazaars.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Small Visitor Is Unwelcome

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—My little boys play with a boy of four who lives across the street from us. He is slightly retarded.

There is only one difficulty regarding him; when he comes into the house with the children, he goes all through every room, also upstairs where we have other people living.

Lately he has been coming in to our bathroom even when playing near his house, usually already wet. The only way to keep him out is to latch the doors. But I don't want to be on bad terms with his mother.—MOLLY.

DEAR MOLLY—He's dodging a scolding for being wet. I'll wager his mother hasn't linked up this problem with her boy's frustrations. Enuresis is a common reaction to such things.

He may be trying too hard to meet normal demands, with less than normal equipment. Needs understanding and encouragement; not scolding. If his mother is your friend, could you lead her to the help she needs for him?

DEAR DORIS—Is there any place that I can obtain a Canadian home study course in algebra and geometry? My mathematics are the only subject I lack from a complete Grade XI and XII. My daughter is too small for me to attend the night classes which will no doubt start soon.—HOMEBOUND.

DEAR HOMEBOUND — Learning algebra by mail isn't easy—but not impossible!

There is a course in Elementary Mathematics and one in Advanced Shop Mathematics, both 20 lessons for $14. The second is equivalen to Grade 11 maths.

Write to Correspondence Study Branch, Box 1650, Halifax, N.S. Then visit your own Board of Education to find out whether such a course will help you get the standing you need.

DEAR DORIS—After reading Puzzled's letter, I was wondering if my experience with odor would solve anything. Last winter I got three dresses cleaned. When delivered I hung them up, but when I came downstairs next morning, I was sure a skunk had gotten in; the odor was sickening.

I called another cleaner and they said they must have ured stale cleaning fluid. I paid more for the second cleaning, but still imagine the smell around. At least I can wear the dresses.

It took Chinese candles to remove the smell from the rooms.—ALLERGIC TO ODORS.

DEAR ALLERGIC—A new clue to what troubled Puzzled. Did it smell as bad as a dead squirrel would have?

DEAR DORIS:—You stated that no self-respecting girl would have her boy friend baby sit with her. I just don't see it. I am 16 years old and I am sure that I can justifiably consider myself a very respectable person.

Last winter I did a lot of baby sitting and my 18-year-old boy friend frequently came over, with my employer's permission. We watched T.V. and talked or listened to records. He kept me company and prevented me from getting bored and falling asleep on the job. That I believe is the typical way any two self-respecting young people would act in this situation.

If the only common interest a young couple had was necking, they wouldn't be going around together. They enjoy each other's company for many reasons, so in spite of what you think, they don't start necking just because they are alone. Please reconsider your statement.—BEV.

DEAR BEV.:—With the greatest of pleasure. It's not sure ruination!

There are some fine disciplined young people like yourself. But it's still a good idea not to see how close you can come to the cliff without falling over. Nature is powerful, even with young couples who have the very best of intentions.

DEAR DORIS—I am very much interested in drama, not Hollywood but such plays as Shakespeare wrote and that are put on in Stratford, Ontario.

I have never taken any sort of lessons in acting. Would you kindly suggest what I could learn on my own? I am not only interested in acting, but make-up and my voice.—SIXTEEN.

DEAR SIXTEEN—Learn by doing. Little theatre groups have launched many a professional star.

There are tasks for members to do with make-up, play-reading, property creating, and every other team-job relating to getting the show on the stage before an audience.

Ask your nearest library about books and pamphlets, as well as where the handiest group gets together.

Call to 'Prayer Meeting' Method Used by SIU for 'Hard Timing' Certain Ships

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—A summons to a "prayer meeting" was one method used by the Seafarers International Union of Canada (Ind.) for "hard-timing" certain companies or ships, the federal shipping inquiry was told Thursday.

Crews were pulled off for the "prayer meeting" at the SIU hall just before their vessel was to load, causing costly delays, testified President Richard Greaves of the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC).

Mr. Greaves said he first heard the description of the walkoff used by President Hal Banks of the SIU who explained that it looked better in Quebec province courts if the SIU had a strong religious background—to say that the crew was bound for a prayer meeting.

Later, the device for harassing a shipping company or a particular officer aboard a ship, came to be known generally on the Great Lakes waterfront as a "prayer meeting".

"Were these very pious meetings?" queried lawyer Maurice Wright, counsel for the Canadian Labor Congress.

JUSTICE WONDERS

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver, conducting the inquiry, wondered whether they had the same influence in "unreasonable" provinces such as Ontario or British Columbia.

Mr. Greaves testified on his association and consultation with Mr. Banks from late 1956 to about June of 1958 when he and the SIU leader fell out.

His union, the National Association of Marine Engineers, helped touch off the struggle for power on the Great Lakes and his recent history has been a series of legal actions and disruptions.

Its charges of membership raiding against the SIU in 1956 brought the expulsion of the SIU from the 1,070,000-member CLC in 1956.

The N.A.M.E. now is merged with the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC).

Mr. Greaves said the eastern wing of the N.A.M.E. in 1955 had broken away and lined up with the SIU. But in 1956 Mr. Banks chose to support the national officers of the Marine Engineers group and for more than a year provided money and some staff to help organize on the Great Lakes.

TWO FALL OUT

Then he and Mr. Greaves fell out in 1958 because the N.A.M.E. became convinced that a 10-week strike by the SIU on the CPR's west - coast ferries was designed purely to break the engineers' union.

Mr. Greaves said the engineers decided to strike on another ferry service, the former Black Ball Line, so that government intervention would end the strike. Premier Bennett of British Columbia did intervene under the Civil Defence Act.

Later, the SIU said that the strike harm, wing of the SIU had voted to join the SIU—an electrical union—to form a Canadian Labor Relations Board declared fraudulent.

The SIU signed collective agreements with Great Lakes companies a sh e d y holding N.A.M.E. contracts for the same personnel.

Mr. Greaves said a Canada Steamship Lines spokesman told him he was sorry but that he had to do what the spokesmen had acknowledged that it was illegal to ditch the lawful collective bargaining agreement with the N.A.M.E., Mr. Greaves said.

But Canada Steamships said that by the time Mr. Greaves had had to fight its case right to the Supreme Court, it would be bankrupt and the court-ordered fines could be applied against the company anyway.

Besides, Mr. Greaves said he was told, Mr. Banks had guaranteed that Canada Steamship Lines.

SHOW HIM SIU HQ

Bring him to Montreal. In the basement Mr. Banks ha d had built a small SIU headquarters and a number of pieces of two-by-four-inch lumber with bandoliers of cartridges hanging.

Mr. Banks had said the lumber pieces were handy for picket signs and that the baseball bats allowed him to have a baseball game anytime he wished.

When Mr. Justice Norris asked if there was any baseball played anywhere with machine guns, Mr. Greaves said he hadn't seen any.

Mr. Greaves said Mr. Banks became angry at an SIU member for refusing to take the oath in court and that he blacklisted a seaman for 90 years because he objected to a move to join the union at a cost of $73. His dues were paid a few late because he'd been up north.

Mr. Greaves said he accompanied Banks to buy a new 1958 convertible replacing his 1957 model and that the cheque for about $4,700 was drawn on the SIU. Mr. Banks had another car at his Montreal headquarters, two boats and about $15,000 in tools of his trade. Mr. Banks replaced his most expensive speed boat with a superior type after convincing the engineer resident had a faster craft.

Parliamentary Notebook

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP)—The first act of the 25th Parliament next Thursday morning will be the election of a new Commons Speaker.

In a brief ceremony rooted in British constitutional history, the House assembles at 11 a.m. EDT to select the man who by tradition must shed his politics to become head referee, timekeeper and housekeeper of the Commons.

Any member of the 265-seat Commons is entitled to nominate a candidate. In practice, the government does so and normally the opposition parties concur in that choice.

No change is foreseen this time even though the Progressive Conservative government is in a minority position with only 116 seats.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has nominated Marcel Joseph Aline Lambert, 56, bilingual lawyer representing Edmonton West, to succeed Roland Michener.

Mr. Michener, an urbane, witty and affable Throne-Speech appointed Speaker in 1957, lost his Toronto St. Paul's seat June 18 by a landslide of votes. He has continued as caretaker Speaker during the summer recess without any indication that another job or any particular honor awaits him.

APPROACHED KNOWLES

He was nominated as Speaker after it became known that Mr. Diefenbaker had approached Stanley Knowles of the CCF party about becoming permanent Speaker — something that has been advocated for the Canadian Commons for some time.

Mr. Knowles, an acknowledged parliamentary authority, declined.

Mr. Michener, who is of Mennonite background, is perhaps more important — his ability to reduce Commons tension to a soft or witty quality.

It's known that about three months ago a list of former Speakers honored by appointment to the Senate was given to their terms expired was prepared for Mr. Diefenbaker.

Since 1867 the Speaker has been confined by Mr. Diefenbaker to Conservatives, with the last served as federal cabinet ministers: former premier Frost of Ontario, former Ontario government leader Walter Aseltine and solid old soldier R. (Bob) McGregor, defeated in June after being MP for York East since 1935.

In the Diefenbaker administration the Speaker's vacancy has been a stepping stone to the cabinet for each of the four Speakers appointed so far: Roland Michener, former state secretary Jacques Flynn, former minister of justice and attorney - general Paul Martineau, the present mines minister,

RAID ARMY BASE

ARVIDA, Que. (CP) Thieves broke into a steel vault at the Arvida armoury with an assortment of guns and ammunition from an army base near Arvida, 110 miles north of Quebec. The weapons included 12 rifles from the collection of bank robberies involving Montreal gangster Lucien Rivard. Guns followed the theft of 13 such weapons from the Citadel in Quebec City several months ago.

Seven Members Of UN Plane Crew Survive

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—Seven of the 10 Swedish crew members aboard a United Nations DC4 shot down over northern Katanga were reported today to be alive.

The Swedish defence staff reported from Stockholm that one man was dead, three injured and four unhurt.

No information was available about the remaining two crew members

The Stockholm report came after four UN helicopters with jet-fighter escorts set out on a search for survivors of the plane, shot down on a routine reconnaissance flight.

Fighter pilots who flew over the scene of the crash said the plane was a total wreck.

The UN warned both Katanga and the central Congolese government whose troops have been fighting in the area that they would open fire on aircraft on either side if there was interference in the search for survivors.

Observers here believed the DC-3 may have been shot down by mistake. The plane's pilot took the plane for a Katanga plane carrying white mercenaries on flights in the area.

WAS ROUTINE FLIGHT

A UN spokesman said the DC-3 was on a routine reconnaissance flight to check whether Congolese and Katangese troops had halted military operations in the disputed area in the north of the breakaway province of Katanga.

The plane went down near the village of Kamina, 100 miles south of Kolwezi, and about 180 miles north of the UN base at Kamina, Katanga sources reported.

UN Congo Chief Robert Gardiner sent urgent messages to President Moise Tshombe of Katanga and Congo Prime Minister Cyrille Adoula warning against interference with the search.

The messages said if the helicopters "are molested in any way the escorting fighter aircraft will immediately open fire on anything moving on the ground."

Gardiner demanded the two leaders issue orders "not to interfere with these operations."

CHARGES NATIONAL ARMY

Tshombe replied that Katanga's "army will participate with you in the search and rescue mission to help the lost UN men" and charged that the plane was shot down by "forces of the Central Congolese army."

Tshombe said that for several days the Katangan government had been aware large concentrations of Congo troops in the area and had "warned of the hostile intentions."

Katanga sources reported Thursday that Congolese troops had begun a new attack on Katangan positions near Lengwe, 100 miles south of Kolwezi and 50 miles north of Jadotville.

A flareup in fighting in North Katanga has been going on in the midst of renewed—but so far unsuccessful—efforts to reintegrate Katanga with the rest of The Congo.

Liberals, PCs Nominate Candidates

WINGHAM, Ont. (CP)—Liberal Murray Court, 39, and Progressive Conservative George McCutcheon, 39, were nominated Thursday for the Oct. 8 provincial byelection in Huron-Bruce riding.

The byelection was called by Premier Roberts last month to fill the legislature vacancy created by the death of John W. Murray, 72, who held the riding for the Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. McCutcheon is reeve of Brussels and is warden of Huron County. He operates a grain mill in Brussels.

Mr. Court, who lives in Wingham, is a district farm director of radio station CKNX in the community 65 miles north of London.

Picket Stores Carrying Deacon Bros. Ltd. Products

Stan Clair, Ontario Union Label Director of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, began what he calls a "Consumer education program," in Belleville yesterday. The program involved picketts outside clothing stores carrying Deacon Brothers Ltd. products. The picketts carried by the picketers state, in smaller letters, that the picketing is not directed against the merchants.

Mr. Clair claimed it was the first picket. He began in front of the Boys Area Clothing, on Front Street, soon after noon yesterday. Bill Shaw, owner of the store, told reporters he knew nothing of the program until Mr. Clair began picketing. Later, Mr. Clair moved over to Meagher's, on the other side of Front Street, and picketed with with different placard.

Mr. Clair, in an interview, said that he had previously warned all merchants carrying Deacon Brothers products that the products would be carried on. He added that he was not interested in asking people to boycott Deacon Brothers products, and he was not asking the merchants to join the picketts. There will be no effort to request possible customers to respect the picket lines.

Fred Deacon, president of Deacon Brothers Ltd., described the situation as "serious." He said it was a form of strike action. "We are not representing Deacon employees, when the picketing began. In order for a strike, He added that if the union, which was certified in U.S. Circuit Court, is attempting for Deacon Brothers employees, did represent the employees, it would be in a position to call a direct strike.

According to Mr. Deacon, although there is nothing Deacon Brothers Ltd. can do to prevent the picketing. Belleville police Chief Woodstock succeeded in obtaining a court injunction against a similar campaign. Deacon Brothers Limited will take legal action if the picketing extends to its property.

More picket lines will be set up, according to Mr. Clair, the first as local men can be recruited to man them. The union plans to have one man at each clothing store in Belleville that carries Deacon Brothers products. Belleville police, according to one police department official, will not interfere if the picketing is peaceful and there is no obstruction of traffic.

SPRING FROM IGNORANCE

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Emile Cardinal Leger said Thursday night all criticisms of the Roman Catholic faith spring from ignorance, and he blames Catholics to treat critics with charity. The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Montreal made the statement in presenting his prizes for religious education to Grade 7 students in Montreal diocese.

Indian Troops Open Fire on Chinese Force

PEKING (Reuters) — Indian troops opened fire on Chinese Communist border guards Thursday night, the New China news agency reported here today.

The agency said one Chinese officer was killed and a Chinese soldier wounded in the attack, in which the Indians fired more than 60 rounds and threw seven hand grenades.

It said the Indians still were firing when the urgent report was sent from "the Chinese frontier guards in the Tibet region of China."

The agency said the Indian troops, which had "intruded" into the Chedong area on the Tibet-Bhutan border, "north of the so-called McMahon Line," opened fire at Chinese sentinels at the western end of the Chejao Pass.

It added that the Indians opened fire on four occasions between midnight Thursday night and 7 a.m. today.

PROPOSES MEETING

The report of the shooting incident came as China again proposed to Indian that officials begin negotiations within a set month "without preconditions" on their long - standing border dispute.

In a note released here the Chinese government also repeated a 1959 proposal that forces on both sides of the line withdraw about 12 miles along the entire frontier.

The note, dated Sept. 13 and replying to an Indian note of Aug. 22, said this would "not in any immediately ease border tensions but also in a way stabilize the border situation pending a peaceful settlement through negotiations."

Apple Export Board Formed

MONTREAL (CP) — An export control board has been formed by Quebec apple growers, it was announced today.

The new body, known as the Quebec Apple Growers Board, has been licensed by the federal government.

Its five members will lay down the rules for packing of apples for export, set standards of quality, and decide the method of presentation for sign buyers.

Last year, said the board, Quebec exported 200,000 barrels of apples, its biggest export crop in history.

The board chairman is Fernand Dufour of Ste. Martine.

School Heads To Face Court As Negro Barred

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP)—The University of Mississippi desegregation crisis shifts to this city of 50,000 today as a federal judge holds a show cause hearing for three top officials of the state institution.

The U.S. Justice department, moving swiftly after Governor Ross Barnett personally refused Thursday to admit Negro James H. Meredith to the university, bypassed Barnett and asked U.S. District Judge Sidney C. Mize to seize the school's top leaders for contempt.

Barnett, acting on authority granted him at the last minute by the state college board, personally acted as registrar.

The federal courts had ordered Meredith's enrolment.

Meredith's plans were not disclosed. A justice department spokesman said he may not register for several days.

Ordered to appear before Judge Sidney Mize were:

Chancellor J. D. Williams, 61, Dean Arthur B. Lewis, and Registrar Robert B. Ellis, about 40. Lewis declined comment. Williams and Ellis could not be reached.

In Washington, a justice department information officer, Edwin O. Guthman, said government attorneys would ask for a similar contempt citation from the federal judge of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals who are hearing another civil rights case at nearby Hattiesburg.

Soviet Union Launches Drive Against Religion

MOSCOW (AP) — An intensified drive against religion has been launched in the Soviet Union.

A high point was reached Wednesday when Pope John XXIII, in order by the Russian Council of Trade Unions demanding trade fairs, exchange ite meetings, television programs and theatrical pieces, to "cease attempts to go into people's homes to drive out belief in God.

The Soviet labor unions long have had the major share of the job of fighting belief in God but in recent months they have been obliged to report that certain religious bodies are increasing in membership.

For instance, the Baptist Church, with perhaps a half million followers, has reported a steady increase in membership, including many young people.

United Church Assembly Ends With Rush Treatment Of Various Resolutions

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The 30th general council of the United Church of Canada has closed with a last-minute rush of resolutions and abrupt treatment for other proposals that threatened to drag debate into another day.

The biennial governing assembly wound up Friday after nine days of hard discussion and heavy decisions.

Delegates accepted a comprehensive statement on defence and disarmament, passed an amended resolution on the Christian attitude to communism and shelved two reports that offered opposing answers to the question whether women's place is in the home or the work-a-day world.

The disarmament compromise, hailed by some as a blend of an anti-bomb group and the nuclear deterrent advocates, Neither side really satisfied.

While the resolution branded war as sinful and said accumulation of megaton weapons imperils peace, it recommended the Canadian government for its efforts for peace and declared that disarmament must come "step by step in concert with other nations and not unilaterally."

The council balked at a proposed resolution describing communism as "more of a Christian heresy than a pagan philosophy."

The resolution also recognized "the need of both the so-called free world and the Communist world to repent of their share of error and sin that puts mankind in fear of war and possible annihilation."

The statement said the West "greatly modifie its pagan political attitudes" and cease ascribing all its "ethics to the injunctions of the state of Communists."

Delegates who expressed shock at the sentiments agreed to swallow the pill when it was coated with the assurance changing the first part to read "Communism, which has been described as both a Christian heresy and a pagan philosophy."

Council agreed also that government plans for fallout shelters leave an "erroneous impression" of security—and, in any case, public funds should finance the program.

ON CANADIAN URANIUM

The church reaffirmed its opposition to bomb testing for war purposes, but struck out a resolution calling on council to "discourage" the shipment of Canadian uranium for use in nuclear weapons.

Separate reports on working wives and married women ministers — both brought back to council from previously adjourned debates — were turned over to council's permanent executive where differences erupted once more into time-consuming discussion.

One report proposed a rule that only women free of responsibilities in the home could become ordained and serve as full-time ministers.

The other urged upon the church a sympathetic attitude toward working wives and mothers and called for practical measures to help them out.

CALLS IT UNFAIR

London housewife Elizabeth Bleman, chairman of the committee that studied the working-wives situation for a year, said later she felt the statement accorded her report was "very unfair."

The government was urged also to enforce provisions in the Criminal Code regulating publication and distribution of obscene matter. This resolution came to report from a study committee that had asked for a national film board of review.

Church departments were commissioned to study the moral issues involved in smoking, with special reference to medical information linking heavy cigarette smoking to lung cancer and also to the effect on youth of "excessive and often exaggerated advertising" by the cigarette industry.

Council approved the promotion of 12 principles to be used as a guide to Sunday observance, with emphasis on spiritual and physical recreation as a family.

Real Motive for Britain To Join ECM Political

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

After 10 days of fretful, introspective debate, largely negative in character, the lingering arguments of Commons debate may take on a more positive tone.

Armed with a guarded go-ahead for continuing the Diefenbaker negotiations, Britain's entry into the European Common Market may be given a more positive hearing.

Some will be prepared to speak more freely about what they feel are the political implications of Europe, would certainly bring Commonwealth relations to an almost total political isolation in this country.

The determination of the political majority in Germany to have the United Kingdom join is a fact."

Trying to Put Safety on Gun When It Fired

MAPLE, Ont. (CP)—A coroner's jury decided Thursday Charles Christian, 51, told the truth when he said he put the safety catch on Huntley's revolver Aug. 24 when it went discharged and killed the child.

Christian, a neighbor of the Huntleys, was the last to testify when the revolver from the constable when it fired.

Christian and Huntley and Christian had drunk coffee following a golf tournament all beer between 8 a.m. and noon the day of the shooting.

Christian said he was trying to remove bullets from his revolver when his thumb hit the hammer and the gun discharged.

He said the second shot came after Christian had taken the gun away from him.

"The only thing I don't know is how the second shot was fired," he said.

DUCKS AWAY!

Open season on the winged bastardians of the wild duck brigades starts tomorrow morning and the crack o' dawn likely will be aftermashed with barrages of gunfire.

The bag and possession limits for ducks are five and ten, exclusive of merganser ducks for which there is no limits.

The daily bag limit for wood duck has been raised to two and the possession limit was upped from two to four by a recent announcement of the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources.

The bag and possession limits for geese are five and ten and the same limits apply to hails, coots and gallinules. The bag and possession limits for snipi and woodcock are unchanged at eight and 16.

Upland game hunters start their seasons tomorrow also, with grouse, partridge and squirrels being their game. For ruffed grouse the bag limit is five per day, 15 in possession. Hungarian partridge, eight per day, 16 in possession; for squirrel 10 per day and 20 in possession.

Pheasants have a longer lease on life. The season opens on October 6th through October 27th (8 a.m. to 5 p.m.) The bag limit is three per day regardless of sex.

But let's go easy on the redheads, eh? Ducks, that is.

An extremely important change in the Migratory Birds Act this year is the complete protection given canvasbacks and redhead ducks. These two species have become seriously depleted due to unfavorable conditions on their breeding grounds.

Every sportsman can help restore these important game birds species to past status of abundance if they learn to recognize them and do not shoot any.

The Canadian Wildlife Service and the Department of Lands and Forests have asked all sportsmen while enjoying their sojourns in duck hides this season to let the ducks come in real close for positive identification so that the canvasback and redhead may be spared.

In the redhead family the drake has a red head, bluish bill with a white ring and a black and grey body. The hen has a brown head, bluish bill with white ring and brown body. This species is a diving duck and procures most of its food in that manner. It often shares its feeding grounds with the baldpates, coots and gadwell ducks.

The male canvasback has a red head, black bill and a black and white body, while the female has a brown head, black bill with a brown breast and plain brown body. This specie feeds mostly on pond weeds, wild celery, wild rice, duck potato, etc.

Ducks fly faster and take more killing because they are better protected by feathers than upland game. The downfall of the canvasback and redhead might in part be caused by their own actions. The former will often cross decoys without slackening, then circle wide and come back at a much slower speed and that is where the hunter takes his count.

Redheads have a tendency to bunch over decoys and that is where they get a real shellacking. This species is a grand duck but a little light on brains and sometimes the remnant of a flock will return over a hide several times before it realizes it is being 'taken' to dinner.

And if you cannot identify a canvasback by his color, you might tab him by his speed. For this redhead is the Man 'O War of the duck speedsters. He can fly through the air with the greatest of ease at a speed of 72 miles per hour. A goose and a mallard with the accelerator down to the floor can travel sixty m.p.h.

And while on this duck subject George Whitman tells me the best stuffing for a wild duck is an orange, an apple and an onion, quartered. That's all, nothing else. He says it has the bread, sage and onion brand beaten seven ways to Sunday.

Australians Pray For Saturday Wind

Yankees Go One Up

NEWPORT, R.I. (CP)—Jack Sturrock and his Gretel crew are praying for wind Saturday. But just in case, today they're reviewing their light-air sailing techniques.

The Australians and their gleaming white sloop Gretel were soundly beaten Thursday by the U.S. defender Weatherly in the third race of the best-of-seven series for the America's Cup.

That made it two races to one for the home side, and the Australians realized their backs were against the wall. Now they need wind—lots of it.

As Gretel's official spokesman, Doug Fairfax, put it after Thursday's race,

"We did all right, but we had no breeze . . . we have no excuses . . . better boat won."

The wind dropped to about three knots at one time and never went above 10 knots during the 24-mile race over four sticmile legs on a windward-leeward course.

To make things even worse for Gretel, which does her best in strong winds and choppy seas, the Australian sloop was trapped in a windless weather pocket for much of the second leg while Weatherly built up a 3-minute lead.

And that decided the race. Weatherly rounded the halfway mark as far ahead that some of the spectator fleet did not bother completing the course but tailed home.

They missed a stout-hearted comeback by Gretel on the third windward leg which cut into Weatherly's big lead. But the Australians saved themselves from a record defeat by catching a useful wind on the spinnaker run home.

Weatherly's winning margin was eight minutes, 40 seconds—about a mile. After the race the Australian challengers exercised their perogative not to race today.

Saturday's fourth race will be over the same triangular course on which Gretel scored the only Australian victory of the series, narrowly beating Weatherly in heavy winds Tuesday.

The Americans will take today off, but the Australians will be out on the water working to learn still more about the Gretel, built in Sydney to challenge for the cup that represents world supremacy in yachting and has never been lost by the U.S. in its 111 years that men have sailed in pursuit of it.

PLEASED WITH CREW

Sun Mosbacher, the helmsman of Weatherly, admitted he licked his nautical chops just before the race.

"We hadn't dared to hope that the winds would be that light," he said. "We had expected Weatherly to go best under these conditions."

Mosbacher was also pleased that his crew matched the Australians in various sailing manoeuvres Thursday. There had been talk here that the lumbier Australians, who are strong for calisthenics and other muscular pursuits, had the submarine fleet might make the difference in a four-knot-or-less tough yacht race.

"I think we're out of the bad tricks out of our system Tuesday," Mosbacher said.

However, it was still felt here that Gretel's crew would have a physical edge in the heavier winds, and heavier seas.

Fairfax defended the use by Gretel of the same mainsail she used in Tuesday's 47-second victory sailed in winds of 18 to 20 knots.

"I don't think anybody expects us to catch a light breeze . . . I know we didn't," the Gretel spokesman said.

"And we did not think we had the wrong mainsail on Gretel."

Ottawa Club Happy

Sowalski Joins Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Better late than ever Ottawa Rough Riders said happily Thursday as veteran Canadian end Bill Sowalski came out of a 10-week retirement for his ninth season with Riders.

Sowalski, 31, rejoins the club in time for its Canadian Football League encounter with Calgary Stampedese here tonight.

Riders hold down second place in the Eastern Football Conference and Stamps occupy the same spot in the Western Conference.

Sowalski decided to quit Riders when the season began because of a foot injury. He said Thursday that with a special cleat he's fit again. He will play offensive end with his old running mate, Bob Simpson.

Import end Jim Reynolds, in his third season with Ottawa, was put on waivers. He said that if he isn't picked up by another Canadian team within 72 hours he will try to catch on a berth with an American Football League team.

NOT UP TO PAR

Head coach Frank Clair said Reynolds was cut because he wasn't up to par as a blocker and his catching wasn't any great shakes either.

Riders have been drilling hard at blocking all week after their Sunday loss to Toronto Argonauts during which Toronto rushers harassed Ottawa quarterbacks Russ Jackson and Ron Lancaster.

Former Calgary linemen Hal Beaty will see action against his old mates at offensive guard replacing Marv Veban.

Halback Doug Daigneault, injured in an exhibition game, may make his first start of the regular season. He may replace Canadian rookie defensive halfback Whit Tucker who was at first last years after suffering from hepatitis. Doctors now have cleared his ailment as minor.

NAMED HEAD COACH

TORONTO (CP)—Joe Kane has been appointed head coach of the University of Toronto hockey Blues. It was announced Thursday. He succeeds Jack Kennedy, who left varsity after a championship season to take over as athletic director at Loyola College in Montreal. Kane, a practising lawyer led the Blues to the senior championship in the 1960-61 season when he was a defence man.

Idle Yankees Gain Ground

Twins Blow Big One To Tigers

By JIM HACKLEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Memo to Minnesota Twins: When you're in a pennant fight with New York Yankees, don't give anything away. They don't.

For the second time in three games, the Twins blew one to Detroit Tigers Thursday, giving up three unearned runs in the first inning and taking a 5-1 setback.

The Twins, surprise challengers to the Yankees in the American League race this season, now are 4½ games back in second place. Any New York victories and-or Twin defeats adding up to two make the personal champion Yankees champions again.

The Yankees, off Thursday, have eight games remaining in the schedule. They open a three game set against the White Sox at Chicago tonight, then finish up at home with two against Washington Senators and three against Chicago.

The Twins have seven left, three at Baltimore starting tonight, one at Cleveland against the Indians and three at home against Baltimore Orioles.

Minnesota handed Detroit two unearned runs Tuesday and the Tigers hung on for a 5-1 victory. Vic Power committed a damaging first-inning error Thursday. The miscue, plus key hits by Al Kaline and Norm Cash and the 'Twins' failure to crack through on their own opportunities, doomed Minnesota.

POWER KEEPS

Pedro Ramos pitched a five-hitter as Cleveland beat Kansas City Athletics 5-2 and Chicago defeated Boston Red Sox 6-4 with two runs in the eighth inning.

Power, the Twins' quick-handed and fancy-footed first baseman, erred on Rocky Colavito's grounder in the first inning after a walk and Kaline's infield single. That loaded the bases against lefthander Jim Kaat and the Tigers capitalized on the situation. Frank Kostro and Rocky Colavito also hit sacrifice fly and Cash knocked in two more with a single.

Kaline hit a personal one-season high with his 28th homer in the fifth frame following Bill Rigney's two-out double. Minnesota had a rash of chances against Detroit righthanders Phil Regan and Terry Fox but couldn't get the vital hits. Zoilo Versalles' fourth of the year produced the lone Twin run.

The Indians pasted Kansas City's no - walk - pitcher, Bill Fischer, for nine of their hits and all five of their runs in the first five innings. The righthander extended his major league record of consecutive innings without a base on balls to 70, but also suffered his sixth straight loss.

John Romseno gave Ramos big support, driving in three Cleveland runs with a homer and two sacrifice flies.

Jim Landis' sacrifice fly in the eighth inning broke a 4-4 tie between the White Sox and the Red Sox. Chicago picked up a cushion when another run scored on Eddie Brinkman's error. Turk Lown was the winning pitcher and Arnold Earley the loser, both in relief.

Firemen Tie Utilities 4-4

The Fire Department battled to a 4-4 deadlock with Belleville Utilities in the second game of the City Interdepartmental softball league finals last night.

Utilities lead the best-of-five series one game to none with one tie. The next game will be played either Monday or Tuesday night, at the CNRA Park at six o'clock, depending on the availability of night's Commercial league game.

Trudeau Motors and Lightfoot Construction are battling it out in the consolation finals. Lightfoots lead the best three games to one and can wrap it up with a victory tonight. However a Trudeau win would force another game on Monday night.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting: Al Kaline, Detroit Tigers, hit his 28th home run of the American League season and collected two singles in leading Detroit to a 5-1 victory over Minnesota Twins.

Pitching: Dennis Bennett, Philadelphia Phillies, checked Chicago Cubs on five hits, struck out six in a 4-1 National League victory.

Defeat Suns 6-2

Crackers Square Series

ATLANTA, Ga. (CP)—Atlanta Crackers tied their best - of - seven International Baseball League finals with Jacksonville Suns at two games apiece Thursday night with a 6-2 victory behind the seven-hit pitching of Johnny Kucks, a former New York Yankee.

The win gave Kucks a 14-7 record for the season. Art Cecarelli, who was charged with the loss, has won only one game in six against the Crackers this season.

The teams meet here again tonight, then travel to Jacksonville, Fla., for a game Saturday and one Sunday if it's needed.

The winner of the series will enter the Little World Series against Louisville Colonels, who won the American Association championship Thursday night by shutting out Denver 1-0. They won the best-of-seven final series 4-2.

Balk Helps Cardinals Whip Giants

By MIKE RATSEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Flop!

That was the sound a dismayed Dick Lemay heard in the ninth inning Thursday night when he committed a balk that helped St. Louis Cardinals whip his San Francisco teammates 5-4 and drop the second-place Giants four games behind Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League pennant race.

Lemay, who came on in relief for the Giants in the eighth, was touched for consecutive singles by Curt Flood and Stan Musial leading off the ninth, putting runners on first and third with Ith Giants clutching a 4-3 lead.

Then came the turning point. Bill White dug in at the plate and Lemay went into his windup. The ball slipped from his grasp, dropping at his feet while the umpires ruled it a balk. Flood trotted home with the tying run and pinch-runner Mike Shannon moved to second base with the potential game-winner.

Doy Larsen replaced Lemay on the mound and, with first base open, intentionally walked White. Ken Boyer ruined the strategy with a single that sent Shannon home with the clincher.

The defeat cost the Giants, who have lost seven of their last eight games, an opportunity to gain ground.

Any combination of six Los Angeles victories and-or San Francisco defeats will give the Dodgers their first pennant since 1959. The Dodgers have nine games remaining.

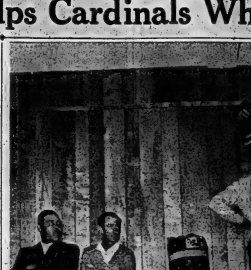
Cincinnati's defending champions moved closer to elimination when Pittsburgh Pirates used six and a two-run double by rookie Bob Bailey to beat the Reds 4-3 with three runs in the ninth inning. Cincinnati is six games back of the Dodgers with seven to play.

The Dodgers get back into action tonight at St. Louis, where Los Angeles shortstop Maury Wills makes his final attempt to better Ty Cobb's 96-stolen base record within the 154-game limit. Wills needs three steals to break the mark established by Cobb in 1915.

Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs split a doubleheader, the Phillies winning 3-1 before the Cubs took the nightcap 9-1. Houston Colts defeated New York Mets 7-2 and 5-4 in 12 innings. The Mets tied a league record with 315 losses.

Boyer, who turned out to be the hero when he drove in the winning run against the Giants, almost was the goat. His wild throw on Orlando Cepeda's first sacrifice bunt in two years in two runs score as the Giants snapped a 1-1 tie with three runs in the sixth inning.

The Cards got two back against Jack Sanford in the seventh, then won in the ninth when Lemay (0-1) made his muff. Bob Duliba (3-0) was the winner.



Bob Purkey, tying to nail his 22rd victory of the season for the Reds, held a 3-1 lead going into the ninth, but was chased when Dick Groat singled and Bob Skinner walked to start things for the Pirates.

Bill Henry took over, struck out the next two batters and got Dona Clendenon to ground to third base. But Eddie Kasko let the ball get by him as a run scored and Bailey followed with his two-run double. Henry (4-2) took the loss. Rookie Bob Priddy (1-0) won.

Rookie Dennis Bennett (8-9) won the opener for the Phillies with a five-hitter while his teammates snapped a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning by tagging Bob Bell (11-13) for two runs. Johnny Callison's double, Wes Covington's single and a two-base error by Ken Hubbs did the damage.

In the nightcap, Ernie Banks scored the first Chicago run and accounted for two others with his 36th homer of the year. The victory went to Cal Koonce (10-9). Jack Hamilton (8-12) lost.

Winning pitcher Jim Golden (7-11) drove in three runs with a double and single as the Colts scored six unearned runs in the first game. Hal Smith provided the Colts with the second-game triumph, hitting a three-run homer in the seventh and driving in the clincher in the 12th with a single. Frank Thomas hit two homers for the Mets. The winner was Russ Kemmerer (5-3). Ray Daviault (1-5) of Montreal was the loser.

Reaches Climax Today

Battle Of The Gloves

CHICAGO (AP)—The battle of the gloves — a vehement shouting exchange between aides of heavyweight boxing champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston—reaches a climax today.

It will be decided if Liston will use a make, Everlast, ordered by promoter Al Bolan or a set specially built by Sammy Frager of Chicago.

The decision, which could not be reached during a volley of verbal shots by both sides at a meeting of the Illinois state athletic commission Monday, will come at Liston's training camp.

Commission chairman Joe Triner and his staff will be transported the 40-mile distance in limousines with 10 pairs of Bolan-ordered eight-ounce gloves to try to fit Liston's ham-sized fist.

Two sets of this make were tried on by Sonny Monday. He grunted: "They don't fit my thumbs."

Cus D'Amato, Patterson's associate, shouted: "We'll get Everlast to make some new ones to take care of the challenger's abnormality of thumbs."

Jack Nilson, Liston's adviser, retorted: "We already have Frager gloves that fit. Why don't you, D'Amato use this make?"

It all ended without either giving an inch and with violent protests at Triner's suggestion that the gloves were Frager gloves and Patterson Everlast.

The title scrap is here Tuesday night and nobody yet knows what gloves will be used. Bare - knuckle fighting has been barred by state law for years.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Old pro Bert Olmstead, credited by many as being the heart that finally pumped enough desire into Toronto Maple Leafs to win a Stanley Cup last season, is going out with a whimper.

Olmstead, drafted by New York Rangers when left off Toronto's unprotected list, said Thursday he will not join the Blueshirts. He made the announcement in Vancouver to Muzz Patrick, general manager-coach of the National Hockey League Rangers.

Apparently it was the thing which Olmstead tried to instil into the Leafs that prompted his decision to bang up his skates-pride.

"He simply didn't think he could help us," Patrick said at Vancouver, where the Rangers are holding their training camp.

"His decision had nothing to do with money. We had offered him a salary better than anything he had ever received before."

The 36-year-old left winger was in the stands Thursday as the Rangers edged Vancouver Canucks of the Western League 1-0 in an exhibition game.

MUZZ PAYS TRIBUTE

Patrick paid tribute to Olmstead, who spent 14 seasons in the NHL — with Chicago Black Hawks, Montreal Canadiens and Toronto.

"He came here from Sceptre, Sask., so he could give me his decision in person," said Patrick.

Olmstead, a farmer at Scepter, wouldn't change his mind about quitting despite several hours of talk with Patrick and assistant coach Emile Francis.

Speaking to a reporter later, Olmstead said: "Sure, Patrick wants me to fire up the Rangers, but that's a lousy idea. If I was capable of doing it I would but I can't. I can still play in spots for a contending team, but I can't carry a poor club anymore."

Olmstead thus winds up a career that saw him earn 602 points, exclusive of playoffs. The total includes 181 goals and 421 assists.

The Hawks said they have signed all but four of last year's team. General manager Tommy Ivan declined to say at the Hawks' training camp in St. Catharines, Ont., which four are balking.

IVAN ISN'T WORRIED

Ivan, however, didn't seem worried. "We're only a few dollars apart and should have everyone under contract within the next couple of days."

Detroit Red Wings also made yards in contract negotiations as three players agreed to terms, raising the total number signed to 18. Those joining the fold Thursday were Ed Joyal, Alex Faulkner of Bishop's Falls, Nfld., and Howie Young, the controversial defenceman who has come in for criticism in the past because of unnecessary penalties.

Joyal, 22, a defenceman, spent the last two years with Edmonton Flyers of the WHL. Faulkner, 26, a centre drafted from Toronto, was the top scorer last season with Rochester Americans, Leafs farm club in the American League.

At Ottawa, meanwhile, left winger Frank Mahovlich who still hasn't signed a contract, assisted on three goals as Ed Leafs walloped Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, champions of Eastern Professional League last season, 8-1 before some 4,000 fans. Leafs scored only three period markers while holding the Canadiens scoreless.

Rookie Bruce Draper scored three goals for the Leafs. Signings sent to Ron Stewart, Ed Litzenberger, Red Kelly, Dick Duff and Bob Armstrong. Brian Smith scored for the Canadiens.

Westerns Figure Way to Get Rid of Guns and Villains

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — A remarkable thing has happened to the television western. They have finally figured out a way to keep the viewer but get rid of the guns and villains.

NBC's new Wide Country, which had its premiere Thursday night, has been fashioned carefully to avoid all those danger areas that caused such loud criticisms about violence.

Thus, we had a saga about professional riders who follow the rodeo circuit. Superimposed on this basic background Thursday night was a story of a married rider suffering from a brain tumor gamely trying to make a quick dollar for his family while he still had a little time.

Unfortunately, this sad tale didn't come off convincingly.

While a number of new shows have been making their preliminary bows to the audience—and it's always more difficult to say a cordial hello to strangers than bid farewell to an old friend—some old acquaintances have been returning after a summer's holiday.

Naked City, ABC's police-action show, came back with a vital script and a splendid performance by guest-star Burgess Meredith which ought to be remembered months hence when Emmy time comes around. Meredith played with delightful invention, an alcoholic Greenwich Village poet in an imaginative script which was in the quality class of The Defenders.

Colt Wins Famous Brown Jug

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP)—Lehigh Hanover, a $60,000 gamble as a yearling, has proved to be a profitable purchase.

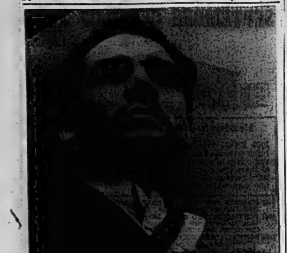
The bay colt, under the masterful handling of Stanley Dancer, broke the favourite Meadow Skipper twice Thursday to capture the 11th annual $75,000 Little Brown Jug before the richest group of three-year-old pacers in the event's history.

Lehigh Hanover came from far back with two great stretch drives to nose out Skipper, favored Coffee Break in the split-division classic, third jewel in the triple crown of the Delaware pacing.

In the opening heat, Lehigh Hanover was third going into the stretch, and won by a length and a quarter in 1:59 1-5, a fifth of a second off the Jug record of 1:58 3-5 set in 1960 by Muncy Hanover.

In the runoff heat, after Gamecock had captured the second elimination, Lehigh Hanover romped to a neck win over Coffee Break.

LEADS FOR TIME



Coffee Break led all the way in the third heat but couldn't hold off the driving finish of Lehigh Hanover. The latter also picked up $27,894.34 for his conquest as Dancer repeated his 1961 victory with Henry P. Adios to take back - to - back Jugs.

Coffee Break won $11,285.82, Gamecock, $4,30.25. Buy Hanover $7,870.07, Meadow Skipper $6,753.46 and Thor Hanover and Smart Money $2,295.16 each. Hanglider, Hanover, driven by Joe Wilson, a native of Atherton, P.E.I., and Meadow Newport each won $1,125.80.

Ranger Hanover won the first leg of the triple crown by taking the Prince Edward and Thor Hanover captured the other two in the Messenger Stakes.

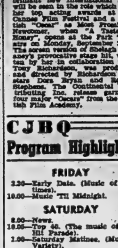
Thinks Of Bases He Didn't Steal

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Maury Wills of Los Angeles Dodgers says all he can think about "are the 20 or so bases I could have stolen early in the season."

Will must steal 3 bases in tonight's National League game between the Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals to break Ty Cobb's modern day record of 96 stolen bases, in a 154-game schedule.

"If I had tried real hard at the beginning of the season I could have more than 100 stolen bases now," Wills said Thursday. "I know of at least 20 bases I could have had. That's all I can think about—the bases I could have had."

Stamps Suspend Fred Hucul



CALGARY (CP) —All-star defenceman Fred Hucul was officially suspended Thursday from Calgary Stampeders of the Western Hockey League.

He did not report to training camp by 2 a.m., a deadline set last night by coach Jeff Price. There was no word from Hucul of his plans.

He had demanded a three-year contract before he would step on the ice. Earlier this week announced he wanted to retire from professional hockey and possibly take a coaching job with Red Deer Rustlers of the Central Alberta Hockey League.

"We've discussed contract but we're miles apart," Hucul said earlier Thursday. "Price told me the Stampeders can't possibly pay my asking price.

'Well Done, Chaps'!

Aussies Yacht-Wacky

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Almost overnight, it seems, Australia's 10,500,000 people have become yachting bugs.

After Australian challenger Gretel defeated U.S. defender Weatherly in Tuesday's second heat of the America's Cup races off Newport, R.I., some newspapers ran headlines two inches high.

At her home in the seaside suburb of Elwood, Mrs. Van Sturrock, wife of Gretel's skipper, Jock Sturrock, got so many contragulatory telephone calls she was forced to go out for the afternoon to give her ears a rest.

Hundreds of "well done, chaps" cables were sent to Sturrock and his crew, including one from Australia's cabinet and Melbourne's Lord Mayor Maurice Nathan.

Schoolboys who once thought "jib" was short for Gibraltar now are talking learnedly about racing tactics, and housewives to whom a "tack" was something to nail down a carpet have found in Gretel a new subject for back-fence gossip.

There's even a new term for the sleepy, red-eyed look office workers and factory employees are wearing these days.

It's called "cup hangover" and it comes from lying awake all night listening to static-marred radio commentaries of the races.

The races begin about 2:10 a.m., Melbourne time, and end around dawn.

The interest in the Americas Cup series is equalling that of any previous sporting event in the country's history.

This includes the biennial battle for cricket supremacy between Australia and Great Britain and the annual Melbourne Cup horse race-event which wipe all other news off the front page, much as baseball's World Series does in North America.

In a country where 90 per-cent of the 10,500,000 inhabitants live within 25 miles of the sea, such an interest in boating is natural.

But now yachting no longer is thought to be only a rich man's sport. As a result of Gretel's strong challenge, sporting goods stores and boat dealers are anticipating a surge of new buyiges.

Cleroux Defeats Indian

GRANBY, Que. (CP)—Bob Cleroux of Montreal, blacklisted by the World Boxing Association, Thursday night knocked out Jim Cherokee of Wilmington, Del., at 2:36 of the fourth round of the 10-round non-title bout in this community 45 miles east of Montreal.

Cherokee, an Indian - Negro unknown before the match, surprised the 2,000 fight fans and Cleroux when he turned on a savage attack giving him the first round.

Cleroux knocked down his opponent in the second and third round but each time Cherokee got up before the final count.

Cherokee, described as wild and dangerous, went down three times in the fourth round before being knocked out by a solid right to the head.

Al Bachman of New York City, Cleroux' co-manager, said he has plans for three fights for Cleroux in smaller Quebec province centres where they are no boxing authorities affiliated with the WBA.

Cleroux was placed under indefinite suspension by the WBA after skipping out on a return bout with Toronto's George Chuvalo whom he stripped of the Canadian heavyweight title.

Patton US Amateur Favorite

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Billy Joe Patton, helped by three key putts and an unbelievable recovery shot, whipped two more opponents Thursday to move into the semi-finals of the U.S. Amateur golf championship at Pinehurst.

The runner-up with rounds of 72-71 for 143 was Mrs. George B. Maughan of Montreal.

Mrs. A. B. Darling, Hudson Heights, Que., was third with 184.

The 1961 champion, Mrs. J. S. Sibler, Simcoe, Ont., was fourth with 185.

Patton, 40, never anything but a spectator beyond the fourth three of any of the previous dozen national amateurs he played in, will meet the 20-year-old Harris, while Coody will play Grey in today's 36-hole semi-final at the 7,003-yard, par 36-36-72 No. 2 course of the Pinehurst Country Club.

And after what happened Thursday, few will expect anyone but Billy Joe to be grasping for championship trophy when the tournament ends Saturday afternoon. A lumberman from Morganton, N.C., Patton gave par a real battering for the first time this week.

Jet Named Rookie of The Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Bailey, Columbus Jet third baseman finishing the season with Pittsburgh Pirates, was named Rookie-of-the-Year of the International Baseball League Thursday.
The selection, made by the league's writers, was announced through the league offices here by Shelley Rohr of the Richmond Times-Dispatch, president of the writers.
Bailey, who will be 20 on Oct. 13, received a bonus of $175,000 from the Pirates last season after graduating from high school in his hometown of Long Beach, Calif. He led the International League in runs batted in with 106. He batted .281 with 26 home runs and drew 11 of the 34 votes for the honor.
Second and third places went to a pair of Cleveland Indian prospects, Vic Davalillo, outfielder, and Tony Martinez, shortstop. Both played the season with Jacksonville, champion of the loop pennant.
Pete Ward, Rochester third baseman, was fourth.

JOINS ARGOS

TORONTO (CP)—Tackle Jim Beaver Thursday became the latest Big Ten football star to join Toronto Argonauts as part of a mid-season change by the Eastern Football Conference cellar dwellers.
Beaver, six-foot-two and 250 pounds, was first courted by Argos while he was at University of Florida, but he signed with Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League as a college junior in 1960. Eagles dropped him Monday.

PROTECTION

deny it because "I have lots of friends."

Feeley was asked whether he had ever had friends who used influence to protect illegal activities.

"I never asked my man in my life to do a thing like that," he replied.

AGREES WITH TESTIMONY

Feeley agreed with Lloyd's earlier testimony that he had told the Chatham man that Shrubb "had it in 'for him."

The gambler added he also had told Lloyd he felt he was being "harrassed unjustly" by the officer.

"Shrubb had told me he was out to get me and put me in jail," Feeley said.

He added that Lloyd may have suggested that he and Shrubb "get together to iron out our differences."

Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, the commissioner, said he was puzzled that Feeley should have gone to Lloyd.

He could not understand why a man of Feeley's "courage forthrightness" would go all the way to Chatham while Shrubb was in Toronto.

Feeley said he regarded Shrubb as "a very high-strung fellow" who was "very indignant" to him and he felt he could not talk to him directly at the time.

"I saw nothing wrong in trying to have someone talk some sense into him," he said.

"He was persecuting me and I felt there was something personal."

QUOTES EVIDENCE

Commission Counsel Wilson quoted from previous evidence in which Shrubb reported he had been told by Lloyd that Feeley wanted Lloyd to act as go-between to arrange a fix with Shrubb.

Feeley was quoted as saying "substantial sums of money would be available for Shrubb through Lloyd who also had said Feeley asked him to arrange a meeting with the officer.

"Do you still deny the fix allegation?" Mr. Wilson asked.

"Yes sir," Feeley said and he also denied "emphatically" the reference to substantial sums.

Feeley stated Thursday he never bought protection from a law officer or sold it to a lawbreaker.

The kingpin gambler admitted to the Ontario royal commission on crime that he got $ 6 out from various gambling operations but "only fetch-money."

"I have never given five cents, or any money, to a policeman or politician."

"Never did. Never have I received money for tipoffs of any kind," counsel Feeley, whose partnership with gambler Joseph McDermott has been portrayed before the committee as a combine which "ing porlection over much of Ontario."

The blocky gambling boss, who at the moment awaits the outcome of an appeal from a conviction and 15-month sentence for conspiring to obtain gambling raid information from police, denied a long series of allegations thrown at him from earlier commission evidence or from information in the hands of the commission.

COVER McDERMOTT

Generally, the denials also covered sidekick McDermott, who has yet to appear before the commission and who also is in jail awaiting the decision in the conspiracy appeal.

The 56-year-old Feeley, in his second day in the witness box, admitted a financial interest in four major gambling operations in the Toronto area, but firmly denied any connection with several others with which his name has been linked by police and other witnesses in earlier commission proceedings.

He declared there was no truth in two suggestions that he had employed feared Johnny The Enforcer Papalia — now facing a dope conspiracy charge in New York — to cool off bookmaker Emmett Saunders.

To explain how he happened to have $650 information coinciding with a document in the hands of the police—which has come to be something of a commission mystery — he said it was passed on to him by a highly knowledgeable card dealer who died suddenly last spring.

SPREAD BY PARTNER

The idea that Feeley got $500 a month for protection money and lawyer fees from a Toronto club headed by Dominic Simone, he explained, apparently had been spread by his own partner — Eddie Blair, now dead also.

It turned out, too, that a Bobby McLaughlin, now dead, had been quoted as getting a federal charter for the big Centre Road Club at nearby Cooksville, apparently supposed to be controlled by McDermott and Feeley. The witness denied such control but admitted he and his partner owned a "fluctuating" share of the enterprise.

Feeley denied specifically earlier evidence that he bought protection for his gaming house — perhaps the biggest craps-shooting emporium until it closed last year — and so told the commission that the best protection he knows is "a charter and a well-strong door."

Feeley disclaimed ownership, but on his and McDermott's behalf — of any part of four hotel but no-doubt-operations: The plush Roseland outside Windsor, the Frontier in Fort Erie, the Lakeside at the Old and New Ramsey Clubs in Niagara Falls, Ont.

However, he admitted he may have taken some part in financing the Roseland, a fact from federal to provincial elections in Windsor, Belleville, Fort Erie and Roseland operations a few years ago, although he was vague on what terms he was concerned with the other two.

'STANDARD ANSWER'

Commission counsel Roland F. Wilson at one point taxed him with giving a "standard answer. "I can't swear that I did and I can't swear that I didn't". It covered a considerable part of Feeley's examination.

Apart from the other clubs, Feeley denied outright any connection with the Parkdale Club of St. Catharines and the Tisdale Club of Peterborough. According to previous police evidence, he and McDermott had bankrolled the Tisdale for up to about $40,000 a night.

In addition to the Cooksville operation, Feeley said he and McDermott owned unspecified slices of two Toronto establishments of the Finnish Club, offshoot of a parent charter based in Timmins but now defunct and a varying percentage of Simone's newly-played River-dale Club here.

Commission counsel Wilson described Mr. Simone as the Cooksville projects as the biggest crap game with fixed bases — as opposed to floating games — in the area, although Feeley was dubious.

Feeley blamed a misunderstanding on the dead Blair's part for the fact that Simone—after the Riverdale was raided—and he did a fall term—tackled the witness for what Mr. Wilson said was between $4,000 and $7,000 in refunds for a fall-down in protection.

TOOK RAKEOFF

Feeley said that actually Blair and one Rakpe Clarke took a $15-e-night "pay" rakeoff for him when he was not present, in addition to a percentage of his money when he was employed.

He said he gave Simone some $1,500 as "loans" but did not expect repayment.

The commission counsel stated Simone had said — evidently he was not pressed with commission officials—that Blair had paid Feeley back about $50,000 off the Riverdale in 15 months before it folded in 1953, but Feeley said:

"I don't think I ever made that kind of money."

But he would not swear definitely yes or no. He also said he had no collection of Toronto lawyer Sol Gebirtig getting around $100 a month off the Riverdale, as Mr. Wilson had suggested.

It was the commission counsel also who suggested Feeley or McDermott had employed enforcer Papalia in Simone's case to "lay off" demanding a fund.

"I never did and I wouldn't think for a moment McDermott did," Feeley said.

DENIES BRIBES

Later, he denied ever hiring the Hamilton strong boy, and specifically in relation to a claim by Frank Curly Gardener, deadline operator at the Roseland Club, that Papalia had been on the trail when he came to Toronto last spring to testify in a secret session before the commission.

Feeley described Gardner as "a fairly good employee" and said he had once tried to raise $40,000 to $50,000 to buy and operate a big floating gambling ship tailor for the Detroit River.

Feeley's introduction of dead card dealer Sam Glinzie (Hirsch) — who kept an eye on a Feeley-McDermott casino operation in the Bahama before his death from a heart attack last March 31 — as the gambler was questioned about a so-called "belief" given the Ontario Provincial Police in 1958 detailing how to raid the Niagara Falls Ramsey Club, supposedly a rival operation of the combine's.

The commission has been unable to trace the source of the document — although it has been told McDermott had a hand in it — and Thursday Feeley said information in it came to him via Glinzie but from an unknown source.

He had tried out some of the information on Jack Shrubb of the OPP anti-gambling squad, now police chief of Peterborough, who had testified Feeley was trying to buy him. Feeley said he wanted to see if the OPP would use similar information on Glinzie's Club and had no interest in seeing the Ramsey folded.

NO EXPLANATION

Feeley did not have any explanation of why Glinzie had given him the information, now known to have been in the hands of the police, and it appeared the commission hit another dead end there.

"So many are dead now," said Mr. Justice Roach. "Glinzie, McLaughlin, F l n i g an."

Finnigan was co-operator of the Roseland Club. He died last week.

"Glinzie is dead but I had no control over his dying," Feeley said.

He took issue with earlier evidence that he had been warned by Feeley as saying in other telephone conversations that John Shrubb, head of the anti-gambling squad, had been "taking money from every gambler in Ontario" and that he was warned against "playing the field."

Actually, Feeley contended, Shrubb had told him this. He had never paid money to Shrubb, who told the commission that about $50,000 buried on his fathers' farm when he was fired from the force but had denied it was his money.

Feeley said Shrubb had told him that a Windsor gambler named Bacchus-Service had identified—told him Cronin was taking money from gamblers.

He added on his own that he knew of no OPP Const. George Scott or Niagara Falls was a "pal" of McDermott and Feeley and that an unidentified Niagara Falls gambler had given money to "take the pressure off."

He added, on his own, that he had no knowledge of any payoff to a magistrate in connection with a Niagara Falls gambling action. An unfounded report of a $4,000 payoff to a magistrate had been reported by an OPP constable at Feeleys' conspiracy trial.

"Did you ever pay any money to any magistrate or Crown official in Welland?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"Never in my life," the gambler replied.

Dealing with the information received from police, Feeley said was active at the time of the Niagara Falls area — "but not as big as Cooksville." He been passed on to him because Shrubb knew he was interested as a principal in the Cooksville club. It had been read to Shrubb in hope he would induce him to tell Feeley something.

Did he?", asked Mr. Wilson.

"I don't think so."

Glinzie did not tell him who had given the information to the OPP, but he was aware they had it.

SAME METHOD

His own interest in the brief was that, if he knew action led to a successful prosecution at Niagara Falls, the same technique might be applied to the Cooksville club.

The commission lawyer noted that Glinzie had named several American connected with the Ramsey club, and Feeley said they were named on a piece of paper he got from the dealer but they meant nothing to him.

"Do you tell us you were doing this tipping the OPP at the instance of Glinzie and did not know who he was working for?" Feeley was asked.

"I don't believe I said at the instance of Glinzie," he replied. "I was reading to Shrubb to see if he had received the so-called brief or not."

The commission counsel noted Const. Scott had testified that, after the old Ramsey folded and the new one opened in 1960, McDermott had told Scott he and Feeley had the lion's share of the new operation. Was this true?

"No sir," replied Feeley.

REFERS TO REMARK

Dealing with the Peterborough Tisdale Club, Mr. Wilson noted that lawyer Gebirtig had referred to McDermott and Feeley as the "moving spirits" behind it.

"I couldn't very well agree," Feeley said.

"You have used him quite a bit; why would he say that if it was untrue?"

"I don't know what he meant."

"Did you have any interest in the Tisdale club?"

"None whatever," he said.

Feeley was questioned briefly as to why telephone records showed calls between McDermott — Feeley — number and bookie Sam Rakson of St. Catharines, reputed distributor of protection for the pefr instance of Glinzie and did not know who he was working for?

"Possibly he was betting with McDermott or McDermott with him," Feeley guessed.

HOLD WITHOUT BAIL

LONDON (AP) — William J. C. Vassall, 36, who worked in the British naval attache's office in Moscow and later in the admiralty here, Thursday was ordered held without bail until Oct. 9 on a charge of violating the official secrets act. Vassall was charged last week with recording government secrets intended to help an unidentified enemy.

Rockefeller Nominated Without Fight

BUFFALO (AP) — Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller formally received the Republican nomination for re-election Wednesday night with a call for a "fair, vent and fighting campaign" against the Democratic ticket headed by political newcomer Robert M. Morgenthau.

Rockefeller, who made his own political debut in his successful campaign for governor four years ago, led a well-knit team into the new campaign. The nominations of Rockefeller, Senator Jacob K. Javits and others on the ticket were made by acclamation, and the two-day state convention, which ended Wednesday night, was unusually free of discord.

The Republican goal was another landslide victory that would give Rockefeller a chance to win the Republican presidential nomination in 1964.

In his acceptance speech, the governor described the Democratic party in New York state as "mortally divided against itself." He said that party had emerged from its state convention in Syracuse "bitterly struggling to discover its own true identity."

Proud and Independent Slovaks Form About Third Of Population in Country

Before the Second World War the Slovak region of Czechoslovakia was economically backward and many of its people left for North America. This story tells what the government is doing to develop the area.

By DAVID OANCIA

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia (CP)—The proud and independent Slovaks who form about one-third of this country's population of 14,000,000 like to talk of their connections with Canada.

Usually this takes the form of questions about the Canadian forests or mining and industrial centres such as Timmins, Windsor, Sudbury or Noranda.

During the three days I spent visiting this city on the Danube and the surrounding area I met scarcely a Slovak who hadn't some personal tie with North America. They talked of cousins in Winnipeg, sisters in Montreal or brothers and fathers who worked in the Canadian woods.

Those who left for Canada and later returned have contributed some colorful phrases to the Slavonic language. When a man works hard, for example, he works "like a Canadian lumberjack."

Temperamentally the Czechs and Slovaks who make up this nation are almost as different as are the English and Italians. The Czech is more reserved, calculating and dedicated to convention.

The Slovaks have a long tradition of Roman Catholicism. Their feeling of independence seems to come naturally from an uninhibited life in the hills and mountains. They are more open and more curious about any stranger who may happen to be in their midst.

Languages are virtually the same in the Czech and Slovak regions, but the Slovaks strive hard to preserve their linguistic heritage. Newspapers, schools and other institutions use Slovakian throughout.

Some view this as a concession by the central authorities in Prague to the feeling of Slovakian nationalism that has always been a characteristic of the region. The Slovaks still harbor the feeling that throughout history some outside or other has always taken advantage of them. By outsiders they meant Hungarians, Austrians, Germans and even Czechs.

The Communists now speak of Slovakia as the "land that expelled its children." Before the war, this region was backward. Farms were small and primitive. The economy just couldn't support everyone.

"Next to the Irish, we had the highest number of emigrants," said a senior Slovakian planner in an interview here.

"Before the war, every second young man left the region —usually for Canada, the United States or the Argentine."

The Communist planners concluded the only way to fight this situation—quite apart from sealing the frontier — was to bring industry to the area.

This they did with great determination. Where once there was one hydro-electric dam in the region there now are five. New ventures included steel mills and factories making goods including radio and television sets; telephones, machine tools, scooters and ball bearings.

Collective farms were developed and a rural electrification program spread power to every village. New apartments, schools and hospitals were built.

"Before the war we produced more priests than engineers in Czechoslovakia," the planner said. "That has changed."

ON TRADE ROUTE

The reorganization following the Communist take-over in 1948 was an important factor in working out development plans.

"Our geographical position helped us in Slovakia," the planner said. "We are on the route which most of our foreign trade follows—toward the Soviet Union and the other socialist countries."

Raw materials are imported from other Eastern bloc countries, processed in Slovakian plants and re-exported as finished products. The new steel mill near the Soviet frontier will use Soviet iron ore and Czechoslovak coal and labor.

The new refinery on the outskirts of this city will use crude oil piped through a 3,000-mile line from the Volga region. This line, said to be the world's longest, will ultimately provide crude for Poland, East Germany and Hungary.

The planner gave these figures to show how the Communists have transformed Slovakia's economy:

Before the war the ratio of farm to industrial workers was eight to one; now its 5.1 to 4.3. Total production now is 32.5 times greater. Slovakia turns out 18.5 per cent of Czechoslovakia's industrial goods compared with seven per cent before the war. The industrial labor force in the region has grown to 402,000 from the pre-war figure of 105,000.

The Communists strenuously deny that there has been any resurgence of Slovak nationalism such as that used by Hitler to set up the Slovak state under German tutelage.

Speculation by Western observers that separatist tendencies had developed followed a speech by Karold Bacilek, first secretary of the Slovak Communist party.

He claimed that vestiges of "bourgeois nationalism," "revisionism," and even "clerical fascism" were the type responsible for the establishment of the separate state during the war had infiltrated many parts of Slovak national life.

This Western view was that Bacilek's uninhibited condemnation indicated that rapid economic development together with a reaction against Communist control has given traditional nationalism modern and more powerful base.

In reply to questions about this, one Communist retorted:

"You have only to compare what we had before with what we now have to see the falseness of the claim."

CZECH HYDRO DEVELOPMENT—To slow emigration from the Slovak region of Czechoslovakia, the communist government embarked on broad programs of industrialization. Hydro-electric dams such as this one were built to power steel mills and factories. Rural electrification also spread to every village. (CP Photo).

COMBAT HOUSING SHORTAGE — To meet an acute housing shortage likely to continue for another decade, Czechoslovak communist planners have placed great emphasis on apartment projects. This Slovak family plays outside a typical apartment block in Bratislava. (CP Photo).

Feeley Shows Adroitness At Crime Inquiry

Has Listeners Baffled With Evasive Answers

TORONTO (CP) — Vincent Feeley, slow-moving and slow-talking, has been showing Ontario's royal commission on crime why he's rated a standout in the fast world of high-rolling Ontario gamblers.

For three days the heavy-set kingpin of the gaming joints alleged corruption of police and public officials, has been giving a display of sprightly mental acrobatics as inquisitors sought to pin down some of the more elusive aspects of their long inquiry.

They got little change of Feeley. When he went back to jail Friday to rest up for Monday's return bout, he looked fresh, his listeners baffled.

In the three days, he appears to have managed to avoid making any culpable admissions under a barrage of questioning based on 45 daily volumes of earlier transcripts.

He has, though, made plenty of admissions of a sort, including the fact that his income that he used to do some of his books work in the quiet of a room across the street from the Ontario Provincial Police College — a fact that, of course, he did not done any orthodox work since the mid 1950s.

MAKES MONEY WORK

He has admitted putting his money to work for him for a fast buck in ways in various legal and legal gambling enterprises, including a highly-profitable and plush one in the Bahamas last winter.

The question of the morality of gambling, he explained to the commission and Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, Friday, depends on the point of view.

The gaming boss tossed his paperwork idea in as a possible explanation for the presence of professors on the college—where the OPP anti-gambling squad was formerly located — at times when two feminine employees of the OPP have testified he tried to strike up an acquaintance.

Feeley—accused of getting inside raid information from policemen, although denying it Friday—said he was near the police centre was one of many he retained in Toronto over the years where he would drop in to "do my sheets." Tuesday, he said, he used the telephone booths-like cubicles for the same purpose.

Feeley's admissions cover nothing more than his known investigation income — including a $4,000 fing this year after a guilty plea to running a major gambling joint in the Lake Cookville — and some items of expenditure such as a $600 wedding gravy off a few now-defunct Toronto crapshooting and bookie locales.

But he has persistently denied ever having connection with police or politicians or pedaling it to gamblers, the allegation the commission is trying to pin on him. He said this week he never dispensed a nickel this way.

However, as he testified, he and partner Joseph McDermott were under an 18-month sen-

CANADA NOT IN ISOLATED POSITION—P.M.

Diefenbaker Flatly Denies Implication

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker flatly denied Friday that Canada was in an isolated position at the 10-day Commonwealth conference on British membership in the European Common Market.

"Canada's isolation was an isolation along with 13 other prime ministers," he told a press conference, referring to some press reports—notably in British newspapers.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that if Canadian news correspondents would have been told the whole story of what went on at the London conference, "I think any fair-minded person would conclude our government's position was entirely fair, objective and in keeping with the traditions of the Commonwealth."

They couldn't be told this, he said, because of his promise that briefings given Canadian reporters by the Canada delegation at London would deal only with the position taken by Canada at the closed conferences. Other Commonwealth delegations, he implied, didn't keep to this undertaking. He didn't specify which ones.

REPLIES TO PEARSON

Mr. Diefenbaker also replied sharply to Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson's criticism of his proposal at the London conference for a free - world trade conference to reduce international tariff barriers.

In an apparent reference to the Liberal party, he said that some Canadians who advocated an Atlantic trade community now were making strong representations to the idea of a broader trade arrangement that would include other countries.

The former Liberal government before it had opposed all measures for expansion of Commonwealth trade he had proposed which is opposition. Members of that government had "suddenly become devoted exponents of that which they once spurned."

Mr. Diefenbaker said that although his free world trade conference proposal wasn't supported at the London conference, there was implied support for it in the Commonwealth declaration of readiness to back "comprehensive international effort" to support world trade.

DENIES REPORTS

Asked about some reports describing him as utterly opposed to Britain joining the Common Market, he replied:

"At no time did I make any statement that could be so interpreted."

The decision was one for the British government alone, and other Commonwealth members had no right to say whether or not it should do this.

NAVY PROPOSES MILITARY JUNTA TAKE CONTROL

Argentina Drifting Toward Civil War

By SAM SUMMERLIN

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Loyalist units of Argentina's feuding military factions turned topsy-turvy overnight. Rebels who had been fighting President Jose Maria Guido's government battled tanks and troops loyal to Guido in Buenos Aires at dawn today to keep him in power.

Machine-gun fire rattled in exchange between the tanks and troops of Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio, erstwhile supporter of Guido who split with him and joined a navy move to oust the president and install a three-man military junta.

The clash came in Constitution Plaza, site of one of the capital's major traffic terminals.

Previous actions had taken a toll of 27 dead, whom five were civilians, and at least 28 wounded.

BATTLE TURNED

Frantic military and political manoeuvres had turned the battle in the night.

The original rebels, headed by Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, now called themselves the legalists. With return of constitutional government as their continued aim, they pledge to keep hands in the quiet of a succession of a new government.

The loyalists who had battled the rebels in the name of national shole for Guido through four days of crisis now are the rebels.

The navy, which had kept on the sidelines during the fighting, set a military junta to stop the battle in the night.

Rebel leaders refused to attend a top level meeting called this morning to plan and said President Jose Maria Guido was resisting navy pressure to resign.

Political manoeuvring continued through the night in the corridors of both the rebels and loyalists. Both parties were decployed throughout the capital. Scattered clashes during the night between the college—where the OPP anti-gambling squad was formerly located — at times when two feminine employees of the OPP have testified he tried to strike up an acquaintance.

Feeley—accused of getting inside raid information from, policemen, although denying it Friday—said he was near the police centre was one of many he retained in Toronto over the years where he would drop in to "do my sheets." Juvenile Anonymous Proves Cure For Delinquency in Soo, Ontario

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sault Ste. Marie's first psychiatrist told Friday of a cure for juvenile delinquency he has put into action to solve problem in the city.

Dr. Hans Selye said was speaking to the annual meeting of District 19 of the Ontario Medical Association in his speech-"Juvenile Anonymous, the delinquent's counterpart to Alcoholics Anonymous ot. The Sault organization is believed to be the only one of its kind in Canada.

In JA, the doctor said, young people, petty delinquents take themselves in hand and with the help of fellow delinquents discuse their problems freely and help themselves become useful members of society.

He said one of JA's present officers is the former leader of one of the city's major gangs. Another member is the organization themselves, work at their own pace and help each other. They now have about 60 members.

Since this organization was started a year ago crime in the city has decreased amazingly, Dr. Schward said. "At one time it was hardly safe to sit on the Sault's public beaches for fear your tent or rubber mattress would be stolen or your wife dragged off along the beach."

Now the beaches are completely safe and downtown crime has largely disappeared."

Monetary Meeting Shows Rift Between Britain, U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP)—A five-day world monetary conference has exposed disturbing rifts between Britain and the United States on the borders of "our" circles should bear in financing of future world trade and economic aid.

The U.S., anxious to shore up its dwindling gold reserves, appears to be moving towards reduction of American dollars flowing around the world. Britain wants to expand the world flow of acceptable currencies, including the U.S., to prevent a possible future strain on sterling.

Arguing that he doesn't want to hurt the American dollar and maintaining there even may be an increase in the official gold price, Reginald Maudling, British chancellor of the exchequer, has called for a study of a radical new international deposit bank in which accounts would be fully backed by gold, U.S. Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon hurriedly attempted to squelch the idea, saying the new bank is not what the world needs at this time.

Dillon argued that the present world monetary system is adequate to handle the needs of world trade and finance. The dollar in terms of gold. But at a press conference Friday he admitted the idea has not died. It will be brought up for further study in the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development —though the U.S. would not accept the idea—not for years and years.

The British idea was the main subject on corridor talk at the 80 - country International Monetary Fund conference that ended annual deliberations Friday, satisfied there is enough money around the world to finance present trade. The concern was about the future.

Maudling, finance and management director, indicated also that some countries which depend on international trade are con-

Liberal Leader Pays Personal Call on P.M.

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Pearson advised Prime Minister Diefenbaker personally Friday that Parliament must decide the question of confidence in the government before transacting any legislative business.

The opposition leader paid a 20-minute call on Mr. Diefenbaker at the prime minister's East Block office on Mr. Diefenbaker's invitation to discuss the formalities of the opening of Parliament Sept. 27.

In report to caucus following the talks, Mr. Pearson said the Liberals' stand is that the government did not get a clear, traditional avowal by opposition nonconfidence motions, should be proceeded with without interruption for legislative business.

"You'll have to ask the prime minister about that," he said when asked if the prime minister's attitude to the Liberal position.

PM BUSY

The prime minister's office said Mr. Diefenbaker would be unable to receive reporters to answer the question because of pressure of other business.

Mr. Pearson informed Mr. Diefenbaker also that the government's plans for nominating conventions presiding officers, including Marcel Lambert, MP for Edmonton West as Commons Speaker, are "satisfactory" to the official opposition.

Mr. Pearson made a three-hour speech debate taking precedence over all other business before the house by Mr. Pearson's aim for a quick decision by the Commons on whether the government can command enough voting support to carry on the government.

Banks Once Offered Job By CSL Inquiry Is Told

OTTAWA (CP) — The former general manager of Canada Steamship Lines once delivered to senators union chief Hal C Banks enough company documents "to hang CSL," the Maritime shipping inquiry was told Friday.

Richard Greaves, president of the National Association of Marine Engineers, said he was told this by Mr. Banks during a 1956-58 period when his marine engineers union and the SIU were allies.

Mr. Greaves, giving evidence before the royal commission on waterfront labor violence and shipping disruptions on the Great Lakes, said Mr. Banks documents were delivered to Mr. Greaves by Norman Beech on the night Mr. Beech left CSL.

He said Mr. Banks claimed the briefcases of documents were "pretty hot stuff"—enough files to "hang CSL".

Mr. Greaves said Mr. Banks telephoned Frank Hall, head of the Railways Clerks Union, to tell him about the CSL papers, but Mr. Hall refused to get involved. The union did not say what happened to the papers.

The waterfront union leader also said Mr. Banks told him that CSL President T. R. Mc-Connell offered him the post of personnel manager for the company at a top annual salary of $25,000 to $35,000.

Mr. Greaves testified that Mr. Banks, an American-born Canadian leader who came to Canada in 1936 to break the Communist-dominated Canadian Seamen's Union, maintained friendly relations with CSL officials and with Mr. Beech, who established his own shipping company.

New Space Technique to Be Tried in Satellite Launch

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States space agency said Friday it will be taking some big steps in launching its research orbit soon a Canadian - made spacecraft to study the ionosphere.

1. The spacecraft, the Alouette, is the first to be completely designed and built by a nation other than the United States or the Soviet Union.

2. It will be the first orbital attempt from the west coast launch site at Point Arguello, Calif., by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

3. It will be NASA's first use of the two-stage Thor-Agena B vehicle to launch a satellite into orbit.

The joint Canadian-U.S. experiment will be attempted some time after next Wednesday, NASA said. The aim is to put the Alouette into a near-circular orbit about 600 miles above the earth.

The Canadian satellite project is part of the Topside Sounder Program, by the Canadian Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment near Ottawa and the Goddard Space Flight Centre at Greenbelt, Md. The Alouette and the U.S.-designed S-48, to be launched later this year, will support each other in ionospheric investigations.

The spheroid-shaped Alouette will conduct four experiments. Three will be for the Canadian Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment near Ottawa and the fourth for the Canada's National Research Council.

The main effort will be a year-long project to measure over the number of free electrons in the ionosphere change daily with the time of day and latitude. Two other experiments will measure the radio noise that appears to originate in outer space and the radio noise produced within the ionosphere itself.

West Germany Agrees To Curb Cuban Shipping

U.S. Hopes Other Allied Lands Will Copy Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be making headway in its drive to get allied co-operation in curbing down Communist shipping to Cuba.

The West German government has agreed to take steps to prevent its ship owners from putting German flag vessels under Soviet charter.

There is hope that Britain, Norway and other North Atlantic treaty allies whose ships have sailed for the Russians in the Cuban trade will also co-operate.

Britain, Norway and West Germany are each believed to have a dozen ships engaged in the Communist effort to bolster the Red outpost in the Caribbean.

The United States, — arguing that the Cuban situation is an extremely serious problem— has pressed its allies to deny shipping to the Soviet bloc.

THE FIVE SHIPS

U.S. officials say the Russians have been using their own ships to carry arms and military personnel to Cuba. The chartered vessels have brought in food and industrial equipment. They are said to strengthen premier Fidel Castro's wrecking economy.

First word of the West German move came in a speech in the House of Commons Friday by Representative Raul G. Rogers (Dem., Fla.).

"I hope the action of the West German government will be immediately adopted and implemented by the other NATO allies and friends," he said.

Rogers told the House that friendly merchant ships have transported goods to Cuba, then loaded up with cargoes at U.S. ports for "profitable return trips."

Said Rogers: "This situation is serious and the United States is helping to support a portion of the Soviet-Cuban lordship over to the best interests of our nation."

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Russia and the United States accused each other of kindling a new war cry in a head-on clash Friday night before the General Assembly.

Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko brought up the explosive Cuban issue in a 90-minute general policy speech delivered on the eve of a meeting with State Secretary Rusk arriving in New York for a week's stay.

Gromyko accused the United States of aggressive acts towards Fidel Castro's regime and said a U.S. attack on Cuba would mean war.

U.S. chief delegate Adlai Stevenson, replying immediately, said the Soviet Union is threatening peace by supplying military aid to Cuba.

"We are not taking and will not take offensive action in this hemisphere, neither will we permit aggression in this hemisphere," Stevenson said.

The threat to peace in Cuba comes not from the United States but from the Soviet Union. The threat arises from the extraordinary and unnecessary build-up of arms and military personnel pouring into Cuba."

HITS KENNEDY REMARKS

Gromyko told the 106-member assembly President Kennedy's Sept. 13 press conference statement on Cuba meant "that the United States is ready to mount military action against Cuba, and that it will itself decide when to deem it necessary to start an invasion."

Already, he said, "the United States is practising aggressive acts" against Cuba by providing arms and military aid to Cuban refugees for "pirate" raids.

Aussies Warned They Might Be Taking Potential Killer Drug

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — The harassed housewife might take a powder or two before she starts to prepare breakfast for the family — or the businessman when he feels in need of a lift.

They're not taking illegal drugs. The powders are an accepted mixture of caffeine combination that Australians can buy by the dozen at any drug counter — or at supermarket or service station.

In the last few weeks the users have been warned they might be taking a potential habit-forming killer.

A survey at Sydney Hospital treated 28 of 2,350 children in two years to probable phenacetin poisoning. Of these, 42 were women, the youngest 23 and the oldest 76.

The report of the Sydney Hospital investigation threw a scare into these people.

The report, by Dr. Lionel Jacobs, said the kidney disease that might result from taking excess phenacetin could reach the chronic stage without a doctor being aware of it.

Last year, Sweden banned the general sale of phenacetin after a survey by Swedish doctors which was more comprehensive then the Sydney survey. The Swedish survey reported that almost users were women who claimed they needed a powder they were not sure was in the pot.

Dr. Jacobs said in his report: "It must not be assumed that the majority of the patients habitually ingest phenacetin over kidney disease. But it is a warranted assumption from clinical evidence and from overseas reports that abuse of phenacetin can, and often does, lead to chronic kidney damage."

The president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association, E. J. Williams, said there is no restriction on their open sale.

"These drugs are not harmful if taken in moderation," he said.

In Washington, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's chief of medical review, Dr. Howard I. Weinstein, said:

"The danger is the misuse and abuse if the drug, which has caused some harm in the age. Those people who use the product as directed on the label have nothing to fear."

3-Way Contest In Some Quebec Ridings

QUEBEC (CP)—November's provincial general election is assured of being at least a three-way contest in some ridings with the entry of Social Credit party into Quebec politics still doubtful.

It was decided by the Quebec provisional council of the New Democratic Party Friday night to enter candidates in at least some of Quebec's 95 ridings. Which ridings would be contested was not decided, but a spokesman said an announcement on whether the party will run will be made Monday.

The Social Credit party still has to decide whether to enter the election campaign.

Radio Station Broadcasts Will Be From Shop Window

Belleville CJBQ radio station will have a temporary show window location for its daily broadcasts for three days early next week.

The station broadcasting will be done from the window at Rolf's Camera Store. The reason for the fishbowl location of the station broadcast for the next few days is that equipment alterations are to be undertaken at the Victoria Avenue studios.

The Downtown Businessmen's Association is taking advantage of the occasion and from Monday through Wednesday will use radio to do a downtown shopping promotion program.

Street banners, hat, and radio spot radio flashes will promote the advantages of downtown shopping.

No Deformed Babies' Cases Are Referred to CAS Here

Deformity, regardless of origin, has not part to plays in a wardship action, Mr. Bruce Kerr, local director of the Children's Aid Society, told the monthly meeting of the Society's board of directors on Thursday. Mr. Kerr made reference to the alleged increase in the number of births of deformed babies resulting from the use of the drug thalidomide. He said that to date no such cases had been referred to the Society. In the absence of evidence of neglect as defined in the Child Welfare Act, he said, it was not likely that a deformed child would be admitted to care.

Forrester presided, welcomed the Board which had been in recess since June, and noted that during the summer months the executive and finance committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. Arthur Bell and the committee for summer training to meet the challenge of changed methods and processes. Arts and Crafts Hold Workshop And Registration

Examples of various crafts conducted under the auspices of the Arts, Crafts and Crafts Club were shown Thursday night at the Corby Public Library. Anyone contemplating signing up for a series of lessons would find the display inspiration.

Outstanding in originality were some leather pieces, one a tooled picture by Miss Marion Gelinbeau, instructor in leather, and two chairs and stools crafted by Mr. Jack Layton.

There were many fine examples of copper enamelling and ceramics, as well as the always popular and pleasing mosaic tile. Samples of Christmas cards done by the silk screening process were also shown.

The exhibit of Children's Art, done by that group during the summer was, as always refreshing. Scenes of adult art were also shown. To those who have attended many of these workshops and exhibits of the Arts and Crafts, it is interesting to see the progress of the various members, particularly in the adult art group.

The craftsmen themselves were well displayed, and the flower arrangements also showed the work of some of the members who took advantage of the flower arranging course given last year.

The workshop continued at the Corby Public Library Friday afternoon and evening and registrations were accepted there at that time.

It is felt that anyone attending any of the ten-week courses starting the first week in October will derive much benefit from them. Further details on all courses may be obtained at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street.

Despite Cool Weather Fair Attendance Is Good

PICTON — Prince Edward County Fair at Picton rings down the curtain at midnight tonight, Saturday, when, following the afternoon horse races, the Doc Williams Jamboree and Wrestling, West Virginia is followed by a dance in the arena on the grounds.

Directors decided yesterday to make admission to the grounds free after 5 p.m. today as general exhibits are removed.

Coats and sweaters were the rule the first two days due to the cold spell. However, attendance both days was greater than last year and Saturday is the "big" day, and fair president George Atkinson predicted the 30,000 mark will be exceeded. In spite of the chilly weather, more than 1,000 filled the grandstand this evening for the Paul Riddell dare-devil car show. In the County Centre, Cari Gilbertz of Picton provided a musical program and Brenda Archer's baton corps gave a demonstration.

In the Holstein Black and White Show Fitch Bros. Parks of Bloomfield was premier exhibitor. He had junior and reserve champion, Grand and Reserve Grand Champion bulls, Senior Reserve, Junior Champion, Grand and Reserve Grand Champion females.

Picton Fair has more than lived up to its reputation as one with outstanding exhibits. Few of any fairs in Ontario can approach it for quality, quantity or attractive display.

Southern Rhodesia Is Put Back in World Spotlight

By CARMAN CUMMING

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Incendiary bombs and the banning of an African nationalist party put Southern Rhodesia back in the world spotlight—just where the nationalists want it.

Joshua Nkomo, leader of the banned National Democratic People's Union, commented that the outlawing of the party was a "good thing" and marked the beginning of the end" for Sir Eric Whitehead's all-white government.

Already delegates at the United Nations are talking of an early renewal of debate on the future of the self-governing British colony.

The danger is that the difficult situation will be used by opportunists who care little for the welfare of either the black or white community.

CHARGED 'RACISM'

In the General Assembly debate in June, the Communist delegates charged Britain with trying to set up a "racist state" and demanded independence by the end of this year.

The defiant nations, more moderately, pressed through a resolution calling for a new constitution ensuring the rights of the 3,000,000 Negroes.

Britain, caught in the middle between conflicting demands of the Negroes and the white community controlling less than a half-million, insisted that it had no right to interfere in the territory's internal affairs.

The present constitution, approved by the British Parliament in December, 1961, sets up an enrolment system calculated to produce a 40-15 white majority in the legislative assembly to be elected next spring. It provides that as more Negroes join the voting rolls, a black majority will result in eight to 12 years.

The nationalists say — probably with some justification — that the white community would never let this come about.

But Nkomo's demands for immediate Negro control appear to cast doubt on his good faith. At the United Nations in June, he told an interviewer he was unthinkable that the whites should remain in control even "for another year or so," and warned that there would be bloodshed unless the territory was freed from British control quickly.

He demanded that a conference be called immediately to draft a new constitution "that will transfer power to the majority—that is, the African people of Southern Rhodesia.

Undoubtedly the Negroes have grievances and cannot be expected to accept white rule indefinitely. But Nkomo might do well to examine the Congo and Algeria tragedies and consider whether the price of immediate independence might not be too high.

Accused Given Three Years For Negligence

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Samuel Rappaport, who led police on a wild auto chase that ended with the death of two men, was given a three-year prison term Friday on a charge of driving negligence charge.

Mr. Justice E. G. Thompson of the Ontario Supreme Court also prohibited Knapp from driving for a five-year period.

Knapp, 21, of suburban Sandwich West, was on a spree with a charged following a police chase July 7 during which he went through red lights and four stop signs at speeds up to 100 miles an hour.

The chase ended when Knapp ran a red light and smashed into another car, killing both occupants. The victims were John Fraser, 42, of Windsor, and Robert McCann, 19, of Clinton.

Demands New System of Reduced Taxes

STRATFORD (CP)—Taxation reform and expanded export markets are the keys to economic progress in British Parliament in December, 1961, sets up an enrolment system calculated to produce a 40-15 white majority in the legislative assembly to be elected next spring. It provides that as more Negroes join the voting rolls, a black majority will result in eight to 12 years.

Ask Full Pay For Widow Of Policeman

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton police commission agreed Thursday to consider a request from the Police Association that the widow of a policeman slain on duty receive full pay to raise her family.

The request was on behalf of Mrs. David Gregory, widow of a 25-year-old constable fatally shot during a shotgun-wielding killer last month.

The association presented a plan passed by Metro Toronto council to provide for the widow of a constable slain there in February.

Const. James Cook, president of the Hamilton association, asked that the city pay the difference between workmen's compensation and Mrs. Gregory's husbands regular salary.

Under the Compensation Act, she receives $75 a month plus $25 monthly for each of her two children.

cerned about Canada's temporary import restrictions imposed last June. The fund was satisfied, he said at a press conference, with the Canadian government statement by Justice Minister Fulton that it was moving towards more permanent solutions to replace the temporary curbs.

But noting that Canada's official reserves of gold and U.S. dollars have made an impressive recovery, Jacobsson said there is a danger in an atmosphere of recovery that a government may be less inclined to undertake more permanent solutions.

He hinted a need in Canada to find some other form of federal revenue to replace the $900,000,000 which the government estimates it would receive annually from the surcharges of five to 15 per cent.

Asked what the substitution might take place, Jacobsson told a reporter: "You know the political situation as well as I do."

Purchasing Agents Meet At Brockville

BROCKVILLE — Stressing the need for enlightened and progressive educational programs, Arthur Nursey, of Vancouver, first vice-president of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents, said Canada is experiencing a period of economic growth as he addressed the opening meeting of the Eastern Ontario Purchasing Agents' Association at Prescott Wednesday night.

Bill Russell, of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of C.A.P.A., said the association was now developing a public relations program in collaboration with several experts in that field and had also engaged a leading educationalist to formulate a future program.

The meeting, under the chairmanship of Bill Tremblay of Trenton, heard a report by Bun Sheffield on Eastern Ontario educational plans and elected Jack Dowell secretary-treasurer of Rollin Products, Brockville, to the board of directors.

Certificates of achievement were awarded to Ron Davis, of Iron Kelly, both of Kingston, and a past president's pin was presented to Ted Whitney.

The next meeting of the association will be held at Belleville, October 24.

Present from Belleville and district were F. Ellis, Lake Ontario Portland Cement Co., Picton; and H. M. Burley, International Harvester Co.; A. H. Evans, Stephens-Adamson Mfg.; J. N. Hunter, Corby Distilleries; D. A. Laundry, Wilson Concrete and F. B. H. Sheffield, Northern Electric Co., all of Belleville.

United Appeal Campaign Rally To Hear Lt.-Col. E. A. Baker

Ross Moorcroft Wins Zone Pasture Contest

It has just been announced by Mr. A. H. Martin, Director of the Field Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture that Mr. Ross Moorcroft, R.R. 3 Madoc, has won the zone pasture for this zone, which includes the counties of Ontario, Victoria, Durham, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

Lesage Says Fleming Put Foot in Mouth

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage said Friday Justice Minister Fleming had "put his foot in his mouth" with a statement that the Quebec Liberals' provincial rights and privately-owned power companies would not help attract foreign capital to Canada.

He said Mr. Fleming "should remember that the provinces of Ontario has spent hundreds of millions of dollars for its nationalized electricity system and that all this has not affected its credit at all."

On the contrary this had "permitted Ontario Hydro to control industrial rates for the benefit of the population."

This had greatly aided the industrialization of Ontario and "we will obtain the same results in the province of Quebec."

NAVY PROPOSES

Buenos Aires. At least one other civilian and seven soldiers were wounded in the clash.

The navy, which until Friday stood aside from the army struggle, stepped in on the side of the so-called loyalists as it accused the rebels of fomenting chaos.

The rebels declared that top army leaders sought to bring about a military dictatorship. Leaders of the revolt called for early elections and a return of government to the people.

Goldo at first sided with the loyalists, then appeared won over by the rebels. He obtained the resignation of War Secretary Gen. Jose Cornejo Saravia. He fired two other targets of the revolt—Commander - in - Chief Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio and Chief of Staff Gen. Bernardino Labayru — and summoned all generals in garrison to a meeting in 48 hours.

Alberta Board Endorses Plan For Oil Sands

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board has paved the way for the development of the Athabasca oil sands, believed to be the largest known reserve of oil in the world.

The board, whose recommendations have been widely respected by the Alberta cabinet, said Friday Great Canadian Oil Sands Limited should be given the right to extract oil from a portion of the oil sands area which cover an area of about 30,000 square miles in northeastern Alberta.

"The board believes it is in the interests of the province that some commercial development of the oil sands take place in the near future," the board's report said.

It said the improved outlook for Alberta crude oil would have the impact the 31,000 barrels-a-day production which the Great Canadian plant would have on the market. It said the impact of the project on conventional crude oil production would not be serious.

The sands are estimated to contain 300,000,000,000 barrels of oil.

Authorities estimate that only 1,300,000,000 barrels in an area of 16 square miles is economically recoverable at this time. Great Canadian has 500,000,000 barrels of bitumen.

PHOSPHORE LARGE SCHEME

Great Canadian proposes a $134,000,000 scheme which would extract 31,500 barrels a day a year. The crude would be delivered by pipeline to the interprovincial system.

The company, which has offices in Toronto and Edmonton, has until Jan. 1, 1964 to start construction. According to its proposal, it would be completed into operation by Sept. 30, 1966.

Postal Workers Seeking $600 Annual Increase

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Postal Employees Association opened its triennial convention here Friday by deciding to seek a $600 annual increase in the salary of all postal workers.

The majority of delegates asking for the raise but rejected a resolution which recommended that a $1,500 a year increase be sought.

The current minimum annual salary for postal workers is $3,600. The maximum is $4,200.

The convention approved the Vancouver branch resolution calling on the association's national officers to strive to bring about unity with postal clerks, railway mail clerks and letter carriers.

The national officers were also urged to ask the federal government that postal rates for U.S. magazines be raised to bolster postal revenues and pay for any salary increase granted.

ELECT PRESIDENT

The convention Friday also elected Leslie Hood of Toronto as the association's first full-time national president. Mr. Hood, a 54 - year - old postal worker, defeated Dan Cote of Kingston who has been president for the last 12 years.

Mr. Hood will receive a yearly salary of $8,500. He will serve a three-year term. Two other full-time officers were elected. They were Godfroy Cote of Hull, Que., national general secretary - treasurer, and Rick Otto, Vancouver, national secretary.

Among regional vice - presidents elected were: Southwestern Ontario, Sherwood Buzzell; Central Ontario, Arnaud Gould; Northern Ontario, William Kidd; Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario, Russell Jones.

London Angler Hooks Big Pickerel at Bay Bridge

According to Kenneth Scott of London, Ont., there is no place to beat the Bay of Quinte for pickerel fishing.

And to prove it he has a 10¼-pound beauty caught yesterday off the bay bridge.

The biggest pickerel I ever caught. In fact it's the biggest one I've ever seen," he said.

Mr. Scott and his wife were visiting relatives at Rossmore when he caught the big fellow from the west side of the bridge causeway just north of the swing span. He had been fishing for about an hour when he hooked the fish with an Abu spinner on an eighteen-pound test line.

"I guess I was lucky to land him," Mr. Scott admitted.

New Rand Formula

The dean of the University of Western Ontario's law school has accused labour unions of conducting strikes in an undemocratic manner.

This hardly sounds like startling news. Generally speaking, labor leaders have something less than unquestioning respect for the opinions of legal dignitaries. This is only natural. Laws are made by ruling classes and often survive for considerable periods after these classes have been dethroned, or forced to share their power with other classes. Much old legislation in Canada, and in Britain from whence we tend to draw our legislative precedents, was anti-labor in intent. Vestiges of laws of this sort remained on the statute books until comparatively recent times. We remember, then, that labor leaders who know the history of their movement should retain some relics of past days in the form of a certain distrust of lawyers.

This, though, is a generality, and this distrust should not extend to the dean of the University of Western Ontario's law school, for he is Mr. Justice I. C. Rand. He is the father of the famous Rand Formula on the check-off of union dues, which cut a Gordian knot in labor negotiations when he first proposed it at Windsor, as a method of settling a strike of auto workers. The UAW contended that, if there were no compulsory check-off of dues, non-members of the union would get "a free ride" by enjoying the benefits won by the union without sharing the cost of union's work. Union opponents, supported by management, raised the issue of freedom of choice. Nobody, they argued, should be forced to join a union in order to work. Mr. Justice Rand accepted both arguments as valid—and proposed his formula under which all employees in a plant where a union was the certified bargaining agent were required to pay union dues, but were not required to join the union.

Mr. Justice Rand is, therefore, in our view, a proven friend of organized labor. Most union leaders of good intent, we imagine, recognize that fact. It is to be hoped that they will give him a more respectful hearing than his position as dean of a law school might ordinarily earn him. He says that nothing short of a secret ballot in a strike vote can be justified in this country. We think he is right.

The only legitimate argument we can think of against such a requirement is it would almost inevitably mean government supervision of strike votes. It could be contended, with some appearance of reason, that the intrusion of government into the conduct of union affairs is not without danger, opening the way to the kind of control which makes a farce of unions in dictatorships. The trouble with that argument is that it comes much too late—organized labor has already accepted, and welcomed, government intervention in other sectors of the same field. If it wants laws which require firms to bargain collectively with certified unions, it can hardly balk, with reason, at a requirement that strike votes be taken by secret ballot.

Comparing and Contrasting

Tuesday a Canadian Press dispatch from Halifax reported that the Canadian Association for Retarded Children would seek to raise a million dollars to stimulate research into retardation.

The same day a report from New York said that Mrs. Eunice Kennedy Shriver, sister of President J. F. Kennedy, had disclosed that her sister Rosemary had been retarded from childhood, that she had been an inmate of an institution for the past 20 years and that since 1946 the family had donated roughly $1,000,000 a year for grants and awards in connection with the problem of mental retardation.

There are so many unfortunate things persons of varying habits of mind might draw from these two items that we shall not even attempt to list them, but will content ourselves with thus placing the two reports in close proximity, one to the other.

"The first real Chinese meal I ever had was in Hong Kong, where I was a guest at a luncheon party given by a Chinese professor and his charming wife. I'm not too good on strange foods and I was just a wee bit apprehensive, and my misgivings were in no way diminished by the appearance of what I took to be a steaming, white pudding which was put in front of me at the start of the meal. Just then someone lifted theirs and, wiped it on hands and face. It was a little hot towel."—Howard Lockhart speaking on the BBC program "Scottish Magazine."

Emergency Measures Not Limited to Wartime Events

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — An odd bit of government spending which was not singled out by the Glasco Royal Commission has been hit from another quarter.

The Voice of Women this week declared that money and effort is being wasted by the federal Emergency Measures Organization.

They pointed specifically to four publications put out by EMO offering instruction on fallout and blast shelters and other matters related to nuclear attac, on the country.

This has nothing to do with pride or glory — each party just wants to avoid being the last to vote on House estimates.

This is because, on motions of non-confidence in the government, Liberals will vote against the government and so will the party which holds office.

No matter which of the smaller parties is last, its votes will then be needed to keep the government in power.

Thus that third group will have the unhappy choice of toppling the government when it may want the session to continue, or voting with the government and being hurt politically.

Neither Socreds nor NDP want this choice.

Plain Talk By U Thant

Christian Science Monitor

The number-one citizen of the world, the Secretary-General of the United Nations, was talking late in Soviet recording microphone in Moscow. He said:

"I beg to be excused for saying that the Russian people do not fully understand the true character of the Congo problem. Their lack of understanding is probably due to the other side of the coin . . .

"I am speaking at this with a heavy heart," U Thant continued, "because diplomacy demands frankness of words. I am not a believer in honeyed words, since they will not help the great and courageous people of the Soviet Union to arrive at a balanced appraisal of the situation.

"Let me be candid. When (Soviet) people are confronted with what was happening in the rest of the world, for instance in the Congo, it did not out of fear and suspicion: fear of facing potential friends and suspicion of what it regarded as 'imperialism'."

He concluded by saying, "If only (the Soviet people) have the means of knowing all the facts of the problem, they will certainly revise their opinion of the activities of the United Nations involvement in the Congo and decide to shoulder their share of the heavy responsibilities now being undertaken."

Thus officials of the UN Secretary-General's words but it is not known whether they were broadcast in the Soviet Union.

But EMO expenses have never been attacked in the House of Commons and there is good cause for this.

To the men at the top of EMO, "emergency measures" are not confined to those associated with war.

The organization has been called upon to assist in battling massive forest fires, to clean up after tornadoes, to lend aid in flood-fighting.

When the call for help went out recently from Manitoba where stricken fran, it was from EMO headquarters that the amount of medical supplies were ordered to be flown to the disaster area.

Nor is the organization to be criticized to the task of convincing Canadians that nuclear war would be right, that we could survive atomic attack and fight on.

They are among the first to admit that direct H-bomb hits on our cities would completely destroy them and probably most of the people in them. They have no illusions here.

Military circles in the United States take a different approach —trying to sell the idea that the positive, slow is to count the survivors of nuclear attack, not the victims.

EMO is not buying this. Its whole purpose is to keep alive as many Canadians as possible in all emergency situations.

While the booklets on atomic survival are probably exercises in futility, the VoW is going a bit far if it advocates an end to EMO.

A strange squabble between the Social Credit and New Democratic parties is still going on as the opening of Parliament approaches.

Each of the two parties is defending precedents over the other in the House of Commons. Socreds say their greater numbers mean they should precede the NDP, while the latter says its longer life in the Commons makes it the senior group.

Running slightly off its schedule because of trouble with Anderson's Coal Dock with a load of coal, the collier Aragon ran aground near Redmerville. Despite the efforts of the crewmen to back her off under her own power, the coal carrier remaining stuck to the bar. Wednesday afternoon the collier Caldwell came up the bay, and sending out a two-line, the combined power of the two engines freed the coal-laden Aragon.

With jewelry robberies reaching alarming proportions in Belleville, the third of such crimes was discovered early today when Mr. J. O. R. McCurdy opened his store for business shortly before seven o'clock. Entrance to the premises had been gained by breaking the glass of a first storey rear window and reaching inside to release the window catch. Later in the day, after Mr. McCurdy had checked his stock, he announced that the wrist watches and ear Ronson lighters, valued at over $400 had been stolen.

Cattle rustling was reported in the Stirling area this week when Robert Lake reported the loss of a heifer calf. The calf was stolen from pasture either Monday or Tuesday night. Mr. Lake informed Provincial Police late Wednesday. With a premium price on beef and a shortage of meat, rustling is prevalent, such practices would reap a handsome profit these days.

King Arthur's Tomb Found

Brantford Expositor

The reported discovery of the tomb of the almost legendary King Arthur and Queen Guinevere excites interest among archaeologists, historians and romantic-minded folk everywhere. Who in his youth or later has not revelled in the fabulous adventures of that monarch, his consort, the Knights of the Round Table and their quest for the Holy Grail, not forgetting the great wizard, Merlin?

The Arthurian legend has run through many phases over the long years since the actual Arthur and his companions - in - arms flourished in Britain during the 6th century. It was a tale told among the people of the Middle Ages and their predecessors; it was sung in vastly embellished forms by the French troubadors and thus spread across Europe. Perhaps the most famous single collection of yarns is "Morte d'Arthur" by Sir Thomas Malory (circa 1470). But there are many others and, of course, Tennyson brought them poetically up to Victorian date in his "Idylls of the King." Modern by such scholarly writers as Geoffrey Ashe ("King Arthur's Avalon") and Roger Lancelyn Green ("King Arthur and His Knights of the Round Table") and the historical novelist, Henry Treece ("The Great Captains") have made their valuable contributions.

And the story of the once great Benedictine Abbey at Glastonbury in Somerset, England, you will discover an open sepulchre where once, according to the story, reposed the remains of Arthur and his Queen. There are old but unauthenticated records that at a burial service opened to the coffins subsequent to this interment.

Another interesting researcher C. A. Raleigh Radford, himself the possessor of a historic family name, has recently come to state that he has found the final tomb near Glastonbury's Lady Chapel, ten feet underground between two stone crosses. Mr. Raleigh Radford followed clues he found in reading the works of the chronicler William of Malmesbury (1087-1143).

Some historians have wondered whether there actually was an Arthur. Still, even legends have foundations in fact. Some are sure that the Arthur we read about is a fictional and glamorized version of Artos, the Bulk, a tough native leader in the south-west of what is now Great Britain in the chaotic years after the Roman withdrawal from Britain, but the familiar accounts of their deeds of derring-do and their many-lowered capital, Camelot, are obvious embroidery, fascinating weaving, and that accompany lived in a darker, far less attractive world. Every newfound burial place at Glastonbury may throw some light on it.

Abundantly-Loved Infant Has No Need for Pacifier

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about the wisdom of giving a baby a pacifier? — Mrs. H. B.

Of late there seems to be a change of attitude. Many pediatricians are not opposed to pacifiers, mainly on the basis that they are better than a thumb.

I don't regard a pacifier as of great importance in the comparison to so many other health problems. A healthy, well-nourished, abundantly-loved infant seems to grow up without need for a pacifier and will do minimum need for sucking a thumb.

It's the wistful, worried, neglected or lonesome little ones who seem to resort excessively to the thumb for solace. For them, perhaps a pacifier, being safer than a thumb, is better. We've seen some truly severe deformities of teeth and mouth in children who became fanatic on-ate thumb-sucters. The steady and prolonged pressure can 'o real damage.

But in these cases I seriously doubt whether the substitution of pacifier controversy is of major importance as compared to the real question: Why does the child feel so forlorn that he must suck for comfort?

A bit of casual thumb-sucking is nothing for anyone to worry about, but there is no excuse for keeping a baby supplied with stuff in a baby's mouth to shut him up when he whimpers.

Feed him, cuddle him, change him, talk to him, make the loving effort to find out why he is unhappy, and then the pacifier problem evaporates completely.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend told me that I should get a big black ant in her ear. If laid eggs and now there are ants in her head. Is that true? Some said they don't think it could really happen. Please settle this for us. — N.B.

Mark Twain once said about a report of his death that in that it had been greatly exaggerated. The same goes for this story about ants.

Bugs do get into people's ears, but there is a little grub that is so uncept out again. How-ever, they can make one miserable, not only from fear that they make against the ear drum but from irritation of the ear canal.

First aid for a bug in the ear is to drown it. Have the person He on his good ear; pour warm mineral oil into the invaded ear and float the insect out.

Or if a small syringe is handy, irrigate the ear canal with warm water. Add about half a teaspoonful of either salt or soda added to a glass of water.

Dear Dr. Molner: Can anything be done to correct round shoulders in a young man of 21? He is in college and I'm afraid it is too studious to spend enough exercise. Telling him he should stand straighter doesn't help. — Mrs. M.F.

People can sit up as they study. Many do not. Round shoulders don't result from being too studious; they are from permitting poor posture to become a habit. The problem can become fixed if he doesn't decide that he wants to correct it. It's late, but not too late for him to initiate considerable improvement if he will get some exercise and also consciously stand erect.

Dictators Breed Reds

As we look at the realities in Latin America, let us look at all sides.

Among the realities is the fact that in some Latin-American countries the habit of military coups d'etat persists, and the further fact that despite the comic-opera quality of the uniforms it is not funny: when one of these coups succeeds one seized power it cannot be stealt with by pretending that it is not there.

Another reality, in magnitude at least equal, is that these latter-day coups and counter-coups are vestigial, left over from centuries of dictatorial rule in most of Latin America, and that the tides of history and of the times are against American sentiment are against them.

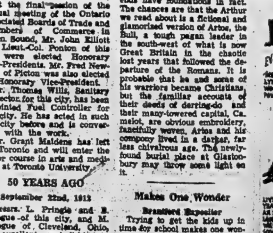
In the United States should fail to make constantly clear its disapproval of Latin-American dictatorships of any sort, our hopes of leading the hemisphere toward a better world are doomed from the outset.

The truth is that the military establishments are natural foci for communism to advance after their passing.

In their suppression of reason able open disagreement they hand the role of opposition to the underprivileged to communists.

And granted that these uni formed military may serve a brief calming effect, averting chaos for a time, they work in the end to run against moderation.

As over-swapped agents of the ruling oligarchies they prevent the development of the moderate middle-class upon which Latin America's best, not only political and social but economic as well, ultimately depends.



THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

All across the continent, the guns have started to bark. Far north the ducks, geese and swans have started to fly, and the moose, caribou, grizzly, sheep and goat are watching with keen eye for the season.

Nobody knows for certain how many men on the North American continent take gun in hand on the opening day. But it is the millions. I have seen various computations, and most interesting of which is that the investment in the sports of hunting and fishing is greater than the money spent on baseball, football, boxing, horse-racing, golf, boating, tennis and all the rest — combined!

A Lift for Living

Work, Play, Love, Worship Are Keys to Our Birthright

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

What does the word birthright mean to us? The definition I read is: "Right by birth; a privilege or possession into which one is born."

And what rights do we have at birth? When we hear so many clamoring for their rights without giving thought to their duties, some persons feel inclined to the view that rights are only privileges conferred by society on those who earn them. And certainly we cannot stress the truth strongly enough that rights involve duties and obligations.

The child is born into the world not by its own request. God and the parents who cooperate with Him in creating the child are responsible for its coming. Less than human would be the parents who, having brought a child into the world, do not feel concerned to take care of it during its helpiessness. And Jesus pictured God as a Heavenly Father more eager than earthly parents to give good things to His children. Therefore every child has a birthright.

The world does not owe every child a living, but it does owe it access to the things by which life can be lived. That's the children's birthright. A generation ago, Dr. Richard Cabot of Harvard wrote a book in which he listed four things as the factors by which men live.

LIVE BY WORK

The first is work. When the author says that work is one of the things men live by, he does not mean merely that we have to work to support ourselves. He is saying rather that without work we do not really live. We live to work even more truly than we work to live. Human energies turn in on themselves destructively if they have nothing to work on. The desire to be of use, to find one's place in the world's economy is a part of our native endowment; and the person who is denied it is being deprived of part of his birthright.

The second thing by which we live is play. The right to play is part of a child's birthright. The child without a place to play is being deprived of its God-given right. The child with no guidance in play will likely fall into habits of willfulness and wastefulness which will handicap its future.

And with our lengthened leisure, we adults must learn better how to play.

And now, along with work and play, there is a third thing men live by. That is love. We are made for love, and without it we are deprived of our birthright.

CHILD NEEDS LOVE

It is hard to imagine a child born into a home which denies it love. Try to imagine a little girl smiling up into her mother's face, only to be met with a cold stare. Try to imagine a little fellow reaching out his arms trustingly to a father who turns away and lets him fall. To be loved is part of a child's birthright.

But parental love does not always continue its care and consideration as cute infancy grows into less attractive adolescence.

The fourth and last of the things men live by is worship. We cannot put the whole of ourselves into our work and our play and our love. The fruitless attempt results in a cramp of the soul. The child has a right to that larger fellowship with God. The child takes to religion naturally. And to coop the child up in a little earthly cage of material things is to clip its wings; it is to deprive it of its birthright.

Christ and countless brave men in the centuries since died to insure us our birthright. Shall we like Esau sell our birthright for a mess of pottage?

Mr., Mrs. R. Badgley Mark 50th Wedding Anniversary

MELROSE — Last Sunday at Melrose community hall Mr. and Mrs. Roy Badgley were "At Home" to approximately 200 friends and relatives on the occasion of their "Golden Anniversary."

They were united in marriage on September 18, 1912 at the parsonage of Tabernacle United Church in Belleville by the pastor Rev. W. G. Clarke, B.A. They resided in Chicago, Illinois for three years, where Mr. Badgley was employed by Sears Roebuck Co. but the love of the countryside beckoned them back to Canada where they purchased the farm on the 3rd concession of Tyendinaga and have since resided there.

Their family consists of three daughters: Mrs. K. Pascoe (Evelyn), Mrs. D. McFarlane (Jean) of Shannonville, Mrs. H. Kimberly (Muriel) of Selby and two sons, Kenneth of Vancouver, B.C. and Earl of Shannonville all of whom were present for the event. Their oldest daughter (Doris), was deceased in 1955. Sixteen grandchildren attended as well as guests from Chatham, N.J.; Detroit, Michigan; Ottawa; Vancouver; Tweed; Plainfield; Roslin; Belleville; Stoneofield; Wellington and Hillier.

Golden bells and streamers mingled with baskets of flowers of golden hues and lent a gay atmosphere to the hall while the tea-table with white linen cloth was centred with an "Anniversary-Cake" flanked by golden candles.

Pouring tea from silver tea services in the afternoon were Mrs. L. McLaren (sister of the bridegroom) and Mrs. Charles Bates, Sr. In the evening Mrs. E. MacFarlane and Mrs. Grant McLaren presided. During the afternoon Mrs. G. Lazier read an address and the honored couple were presented with an electric blanket, a large wall-mirror and a beautiful oil-painting on behalf of the Melrose community. Both recipients expressed thanks for the lovely gifts.

The couple were honored to receive telegrams from Governor-General Vanier and Premier J. Roberts and congratulatory messages from Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Hon. Lester Pearson, Les Grills, M.P. white Mr. Clarke Rollins, M.P.P. called personally and presented an engraved plaque from the provincial secretary.

An unique feature of the occasion was a display of snapshots and photographs taken during the past 50 years and also the presence of eight couples who had celebrated their golden anniversaries besides two couples who will reach this milestone in 1962.

A fitting climax to the happy celebration in the evening took place when a horse and buggy appeared outside and the bride and bridegroom enjoyed a short ride in same after which they were showered with confetti before being transferred to their car which had been gaily decorated before they returned to their home treasuring most pleasant thoughts of their golden anniversary.

WORKING WOMEN

The 1,803,000 women in Canada's labor force in 1960 represented about 25 per cent of the working total, and almost 46 per cent were married.

Anniversary Services Held At Wellmans

RAWDON — On September 16th, Wellmans United Church on the Rawdon circuit was a bower of beauty for the anniversary services with a lovely array of fall blooms across the chancel.

The Rev. James Payton B.A. B.D., Pastor of Grace United Church, Trenton was the guest minister. In the morning he based his message on "The Stepping Giant" and in the evening "The Church."

Mrs. Craig Watson was pianist and she chose for her musical prelude "Eximia", for offertory "I Know that Thy Redeemer Liveth" and the postlude, "Triumphal March." The choir with Mrs. Gerald Clancy as director rendered two selections. The service closed with "O For A Closer Walk With God."

The Rev. W. G. Fletcher B.A. pastor of Rawdon circuit assisted with the evening service. The prelude was "A Prayer", offertory "A Melody of Prayer" and postlude, "The Crusaders". The Bible lesson was from Romans 12. St. Paul's Stirling junior choir under the direction of Mrs. Harold West and Mrs. David Duffin sang two selections.

The services closed with the theme "The Church's One Foundation is Jesus Christ the Lord."

LETTER:

An enquiry from a lady for different recipes for chicken done in the oven brought this letter on. I sent you, while you were in Britain, a recipe called Chicken Gourmet, which is so simple and delicious I believe this lady would appreciate it in the unusual ingredient is chili powder. Perhaps you might find it worth publishing now that meat is such a devastating price . . . I am sending a dandy recipe for salmon fritters that couldn't be more economical and makes a lot . . .

I am enclosing a fascinating apple pie . . . a nice sensation to cut open the paper bag and find the pie in perfect shape resting on it. Mrs. W.

SALMON FRITTERS (courtesy Rita W.)

1 cup flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, ½ cup milk, 1 egg, well beaten, ¼ teaspoon paprika, 1 tablespoon grated onion, parsley or green pepper, 1 7-oz. can salmon (any grade, drained and flaked.

Sift dry ingredients together. Stir in milk, then egg, rapidly. Add balance of ingredients. Heat fat to 360-370 deg. Fahr. Dip tablespoon full of batter, a spoonful of batter and slip into fat. Turn fritters as soon as they rise to top. Serve with hard-cooked egg sauce.

PAPER BAG APPLE PIE (courtesy Rita W.) . . .

1 unbaked 9" pastry shell, 3 or 4 large baking apples (about 1 lb.) (I used two peaches today — elegant. ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons flour ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Topping: ½ cup sugar, ½ cup flour, ½ cup butter.

Pare, core and quarter apples, then halve each quarter crosswise to make chunks (you should have about 4 cups) place in large bowl. Make filling: Combine first amount sugar, first amount flour and nutmeg in cup; sprinkle over apples; toss to coat well. Spoon into pastry shell; drizzle with lemon juice. Combine topping ingredients in small bowl cutting in butter and sprinkle over apples to form top. Slide pie into a heavy brown paper bag large enough to cover pie loosely; fold open end over twice and fasten with paper clips; place on large cookie sheet for easy handling. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour; split bag open, remove pie and cool on wire rack.

TIPS ON BON VOYAGE GIFTS

It's getting rather lonely around these parts;

All my friends — or so it seems — are taking advantage of off-season rates to fly to Paris, Rome and other fascinating tourist spots, both East and West.

Which, from the slight twinge of envy that goes along with each departure, there's also the problem of what sort of bon voyage gift to give. Although the plane is not going into orbit, the present has to be weightless — or almost so — and small enough to tuck into a handbag, pocket or airline case. Also — to be practical — it should have some connection with the trip and not just serve as an extra piece of baggage.

If you're in the same boat (land-locked, to be sure), here are a few suggestions that seem to fill the bill on all counts. All can be budget-priced.

The most expensive of the group we bought is a compact kit containing two plastic cups with individual heating units for warming water, instant coffee, soup, etc. The heating units have adapters. They can be used anywhere, no matter how the electricity is piped in. They come in an attractive tapestry-print case that has a convenient carrying handle. This was less than eight dollars.

Another handy gadget, and bigger than the palm of your hand, is a package containing a stretchable clothes line for hanging up stockings and undies after their nightly bubble bath. Pellets of detergent and a few plastic laundry clips are included.

For friends who want to look well-groomed at all times, there are packages of disposable tissues impregnated with cleanser that do a quick cleanup job. One type is just the right size for taking off make-up or just losing down a shiny nose before repowdering. Another large size can do a creditable job on hands and children's faces, as well.

Extremely practical, for friends who are not fluent in the language of the land they're visiting is a pre-stage of language cards that can be consulted readily when a quick reference is needed. There's one in Japanese, Russian, French and Spanish, to name but a few of the countries and the variety of situations they cover.

Another very handy item is a booklet that costs less than a dollar and covers everything the traveler should know about fiscance and rates of exchange in practically every country imaginable. In addition to listing foreign equivalents, it also offers a personalized touch by suggesting who should be tipped and how much, so the tourist can be sure he's doing the correct thing about this usually sensitive question.

Another "find" is a plastic case containing a number of vials for pills, a thermometer, and a drinking cup that's compact and collapsible. The pill vials, incidentally, have room in assorted colors to help a forgetful traveller remember what is in each.

Rally Day Service Well Attended

WHITE'S DISTRICT — Rally Day service was observed at White's Church on Sunday morning with members of the Sunday School assisting the superintendent, Mrs. Albert Jones and the Rev. T. F. Townsend.

A promotion service was held. Gillian Miller and Cheryl Knowlton were promoted from the primary class to the junior class after repeating in unison, "The Ten Commandments". Lynn McDonald, Heather McWilliam, Laurel Fehr, Linda Thompson and Jimmie Jones of the beginners' class were promoted to the primary class after singing, "Jesus Loves Me". All received certificates of promotion.

There was also a presentation of bronze attendance pins to Gwen Sickle and Cynthia Jones by their intermediate teacher Mrs. Lorne Hunt, to Wendy Jones, Kathy Jones, Donna Thompson, Penny Sickle and Barbara Ketchison of the junior class by their teacher Mrs. Lawrence Dafoe; to Debbie Hunting, Christine Jones and Helen Ketchison of the primary class by their teacher Mrs. Albert Jones; and to Heather McDonald, Vicky Sickle and Linda Thompson of the beginners' class by their teacher Mrs. Eric Jones. The Rev. Townsend commended all for their fine work.

Miss Gwen Sickle read the Scripture Isaiah 35 and led in the prayer.

The junior choir sang, "Jesus Loves the Children" and the senior choir rendered, "Thy Work, O God Needs Many Hands." Mrs. W. Jeffery presided at the piano.

The offering was taken by Masters Bill Hunt and Danny Sickle and is being used especially for Wonju hospital in Korea.

IF THE 'YES' VOTE WINS ON SEPT. 26, ANY SUITABLE BUSINESS IN BELLEVILLE MAY APPLY TO THE LIQUOR CONTROL BOARD FOR A LICENCE WITHOUT ANY FURTHER VOTE OF THE PEOPLE...

What is Meant By "Suitable Business?"

The Liquor Licensing Act reads, "The Board may, subject to part 111, issue a dining lounge licence to the proprietor or operator of any hotel dining room or OTHER DINING ROOM . . ." Chapter 38, Sec. 59. Further the Act defines a "dining room" as "part of a hotel, inn, restaurant or railway car provided with special accommodation . . ." Chapter 38, Section 2 (h).

How many more outlets for the sale of alcholic beverages do you want in Belleville? Remember that the family dollar, if spent for liquor cannot be spent on the necessary things of life. In Belleville alone $446,196.00 was spent for—Relief and Children's Aid in the past year. What proportion of this money was spent because of broken homes through alcoholic beverages?

OTHER FACTS TO CONSIDER

Young people may not be tempted to enter a beer parlor. It is not a glamorous place. The cocktail lounge with its attractive setting, dim lights and enticing music will tempt young people to indulge in intoxicating beverages.

- Alcoholism has increased 187% in Ontario in the ten years of Cocktail Lounges. (Ont. Alcoholism Research Foundation).
- 5,000 additional alcoholics are produced each year in Ontario (O.A.R.F.)
- $1,000,000,000. is spent on alcoholic beverages in Canada each year — $200,000,000. more than is spent on education.

"LAND OF THE SKY BLUE WATER"

"Before the coming of Europeans, Minnesota was occupied by two powerful Indian tribes, the Ojibways (or Chippewas) who occupied the northern portion and the region along the Mississippi River, and the Sioux (or Dakotas) who made their homes in the south and west."—Hammond's Universal World Atlas.

"Side walk cafes are becoming very popular in Toronto", a young Belleville man, now living in the city tells us. "They are in many unexpected parts of the town; in the crowded centre; or in quiet secluded areas".

Even London, we hear, has taken to — the outdoor pub. One publican says his pub's terrace was crowded on Christmas Day last year. "You'd thing open-air places wouldn't survive in this climate. But some of our customers take their pints outside when it's pouring. They say they like the fresh air and the sound of the patter-patter of rain on their brollies (umbrellas)."

So perhaps it isn't too surprising to find ourselves sitting at a side walk cafe à la Paris, here (however temporary), on the plaza of the new 49 story National Bank building in this beautiful spacious city of Minneapolis, Minnesota. For it is in honor of, a way of celebrating, the bank's first anniversary in its new towering quarters — and the coffee and refreshments are all on the house!

As we sit in awe of this pillar of 52,000 square feet of glass, in aluminum and steel exterior, the equivalent of 220 average size family residences, maintaining a 40-man housekeeping crew, we listen to one, who kindly explains how this bank, founded in 1857 when this city was only a frontier village, has been a "financial partner" in the growth, not only of Minneapolis, but of Minnesota which became a state in 1858. It also serves what is called the Upper Midwest, being a part of the Ninth Federal Reserve District, which includes North and South Dakota, Montana and North Wisconsin and Michigan.

How well it has fulfilled its role in the life of the community and district is evident in the many interesting stories of its work.

"Consider the story of two brothers who started a construction business here in 1875. Their first job was to improve navigation on the Minnesota River. Hand in hand with the westward expansion of the nation, by the end of the century they had built over 5,000 miles of railroad. Other work followed: stripping and mining operations on the Mesabi range, ore docks on Lake Superior, hydro-electric projects, waterways, bridges, industrial plants and highways everywhere in the western hemisphere. The entire eventful business history of the firm intermingles with the First National Bank.

"Then, too, the high quality of durum, hard spring wheats and other grains produced by the area's soil and climate, combined with the industry of Upper Midwest farmers have been major factors in building the Minneapolis Grain Exchange to its position as the world's largest cash grain market. This bank has had a key role in financing the movement, storing and marketing of Upper Midwest grain from the beginning of the exchange in 1851.

"How well the bank has performed task for estate owners and their families is attested by the fact that today it is serving the third and fourth generations of Minnesota families without interruption . . .

As we listen, the bank becomes more and more a symbol of a people's faith, hope and loyalty in their new land, and our thoughts begin to drift about this lovely state, once part prairie, part fruitful, the home and source of the mighty Mississippi River, sparkled with numerous lakes and everywhere, for us, made strangely familiar and animated by stories and adventures! Not of history books alone, but by that magic preface to stories pertaining to it, by my mother's: "When I was a little girl in Minnesota . . ." Here my mother was born. Here my maternal ancestors pioneered this splendid land.

It seems most fitting, that Minnesota and Ontario borders should touch. Fitting that two

RUPNOW — CARD

Large baskets of white and pink gladioli adorned the altar of Bethel Chapel, Belleville, on Saturday, recently, when Miss Marjorie Mavis Card, youngest daughter of Mrs. Frank Card and the late Mr. Frank Card, became the bride of Mr. Herman Clair Rupnow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Rupnow of Detlor, Ontario. Rev. Douglas Robinson of Bancroft officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Elmer Card of Bancroft, looked radiant in her full-length gown of silk with a cathedral train. The moulded bodice featured a square neckline and short sleeves of lace accented by a three-quarter length armlets. She wore a crown of white pearls with a shoulder-length veil and carried a large bouquet of pink roses and button mums mingled with ivy. A single pearl necklace completed her nuptial ensemble.

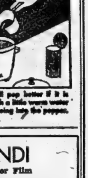
Her attendants included her nieces, Mrs. Marlene Franky of Bancroft, as matron of honor, Miss Kayla Shannik of Belleville, also Mrs. Paula Percy of Markham, Miss Marlene Fenton of Gananoque and Miss Fern Landry of Toronto. The matron of honor and bridesmaids were gowned in azalea silk, fashioned with short, full skirts accented by a panel of white lace down the front. The bodice featured cape necklines and short sleeves. They were pearl necklaces and lace gloves, gifts of the bride. The headdresses were rosettes with a short veil and they carried arm bouquets of white and azalea gladioli.

Two attendants of the bride, Miss Wanda Davidson of Belleville, Miss Elaine Card of Bancroft and the bridegroom's sister, Miss Shelley Rupnow of Detlor were flower girls. They looked sweet in their short white silk dresses and matching gloves and shoes and headdresses of rosettes and short veils.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Bert Donaldson, St. Thomas, as groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Wayne Rupnow of Detlor, Mr. Conrad Rupnow of Toronto, brothers of the bridegroom, Mr. Wayne Jenkins of Bancroft, nephew of the bride, and Mr. Norman Lehigh of Coe Hill. All were attired in white dinner jackets, black trousers and matching accessories. The bridegroom's gift to the attendants were jewel boxes.

During the ceremony Miss Noreen Brooks of Belleville sang "The Wedding Song" and "O Perfect Love" during the signing the register. Mrs. Brooks accompanied the soloist and provided the music for the entire ceremony.

The reception was held in Bethel Chapel parlor, where the guests were received by the bride and bridegroom, parents and members of the bridal party. The bride's mother chose a pale blue sheath of organza over taffeta embossed with white fabric flowers, set in surrounround accents in the large isbs of organza. She wore white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother was attired in a printed sheath of pale green and yellow organza over taffeta, white accessories and a corsage of bronze mums.



The bride's table was centered by a three-tier wedding cake decorated with roses on the top and sides. Silver candelabra with tall white candles and bridal bouquets completed this pretty setting. After the wedding breakfast was served the bridegroom honored his bride by singing "Because."

For travelling, the bride chose a white, three-piece linen suit trimmed with black, matching black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rupnow are residing at 265 Charles Street, Belleville.

Guests were present from St. Thomas, Toronto, Markham, Trenton, Belleville, Kingston, Gananoque, Madoc and Bancroft.

Previous to her marriage the bride was honored at a shower at the home of Mrs. Alan Berry and Edith Davidson of Belleville; at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Tom Card, Bancroft, and at an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. Malcolm Martin, Ormsby, where the bride was presented with a chest of silver.

Going Places

Tips to Help The Traveller Get Most Out of His Camera

By SHIRLEY & BOB SLOANE

About the only trouble with any trip is that no matter how long and pleasant it may be, eventually it ends. That's reason enough why nearly one out of three North Americans owns a camera.

Since no holiday is complete without pictures, here are some tips on getting the most out of that family's badge along over your shoulder.

1. Know your camera. If it's new, take a roll of exposures before your trip to familiarize yourself with its individual characteristics. No two cameras are exactly alike and you may find it necessary to adjust your technique. Exposure guides are general rules and frequently require modifications for different cameras.

If your camera is an older one, have it checked over and cleaned by a dealer. Make sure it's free from light leaks and that the spool isn't binding. Incorrect winding is ruining and the kind of pictures you intend to take, so he can also recommend appropriate lens and filters.

2. Know your subjects. No trip should be planned without some sightseeing up on the areas to be visited, or else you're as it bear in mind the famous landmarks of the places.

Eastman Kodak puts out an excellent series of guides to various parts of the world specifically for the picture taker, available at camera stores. They describe the most picture prone sights and give data on speed, lighting and other technical matters for each suggested subject.

PEOPLE ARE IMPORTANT

3. Use people to improve pictures. Anybody can buy a postcard of Notre Dame, but only you have to have your shot of your wife or friends standing in front.

Mountains and scenic shots have a way of appearing remote and lifeless without a foreground object, preferably people looking at the scene. Barring that, overhanging branches or foliage up front, or rocks or streams leading to distant view lend perspective and a professional touch.

In short, each picture should have an individual meaning to you that a postcard wouldn't.

4. Know the rules. There are restrictions on picture taking in museums, palaces and the like. Paris' Louvre lets you bring your camera in for a small fee, but it will be banned in the Vatican Museum. Most cathedrals prohibit picture taking inside. And stay away from military installations in sensitive areas unless you want to be photographing the local lockup from the inside looking out.

5. Don't be afraid to try difficult shots. A picture passed up for fear the lighting is inadequate is forever lost; if you take it anyway the worst that can happen is that you'll waste an exposure. You'd be surprised how often a decent picture comes out under adverse conditions.

6. Keep your pictures simple. The basic rule of good composition is not to clutter a shot. Several striking close-ups are better than one shot with too many elements. Your view finder will tell the whole story; seeing that you have a centre of interest in it will ensure a good start with lasting interest.

7. Use color for all its worth. Color film is only a little more costly than black and white today, and you'll deem it well worth the added expense when you see the bright red coats of the Buckingham Palace guards, the incredible pastels of the Southwestern desert or the delicately colored cactuses of South America's Indians.

Our own travels are all recorded on movies, and the presentations of reliving our trips on a screen are enjoyed the greatest rewards we've had. Everything springs to life with a quality we can't duplicate.

Fine movie cameras can be had for as little as $100 today in discount houses today. Even at full retail, 50 feet of color film, about 10 minutes, it can be bought and developed for $4.

Electric eye movie cameras, which take the guesswork out of setting lens apertures, can be had cheaply, too. However, you want to learn the idiosyncrasies of these since the eye can be "fooled" into an improper setting by side or back lighting.

DO YOU HAVE...

—a marital problem

—trouble with your children

—difficulty in budgeting your income

If so, the Children's Aid Society can be of help and invites you to talk it over with one of the members of its family service department staff. You will find them sympathetic and understanding of your problem and desirous only of helping you to help yourself. There will be no obligation on your part and you may terminate the contact at any time.

The Society's offices at 63 Moira St. West are open from 8.30 to 5.00 o'clock Monday to Friday each week. For your own convenience, it is suggested that you telephone for an appointment. Your call will be treated with complete confidence.

In Belleville this service to families is supported by the Belleville United Appeal.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Harriet Y. — He's dejected and I feel it's my fault.

Evan Y. — My best years are over and nobody can help me.

Harriet Y. — This is an embarrassing topic, but I want to determine whether Evan's depression is my fault and whether there's anything I can do about it.

He's, 47 and I'm 42. We've been married 26 years and have four married children. But he seems to get no pleasure out of the grandchildren, and has no enthusiasm for anything. I see other men, other couples making plans for trips, for new careers, for learning new skills. Not Evan. He just sits around the house, sighs, stares at TV but can't tell you what it's about.

Someone suggested to me that he may be worrying about his failing sex powers, and that it was up to me to make him feel stronger again. Maybe I should be bringing him to a doctor for medicine or treatment. I want to do my part, but Evan says forget it.

Evan Y. — Maybe if Harriet hadn't been so cold toward me in the early years, I'd feel closer to her now. But she always had a million excuses for keeping me far away. Either it was the children, or her headaches, or the weather, or she was tired. After a while I got to believe the real reason was that she couldn't stand me, that it was plain repulsive to her. Long ago I decided I'd forget about that part of life. I know others do and they get along okay. They get interested in lots of other things.

But my trouble is I can't get started on anything really gripping because I feel too alone. I can't put my heart into a hobby or visiting or even puttering because I feel I'm such a nobody, such a failure, that I can't help me now. Neither can a doctor. I'll stand by Harriet as her husband and companion. I'll go see the kids with her. But I know I'm just a has-been now.

The Council: Phonetically it's not a big jump for you, Evan, to move from "headache" to "husband." Psychologically, the leap may look like Everest! Yet, with a few gentle nudges from outside professionals, plus a surge of new hope from inside yourself, you may return coolly to Harriet's side within a few months. She's willing to help. The crucial "yes" must come from you.

And all you've been saying the last few years is "no." You've created your own emotional crisis through an exaggeration, a magnification of the importance of sexual potency in achieving a successful life. You are unduly conscious of wanting sexual capacity and unaware of the fact that the same condition exists among millions of other men in your age group. These expect it, accept it, adjust to it, and go on to live long, healthy and useful lives. Sexual activity becomes an individual, not a statistical, matter and should be easily relegated to its special niche in a treasure-house of interests.

While the do-it-yourself angle is the "right angle," the "professionals" mentioned should and should be invoked to brush away the cobwebs and reduce Evan's middle-age fogeyism. A doctor may help with hormones and chest-up pills (anti-depressents). A marriage counselor may, believe Harriet's good intentions and hold out assurance of improvement for Evan.

And there are excellent books available to hearten those who slump into hopelessness.

I'm sooner Harriet as to her "part," we'd say, applaud Evan, at every chance. Maybe with him over any small departure from his "rut" is a walk in the park, a cake-baking experiment. Plan interesting joint projects—anything you must do together — like move around the living-room furniture! Numbers a little, too. Eventually he'll stop feeling "repulsive" and realize you enjoy his presence as your mate.

Berlin Blockade Likely Asserts Refugee Colonel

BONN (AP) — The highest ranking East German Army officer ever to escape to the West said that he believes West Berlin will be subjected to a blockade after the Russians sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

"I have no concrete evidence that this will happen but I must make this assumption on the basis of conversations I had with higher ranking officers," Lt. Col. Martin Herbert Loeffler said at a press conference.

"I do not expect that a military operation will be taken against West Berlin because there have been no preparations for it," Loeffler said. "However, all units stationed around Berlin are kept ready for battle at all times."

Loeffler, a former regimental commander of the East German People's Army and a graduate of the Soviet Army's Frunze Officer Academy, fled to West Berlin Sept. 8.

Things to Do on Sunday

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—This problem is about Sunday afternoons. My mother and father both work hard on week days. So when Sunday comes they don't feel like going for a car ride, or inviting anybody in.

I am a teen-ager (14 years of age), so of course Sunday is supposed to be a good day for me. I call up friends to go out somewhere or do something, but they are gone to places with their parents or have planned something else.

I am really getting "fed up" with this routine. Would you have any suggestions for me?—FUN DREAMER.

* * *

DEAR DREAMER—In my book Sunday is family day. Sisters and brothers easily work up a barbeque or trip to nowhere, and Mom and Dad join in. But the girl who goes it alone has it tougher.

You are going to have to plan ahead. Take your pick.

1. One week ahead, invite three school pals for Sunday tea. Get Mom to let you prepare things yourself. She's tired.

2. Start a collecting hobby—buttons, coins, stamps, jugs, all rate high as collectors' items. Find a Sunday afternoon pal who will work with you on sorting, labeling.

3. Line up good reading, with the help of your librarian.

4. Bake one special thing on every fourth Sunday, following a recipe! When you get good at it, you'll be drawing friends to you—including boys.

5. Find out about Sunday concerts. Date up a friend well ahead to go with you.

Write again six weeks from now and share your successes with us.

DEAR DORIS—After ten years of happy marriage, my wife has left me, taking our three wonderful children with her to join her love in a distant province of Canada. He is considerably younger than she, and he has a devoted wife and five children at his own. They are almost penniless at the present time. For the past year I have suffered the agonies of a completely frigid woman for a partner.

My problem is that at forty I don't relish the prospect of endeavoring to find another soul mate in a dance hall or hotel lounge.

We left England five years ago endowed with the spirit of adventure. I have no relatives here. My wife accused me recently of being too perfect a husband. How can I meet a woman who has experienced a similar heartbreak and wants to live again?—ONLY HALF ALIVE.

DEAR ONLY—Dance halls don't attract the soul mate type. Heartbreaks, more likely.

The happiness you chase keeps dodging. But you need things to do. You can bring the other half alive with a new interest; a social group, sports activity, evening class.

Some volunteer work with boys, perhaps.

Get some ideas from your local Y. As you re-create, you circulate and you meet people. Women, too.

* * *

TO MISS BARBARA T.:—Please send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet on the profession of nursing.

* * *

(Don't just muddle along. Let Doris suggest a Canadian resource which can help you.)

An 'Incompetent' Young Mother Talks Back to Grandmothers

By THOMAS COLLINS

"Dear God, give me strength to realize my children are individuals not . . . that they need to be respected as well as loved.

"Make me wise enough to respect their intelligence, which I helped to mold, then leave them to decide their lives for themselves.

"Make me realize that the accident of birth does not make my children automatic servants to me, or make me a burden on them.

"Let me know how to cultivate their adult friendship, not try to buy it or hold their love by forcing on them a sense of responsibility . . ."

Thus begins the "Psalm of a Daughter-in-Law" that comes as answer to the "Psalm of a Widowed Mother" that appeared here a few weeks ago.

"I am a happily married woman," the daughter-in-law says. "We have three children. My husband and I are very sure that God has been good to us.

"But each of us was an only child, brought up mainly by our mothers alone. And according to our mothers we are ungrateful, extravagant incompetents. We have yet to be complimented by them on our success in marriage. We have had no help from either of them.

DIRE PREDICTIONS

"Of course we married against the wishes of our two mothers and amid all sorts of dire predictions as to the results. Both my husband and I heard that each of us was definitely not good enough for a mother's pride and joy. Remarks were dropped now and then as to when each of us could have married.

"No matter how hard I tried to please my husband's mother, or how hard he tried to please mine, it was always short of what the old folks expected.

"My husband was considered lazy and stupid. I was considered an inadequate homemaker. The general attitude toward us was that it was all 'such a shame'.

According to the daughter-in-law, a man and woman who love each other can survive the battle fought out by their elders parents, and still keep striving to please. But after a while the babies come along.

"Then the babies are being raised all wrong. What must the girl be thinking of? Does she have no sense? Or what a brute the husband is not to be of more help to the darling daughter! . . .

"Or, perhaps, says the daughter-in-law, the finances aren't being handled as the old folks think they should be. The problem is there for the young people to cope with, the complains, and cope with it they do. Until the old folks interfere and then it becomes a major problem.

MATTER OF GIFTS

Then there is the matter of gifts from the old folks. "Sometimes they are completely useless, but the old folks expect them to be treasured for life. Even a toy given to the baby must be treasured. Let it be broken, even though it was cheap and impractical to start with, and it's a blow right at the old folks' heart."

Continues the daughter-in-law: "The saddest part of all this is that the son or daughter manages to marry happily despite the parental objections, manages to overcome parental criticism with a thick skin, raise responsible children who somehow meet the approval of the grandparents despite the terrible treatment they have suffered at the hands of incompetents, and then . . . and then here' what happens . . . the grandparents take full credit for all that is good and wish to be thanked and worshipped for their so-called undying help and devotion.

"Then they wonder why we don't visit them, why we don't pay constant attention to them. They never realize that because of the way they have acted, and now act, we may not find their company pleasant . . .

Are you listening, Grandma?

"Get your teeth off of that dial."

Dear Henry—I am a boy 11 years old. One of my friends taught me how to crack my knuckles. I started to do it and it formed a habit which I can't break. My mother and father tell me to stop it but I keep doing it without knowing I'm doing it... Please tell me how I can stop.—KNUCKLE-CRACKER.

Dear Knuckle-Cracker — If I taught you to pull your hair out, would you keep on doing it? No, you would stop. So stop.

But if you don't have enough will power, go around with boxing gloves for a while. —HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am a boy of twelve and I have a crisis on my hands. I like a girl friend who is the same age as me and we both like each other very much. But here is the problem: She is about half a foot taller than me. What should I do when I take her to dance; let her lead?—DESPERATE.

Dear Desperate—Your system is solved. You are too young to go dancing anyway. By the time you are as tall as her, you will be the right age.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—My friends always ask me who my girl friends are and I say that I haven't got any. But they still ask me. —POOR ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD.

Dear Poor Old—Tell them that you are madly in love with Josephine Skinner who lives in Rumbledorf and they will leave you alone.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I have a couple of friends who treat me like I was poison! One of them used to be nice but now he is a spoiled brat. The other one is just a brat. To name all the things they've done would take up your whole column!

They've even broken into my strongbox and looked up a certain address of a celebrity I know! They are wild and uncontrollable in the house. Before one of them turned so angry I invited him up to our cottage. He still thinks he is going. What should I do?

They also try to ditch me on their bikes. I have one too and when I catch up to them they always say: "Two is a company, three is a crowd." What should I do?

P.S.—They usually try to smile their way out. Their teeth are a mighty big target.—GEORGE.

Dear George—Tell the kids you invited that the date is off. But before you call them up to tell them that you don't want to be their friend any more, look at yourself. Maybe you are stuck up and spoiled. Maybe you are poison to them.

Dear Henry—I am 14 and I like a boy 14. I would like him to like me too. I think he does but how can I tell he likes me if he doesn't tell me?—MISS M. H. W.

Dear Miss M. H. W.—Run one of those proof tests over a one-month period and count how many times he smiles at you: 25 or more smiles is booked, 15 to 25 is as good as booked, 10 to 15 keep trying, 5 to 10 hang on, 3 to 5 don't give up, 1 to 2 skip it.—HENRY.

Now Best Time to Plant Yews

By FLORA M. HAVILEY

Did you know that there are over 50 species, varieties and selections of yews? Basically speaking, however, all of them fall like these general growth habits: conical, spreading and columnar. This is the best time of the year to plant all evergreens and if evergreens are your list do consider the yews.

The Japanese upright yew is a general favorite for many uses. It can be used as a foundation plant if pruned properly each year. Single specimens can be kept at six or seven feet tall.

The spreading Japanese yew which has been a standby for years is passing out of the picture because it grows too rapidly and requires too much pruning. More compact forms of the same plant are now available. These have many names but if you ask your nurseryman for a compact spreading yew he will know what you need. The compact type grow two to three feet high and five to six feet wide. If you need an even smaller spot the dwarf Japanese yew is the one for you. Do emphasize the "dwarf" when you order.

The prototype of the columnar group is the well proportioned and hardy "Hicks' yew". Others include the Hatfield and Moon varieties. They do have an upright growth habit but should be pruned occasionally.

GROW IN SHADE

Yews will grow in the shade where junipers and dwarf pines fail. They do require excellent drainage and good soil. Before setting a plant out dig out the soil to one foot deeper than the ball of earth around the plant.

If you have heavy clay soil dig deeper and put in a few shovels full of fine gravel before fill in one foot with good top soil mixed with plenty of humus material. This can be peat, ground corn cobs, or leaf mold. Add a couple of cupfuls of general purpose fertilizer and mix in with the soil. Set the yew at the same level in the soil that it was in the nursery. Pack the soil well around the root ball and keep well watered until the yew is established. They will need extra water through the first summer after planting.

As soon as the yews fall, deciduous trees except the flowering dogwood, birch, magnolia tulip tree and sweet gum may be moved. Keep them well watered and loosen them and tie thoroughly to prevent winter winds from loosening the roots in the soil. No plant food should be applied at time of planting but work it into the feeder roots but it can be placed out a short distance where new roots will reach it in the spring.

SOFTBALL

Softball fans who made a point of staying away from the Belleville Fairgrounds this summer will get their last chance to see the district's two top clubs in action tonight.

Joyce Real Estate and the RCAF Flyers, who have battled each other tooth and nail since last spring, clash in the seventh and deciding game of the B. and D. finals at eight o'clock at the Fairgrounds.

The Flyers, who have shown more spirit than Joyce's in the titular series to date, will send pitching ace Mike Rainabniak to the mound. Joyce's will counter with Pat "Perfect Game" Maracle in what should be a great climax to the season.

No more than two runs have separated the clubs in any game of the series yet and tonight's battle promises to be even tighter. Two games have gone into extra innings.

The Real Estaters have led the series twice, 2-1 and 3-2, but the Trenton club, giving all its got in an attempt to win its first playoff championship, has come through twice in the clutch to even the count.

Tonight's game will settle the issue, once and for all, and those close to the scene look for one of the hardest fought battles in years.

Arrangements were made today to have the presentations of the Jim Barriage and the Herbie Henn Memorial Trophies made at tonight's game.

Pat Maracle won the Barriage Trophy as the league's Most Valuable Player and Jackie Elliott won the Henn Trophy for the Most Gentlemanly and Sportsmanlike Player. Both are repeat winners from last year.

Elsewhere tonight, Lightfoot Construction will attempt to wrap up the Commercial League championship against Trudeau Motors at the CNRA Park at six o'clock. Lightfoots lead the best-of-seven set three games to one. If Trudeau's win tonight, the sixth game goes Monday night, same park, same time.

The game bloomed on the duck front beneath a sullen rain-drooling sky this morning. The almanac says out in force along the bay fronts and other haunts.

I heard a blast of gunfire a few minutes past six, long before Ole Sol was due to lighten the horizon and the sky at this time was blacker than the inside of a whale. What the blaster was shooting at I don't know unless it was some of those oversize mosquitos that frequent the bay in spots.

Let's hope it is a good season despite the actions of illegal baiters. A good season lies mostly with the hunters. A real hunter is a conservationist—he does not kill indiscriminately, he obeys the law. He also protects the forest—is careful of fire.

E. W. Ferguson of the Department of Lands and Forests, has issued some timely "Do's" and "Don'ts" for hunters. If they are followed every hunter will have a good season.

THE DO'S

Get permission prior to hunting on private property. It is very easy to be a gentleman when talking to a landowner. Try it!

Take legal limits only!

Be a good sportsman. Share your game with the landowner. After all he did feed it all summer!

Adhere to laws pertaining to game. Please don't shoot the redhead and canvasback ducks.

Be careful with firearms as your hunting buddies would like you to hunt again.

Carry the necessary hunting licence and show it to your conservation officer on request. Don't be abusive. He's only doing his job.

THE DON'TS!

Fences have a specific use. Don't break them down. Don't use abusive language when talking to property owners. This creates the impression that scruples are limited.

Don't exceed limits just because the opportunity presents itself. Game is not aware of legislative limits.

Don't be a game hog as they are not welcome in the forests and haunts.

Don't throw away lighted matches or smoking material or you will not be hunting next year as game cannot live on bare rock.

Don't cross fences or other obstructions with loaded firearms as it takes at least another 20 years to produce another sportsman.

Wills One Shy Of Cobb Rob Record

Giants Game Full Game

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Maury Wills, Los Angeles Dodger flash, tallied by one Friday night to equal Ty Cobb's modern major league record for stolen bases, 96, as the Dodgers lost to St. Louis Cardinals 11-3 in their 154th game of the National League season.

The loss, combined with San Francisco Giants' 11-5 triumph over Houston Colts, trimmed the Dodgers' league lead to three games over the Giants. Each has eight games to go.

Wills stole once, his fifth base, in the only really good chance he had against the Cardinals, but needed two to equal and three to break Cobbs' record, set in 1915 with Detroit Tigers of the American League. With eight games to go, he's almost certain to surpass it.

CAN SET MARK

The Mets are virtually certain to set a mark for the most games lost in a season. But it'll be in 162 games not, 154. Going into their 154th game Friday night, they had a share of the modern National League mark, 116 set by the 1935 Boston Braves.

The Mets beat Chicago Cubs 4-1. The modern major league record is 117 by the 1916 Philadelphia Athletics. Cleveland Indians, then in the National League, lost 134 games in 1899 for the all-time mark.

Milwaukee Braves beat Pittsburgh Pirates 7-3 behind Warren Spahn and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Cincinnati Reds 5-4.

Sandy Koufax on the sidelines more than two months with a circulatory ailment of the index finger on the left hand, was a surprise starter for the Dodgers against St. Louis. He lasted less than an inning.

He walked three men before Charley James hit a grand-slam homer. It was Koufax' sixth loss against 16 victories this season.

SIMMONS THE VICTOR

James' blow was more than enough margin for Curt Simmons (9-9). Simmons tossed a five-hitter.

Willie Mays led the Giants' 18-hit assault on five Houston pitchers with three singles and a double in four trips to the plate as San Francisco kept alive its flickering pennant hopes.

Spahn (16-14) tossed an eight-hitter for the Braves. It was the 325th career victory for the Milwaukee veteran, one short of Eddie Plank's record for left-handers.

Laycoe Buys Leaf Contract

Gerry Goyer To Portland

VICTORIA (CP)—Coach Hal Laycoe of Portland Buckaroos announced Friday that the Western Hockey League team has purchased the contract of centre Gerry Goyer from Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

GERRY GOYER

Goyer, 25, played with Los Angeles Blades of the WHL last season on loan from Toronto. He was leading the league in scoring at mid-season when he suffered a severe hand cut that kept him out of action until the closing weeks of the schedule.

Goyer finished high up in the scoring, despite the injury.

Four Teams Reach 90 Win Mark

CINCINNATI (AP)—When the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Cincinnati Reds Thursday night, it marked the first time in National League history that four teams reached the 90-victory mark in fewer than 154 games.

Thursday's victory was the 90th for the Pirates, League-leading Los Angeles has won 89 games, San Francisco 85 and third-place Cincinnati 84.

The National League said there were only 10 seasons before 1962 when as many as three teams won 90 games. The last time this happened was in 1956 when the finishers were Brooklyn, Cincinnati and the Milwaukee Braves.

SELLS CENTRE

Twins, Angels Miss Chance

Yanks Lose Game, Gain Ground

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the round-and-round-we-go American League pennant race the latest stars are Deacon Jones and Pete Ward.

Jones, lashed a single with the bases loaded in the seventh inning that broke a 2-2 tie and carried Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 triumph over Minnesota's second-place Twins.

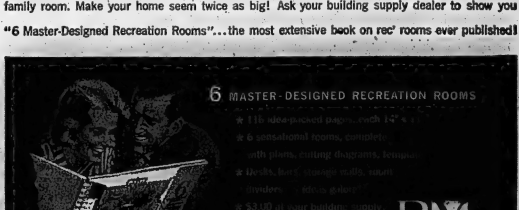
Although the Yankees lost, they managed to gain ground in their battle for their 13th pennant in 14 years. The loss put the Twins 4½ games behind.

Now any combination of three New York victories and/or Minnesota defeats will clinch it for the Yankees. The Yankees have seven games remaining, the Twins six.

The third-place Los Angeles Angels also lost an opportunity to cut into the Yankee bulge, losing 9-6 to Cleveland Indians when John Romano drove in the tie-breaking runs in the ninth inning. The Angels trial by 7½ games with eight left to play.

Detroit Tigers defeated Kansas City Athletics 6-1 behind Don Mossi's five - hit pitching and Boston Red Sox downed Washington Senators 6-1.

The Yankees carried a 6-1 lead into the ninth. Then the White Sox erupted. Wellie Fox and Camilo Carreon singled and Bob Roselli followed with a double that scored one run. Luis Aparicio walked to load the bases and Joe Cunningham cleared them with a double. Floyd Robinson walked and Al Smith drove in the tying run with a double. Jim Landis then was intentionally walked and rookie Jones came to the plate to his winning single.



Camilo Pascual (19-10), seeking his 20th victory for the Twins, was locked in a 1-1 duel with Robin Roberts (10-8) when the Orioles started to roll in the Water 'Seagoing Madhouse'

Weatherly's Weather For Big Race

By JIM BECKER

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — It's usually eliminate Australian hopes.

Australia's course, but Weatherly's weather for the crucial 70-mile race of the America's Cup series today.

Australia's Gretel must win, or almost completely, to keep hope of taking the 111-year-old 'Big Ear' away from the United States for the first time.

The greatest cluster of spectator boats in the history of the competition is on hand—some 5,000—and if the weather holds they will turn the waters off this historic city into a seagoing madhouse.

President and Mrs. Kennedy will be among the 50,000 expected spectators. Mrs. Kennedy has seen all three races from the deck of the destroyer Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. The president missed the third one.

Gretel I can be the defender if Weatherly grabbed the opener today or Saturday by a half mile, and the third race Thursday by a mile. Gretel captured the second one Tuesday, by about 150 yards, and immediately became the favorite in the best-of-seven series, which has been widely rated a runaway for Weatherly before the sails were hoisted.

NEZZO WIN

Gretel's win was the first for a challenger since 1934. A second would pump still more life in the 12,000,000 Australian challenge, but a defeat, running the U.S. margin to 3-to-1, practically Today's race is over the triangular course, the same one used Tuesday when Gretel scored her triumph.

The two races have proved that this is the best course for Gretel, which has had trouble matching Weatherly sailing into the wind. There is only one windward leg in the triangle.

But the Australians also need stiff wind since Gretel drives better in those, and the forecast is for lighter breezes. The weatherman predicts a gentle, variable breezes, freshening during the race to "at least" 10-to-15 knots. But that's probably not enough for Gretel.

The Australians had Gretel out Friday, hunting for light air. They still are testing, and learning things about the boat that it is generally felt that they have exercised their privilege of asking for a day off after every race, in order to gain more time for repairs, and also to try out things that they have learned in the last race.

Members of the American crew had the day off Friday, but most of the time was spent tinkering with Weatherly.

Neither boat is afraid of any weather excuses for the fourth race.

"It doesn't make any difference to us," said Mosbacher.

"If it will help the lads we'll give them a go," said Doug Fairfax, spokesman for Gretel.

Testimonial Dinner

NHL To Honor Adams

WINNIPEG (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, announced Friday that the NHL will hold a testimonial dinner for Jack Adams, general manager of Detroit Red Wings who retired last April after 39 years with the NHL club. The dinner will be held in Detroit this year but no date has been set.

Campbell, here on a business visit, said the date probably will be decided at the NHL's semi-annual meeting at Toronto Oct. 5.

The 66-year-old Adams retired April 26 after 44 years in the NHL as player, coach and general manager. His retirement came one month after Red Wings completed their season on the outside of the Stanley Cup playoffs for only the second time in 25 years.

"The failure this year had nothing to do with it," Adams said at the time. "I never work under fire and I'm not doing it now."

Builder of one of the NHL's most powerful dynasties in the 1950s, he had the Wings to seven Stanley Cup championships and 12 first place finishes in 25 years he ran the club.

Adams went to Detroit in 1927, a year after the city joined the NHL. The Wings won the Stanley Cup in 1936 and then captured an unequalled seven straight NHL championships through 1948-55.

Eric Wins Over Stasiak

By GEO. H. CARTER
Sports Editor

Awarded Bout By Official

Yukon Eric, that lovable good-natured lumberjack who teased on railroad ties, basked in the warm smile of Lady Luck last night.

At the same time you must give the heavy-bore'd son of the Arctic slopper credit for some quick thinking.

Stan Stasiak, billed as the "Arvida Assassin," dug the grave of his own defeat, so to speak.

He had the first fall of the three-session main bout tucked away and had fallen victim to Eric's painful backbreaker hold in the second bassie.

Portly referee Bert Maxwell had been having it fairly easy up to this point. The boys weren't giving him too much trouble although he did have difficulty at times getting out of the way.

At the same time a referee has his rights and no big wrestling buckaroo is going to take a poke at him and get away with it.

But he should be careful and not stand directly behind one of his charges while the opposition is throwing punches, as his jaw.

That is what happened. Stasiak was careering Eric's jaw with a big fist when suddenly Yukon chuckled, Stasiak fist caught Maxwell flush on the button and down he went.

Stasiak immediately went to his aid, assisting him to his feet and apologizing profusely.

This started Eric thinking, apparently. When Maxwell it seem-ed, wat not looking. Eric grabbed Stasiak and flung him into the official. Both went down like a ton of brick.

Maxwell didn't "believe the Stasiak story this time and promptly awarded the fall and the bout to Yukon.

Popular Tony Marino had the face shouting lustily for him in his hour with Bill "The Brute" Semmerlenko.

The pair battled to a thirty-minute time limit draw in a show that produced plenty of action. "The Brute" failed to bring his extra weight, some 80 pounds, to the best advantage with the agile Marino keeping him on edge with a flicking hand to the face.

Gino Marella bested Howard Martion after sixteen minutes of a lively preliminary bout.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Punch Imlach should learn Montreal Canadiens' secret.

Canadiens have no contract problems. They signed defenceman Lou Fontinato Friday, the last regular to come to terms.

Some Leafs are unhappy about making a western road trip before completing negotiations, but Imlach, the managing coach, said all would make the trip, signed or unsigned.

The Toronto team left Friday and all eligible players, signed or unsigned, were on the plane.

Imlach said he will negotiate with players during the tour.

Canadiens cut their 46-man squad by 15 players Friday and expect to cut more after today's Red-White intra-squad game at Verdun, their training camp at Montreal suburb.

BOES TO BALONS

Centre Bill Masterton, a promising forward who played with Hull-Ottawa in the Eastern Professional League last year, has been sent to Cleveland Barons. He goes as part of a new agreement Habs have with the American League club.

Defencemen Terry Harper, Don Cherry, Chuck Hamilton, Bob Olajos and John Gravel, and forwards Doug Senior, Reg Mollenhauer and Harold White were sent to Hull-Ottawa.

Forward Bill Isbell, 32, last year with Minn. Rangers in the EPHL, has retired from professional hockey on the ad-vice of Canadiens. He would have been relegated to the low minors.

At Boston Bruins camp, coach Phil Watson is singing the praises of defenceman Tommy Williams, the blond forward from Duluth, Minn., who played with the team the last part of last season.

MAY BE FIRST

Williams, who played with Kingston in the EPHL for two seasons, could become the first U.S. player to play regularly in the NHL since Frank Brimsek and Johnny Mowers more than a decade ago.

The other three NHL clubs, Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers, will open their regular teams in exhibition games Friday.

Rangers, in a game at Nanaimo, whipped Vancouver Canucks 5-2 on Thursday.

At Brandon, Man., Detroit has Wren farmhands from Edmonton 5-4.

Black Hawks won their third exhibition in a row, walloping their AHL Buffalo Bisons 6-1 at Welland, Ont.

FABULOUS GOLDEN OPERETTA SERIES COMING TO BELLEVILLE

Probably the most exciting news of the year for lovers of great musical entertainment is the announcement by the Belle Theatre of the presentation of a series of the world's greatest Operettas, starting Thursday, October 11th. The Belle Theatre by special arrangement, selected from the treasury of M.G.M.'s masterpieces, the four most famous musical entertainment. They bring to the big screen beloved singing stars in renowned romantic Operettas.

The Belle Theatre parade of Golden Operettas begins with the magnificent production of Rudolf Friml's masterpiece "Rose Marie," the story of a beautiful girl of the woods tamed by a handsome Canadian Mountie. Rich with songs it features a spectacular Indian ballet and was filmed amidst the beauty of the Canadian Rockies. This will be followed on Thursday, October 18th, by "The Chocolate Soldier," Oscar Straus' brilliant Operetta, a fast moving musical story of a married stage couple who see a triumph in the theatre but were domestically complicated by the flirtatious wife and the jealous husband. On Thursday, October 25th, "The Merry Widow", the celebrated Franz Lehar achievement with its bold story of society and intrigue in romantic Paris. Thursday, November 1st, brings Sigmund Romberg's most beloved Operetta "The Student Prince," with the glorious voice of Marie Lanza heard in this beautiful romance of the ill-fated prince who loved a Prince, studying incognito at Germany's famed Heidelberg. A rare treat on Thursday, November 8th, "The Great Waltz" Johann Strauss' heartstabbing love story of old Vienna told in spectacle and glorious music. A fitting climax to one of the most memorable events in the Belle Theatre history, the Operetta series concludes with its sixth presentation on Thursday, November 15th, with Victor Herbert's romantic Operetta "Naughty Marietta," the dismissed French Princess seeking escape from a marriage of state and her romantic adventures in old New Orleans.

Among the great singing stars who will appear in the Belle Theatre series of Golden Operettas are Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Rise Stevens, Howard Keel, Ann Blyth, Maurice Chevalier and an extraordinary treat, the singing voice of Marie Lanza. The memorable songs of love and destiny that crowd this remarkable Operetta series are thrilling to look forward to. Space makes it impossible to list their full but among them are: "My Hero," "Rose Marie, I Love You," "The Merry Widow Waltz," "I'm Falling in Love With Someone," "Tales of the Vienna Woods," "Deep In My Heart," "Indian Love Call," "Drink, Drink, Drink" "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" and many more.

The first of the golden Operettas, "Rose Marie" will be presented for one performance only on Thursday, October 11th, at 8.15 p.m. at the Belle Theatre. The other Operettas will be presented on each Thursday for five consecutive weeks. For convenience of its patrons, the management has arranged a special price for the entire series, now on sale at the Belle Theatre box office. Seats may be obtained at the box office at any time for individual Operettas including the day of the performance.

That the Belle Theatre has been chosen as one of the first theatres in Canada to offer the Golden Operetta series to its patrons is a tribute to this area and to the Belle Theatre management.

Maureen O'Hara Becomes An Expert on Motherhood

By DORE KLEIN

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Maureen O'Hara, the screen's most successful mother, was talking about motherhood in her soft Irish brogue.

"A housewife slopped me the other day and said, 'How am I goin' to compete with you? My husband adores you. How do you have to be such a glamorous mother?'

"So I asked how many children she had. Four she told me, and I said to her, 'Why, isn't that wonderful. It shows how much your husband must love you!'

At 30, the onetime Irish colleen—who looks 25—has become an expert on motherhood.

She's had 20½ children and three grandchildren. One was adopted. A couple died at birth. She's even had a set of twins.

But all but one—her 18-year-old daughter, Bronwyn Bridget, were conceived in love.

Bronwyn is her daughter by her divorce-ended marriage to the late producer, Will Price.

The others were the offspring of film liaisons with such famed husbands as Rex Harrison, John Wayne, Robert Young, Tyrone Power, Fred MacMurray, James Stewart and Henry Fonda.

The butt chide!

"Harry Hollis. She played twins in Parent Trap.

"I've even been Natalie Wood's mother — twice," she added, "in Miracle on 34th Street and Father was a Pullback.

All this motherhood has given a new resurgence to Maureen's career, usually confined in early days to the hoop-skirted heroine in such swashbucklers as Spanish Main.

She's been a mother in her last five films. In her latest, Spencer's Mountain with Henry Fonda, they're parents of nine.

"I think this kind of movie is a lot better than those terrible things you wouldn't take your children to," Maureen said. And they're making money.

Snatch 36-32 Win

Stamps Defeat Riders

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Calgary Stampeders ran dizzying patterns around and through a befuddled Ottawa defence Friday like Ukrainian dancers to matched a 36-32 victory from the Riders in a rousing Canadian Football League encounter before 16,265 frozen fans.

Calgary quarterback Eagle Day completed 20 of 29 passes to wide-open receivers for 330 yards and had none intercepted. With 10 minutes left and Calgary ahead 28-26, substitute quarterback Russ Jackson of the Rider 33. The Stamps had a touchdown in six ground plays. Riders came back for another touchdown with two minutes left but time ran out on them.

The victory moved second-place Calgary within three points of the leading Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Western Conference. Riders, dropping their third game in a row after four straight victories, remain three points behind the first-place Hamilton Tiger Cats in Eastern Conference.

SCORES TWO TDS

Rookie halfback Jim Dillard from Oklahoma State scored two Calgary touchdowns on 36-yard and 56-yard passes from Day.

Import halfback Lovell Coleman plunged one yard before for two more Calgary touchdowns and import halfback Ed Buchanan scored the other on an eight-yard sweep around left end.

Larry Robinson kicked four converts and Walt Weaver two singles to round out Stampeders' scoring.

Astrological Forecast

For September 23

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (March 21 to April 19): Key is confidence. You can spread your influence. You gain from heeding advice of spiritual mentor. Let both sensitivity and aggressiveness come to fore.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Slight irritations should be accepted for what they are, not build into deep-seated resentments. Take time to meditate and day works out as valuable one for you.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Excellent for fulfilling duties, including pursuit of hobbies. Good, too, for short drives, picnics, contacts with persons who were close to you in past.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): More can be accomplished with heart-to-heart talk than might be imagined. In financial matters, put cards on table. State exactly what you want, then results are favorable.

Leo (July 23 to August 21): High point in cycle means independence of thought, action stressed. Use time to "hold back". Persons you meet at church, during social gathering play important role in your future.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23): What you feel inwardly and the way you respond outwardly may be two different things. Be sure you are not fooling yourself. Don't let minor argument mature into major dispute.

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Favorable lunar aspect today emphasizes fulfillment of wishes. Spiritual mentor could provide "missing key." You may be inconvenienced in performing task for friend. But you will be repaid, two fold.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Irritations can be overcome if you take care of faults which have been allowed to "slide." Otherwise, you "snap" at those closest to you. Tonight very good for quiet meditation.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Probe deep into reason for decisions. You may find startling yet constructive answers. Push for creative changes, ideas. Don't stand in "rut." Day can be turning point towards success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Excellent for being with family, for sharing hopes, ambitions. No time to shut out those who want to be close to you. Day could feature rekindling of tender feelings.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): There is every opportunity today for discovering the family around you, including family members. Keep mind and heart open. You will be able to "see" friendships better.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Pressure resulting from recent actions begins to fade. You gain confidence by taking time to sum up present situation. Family provides cheer. Permit yourself relaxation.

If today is your birthday you are not an easy person to fool. But you do have a tendency to fool yourself. Often you permit others to "lean" on you.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle up for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Emphasis today is on evaluating past so that greater progress can be made in future.

For September 24

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Retrograde Mercury means that "plans" are clear of legal complications. Evaluate decisions, actions. Refuse to give in to whims, either yours or those of loved ones.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't become irritated and play into hands of those who prefer to see you unhappy. Be calm. Maintain sense of humor. Month on cycle. Be beatnesslike. Avoid emotionalism.

Gemini (May 22 to June 21): Minor setback in romance may eventually prove a boon. Main thing is to learn from experience. Better day for finishing projects than for initiating action.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Be definite in setting purposes, goals. Take shortest route to destination. Don't be sidetracked by persons who do not know the facts. Have confidence in your own judgment. Stick to original decisions.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Cycle up but you see what you want to see today. Good if you outline "vision" to undertaker-ment. Do not invest time, money in illusions. Think, and plan ahead.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): "Tremendous opportunity to "spread your wings." You can prove to associates that you are capable in many directions. No time to be wallflower. Show off ability. Express opinions.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Mercury retrograde emphasizes your unwillingness to come out of shell. You must shake off tendency to be overly modest. Speak up. Make an effort.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Make a "game" of challenge today. What at first appears setback can be transformed into vital victory. If you have sense of humor and imagination you can win allies.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Questions in day ahead you are willing to give. For there are those who are very willing to take. Be practical in affairs of the heart. Otherwise, you are asking for a fall.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20). Friend out of the past reappears. You benefit from advice received. There may also be financial aid. Be quick to be grateful for what you possess and to make vow to eliminate hurtful actions.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Sudden awareness of responsibility means you are able to perceive what was needed, and what can be discarded. This applies to people and material possessions.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Put an end to expenditures which bring no return. Be practical rather than sentimental. Day when you should be willing to end associations which represent emotional drain.

If today is your birthday . . . you are capable of bringing together opposing forces and making them appreciate each other. Look for upswing in cycle, beginning October.

General Tendencies: Ways are found for making opposing forces give to majority view for harmony. But news features numerous "close calls."

ANNOUNCES FIND

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — An archeologist said Thursday night he had unearthed "very important" finds in south Jordan which confirmed his belief that Moses was buried nearby.

Professor Julio Ripamonti of Caracas University declined to detail the finds but said his present work at Wadi Ahsi, 21 miles south of Amman, included the possibility of turning up the tomb of Moses.

BANKS ONCE

The commission has already heard testimony from Michael Sheehan, the former Assistant Lieutenant of Mr. Banks, that the GIU granted "sweetheart deals" to CSU and Steamships because while harassing other shipping firms.

Mr. Greaves said it was a very common rumor" in Montreal that Mr. Banks was a silent partner in the Reoch line, holding stock in the company. But Mr. Justice Norris barred testimony based on rumors.

Maurice Wright, lawyer for the Canadian Labor Congress, then asked Mr. Greaves if he had ever questioned Mr. Banks about the reports he was a silent partner of the Reoch line.

Mr. Greaves said he put the question once to Mr. Banks but never got an answer.

Later in cross-examining the marine engineers union leader, CSU lawyer Bruce Thomas suggested that friendly relations maintained by the GIU with CSU and Reoch Steamships could be explained by the close personality of the company and union officers—all within a block of one another in Montreal.

Under cross-examination by Charles Dubin, chief commission counsel, Mr. Greaves admitted that he did little to protest against violent picketing tactics while he was friendly with the GIU.

"You were prepared to use those tactics on occasion on behalf of your own union?" asked Mr. Dubin.

"Maybe because I was being expedient," replied Mr. Greaves.

lence following a conviction last year and of conspiring to obtain police information illegally, a charge based on an allegation made by him to a member of the OPP anti-gambling squad. The case is under appeal.

DENIES EVERYTHING

The 36-year-old Feeley denied before the commission every thing that came up concerning that charge. He also denied another earlier accusation that he and McDermott were behind a big clubs near Windsor and Niagara Falls—clubs that with Cookeville were the chief threats to the flesh of the anti-gambling branch until they all folded in recent years.

While he reported no income for taxes higher than $21,000 in any year and said an estimate of a $50,000 McDermott-Feeley take from one crapshooting week in 12 months was too high, he testified on summary from a Quebec City club came to him last year for help in raising a $600,000 or $800,000—the figure he could not remember long.

He didn't swing it, he said, but he indicated that for a man with a Grade 9 education who was doing 20 days for vagrancy at 17 years of age, $21,000 was high.

The $50,000 police seized in his apartment when they arrested him in 1960 was about the amount of ready cash he knew at hand. He put up his $50,000 cash bail after his conviction (before he went to jail when the appeal court took his case under advisement). He and McDermott made a $60,000 profit on an apartment purchase deal. Not being a record keeper himself, he wasn't sure but he thought his share went towards his helicopter.

DOESN'T GIVE IT

And a company named Leigh Securities, he testified, reimbursed him and McDermott $30,000 for those missing stock certificates that had been found, as due to go up west down the line. Reason for the guarantee was not given.

Feeley testified he and McDermott were known to buy mining ventures of lots and over a period of years have bought some 400 mining claims. They are major stock owners in Lake Dufault Mines, a mine company called Kron, have the ballcarrier brand, and for explora. tion work and once recovered, but never operated, a uranium property.

Commission proceedings were adjourned an hour this week while Feeley kept a court date to get a remand on a charge of check fraud in connection with Kron.

The businessman - gambler was issued with only a faint aroma of incipient violence before the commission, and he hastened to deny a suggestion that he enlisted muscular John Sebastian, Jr., of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., in addition to associates who might have been able to clear up obscure points.

If the commission in its dealings with a now - loquacious Feeley, was still where it left off last June 6, when he refused to talk at all without a Supreme Court of Canada order, it was not for lack of trying. Friday, Mr. Justice Rossi tried to pin him to the wall on whether he had ever told anyone that he got information from John Cronin, now a well-heeled Kingston model operator, when he was head of the OPP anti-gambling squad.

Feeley, saying what looked like a tape recording under the commissioner's hand, said he had not told anyone he got it and in any case he couldn't recall for sure if he had said that.

RESENDS OF EPISODE

It was the nearest he came to losing his imperturbability, and it was somewhat reminiscent of an episode earlier this year when Sammy Balsom, a St. Catharines bookie and reputed peddler of protection for McDermott and Feeley, was denying everything in sight until the OPP turned up with records of Balsom conversations broadcast from a former pal's pocket transmitter.

As a result, it was announced in June that the Crown would not proceed with charges against Balsom, Feeley also touched be asked to look into the question of charging Balsom with perjury and perhaps other offences, but so far as is known Attorney-General is still free to shoot golf in his customary low 90s.

N.S. Author Has Become Only Canadian Writing Solely About Dominion

By DAVE PIKE

LIVERPOOL, N.S. (CP) Thomas Raddall believes that with the death last year of Mazo de la Roche he became the only Canadian novelist earning his entire living by writing about Canada and Canadians.

Which seems to signify, he suggested in an interview in his home in this pleasant town of 3,200, that a truly Canadian literature is still a long way off.

He added that Arthur Hailey and David Walker and perhaps one or two others come to mind but that they either have supplementary incomes or often extend their writing beyond the Canadian scene.

Every word Raddall has written — except for The Path of Destiny: Canada from the British Conquest to Home Rule, 1760-1850—has been set exclusively in Nova Scotia.

"A Canadian writing only about his own province doesn't seem to be courting economic hardship, but admit I haven't made a lot of money," he said. "But I have managed to make a living and educate my children. Nearly all my books have been adopted by book clubs! Without that I couldn't have lived entirely by my writing."

SWEAT IS NEEDED

Raddall, who has been a full-time writer since 1926, says: "You are never going to have a distinctive Canadian literature, we're going to have to have a number of writers who stay home and write about our own country, our problems and our try. I've been hammering away at that for years.

"And to write good books that will earn money, they have got to learn that they must put a lot of sweat into their work."

He says the Canadian reader "comes way down the list in his civilizations as far as his book buying goes.

"But they do read a lot, with paperbacks and libraries. In French Canada they support their writers better. There a good sale would be 15,000 to 20,000. In English-speaking Canada a sale like that would be nothing short of phenomenal.

"The typical Canadian book shop is the paperback stand in the drug store, department store book racks, I've been told that there are only two real authentic book shops in the whole country."

Raddall, noted mainly for his historical novels, finds writing "extremely hard" sometimes because you don't have to worry about making a plot.

"If you introduce history into fiction, however, you owe something to history. You owe it to taking—a good careful regard for the facts. The historical novel should be just as carefully researched."

BORN IN ENGLAND

Raddall has assembled a "pretty good" library in his home containing historical books, documents and notes. When he requires further information he visits the Nova Scotia Archives in Halifax.

He travelled to New Hampshire to do research for his latest book, "The Governor's Lady," published in 1960.

Raddall, onetime wireless operator on the Canada Inland before becoming Canada's most "Canadian" author, has woven his writing so deeply into the fibre of past and present Nova Scotia's history that it sometimes is difficult to recall that he was born in England.

He arrived in Halifax in 1913 as a young boy. His father, who had transferred from the British to the Canadian Army, shipped overseas with the 1st Canadian Division. He saw his father, who died in the final phase of the war, only once again—in 1915 during a month's convalescence for wounds suffered in the Battle of Ypres.

Only 14 in 1917 when the French munitions freighter Mont Blanc exploded, killing more than 1,000 and flattening the north end of Halifax, Raddall suffered only a slight cut and concussion. He had been attending a school in the city's north end which was turned into an emergency morgue.

QUIT SCHOOL

Not quite 15 in the early summer of 1918, Raddall decided to join the army. He was told to go back to school instead. But by adding three years to his age he managed to talk his way into a pool of wireless operators serving the navy and merchant marine.

During the next three years he became one of the best brass-pounders in the business.

At the end of the war, he ended, he decided to go into the merchant marine as a wireless operator, joined the Furness Withy Company and was eventually posted to Sable Island, 100 miles east of Halifax.

At the time Sable was the second busiest wireless station on the Atlantic coast.

"The flattery of that didn't help being stuck on a lonely sand bar for a year. I passed my 19th year there and was able to do some thinking. I realized I had missed a lot of education."

He took an accounting course in Halifax and finally found a job—they were scarce then at $1 "little antiquated pulp mill" on the Mersey River which empties into Liverpool Bay on Nova Scotia's south shore. He has lived in the area ever since.

"It was so remote there that I was told I'd better get a rifle and rod or go mad. I finally came to like the woods better than the sea and have spent years roaming the Mersey watershed, hunting and fishing."

In 1927 he married Edith Freeman, a music teacher at nearby Milton.

The following year he sold his first story to Maclean's magazine.

"I wanted to write about the Nova Scotia scene but Maclean's didn't want that. I got hold of a copy of Blackwood's magazine published in England and they accepted a story received by Maclean's. They asked to see more. That started my career."

In 1936 Raddall decided to devote all his time to writing. He had encouragement from John Buchan who became interested in his short stories and, in 1939 while as Lord Tweedsmuir governor-general of Canada, Buchan wrote an introduction to Raddall's first collection.

"I soon began to realize that the story of the American Revolution as it affected Nova Scotia had never been told."

Theodore Roosevelt Jr., Thomas Costain and others spurred him on and, in 1942, Doubleday published His Majesty's Yankees, his first novel. The sale was small but the critical reception enthusiastic.

Raddall remembers having "a pretty hard struggle in the early years" writing in and about Canada. With three historical fiction books behind him, he waited to get out of the costume novel groove. He suggested a novel about wireless operators on Sable Island to his publisher but Doubleday wasn't interested.

"So I financed myself" and in 1950 The Nymph and the Lamp came out.

"In sales and public acceptance it has been my most successful book and has been published in every country west of Marconi's Clifden station and selling well in some places."

Three more novels based on contemporary history followed, including The Wings of Night in 1956, the story of a former soldier and a friend who try to pry the grip of one man from the Nova Scotia timberland.

Next April and May the CBC television network will present a series of eight one-hour episodes based on the book, with outdoor sequences shot in Nova Scotia.

Inevitably all of Raddall's novels and stories have been dramatized for radio and TV by the CBC. The CBC's first attempt at a TV series was based on Raddall's 1953 book Roger Sudden, a historical novel about Halifax and the French fortress of Louisbourg.

However, he says, radio and television "is a very poor but particularly lucrative as source of income."

Raddall received the governor-general's award for Canadian literature in 1943 and 1944. In 1956 he was awarded the Lorne Pierce Medal by the Royal Society of Canada for outstanding contribution to Canadian literature.

"At present I'm trying to make up my mind what to do next," he says. "I've picked up material for two true tales, one dealing with court cases in Nova Scotia and the other about true sea stories."

FULL-TIME CANADIAN WRITER — English-born writer Thomas Raddall discusses a manuscript with his wife in their Liverpool, N.S., home. Raddall, who came to Canada in 1913, is perhaps the only Canadian novelist who earns his living by writing about Canada and Canadians. Except for one book, all of his works have been set in Nova Scotia. — (CP Photo from NFB.)

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

SOME POINTS TO CONSIDER REGARDING BELLEVILLE'S SEPT. 26th VOTE ON DINING & COCKTAIL LOUNGES

- If a city decides to adopt more pleasant drinking facilities that isn't to say that dining and cocktail lounges will immediately open for business. The Liquor Control Board of Ontario alone determines whether licences will be granted. The Board also decides the number and type of establishments to be permitted.
- When an establishment applies for a licence, a notice of application must be published in the local paper and any resident of Belleville has the right to file notice of objection.
- Before an application is heard, the applicant for a licence is required by law to file the specification and plans of the establishment he proposes. The establishment itself must be thoroughly inspected.
- If (and there's nothing automatic about it) the Board decides to consider the application, a public hearing must be held at which any citizen can oppose the granting of a licence.
- It is a legal and well known fact that the Board limits the number of licences granted in any city. It is also a well known fact that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario has the strictest regulations in the world.
- There's nothing automatic about it. The policy of the Board has been one of not granting licences to restaurants in local option areas. There is little chance of liquor finding its way into restaurants or soda shops.

It is therefore not a question of more outlets in Belleville, but rather a question of improving the facilities we already have.

There is no concerted effort to foist scores of drinking establishments upon the people of Belleville. If the people of Belleville VOTE YES ON BOTH it does not mean wide open drinking facilities.

These facts are presented for your information. They are presented so as to allow you to make a sensible intelligent decision on the issues.

We, the VOTE YES COMMITTEE ask you as responsible citizens to consider these facts.

Argentine Army Rebels Defeat Military Juntà

Win Fight to Force Early Free Elections

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Backed by triumphant army rebels, President Josemaria Guido set out today to bind Argentina's wounds with a hint of amnesty for all and a promise of free elections.

Guido went on the radio Sunday night hours after the last resistance crumbled in north Argentina, ending five days of armed fighting that split the country.

Guido was thrust into the presidency last March by the military high command that took a beating from rebel forces led by Gen. Juan Carlos Onganiá.

Ongani accussed the high command of making Guido a virtual prisoner with the aim of leading Argentina into military dictatorship. He and his backers said they wanted to force Guido from military dictation and restore democratic institutions.

Guido switched to the rebel side in the midst of the conflict. And while he told the nation he alone would exercise the powers of chief executive, he laid down a policy advocated by the rebels.

PROMISES ELECTIONS

"There will be elections of new authorities within the briefest possible time in free polls," Guido declared.

This echoed a statement by Onganiá's former Army de Mayo, Argentina's largest garrison, where the army rebellion began last week.

Guido has promised elections by October 1963, with new officials taking office the following May.

In an apparent reference to followers of ex - dictator Juan Peron, Guido said all sectors of the population will be free to take part in politics provided they adhere to democratic principles.

MERCY FOR MASSES

While proclaiming themselves anti-Peronists, the rebels in a communique and the powerful of the Peronist masses can be solved only by winning them over to democratic solutions.

When the Peronists won victories in provincial and congressional elections last March, the military high command overthrew President Dr. Arturo Frondizi, blaming him for permitting Peronists to resume political activity. They installed Guido and he nullified the election results.

In the five days of fighting involving tanks, artillery and jet fighters, 11 civilian bystanders were killed and 43 wounded. Military losses were not set at three dead and 12 wounded.

Gromyko Seeks To Win Support For Troika Plan

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was reported seeking support today for a three-man board to supplant U Thant, acting secretary-general of the United Nations.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev first told the General Assembly in 1960 that the UN executive should consist of three men, each with a veto, representing Western, Communist and neutralist countries.

The Russians shelved that so-called troika plan to permit Thant's election last Nov. 3 to the remainder of the five-year term of the late Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold expiring next April 10.

But during the weekend, an informed diplomatic source said, Gromyko told another assembly delegate the Russians still want the troika and the principle should be applied from top to bottom of the UN structure.

FLOODS KILL SEVEN

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)— Heavy rains in the wake of Typhoon Carla caused flash floods in villages north of Bangkok and drowned seven children, the newspaper Bangkok World reported Sunday.

"They will try to sell the troika idea," the newspaper said. "They want to lobby for that idea again."

He said Gromyko indicated Khrushchev was coming to the United States this year in the expectation of talking with President Kennedy about Berlin but was rather vague on the matter.

If Thant is to continue in office, he must be re-elected by the assembly in its current 17th session after first being recommended by the Security Council, where the Soviet Union could veto him.

The United States came out for Thant's re-election months ago. But Gromyko, talking with a reporter Friday night, declined to express an opinion about Thant.

Quell Guelph Reformatory Riot With Gas

GUELPH (CP)—Rioting prisoners of the reformatory here were subdued with large gas used by guards, provincial and city police before any damage was done, Warden Charles Sanderson said today.

Outside assistance was called in when a group of about 50 prisoners in a dining room where 250 were eating lunch, got rowdy and started to fight.

Reformatory officials said no injuries were reported, although several prisoners were overcome by tear gas.

The trouble started in the smaller of two dining rooms, but only about 50 men took part in the scuffle, the warden said.

Mr. Sanderson blamed the riot on the exhibition held last week when about 10,000 persons came to the institution to see handicrafts and other work done by the prisoners.

He said disturbances often follow the annual exhibition, and added that there had been flare-ups Sunday and Saturday night.

LIBERAL LEADER SAYS ELECTION IS NECESSARY

Takes Opportunity To Needle Socreds

SOREL, Que. (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson said Saturday night another general election is necessary to put order in the country's affairs.

He said the opposition will attempt to topple the Progressive Conservative government the first chance it has.

Challenging the other opposition parties to show more confidence in Prime Minister Diefenbaker's minority government, Mr. Pearson said an opposition member has no choice but to "sit tight" in the Commons the voters' rejection of the government at last election.

The Liberal leader was speaking at a testimonial dinner for Lionel Bertin, 63, on his 10th anniversary as Liberal MP for Richelieu-Vercheres. It was Mr. Pearson's first public appearance in Quebec province since the last election and he took the opportunity to needle the Social Credit party and its leader in the province, Real Caouette.

ONLY TEMPORARY

He said the gain of 26 seats by the Progressive Conservatives in Quebec was a surprise for everybody, including himself. But this was only a temporary situation that will not repeat itself."

Speaking in French, Mr. Pearson said that those who voted for Social Credit last June soon will realize, if they do not already, the sad party "has no chance of taking roots in the country and that it is, in fact, wholly artificial, not only in reality of the Conservative party."

Mr. Pearson made only a brief reference to the campaign for the general provincial election Nov. 14, wishing the Quebec Liberal government success.

However, Mr. Cardin, who was parliamentary assistant to Mr. Pearson, then external affairs minister, in the last Liberal government at Ottawa, told the more than 600 supporters at the dinner that he is ready to campaign in his area on behalf of the provincial Liberals Mr. Cardin is believed to be the first Liberal MP to announce his intention to campaign for provincial Liberals.

Navy Patrol Plane Missing With 10 Aboard

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A U.S. Navy patrol plane with seven men aboard is missing today in the Montague Island area of Prince William Sound, on the southern coast of Alaska.

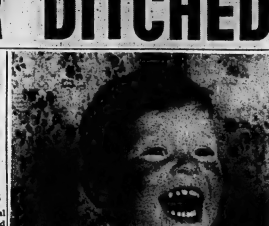
The two-engined P-5M from Sand Point, Calif., was last contacted by radio near Montague Island Saturday. It was on a routine patrol over the Gulf of Alaska.

World-Wide Interest Is Reported In Canadian Type Nuclear Reactor

CHALK RIVER, Ont. (CP)— Further world-wide interest in the Canadian type of nuclear reactor for production of electricity was reported here today by J. L. Gray, president of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited.

The head of the Crown-owned company made the report to 90 engineers and executives from industrial companies and electrical utilities from ten countries as attending an annual symposium on atomic power.

Mr. Gray said that the government of India has decided to build a 200-megawatt nuclear system of Canadian design "provided satisfactory arrangements can be made with Canada."



He did not elaborate beyond stating that "it cannot tell you any more than that preliminary negotiations are underway." However, it was believed that satisfactory arrangements regarding financing.

The reactor which India is likely to build will be a duplicate of one now being built by the Atomic energy of Canada on the shore of Lake Huron, nine miles north of the small town of Kincardine in Bruce County, Ont. Its construction in the Rajasthan area of northern India would involve an outlay in the neighborhood of $80,000,000.

Mr. Gray also reported that Pakistan is interested in building engineering and research prototype plant similar to an experimental one now in operation at Rolphton, Ont., some 250 miles northwest of Ottawa.

This plant is also a nuclear power demonstration and school. He added that a delegation Tuesday, produces 20,000 kilowatts of electricity. Pakistan is interested in the same type of plant being upsized to produce 80,000 kilowatts.

"In Pakistan there seems to be a need for a smaller nuclear power station and we are sending out small team next month to (Continued on Page 5)

Mags Showing Buxom Belles In Various Stages of Undress Study Books for Magistrates

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Magazines showing curvy-eyed, buxom belles in various stages of undress have become study books for magistrates, lawyers, distributors and legal officials across Canada.

Censorship of the "girlie mags" ranges from severe to lackadaisical—from strictly controlled and enforced to action taken only when a complaint is made.

Control groups range from a radio evangelist in Nova Scotia to a district court judge in Newfoundland, and a provincial censorship board in Quebec, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Attention focussed on the magazine matter this month when District Court Judge W. R. Kent of Corserbrook, Nfld., ruled that 31 publications seized from a drugstore there were obscene.

Judge Kent said in his judgment that the magazine Playboy "is the one to contest. The seizure—was "suggestive, unnecessarily over - stepping the bounds that anyone of decency or judgment would normally tolerate."

"We may ask ourselves the question who would be injured in purchasing such a book and what would be its chief interest. To my mind it would be clearly purchased by men looking for opportunity to delve into

Close Doors of Basilica After 2 Fire Bombs Found

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Workers of Vatican authorities closed the great central doors of St. Peter's Basilica today to shield the mother church of Roman Catholicism against an unknown bomber.

Vatican gendarmes stood reinforced guard as Italian police and explosive experts sought clues to the origin of two incendiary bombs found in the Church. Had they exploded, the devices could have ruined the church and destroyed its art treasures.

The usual throngs of visitors were admitted today through a complete door to the left, under close scrutiny of Italian plainclothes police. They were reported to deposit all packages, even cameras and cases, to be collected when they left.

Pope John Sunday inspected the area where the bombs were found. The 80-year-old pontiff prayed at the tombs of past popes in atonement for the deed.

Reliable Vatican sources said the time bombs discovered Saturday were clearly intended to destroy by fire four months of physical preparations for the ecumenical council which opens Oct. 11.

The Pope looked and listened intently as Col. Spartacus Aspetti, commandant of the papal gendarmerie, showed him where the paper - wrapped bombs were discovered.

Informants said the charges were left near the basilica floor against wooden partitions that frame the rows of wood-and-upholstery seats built for the 3,000 delegates to the world-wide council of the Roman Catholic church.

If the devices had gone off, these sources said, fire would have raced along the banks of seats on each side of the central aisle and reduced the $50,000 construction to ashes.

The discovery was the second bomb incident in St. Peter's in two months. Last July 18, a time bomb exploded in the church, knocking a few fragments from the pedestal of a marble monument to Clement X. Authorities figured a meteorite was the probable culprit was to blame for the blast.

Some 200 workers have been working for months inside the basilica installing the council

Heath Starts Tour to Plead For Better Market Terms

LONDON (CP) — Edward Heath, Lord Privy Seal, flew to Brussels today for new talks in Britain's continuing courtship of Europe.

After discussions with British officials, he will go on to Bonn and Rome to impress on European authorities the anxieties made known by Commonwealth statesmen at last week's conference of prime ministers.

The communique issued at the close of the conference, though widely regarded in the British press as something of a "whitewash of independence" by Britain in relation to the Common wealth, carried with it an under-taking that the United Kingdom would seek better terms for the Commonwealth when negotiations resume in earnest at Brussels next month.

During the weekend, Heath had talks at Chequers with the foreign ministers of the Benelux countries, including Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, one of the strongest supporters among the European six of Britain's adhesion to Europe. Chequers

BILL TO FORCE OUT SENATORS NOT LIKELY

Died on Order Paper Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — In the dying days of the 24th Parliament last April a bill to force the retirement of senators at age 75 was introduced by Prime Minister Diefenbaker. They now are appointed for life, at $10,000 a year.

The bill had not reached the debating stage when Parliament was dissolved 10 days later, and it died on the order paper. The measure would have paved the way for Conservative control of the 102-seat Senate, which now has a Liberal majority.

However, political sources say revival of the bill in the first session of the 25th Parliament, which opens Thursday, is highly unlikely.

The reasoning is that the minority Progressive Conservative government has more important things on its mind than the Senate, says Dough Fisher, veteran Liberal member in the upper house has been a persistent source of irritation to the Conservative Commons majority in the 24th Parliament practically assured passage of the Senate bill. But the opposition MPs outnumber Conservatives in the forthcoming Parliament and it might be difficult, or even impossible, to put the measure through.

SOME CHANGE STAND

Last April the Liberals indicated they might support it. But Liberal senators now argue that the government, which enjoys a clear mandate and should not be allowed to tinker with the Senate until after the next election.

The New Democratic Party wants the Senate abolished. It served notice last session that it will not support any measure short of this.

Social Credit, a party which has no voice in the last House, is plugging for a reformed system of Senate appointments, giving the provinces and major groups in the country the right to name senators.

Opposition senators is the exclusive perogative of the prime minister, says Mr. Fisher, who up a massive majority during 22 years of rule.

Presently sitting in 62 Liberals, 26 Conservatives, two independents and one Independent Liberal. There are 11 vacancies.

Retirement at 75 would cut eight senators immediately, almost all of them Liberals, and give the Conservatives a clear field to obtain a majority.

Feeley Denies Any Connection With the Mafia Before Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Gambler Vincent Feeley said today he has never had any connection with the Mafia, powerful international crime organization.

Testifying before the Ontario royal commission on crime, he denied any knowledge of the allegation that five reputed Mafia leaders accompanied him and partner Joseph Bonventure on a trip to a James Bay hunting lodge in 1960.

Ontario Liberal Leader Winternemeyer charged in a speech here Friday that the trip was a hunting party were reputed Mafia leaders in Detroit.

Feeley, starting a week of testimony after three days in 1958, denied the trip was a hunt.

"I know nothing of the Mafia except what I have read in publications."

He also denied knowledge that any of the group on the hunting trip were connected with gambling operations in the United States. He also denied knowing whether two of the men—Billy Jacobone and Dominic Corrado of Detroit—had an interest in the now-closed Bore-

Rescue Ships Snatch 49 From Watery Grave

68 Servicemen, Families On Way to New Posting

CP from Reuters-AP

LONDON—At least 49 survivors and the bodies of two dead were plucked from the stormy North Atlantic today where a U.S. airliner with 76 aboard ditched at sea. More survivors were reported sighted by an international rescue fleet.

The British air ministry, correcting claim from the world said there were 49 known survivors and two dead so far taken from the sea where the plane, carrying American servicemen and dependents, was forced down after engine failures.

Earlier reports had said 51 persons were rescued from the four - engine Supercontellation operated by the Flying Tiger Line.

Worsening weather hampered the rescue efforts of a fleet of ships and planet trying to save the 68 passengers and eight crew members.

RESCUE HAMPERED

The British Admiralty reported that the "strong breeze" of the night had changed to a "moderate gale" by this morning. The sea was too rough for rescue ships to move to the area at full speed.

The bulk of the rescued were taken aboard the Swiss-freighter Celerina, the first vessel to reach the crash site. Early this morning, the Cunard freighter Andania reported adding a life raft with more survivors aboard it. It was not known whether the 7,004 - ton freighter had picked anyone up.

There were no doctors aboard the 5,000-ton Celerina or the Andania, the first two ships into the crash site. But help from other vessels was on the way.

The Canadian navy aircraft carrier Bonaventure was steaming toward the area, along with at least one Canadian destroyer. The Bonaventure has a fully-equipped sick bay and helicopters to transfer the injured from other craft.

A spokesman for the Canadian Joint Military Staff in London reported that a helicopter and a doctor aboard had been sent from the Bonaventure to the rescue area.

The Cunard liner Mauretania, with her shipboard hospital and operating theatre, is the third course after the crash call went out and headed for the area. Other Cunard and U.S. Coast Guard ships and a U.S. Ocean station rescue ship also headed in.

Three amphibious planes carrying medical personnel tried once today to get to the area, but the sea was too rough for them to set down and they turned back.

Place Embargo On Expansion Of B.C. Schools

CALGARY (CP) — Officials of the British Columbia School Trustees' Association said Sunday night they believe the B.C. government has embargoed school construction because of uncertainties in the municipal bond market.

President R. E. Lester of Hagey, and General Secretary Frank Reder of Vancouver, said a spokesman for the department of education in Victoria blamed the situation on the federal government's austerity programs.

They said the Trail and Cowichan school boards in recent days have advised them of the situation. All but $190,000 of a $1,100,000 program proposed by the Cowichan school district has been rejected, they said.

Mr. Lester said about 100 children in the Trail school district are riding on condemned school buses as a result of the B.C. decision.

The Trail school board called tenders and was ready to buy buses when the embargo was imposed. The Cowichan buses now operate with temporary approval from the RCMP.

Two Belleville drivers were fined $100 and costs each in police court this morning after pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving.

Magistrate Ernest Corbett imposed the fines on Ronald Ernest Hall, 19, of 19 Bleecker St., and Ronald Edward Hall, 20, of 19 Bleecker St.

Both were charged after a car driven by Ronald Hall struck a parked car on Bleecker St. at 1.30 a.m. Sunday.

Police said the car driven by Ronald Hall was damaged to the extent of $500.

Ronald Hall was also charged with driving while his licence was under suspension. He was fined $50 and costs on this charge.

Eastern Ontario Drama League Conference Enjoyed

Over sixty amateur theatre enthusiasts gathered at the Recreation Centre in Belleville on Saturday and Sunday to make the Eastern Ontario Drama League weekend conference a definite success. Those in attendance represented groups spreading from Ottawa, Cornwall, Brockville, Smith's Falls, to Peterborough, Bancroft, Belleville, Trenton and Toronto. Special guests included Vida Peene, president of the Dominion Drama League and Mr. George Merton of the Community Programs Branch, Ontario Department of Education.

After registration and coffee on Saturday morning, two groups were formed to attend lectures by Miss Olivia Hasbrouck on topic was Voice and Movement in Drama, and by Mr. George Luscombe speaking on "An Approach to Theatre" primarily for those interested in the field of directing.

Rapt attention was commanded by Mr. Luscombe who is gaining much recognition for his individualistic direction of Toronto's Dream Productions Incorporated theatre in Toronto. He put forth his theories with great conviction stating that a director you must analize the objectives of the author of the play and of each unit of the play; and get inside the characters. He also stated that there is no freedom without fences, but limitations are often the best things you have to work with. His own productions in a normally run theatre consist of 50 seen to bear this out.

He feels that the audience must be allowed to partake in the experience of theatre much as in a religious service. The theatrical art is a selective one; the artist selects that which will tell according further and cuts away that which tells nothing. Mr. Luscombe's own production of "Hey, Rube" in Toronto last year there was an attempt to contact the audience in order to produce that state of involvement peculiar to the theatre and bordering only to it. Experimental theatre was developed by Mr. Luscombe as a living thing, designed in the combination of all the arts, a moving thing, taking influence from the community and itself making a real contribution.

PARTICIPATION ENJOYED

Miss Hasbrouck's group, participation was enjoyed by the actors and actresses attending. Miss Hasbr dimonstrated many of the basic movements that must be done well on stage — sitting, standing, walking and the stage fall. The group also heavily enjoyed presenting improvisations extemporaneously created from imagination, also group work and work was included in the session. A portion of the work was tape recorded for play back and criticism. Many large and small points were brought out by Miss Hasler to the benefit of actress in the preparation of a role. This course was received most enthusiastically by the large group attending.

Saturday evening all conference members and the general public gathered at Memorial Hall, Belleville General Hospital, for a lecture by Mr. Arnold Edinborough on "Confessions of a Critic". Mr. Edinborough stated that a critic must keep up his background reading and his attempts include a Dickens novel every five months and Pride and Prejudice once a year. He stated that any significant advance in the arts will either be against or in reaction to the principles that have gone before. A critic must be prepared to learn new things all the time and views from a cellar in Toronto's Greenwich Village to the fashionable O'Keefe Centre. It is important that the play be seen in the spirit in which it is presented; for instance Luscombe's "Hey Rube" presented in a warehouse basement, the critic must judge the same criteria as for "Camelot."

Mr. Edinborough stated that the best theatre is spontaneous, sensitive, for he will frequently find himself "walking on the faces of the friendly" and that he must in honesty say that their work has not up to standard. This lecture was received with a homecoming for Mr. Edinborough who was chairman of the Eastern Ontario Drama League. He participated in a lively question-and-answer period following his lecture, with some members of the audience disagreeing on certain recent playwrights such as Beckett and Pinter. "Some of these writers," said Mr. Edinborough, "have been creating a kind of mythology that destroys all terms of reference and leaves the audience unable to participate.

"We didn't understand it, but it was interesting," is an attitude that simply will not serve a critic.

Following Mr. Edinborough's lecture an informal reception was held at the Hotel Quinte for all conference members and the public. Here much news of drama activities in the Eastern Ontario section was exchanged and acquaintanceships renewed. This brought to a close a stimulating week-end of theatrical activities which had been carefully arranged by the conference committee. The weekend was presented jointly by the Eastern Ontario Drama League, the Belleville Theatre Guild and the Community Programs Branch, Department of Education.

Heading the Belleville Theatre Guild Committee were Mrs. Charles Wilson and Mr. Rodger Greig in co-operation with Mr. D. Maddox of the Community Programs Branch.

RESCUE SHIPS

Tiger Line west down Sunday night 500 miles west of Ireland, plowing into 10 - foot waves kicked up by high winds.

One by one, three of the big plane's four engines had conked out, and the pilot down through clouds. Aboard were 68 U.S. servicemen and dependents and seven members.

PLANE SPEARHEAD ALARM

The alarm was spared by another troop-carrying plane that circled the area until its fuel supply was almost gone and the first rescue ship arrived.

Officials said rain swept the area as two rescue ships hove to and began an almost incredible operation in the darkness and tossing seas. Survivors from the plane's life rafts guided them to the scene.

The British admiralty said many of the survivors were injured and neither of the first two ships to reach the scene had a doctor aboard.

A USAF spokesman said a report from the Swiss freighter Celerina, first at the scene, indicated that the pilot of the ditched plane had been picked up alive.

The 1,041-ton Celerina was officially reported to have picked up 48 survivors and two dead bodies. She was there the plane went down in heavy seas leaded with 15 people. The Celerina was about 40 miles away when the plane ditched.

HOWEVER CONFUSE

However, there was still some confusion over the exact number of persons rescued.

The Warwick, Bermuda, wireless of the air rescue operation, USAF spokesman, said a ship believed to be the 7,000-ton Liberian Andania also was standing by. The Andania also reported having had the Turkish freighter Ada, a 5,256-ton vessel, had picked up some survivors but it was believed she was mistakenly identified for the Andania.

The plane was en route from McGuire Air Force Base near Trenton, N.J., for Frankfurt, West Germany, via Gander, Nfld., and Shannon. It carried five life rafts, each capable of carrying 50 people afloat.

First to spot life rafts bobbing in the water was a USAF C-118, which circled on a troop-ferrying mission. Answering an alert, the C-118 sighted the airliner just before it ditched and began circling over the area.

TURBULENT STORM

From many directions, ships turned course and headed full speed for the ditching area as soon as word flashed over the air.

Besides the two ships that reached the first survivors, they included the ocean liner Mauretania, the Canadian aircraft carrier Bonaventure and five Canadian destroyers, a U.S. Coast Guard Cutter, several freighters and two aircraft carriers and an American ocean station vessel ship.

A full alert was sounded at RAF and RAF bases in England and Scotland after the pilot of the Flying Tiger radioed he could not keep the big plane aloft and was ditching.

Earlier the pilot, Capt. John D. Schaefer, 34, of Nyack, N.Y., reported two of his engines had conked out and he was going to try to reach Shannon.

With two engines still left, he thought he could make it. The plane was then about 700 miles from Ireland.

The airliner dropped from 18,000 feet to 5,000 feet. Its speed slipped back from more than 300 m.p.h. to 190 m.p.h.

Then a third engine cut and Murray radioed he was ditching.

Tributes were paid to the efforts of club committeemen Don Stanton, Dave Lunn and Gerry O'Connor, also to Harold Walker, Don Chalmers, Barrett, Archie Rowe and Ed Gurnett for their co-operation.

Failure to Have Chest X-Ray Can Hurt Others

"Tuberculosis is contagious. That is the reason it is receiving particular attention by the public health authorities and is the subject of so many health problems such as cancer and heart", says Dr. G. Brearley, Medical Officer of Health, medical adviser.

All of the 2,424 persons in Ontario's sanatoria were treated by other people, the doctor said. He drew attention to the fact that cattle used to share the blame but TB testing of herds and pasteurization of milk have nullified animals as a source of infection.

Those people who do not bother to have their chest x-rayed in the present surveys here are taking a chance of giving someone close to them. "It is a chance I would not care to take", Dr. Brearley said.

Halloway Man Freed on Charge In Cheese Case

A charge of illegal possession of stolen goods was dismissed against a Halloway man, John B. Williams, in Belleville Police Magistrate Court this morning.

Mr. Williams was charged with being in possession of a quantity of cheese alleged to have been stolen from the Black Diamond Cheese Company warehouse, at the government docks. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and elected trial by the magistrate.

Crown Attorney J. Pringle, told the magistrate that in Mr. Willshire's explanation of how he came to have the cheese was reasonably true.

In his opening remarks the crown said the accused was prepared to admit he was unaware that the 10 cheese had been stolen from the Black Diamond Cheese Company and that he was prepared to admit that the boxes of cheese were found on his premises.

Mr. Willshire further admitted that he sold seven cheese to a food market in Picton and the remaining three to a meat market here in Belleville.

The crown said the accused had made restitution for a cheque issued by the food market in Picton and that he went with police to recover it.

Mr. Willshire told the court that on May 28th he returned home from work at about 9.00 p.m. at which time his wife informed him that some men had come that day and that they had placed a number of cheese in his barn.

The following day, he said he took the cheese and said it still unaware the cheese had been stolen. He said he was not at home when the cheese was delivered, therefore he did not know the circumstances surrounding its arrival.

The crown pointed out to Magistrate Jackson that there was nothing stamped on the cheese boxes, or the cheese proper, to indicate it was the property of the Black Diamond Cheese Company.

FEELEY

cause the "Purple Gang" was "in trouble."

Feeley said he knew nothing of the "Purple Gang" except that he believed that some years ago a gang of Ontario bank robbers went by the name.

He was questioned about letters of character reference written for him in 1958 by his wife James Maloney at the time Progressive Conservative member of the Legislature for Renfrew North, Minister of Lands and Forests, later minister of mines, and Arthur C. Kelly, the Conservative Legislature member for Niagara Falls.

Feeley said he had never met Mr. Jolley. It was his recollection that, when he and Mrs. Jolley met wanted letters of recommendation to the former insurance branch in connection with their incorporation of a personal finance company, he told this to Mr. Maloney who volunteered to write one and suggested he would get someone else to write the other.

He said he had known Mr. Maloney for several years but had not done business of any kind with him. Mr. Maloney had been "quite a good friend" of Mr. Jolley's, a fellow Freemason, Gambler and friend of Feeley, who suggested Harrington may have given the Belleville police information about his background.

Feeley denied that earlier evidence that he had talked to commission witnesses after they had been subpoenaed he said he had given them no advice except to tell the truth.

He mentioned specifically Jack Laffradi, a former partner in a gambling house at Cooksville, and former constable Robert J. Wright of the Ontario Provincial Police, who has been convicted with Feeley and Harrington of conspiracy in obtaining police information illegally.

On a conversation with Laffradi, Feeley said:

"The only thing I suggested to him was to tell the truth, that was all I was going to do and if everyone did the same thing, none could get into trouble."

Shortly after the commission counsel concluded direct examination of Feeley, Liberal party counsel B. J. MacKinnon began with Feeley's lawyer, Walton C. Aylen on the line of questioning taken by the Lib. eral lawyer and the hearing was recessed while counsel discuss Mr. Justice W. D. Roach ed the point with counsel.

Just before that, Mr. MacKinnon brought out that during the Second World War Feeley had been discharged from the Canadian Army after he was convicted of forging discharge papers.

Mr. MacKinnon was hammered in his attempts to cross examine Feeley on various stock transactions.

Mr. Roach said he failed to see the relevancy of a conversation between Feeley, stockbroker and Feeley that led to a sale of shares.

He said that a possible result of such questioning would be to "blacken the character of this witness."

There was a train coming when this load of veneer spilled across the tracks on Metcalf St., Tweed, Saturday, but the engineer was able to stop it safely. Andy De Marsh, of Tweed, was driving a fork lift truck, for Hunter Veneers Ltd., a Tweed firm, when the steel strapping holding the load broke. The load spilled across the tracks, and blocked most of the street, but a crew of men from the factory were able to reload it quickly.

2000 Pay Entrance to Mokawk Fair

The Mohawk "All Indian" Fair, opened by Lee Grills, was held on the reserve on September 15, the weather was ideal and over 2000 paid entrance at the gate.

Mr. Elwood (Pee Wee) Brant dressed in full Indian costume, as was Mr. John A. Brant helped the tradition of the fair. Mrs. Carl Fuller, a native of the Brantford Reserve, was also dressed in a beautiful costume made by her aunt, Mrs. Oliver Smith, of the same reserve.

The Colborne Band headed the school parade of four Indian schools and teachers, Miss Evalina Maracle and Girl Guides, and Mr. Arnold Brant and Boy Scouts.

The ladies' work was the high spot of the fair, as the entries were plentiful and work beautiful. Embroidery work, crocheting and knitting of all discriptions were on exhibition. Sealed fruit and flowers, as well as baking were plentiful as was a large display of beautiful quilts.

Mrs. Helen Louis was top prize winner at the Fair, and Mrs. Eva Maracle a close runner-up.

Cattle, poultry and sheep filled the space set aside for them and, of course swine were missing from their pens at the Fair this year.

The Agricultural Society and officers wish to thank Mrs. Lena Fitzgerald and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian who so kindly acted as judges for home cooking; Mary Johnson, Mrs. Gordon "ladies' work; Mr. Gordon Topping, Mr. Ralph Aylesworth and Mr. Orval Aylesworth for seeds, cattle, sheep and poultry.

School exhibits were plentiful and were well arranged.

Horse racing and sports were held in the afternoon after lunch noon and a dance was held in the hall in the evening.

A thank you to the officers goes to every one who worked so faithfully to help make the Fair such a wonderful success for 1962 and hope for 1963 to be bigger and better.

Gardens Packed For Last Night Of Tattoo

TRENTON — More than 3,000 people jammed themselves into Trenton's Community Gardens (normal capacity, about 1,500), Saturday, to watch the final performance of the Trenton Military Tattoo. Hundreds more were turned away from the door when it became evident that the building could hold no more.

The Tattoo, performed by eight bands, including more than 300 bandsmen and military personnel, was rehearsed one night, before partially filled house, and performed for two nights to packed houses. The Friday and Saturday night performances, preceded by parades through the town, played to two of the largest audiences ever attracted to any event in the arena.

Around the Tee

The officers have been elected, the chairmen of the various committees have been named and all is in readiness for another season of curling at the Quinte Curling Club at the fairgrounds. The members have selected an energetic board headed by Ev Gowsell as president and through early reports if the executive keeps pace with their head, it should be the best season ever enjoyed at the winter pastime. Several meetings of the executive have been held throughout the summer and everything is in readiness for the first ice is available.

A concerted effort will be made to consolidate the men's ladies and junior divisions so that the casual, the skilled and unskilled members will have a winter of enjoyment and fun. A new venture will be added, that of mixed curling in which a league will be formed and regular games played. It is of vital necessity that the "active" membership of the club be increased. During the past year the club has lost a number of outstanding curlers and active workers but the executive is sure that the ranks can be refilled and new life injected into the club.

Steve Bakey has been named chairman of the men's curling league, Jim Walker for mixed league curling and social activities. Ed Lewis for club bonspiels and Jim Coverdale for the junior division and the members are invited to call these members and express their views as how these divisions should be operated. Only by constructive criticism can the executive come up with the proper solution.

All those who wish to become members of the club, either as beginners or established curlers are invited to make application by letter addressed to the president, Quinte Curling Club, PO Box 11 or phone Ev Gowsell at 962-2-0520. Applications should be made before mid October, however the better way to spend a winter than curling. It is a healthy recreation, there is fun and comradeship there is a fellowship seldom found in any other organization. Let us make the coming winter a real one of curling in the city.

The regular meeting of the Moose Lodge 1004, was held on September 20, at the Moose Hall, 52 Victoria Ave., with a good attendance of officers and brothers.

Governor Bro. Reid called the lodge to order at the appointed hour, for the transaction of regular business, and also for any new business that was presented to the lodge.

The lodge was pleased to have as its guest a Brother from Lodge 1600, in Toronto, who is living in Belleville, and hopes he will be out to future meetings.

September being "Governor's Month," secretary Bro. Rollins has presented Governor Reid with a suitable gift on the occasion of the untiring effort he has put in the lodge.

The social evenings are doing well, thanks to the Brothers' response. After lodge closed at 10 p.m., a social hour of refreshments, cards, and darts was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wallace Celebrate Golden Wedding

TRENTON — On Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Claude F. Wallace of 55 George Street, in Trenton celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary by welcoming into their home a large number of friends made over the years, besides the members of their immediate family. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace received many gifts, flowers and cards. Greetings included one from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker and from the provincial government level, a framed congratulatory greeting, presented by Elmer Sandercock, MLA for Hastings West.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace were married on Sept. 25, 1912, in Melrose. Officiating minister was the Rev. Fred Joblin. The wedding was a milestone in the life of the youthful minister, as it was the first one he performed after his ordination. At the wedding, "Pop" Wallace recalls, his sister May played the wedding music on the parsonage piano. Mrs. Wallace was the former Lulu Blanche Eaton of Melrose. Mr. Wallace was a native of Belleville.

The couple lived in Belleville following their marriage, where Mr. Wallace operated a bakery and confectionery store on Front Street.

In 1914, "Pop" went overseas with the First Battalion.

MOVED TO TRENTON

After the war Pop worked for the Canadian National Railways Company, out of Belleville, but in the early twenties he opened a garage business in Trenton, which he operated for 21 years. In late years, "Pop" worked at RCAF Station Trenton, until his retirement four years ago. He is a member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 110 at Trenton, where he was secretary for two years, and is a past president of the Hastings and Prince Edward Garage Operators' Association.

Pop has always been interested in community sports, especially baseball and hockey.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace are members of King Street United Church at Trenton. They have three children, Helen, an anaesthetist at St. Vincent's Hospital in Bridgeport, Conn., and James and Mrs. Freda (Wright, both of Trenton. There are five grandchildren: Mrs. Sherrin Alexander, Claudia Wallace and Jamie Wallace, Mrs. Donna Lou Little and John Wright, and two great grandchildren, Debbie and Stephen Alexander.

On Sept. 25, the actual anniversary date, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will be the guests of honor at a family dinner in the Prince Edward Room at the Quinte Hotel in Belleville. Nineteen family members will attend.

J. E. McArthur Honored by H.S. Board

Members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board made farewell last week to Mr. Jack McArthur, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada who had served on the board for nearly six years.

Mr. McArthur is leaving Belleville to assume a new position with the agricultural branch of the Royal Bank. At the regular meeting last week a appreciation to Mr. McArthur for his six years service on the board was extended by Board Chairman W. T. Simpson, and by A. G. Drysdale, who presented a leather travelling case on behalf of the board.

A former member and chairman of the Brampton Public School Board before coming to Belleville, Mr. McArthur was appointed to the Bay of Quinte High School Board in 1955, serving to the end of 1958. Health reasons forced him to decline appointment for two years, but he came back to the board again in 1961. With the exception of the chairmanship of the Board, Mr. McArthur served as chairman of the finance committee.

Wants Heifers Mated With Charollais Bulls

LONDON (CP) — An Alberta cattle breeder has applied to have 10 of his heifers mated with purebred Charollais bulls to improve his stock.

James Hope of the Triple J ranch at Strome, Alta., has put the British ministry of agriculture "in a definite position," a spokesman said today.

The ministry last year imported 30 Charollais bulls from France, their country of origin, to mate with British cattle. Because of strict health rules in Canada about the importation of cattle, Hope cannot get bulls directly from France, so he proposes to have his heifers artificially inseminated here and then shipped back to Canada.

But British cattle breeders believe if Rawe is allowed to do this, other overseas breeders would follow his plan and increase competition for British breed.

Government rules prevent Rawe from importing Charollais cattle into Britain.

"We're considering the request", a ministry official said. "He has Charollais bulls in Canada but they aren't the real Mc, and he obviously wants to improve his lines."

Cannot Stop Health Plan Says Coldwell

HAMILTON (CP)—All Canadians will be covered by a medicare - type insurance plan by 1972 despite attempts being made to "sabotage" the pace-setting scheme in Saskatchewan, M. J. Coldwell, leader of the New Democratic Party, predicted Saturday.

"It's coming, nothing can stop it," the 72-year-old socialist told 105 delegates to the first annual convention of the Ontario NDP youth.

Because of "misrepresentation" by the Liberal party and the doctors, he said, the Saskatchewan government had made "serious compromises" in its new health plan.

"By allowing private insurance companies to participate the government had made the scheme "cumbersome" and the private firms now are attempting to "sabotage" it, Mr. Coldwell charged.

But it would succeed, and the controversy had done more to bring health insurance to the public eye than anything the NDP could have done.

ASKS SPECIAL POWER

President Hugh Peacock proposed action designed to protect the organization from infiltration by radicals. He asked that the executive have the power to refuse membership in the organization to anyone coming to it from another political party.

Mr. Peacock, from Windsor, was re-elected president. Other officers include Peter Hounsell, of Welland, vice-president, regional vice - presidents are Brian Laughton of Timmins, northern region; David Weston of Ottawa, eastern region, and Monty Davidson Jr. of Galt, western region.

Prince Andrew May Prove Portsider

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Royal Family may have a southpaw in two-year-old Prince Andrew.

In a series of photographs just released for publication the Queen's youngest child is using his left hand far more than his right.

"We just don't know," said a Buckingham Palace spokesman. "But he certainly does use his left a lot."

"Of course at his age children often do about a great deal," he added, "because he's up in Scotland with his mother at the moment and we can't say for certain."

Mrs. Lisa Sheridan, 55-year-old photographer who took the pictures, said:

"I found him a very friendly, very happy child. He rarely sits still and laughs nearly all the time."

Soviet Spy Gets 10 Years In W. Germany

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (Reuter)—A West German described by the prosecution as "a really big Soviet spy" today was sentenced to 10 years hard labor after he said he was blackmailed into spying over a secret love affair.

Peter Fuhrmann, 47, a West German defence ministry official, was sentenced on charges of treason, betrayal of secrets and taking bribes. He was arrested in November, 1961.

Wednesday's Liquor Vote

Belleville citizens on Wednesday will have an opportunity to decide by their ballots whether the sale of liquor will be permitted in the city under lounge and dining lounge licences.

Some regard this as involving a question of morality and the way they vote thus becomes a question for their own conscience. We have no desire to attempt to influence these people, even if we could. There are members of another group, however, and a large group it is, who have equal rights to say whether or not they want facilities other than beverage rooms which sell beer only. We would say that the time is long over-due for these people to have been given an opportunity to indicate their preferences.

Here in Belleville, we have beverage rooms, and although some of our citizens abuse their rights as always happens where the sale of liquor is involved, on the whole we see few signs that the community as a whole has suffered thereby.

There is no good reason why the drinker of beer should have the privilege of indulging his taste while the man or woman who prefers other varieties of alcohol should be denied a similar right such as would be provided in lounges and dining rooms.

The competition of motels has made the financial position of hotels in all smaller communities a precarious one and many of them could survive were it not for beverage rooms. Because they lack space it is unlikely many will apply for cocktail lounge licences, but might seek the dining lounge licence. It might be reasonably expected that those who receive the licence would be better able to provide good dining facilities, something which is needed badly in so many urban centres of Ontario for the benefit of tourists and local residents. We might even live to see the day when the world-wide custom of enjoying a wine of modest vintage with a good meal would be more prevalent and not, as now, sneer only is available.

While there has been intense interest in the city on the question, only three letters-to-the-editor have been received and published. Does this indicate apathy as to voting intentions or is it due to the advertising by the "No" and "Yes" committees which has outlined the aims and objections with sufficient clarity to render further comment by the public unnecessary? Both committees are expecting a large turn-out of voters.

Puzzling Announcement

"The Russians have detonated nuclear blasts in space at least 28 times as powerful as the bomb that obliterate explosion which sent a new radiation belt whirling around the earth July 9, a comparison showed today."

That is the opening sentence of a despatch from Washington.

We find it puzzling. If this is true, did the Russians blast also create a new radiation belt around the earth. If not, why not? If so, why have we not heard about it?

A second perusal of the quoted sentence suggested an explanation. The Russian blasts are described as being "in space," the U.S. explosion as having taken place at a high altitude. Perhaps there is a difference? Perhaps the Russian explosions not high enough above the world to interfere with the Van Allen belt?

If this is the explanation, then we have a first-class example of the use of weasel words. But if these weasel words were indeed used and a comparison was being made between two entirely different kinds of test, then the writer of the article was made a sucker, too. In paragraph two he refers to a Soviet "high altitude blast" of July 9 was equal to only 1,400,000 tons.

All very puzzling.

Too Many Parleys

Commonwealth prime ministers are reported to have shown little enthusiasm for the proposal by Prime Minister Diefenbaker of Canada that a free world conference on trade be called. .

It is perhaps just as well.

At the United Nations General Assembly, just commenced, Russia has submitted a proposal for a world conference on trade.

Two trade parleys proceeding at approximately the same time, the one involving only the free world countries, the other these countries and communist lands, would be just a little too confusing.

Americans Behave Badly in Europe

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"When I go abroad," said a friend recently, "I'm almost ashamed of being known as an American. Most American tourists behave so badly in Europe that I don't like to be identified with them."

Certainly, this is true; but just as certainly, it has always been true of the dominant and wealthiest nation in any age. We do not behave badly abroad because we are American tourists, we behave as inmate national characteristic traits because we are rich, fat and sassy.

Until the decline of the British Empire, it was a fireless power, the Englishman was often accused of the same conduct. Only the proud people was "real money" to him; he would either behave Victorian coffee-house and demand tea; he would treat a foreign hotel with cavalier disregard because it was not an English hotel. In Switzerland, he has built his own hotels and gave them regally British names.

But now, all-American hamburgers in Haughburg (which never heard of them) and Cokes in the Champagne country of France; we wear flowered shirts and go to the Opera — when we condescend to go — and would wear shorts to visit the Vatican if the guards permitted us such a barbarism.

But none of this is distinctively "American" behavior. It is, rather, the behavior of a people who, for the first time in history, that the Americanization of the whole world is inevitable and we are merely speeding up the process for the backward nations. It is a fine example of what Proust called "the unconscious arrogance of the conscious rich."

The American at home is a decent, generous man. In his instincts are generous and his sense of fairness is keen. But he is also ignorant of customs and a wad of American Express Cheques and he, likely Square promptly turns into Mr. Hyde. Park.

We are admired, envied and resented throughout the world — not for what we are, but for what we have. And what we have — an incomparable affluence — is based on a no feel superior to those whose standard of living is lower. We are willing to help them, with gifts and loans, in the abstract; but face to face with human activity as every dominant people have always been hated.

Good manners are not an export commodity, when the ba!. ance of trade is in favor of us. But we would do well to remember that it is better not be true that "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." It is an indisputable historical fact that whom the gods would destroy they first make self-satisfied.

Background To Bombings

New York Times

Another cruel bombing has taken place in Ghana, in an attempt on President Kwame Nkrumah's life.

Dr. Nkrumah has obviously made considerable effort to stop at nothing to kill him. He is more than a President in our sense of the word. Kwame Nkrumah has drawn on the momentum of past oppression and tribalism to make himself a "god" as well as the autocratic ruler of Ghana. To whom all power is vested.

In nearly all the sub-Saharan countries there is a feeling for a strongly centralized government, with a one-party system and an acknowledged leader, will be necessary for years to come. This may be logical and sensible, since these former colonial territories, artificial boundaries, carved out by the imperialist powers, often cutting across tribal lines and always combining a number of tribes. Often these tribes were, and are, at enmity with each other.

Kwame Nkrumah, who led his country (the of Gold Coast) to independence in 1957, is a natural leader, and it is arguable that an African leader has to have greater and more arbitrary powers than the Europeans he succeeds. It is still a fact that Dr. Nkrumah has used his authority recklessly and harshly. He has arrested his opponents, established a tyranny, introduced a totalitarian version of socialism, and set himself up as an Osagyefo (redeemer) who, children were taught, was immortal. Last week he arranged for the National Assembly to extend his five-year term of office to cover his lifetime.

None of this excuses the indefensible bombing outrages; but these facts perhaps help to explain the murky background out of which terrorism has arisen in Ghana.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

September 24th, 1942.

Belleville Fair has come a long way in the 82 years since in 1860 a group of enterprising local men envisioned the fair of today staged in what has been termed "the best appointed agricultural park in the Province of Ontario outside of the larger centres." Speaking to the Ontario Intelligencer regarding the fair in the past century, Mr. Erle Denyes, secretary of the Belleville Fair, disclosed that the late Col. James Brown, the first local representative to Ottawa following Confederation, was the president of that first exhibition. Sponsored by the South Hastings Agricultural Society, that first fair is typical of the example of what Proust called "the unconscious arrogance of the conscious rich."

The American at home is a decent, generous man. In his instincts are generous and his sense of fairness is keen. But he is also ignorant of customs and a wad of American Express Cheques and he, likely Square promptly turns into Mr. Hyde. Park.

We are admired, envied and resented throughout the world — not for what we are, but for what we have. And what we have — an incomparable affluence — is based on a no feel superior to those whose standard of living is lower. We are willing to help them, with gifts and loans, in the abstract; but face to face with human activity as every dominant people have always been hated.

Good manners are not an export commodity, when the balance of trade is in favor of us. But we would do well to remember that it is better not be true that "whom the gods would destroy they first make mad." It is an indisputable historical fact that whom the gods would destroy they first make self-satisfied.

Is U-2 Info Worth Price?

Montreal Star

Some of the cold war's peculiar ground rules and a lot of its neuroses have come to be summed up in one letter, a typhon and one figure— U-2.

For years now it has been an open secret that both sides have been snooping around each other's coasts as closely as they dared. American "unarmed transports" and "weather reconnaissance aircraft" have got themselves shot down, one U.S. pilot being long too close in the Baltic, the Russians and Chinese, "Unidentified" submarines have been spotted off both North Americas, and Russian "trawlers" loaded with obviously nonpiscatorial electronics have had a way of turning up in the middle of NATO naval manoeuvres off Cape Canaveral during rocket firings, and in the area of American nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Until early in 1960 this sort of espionage was conducted almost according to Marquis of Queensberry rules. Then along came Francis Gary Powers and his U-2.

It is known now that the U-2, a sort of jet-powered glider with an enormously long wing to give it support at extreme altitudes, has been flown which could not be obtained on the ground in a closed country. It is also known that the Russians were perfectly aware of these flights but they could scarcely complain aloud because of the loss of face involved in an admission that Soviet air space was not invulnerable.

Then, in circumstances that are still not plain but probably involved a degree of attitude, a Russian rocket reached a U-2 and brought Powers down. At first Mr. Khrushchev made a sort of happy circus out of exhibiting the wreckage of the aircraft, Powers' alleged poisoning needle and Powers himself from the incident. It is not certain why he suddenly switched his policy on the spectrum, but it may have been because he thought world opinion was reacting to the U-2 affair with a lack of enthusiasm that is was entirely sympathy for Russia. Snooping around Russia was one thing; it seemed to feel, but overflying the heart of another country in peace-time was another, and not cricket at all. In any event Mr. Khrushchev used the U-2 as a pretext for wrecking the May 1960 Summit meeting in Paris with a flood of invective, aimed at President Eisenhower personally, with few precedents since Hitler's day.

Russian propaganda exploited the world's doubts about the morality of the U-2 flights to the limit. The world has assumed a sort of malignancy all its own. That is why the pilots of the United States wince when the aircraft returns to the arena, as it has done in recent days, first being blown off the sky and then down over the mainland of Chia.

Those allies can be pardoned for wondering whether by now the psychological damage done to the western cause by any U-2 incident is not greater than the strategic benefits from its continued use.

Opposes Approving Of Lounge Licences

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

As a former member of the Keep - Sidney-Dey committees which contributed to a victory for the "Dry's" in Sidney Township, I would like to make a few pertinent comments on the forthcoming plebescite on cocktail lounges in Belleville.

Why are the "booze barons" so vemative in their pledges before the plebescite but obviously interested only in the lucrative income after winning the vote? Then they sell alcoholic beverages unrestrainedly knowing full well the the direct results are wrecked homes, family problems and increased loss of life through murders and impaired driving.

Can you not recall the pledges appearing as full-page advertisements in your paper a few years ago, made by the owners of the Old County Home? Did they not say that living were only bound to establish Belleville's finest banquet centre regardless of the cost? Have they vote on the beverage room application? The banquet centre was never started. The votes in that plebescite of course, rejected this application, because they realized that property values are always depreciated by the presence in a neighborhood. The depreciation by a cocktail lounge would be even greater.

My experiences as a guest in the upper-class dining-rooms hotels in Toronto would, I am certain, be repeated if cocktail lounges are established in Belleville. The managements were obviously more interested in the sale of drinks than in my peaceful sleep.

Thinking voters in Belleville cannot easily oust an undesirable cocktail lounge, once established, but they can eliminate the risk by voting it down now! The attitude of most of people I talk to in the liquor traffic is:

"Leave money in it, so it must be all right."

Protests C of C Seeking Liquor Vote

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer,

This letter is written to protest the action of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce in requesting the city council to conduct the vote on the enlarged opportunity for the sale of liquors in the City of Belleville.

I have been a member of the Chamber for many years, because I want to support any organization for the betterment of our community.

The Chamber of Commerce is administered by a directorate, elected by the members. The present directorate has seen fit to use the Chamber as a medium in requesting the city council for this referendum.

As a member I think the action is completely unjustified and unethical in their action. They had no right to use the Chamber's influence in this capacity. It has given the impression to the public that the majority of the Chamber endorses this "vote" policy, and particularly when members add their names publicly to that yes campaign, which I understand have spoken to have had this impression.

The directors have said they were giving the citizens an opportunity to vote on this question and without any pressure. Pray tell me, who asked for the opportunity in the first place, and who is doing all the advertising?

Thanking you for the space to register this protest.

A. C. Campbell.

Wants Ex-Husband's Tattooed Name Removed

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have a tattoo that was put on my arm (my ex-husband's name) more than 20 years ago. How can I have it removed without a skin graft? I know I was foolish.

I have been advised to contact a dermatologist. Is that right? —L.M.

Yes. Consult a dermatologist (skin specialist) to determine whether your ex-husband's name can be obliterated by a process called "skin planing" or "dermabrasion," or by re-tattooing with flesh colors.

If neither of these methods is suitable in your case, a skin graft may be the only recourse.

Incidentally, a tattoo needle which has not been thoroughly sterilized can transmit disease from one person to another. Old County Home? Dear Dr. Molner: I have lost my sense of taste, and everything I eat is the same. I have a thyroid condition and acute bronchitis and am taking a high content of potassium iodide for the cough. Could this be the reason?—M.D.B.

Yes, large doses of iodides sometimes can cause loss of taste. "Taste" however is a subtle combination of taste and smell. A restaurant man I know successfully follows a rule of "feed the eyes first." It's literally true, he says, that things can look so good you can almost taste them."

Aroma has a great deal to do with flavor. Your "sense of taste" is impaired if you have a cold. Either infection or polyps in the nose can have this effect.

Less commonly, disorders of the nerves to the tongue can affect taste. Basically, there are only four "tastes," sweet, sour, salty and bitter and sometimes a "metallic taste" is added.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is your opinion on the following beliefs, so popular with older persons, with which I disagree:

1—That "a good purgative should be taken every month or two to clean out the upper bowel."

2—That the same is recommended for dizziness — which they think means 'liver trouble' — and for headaches, nausea, backache, etc.

3 — That even diarrhea is supposed to be treated with a purgative because "it means the upper bowel isn't cleaned out." —R.E.P.

No. 1 is, as you suspect, a complete fable; the others are odd mixtures of truth and falsehood. The human system decidedly does not need a purgative "just because." There has to be a good reason. Something has to be out of order.

Dizziness certainly is not always due to liver trouble. It can be from high blood pressure, low blood pressure, toxicity, and a variety of other causes.

Harsh purgatives usually do more harm than good, and can be decidedly habit-forming or downright dangerous at times. However, a mild laxative is occasionally used in case of gall bladder disease.

Laxatives are prescribed for some kinds of diarrhea, but not "because the upper bowel needs cleaning."

Puzzling Announcement

"The Russians have detonated nuclear blasts in space at least 28 times as powerful as the bomb that obliterate explosion which sent a new radiation belt whirling around the earth July 9, a comparison showed today."

That is the opening sentence of a despatch from Washington.

We find it puzzling. If this is true, did the Russians blast also create a new radiation belt around the earth. If not, why not? If so, why have we not heard about it?

A second perusal of the quoted sentence suggested an explanation. The Russian blasts are described as being "in space," the U.S. explosion as having taken place at a high altitude. Perhaps there is a difference? Perhaps the Russian explosions not high enough above the world to interfere with the Van Allen belt?

If this is the explanation, then we have a first-class example of the use of weasel words. But if these weasel words were indeed used and a comparison was being made between two entirely different kinds of test, then the writer of the article was made a sucker, too. In paragraph two he refers to a Soviet "high altitude blast" of July 9 was equal to only 1,400,000 tons.

All very puzzling.

He Drinks, Wife Drives

Hamilton Spectator

Some cabinet ministers are just too funny for words. And one of them surely must be Ernest Bevin, the British minister of transport.

Amid laughter from the delegates at a recent conference on road safety, Mr. Marples said he had reached an amicable agreement with his wife: she drove and he drank.

This may be as a good solution as any to a problem a lot of men face particularly during the Christmas partying season. However, it could have serious repercussions. Indirectly at least, Mr. Marples was the cause of his blessing to women drivers. So what happens in the case of a teetotalling husband who allows his wife to drive? If she's like some women drivers social historians tell us about, she may drive him to drink.

Oh, well, it's an interesting theory, anyway and we say that with the knowledge that Mr. Marples owns a large vineyard and may therefore be sure that husbands should not stop drinking.

Arabs at Aden Riot to Protest Trade Treaty

ADEN (Reuters) — Police today made repeated tear gas and truncheon charges to disperse hundreds of rioting Arabs protesting a new political link between Southern Arabia as commercial life in this British colony came to a near standstill.

As soon as police managed to disperse the rioters, the demonstrators regrouped to continue their protest, which included the burning down of a political party headquarters and in vain attempt to seize buses.

They also fought police with sticks and stones and threw back unexploded police tear gas grenades.

Hoding broke out as the Arabs marched on the port colony's legislative council just before it was to debate a move to link Aden with the 11-state South Arabian federation of Sheikdoms.

Meantime, Aden Airport was closed to all but import work was almost at a standstill and the powerful armed forces union staged a complete walk-in. Few stores were open.

Several injured demonstrators were taken to hospitals and hospital sources said one man was admitted with a bullet wound in his leg.

British troops armed with sub-machine-guns stood by to help police as crowds of Arabs ignored an official ban on processions to march on the legislative council.

Attendance Mark Surpassed As Picton Fair Concluded

PICTON—Directors of the County Fair at Picton looked with envy on Sunday's weather. If it was the most noticeable thing they lacked during the annual event on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Cold weather, dull weather and a downpour of rain Saturday dampened the enthusiasm of fair goers, but did not prevent the previous year's gate receipts being exceeded by $750.

The 30,000 attendance mark was surpassed when thousands turned out at night, especially for the thrill car show Friday night and the Doc William's show and dance from Wheeling, West Virginia, Saturday night. The latter event drew 1,723 paid admissions into the County Agricultural and Recreation Centre. For two solid hours the crowd roared with laughter at a comedian and attempted to secure encores for every musical number. It was the most enthusiastic crowd ever seen here. The show was followed by two hours of dancing to music by the same group and at one time forty sets were in action for square dances.

EXHIBITS REMOVED

Exhibits in this building, some 5,000 of them, were removed at five o'clock, and two hours later there was little evidence that it had been the scene of one of the most colorful displays of farm produce, flowers, school work and crafts ever displayed in the province. This magnificent display drew words of praise from visitors from far and near. As a past president of the County Fair Association, Sid Fitzgerald of Shannonville put it, "this is truly a show case of Prince Edward County." A visitor from Chicago, Orval Edmonds stated, "We have nothing like this display at our USA. fairs."

No accidents marked the event and police made only one investigation in which no charges were laid. Even the girlie show which enlivened Napanee Fair brought no undue action.

JUMPING COMPETITION

One of the features of Saturday afternoon was the jumping competitions with Kingston horses carrying off most of the top awards. Riders included Jane, Barbara, Duncan and Geoffrey Scott; J. A. Forman, Joan Kelly, Kingston, Mrs. R. Mainwaring, Brockville, Three, with the large entry of horses and ponies and the horse races, helped fill the grandstand in spite of very cool weather.

In the horse classes, Burritt Mann, Peterborough had best pair carriage horses, while Miles Benedict, Belleville, had best single carriage horse. Leonard Blight of Brooklin had best single and pair roadsters. Charles Colmer, Picton, with his Palimino had best saddle horse in show, and also won the top award in the Western parade.

With couples dressed as brides and grooms, the child's fancy turnout was won by Roland Norden's entry, Miss Lorna Hicks topped the lady saddle horse cnicles, and Ray Cochrane of Enniskillen the child's show pony.

Although more than 100 horses can be accommodated in the barns, it was necessary to let many go home the second day and carriage and roadster classes were held Friday to permit them to go to Tweed Fair on Saturday.

HOME ENTERTAINMENT

That home entertainment is as good as any was shown when Carl Gilbert's Prince Edward Ramblers provided a program of music and song. Seven hundred gathered in the Centre Friday night for this feature. Brenda's Archer's baton corps also gave a colorful display.

Although it was chilly inside, six hundred ladies attended Ontario Hydro cooking schools, and sixty prizes were awarded.

Paul Riddell's daredevil car show filled the 1,000-seat grandstand and gave spectators many thrills.

"We are pleased with the success of the Fair and the splendid co-operation that has been given by so many people," said society president Ralph Robinson. "It is not our objective to make a lot of money, but we do assure that we will more than break even in spite of the great amount of prize money we will be paying out. We try to put on a real agricultural fair and I believe we have done so. Many tell us that the fair cannot be improved, but we will continue to attempt improvements and new ideas."

to study and report on the adaptability of an uprated NPD for a site near Karachi," Mr. Gray said.

A plant of this type likely would cost some $37,000,000. NPD cost $33,000,000 but this included research and development.

BRITAIN INTERESTED

Mr. Gray also reported increased British interest in the Canadian heavy water program. He said negotiations have reached the stage of detailed discussion with both the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority and the Central Electricity Generating Board.

"Plans now are being made regarding the form which the co-operation would take if the U.K. decided to incorporate heavy water reactors into its program," he said.

Pope John has been living for the last week in a small isolated apartment atop an ancient tower in the Vatican grounds, praying and meditating in preparation for the ecumenical council.

Entering the basilica Sunday, he knelt in prayer at the tomb of St. Peter, beneath the confessional altar dominating the centre of the basilica.

Then he went down into the Vatican grottoes to pray at the mausoleums of his three most immediate predecessors—Popes Benedict XV, Pius XI and Pius XII.

YOU HAVE A HAND IN THINGS CANADIAN
when you own Life Insurance

Surprising? Yes—but true. Like most people, you have probably thought of your life insurance—as protection for your family—as a good way to save money regularly—as a valuable collateral if you need a loan for an emergency—as a retirement plan for you later on.

Actually, your life insurance dollars are more than an investment in your personal security and your family's. These dollars are also an investment in Canada. They stimulate growth and progress and help make this country a better place in which to live and work.

At this moment, 9 BILLION DOLLARS of life insurance savings are invested in important Canadian enterprises—through the purchase of bonds and stocks and through mortgages.

These hard-working dollars are helping to finance great projects all over this country such as pipelines, shopping centres, bridges and highways, homes, apartment and office buildings, schools, factories, industrial plants and power developments. These investments create employment opportunities, too.

The income from these investments benefits you directly, by reducing the cost of life insurance to you and the 9 million other Canadian policyowners.

The full skirt was accented with matching lace. She wore a pillbox headdress with waist-length veil of silk tulle illusion and carried a cascade of Bettertime red roses encircling a white orchid centre.

Her matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Weese, of Carrying Place, R.R. No. 1, sister in-law of the bridegroom, and the bridesmaids were, Mrs. Royce Doxtator, also of Carrying Place, sister-in-law of the bride and Miss Beverly Jones, sister of the bride, of Carrying Place. The matron of honor and the bridesmaids were gowned alike in turquoise nylon organza over taffeta with fitted bodices and shirred full bell skirts. The bodices featured bateau necklines and short sleeves. They wore matching headdresses and carried crescent shaped bouquets of pink and white tumms mingled with carnations.

The little flower girls' frocks were of white nylon organza over white taffeta accented with turquoise sashes ending in long hemline streamers and large bows. They wore matching headdresses and carried nosegays of pink carnations and white tumms.

Mr. Robert Weese, of Carrying Place, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; while Messrs. Kenneth Prindle, of Belleville, and Royce Doxtator, brother of the bride, of Carrying Place, R. R. 1, ushered the guests.

The natty ring bearer Master Chris Doxtator, nephew of the bride, was spruce in his navy jacket and white trousers, with white carnation boutonniere.

The bridal bouquets added a delightful nuptial accent to the setting.

The guests were received by the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother; the former in a rose beige lace sheath with dark brown accessories and corsage of a deep purple orchid, and the latter in light blue embossed organza over taffeta with white and blue accessories and pink orchid corsage.

Onetime Olympic Runner Now Works With Retarded

By DAVE PIKE

HALIFAX (CP)—Aileen Meagher, onetime Olympic runner, longtime school teacher, sparetime painter, summertime traveller and gardener, is a woman of volcanic activity who has found one of her most rewarding activities to be working with mentally retarded children.

Miss Meagher's many activities and interests, recounted in an interview punctuated by her infectious laugh, belie her remark that she is "just an old maid school teacher."

"These were done by my children," she said proudly, waving a hand toward a line of pictures across one wall of the work - cluttered room in her home where she does most of her painting. Her "children" are mentally retarded youngsters—all boys—whom she has been introducing to the bright and limitless world of art in an auxiliary class for the last five or six years. Three of their murals won prizes in the children's art competitions at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

"They do lovely art work," she said, pausing to admire a model of a snake with one flopping tongue. "They're not too self-conscious or rushed and they have very fertile imaginations. I think you can help the child in any child — by helping him to see a lot of new and fascinating things in his paintings. All kids should be brought up with art. You may not need algebra when you leave school, but you do need art if you are to be a well-rounded person."

COMPETED IN BERLIN

A well - rounded person herself, Aileen Meagher (pronounced Marr) was born in Edmonton and came here with her parents while still a child. She started her track career at Dalhousie University, from which she later graduated with a bachelor of arts degree in education.

She was named to the Canadian track team for the 1932 Olympics in Los Angeles but "got a charley horse and couldn't run."

She was able to compete in the 1934 British Empire games in London, Ont., and in the 1936 Olympics in Berlin. "All I got out of that was a third in the relay."

She ran next in the 1938 empire games in Australia. "I didn't do anything spectacular, but I had a marvelous time because it started out hot and only time I made a round-the-world trip. I still love to travel."

She graduated from Dal in 1933. "I remember the occasion when jobs were hard to come by. 'All you can do is get one year that I was able to go into teaching.'"

Eventually, she found that "life was getting a little dull, so about 12 years ago I started to paint."

She studied at the Ontario Summer School, where she found instruction in children's work excellent, the Nova Scotia College of Art here and for three summers in Provincetown, Mass., with the celebrated American abstractionist Hans Hofmann.

PAINTED IN SPAIN

Several years ago Miss Meagher journeyed to Spain, rushed through a month's courses in elementary Spanish and a history of Spanish art, and returned home with a batch of paintings done in brilliant reds, yellows and blues.

"I like bright colors; most people don't. They want beiges, blacks and greys. I go with their drapes. They think of paintings in terms of decoration."

Miss Meagher, who paints "just whatever interests me" and doesn't adhere to any specific medium or school, has exhibited extensively, including every show in the Maritimes.

"Iceberg Finale," painted this summer near Labrador en route home by ship from Ireland, won first prize in the Maritime Art Exhibit at the Beaverbrook Gallery in Fredericton.

"What we need desperately in all Canadian communities are more public lectures, art courses in schools and art galleries, plenty of galleries. There are lots of good artists coming up today—art is picking up in Halifax—but their work has to be seen. There's no excuse for a city not having an art gallery.

"What it comes back to in any discussion like this is dis-need to educate people. Start stressing the importance of art in the schools and continue with lectures and other activities in adult life.

"If you don't, people will continue to buy unimaginative, wishy overpriced paintings by all these painters who are just competent."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

Ordinarily, invitations to a wedding are issued jointly by the mother and father of the bride. But often due to changes, death or divorce the invitations necessarily are issued in a less familiar way. Who would issue the invitations in the following cases?

1. If the parents are divorced and the mother, who has not remarried, is giving the wedding.

2. If the parents are divorced and the mother has remarried.

3. What name appears on the invitation if the bride's mother is deceased?

4. If the bride is orphaned, may a relative issue the invitation?

5. Is it permissible for a friend to issue invitations for a bride who is parentless?

6. Who issues the wedding invitation for a widow?

ANSWERS:

1. The mother would issue the invitation. Instead of using her married name, Mrs. John Jones, she would combine her maiden name, Carter, with her married name, Jones, and the invitation would be issued from Mrs. Carter Jones.

2. The bride's mother can issue the invitation by herself using her new married name, or, if she prefers, she can have the invitation issued jointly with her new husband. In the former case, it would be from Mrs. Stephen Clark; in the latter from Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Clark.

3. The bride's father would issue the invitation — i.e., Mr. John Jones requests the honor of your presence, etc.

4. Yes, if an older unmarried brother issued the invitation, for instance, it would read: Mr. Richard Jones requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of his sister Jane Jones, etc. If he were married, naturally his wife would be included in the wording, and the invitation would be issued from Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones.

5. Yes, but in this case the wording would be: Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith request the honour of your presence at the marriage of Miss Jane Jones, etc.

6. A divorcee does not send out formal invitations. The wedding usually is tastefully small, and attended only by close relatives and a few friends. They may be invited by note, by phone or in person.

7. A widow, especially if she's a mature woman, often, and correctly, issues her own invitations, identifying herself by using her formal married name. If the ceremony were to be held in her home, the invitation would read: The pleasure of your company is requested at the marriage of Mrs. John Jones, etc. If a church wedding, it would read: The honour of your presence is requested at the marriage of Mrs. John Jones, etc.

A younger widow may issue her own invitations or, if she prefers, she may have her parents do the writing. If the invitation is issued in their name, it would read: Mr. and Mrs. John Jones request the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Jane Jones Smith, etc.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

"Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, three editors and a women's editor. Each article is a summary of a similar agreement presented to the Council. The Council deals with problems, major and minor, encountered by guidance counselors and social workers.

Karen L. — He won't let me drive the car when he is in it.

Jerome L. — How can a man let himself be chauffered by a woman?

Karen L. — Jerry and I both go to business and our only chance to enjoy our new car is over the weekends. During the week we use it for an occasional errand and for supermarket stocking-up, but our daily travel is by bus and train. On our weekend jaunts, however, he won't let me touch the wheel. Since we travel great distances and he grows tired driving, this is not only a waste of an alternate driver — but makes the trip pretty uninteresting for me.

What gets my goat is that it was he who got me interested in driving. As a city girl I'd never bothered to learn. My folks got along fine without an automobile. But a year after our marriage, when we bought our home, Jerry insisted that I get a license. Now with our smooth countryside, I'm mild about motoring. But at this rate I'll have to get my own car for a chance to get in some real mileage as a driver.

Jerome L. — When I urged Karen to get her driver's license, it was because it's a good idea to have one. It didn't mean I was handing over the job of driving us around. When you and I ride out to a party I'm the one who's supposed to be at the wheel. I'm the man of the family — remember? I think any able-bodied man sitting next to a woman driver looks like a kid being taken bye-bye by his Mommy!

Furthermore, a license to drive doesn't make a good driver out of Karen. The one time I did let her drive me around she almost went off the road. If I hadn't grabbed the wheel and straightened the car out — well, we wouldn't be here today talking over the problem.

I'm glad she learned how to drive. It's a skill everyone should have in case she can't use the car wherever she wants on her own errands, without depending on me. But for pleasure trips I'll take over.

The Council: We'll bet, Jerome, that Karen sitting beside you doesn't look one bit like your mommy, no matter who's in the driver's seat! And we'll bet, too, that she wouldn't mind relinquishing the steering wheel if you could cough up some more flattering and convincing reasons than you have thus far advanced. Any spunky lady would take umbrage at being told to move over because 1) she's a bad driver, and 2) she's trying to wear the family pants!

A little more, tact there, boy! Certainly you trust her driving when you dispatch her on local stops in your prized chariot. Perhaps she became flustered the first time you let her chauffeur you; the honor literally went to her head and she lost control. But basically she's an okay driver, isn't she? Then tell her so. Assure her you trust her skill and that that isn't the vital reason for your insistence upon steering.

Why not present your case in some such form as this? You're delighted that she can drive and you're grateful for having her on board. On long monotonous stretches, it's a comfort to have an alternate driver to spell you out. And, in case you feel ill, it's a nice safe feeling to know Karen can bring the conveyance safely to port. But you'd rather that she consider herself the "auxiliary" motor, called upon in emergencies or for special reasons. It's no reflection on her proficiency. It's just that, as a man, you like to feel you're taking her out rather than the reverse when you're in the car.

To throw a small-sized monkey wrench into your cliche about who's "supposed" to be at the wheel, Jerome, we might remind you that lady taxi drivers and their passengers no embarrassment and that lady truck drivers appear in more places than on "What's My Line?" In fact, the newspapers reported recently that a Lincolnton, N.C., housewife and wife relieves her husband on the road between N.Y. and Ga.

To Karen, we'd whisper that she may well have the best of it. She can sit back and enjoy the scenery, doze and read. Jerome, the gallant swain, must keep his eyes glued to what's ahead, behind, right, left, over and under. Hard enough, Jerry.

Chop Changes

by Mary Moore

When Mrs. Wm. P. asked if I had a recipe for "pork chops which are cooked and cooked in the oven, but fried first," I racked in my files to discover I had once given a recipe for breaded pork chops here for over ten years.

I am about to correct this oversight.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Panned Beef Liver with Parsley Drawn Butter Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Onion-Fried Shredded Red Cabbage with Apple; Celery Hearts and Sliced Cucumbers; Peach Cobbler; Coffee.

BAKED BREADED PORK CHOPS:

Wipe six 1" thick pork chops with damp cloth. Sprinkle with salt and a little pepper on the fat edge. Beat 1 egg with 2 tablespoons water and dip chops in this then in very fine crumbs. Lightly brown on both sides in butter or margarine or oil and remove to baking dish. Add 1 tablespoon hot water, cover and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes.

QUICK DINNER-IN-A-DISH (Serves 4):

1¼ teaspoons salt, 6 thick pork chops, 1½ cups celery, chopped, 1½ tablespoons shortening, 1 can condensed tomato soup (or other canned cream soup), 1 cup water, 1 package uncooked noodles (8 oz.).

Sprinkle salt in frying pan, sear chops lightly on both sides. Remove chops. Add celery and shortening; cook until limp. Stir in soup and water. Arrange chops over noodles in large baking dish. Pour on sauce. Cover. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour. Serves 6.

PORK CHOPS CREOLE (Top-of-Stove) (serves 4):

1 20-oz. can kernel corn, 4 thick loin, rib or shoulder pork chops, 1 tablespoon fat, ¼ teaspoon Tabasco sauce, 2 tablespoons chili sauce.

Reserve liquid from canned corn. Sprinkle chops with salt. Melt fat in frying pan. Brown chops slowly in hot fat over low heat, on both sides, for about 15 to 20 minutes. Add ½ cup reserved corn liquid if there isn't enough, make up with water. Tabasco sauce and chili sauce, cover frying pan. Simmer chops 40 to 50 minutes longer (depending on thickness) or until they are fork tender. Add more water during cooking, if necessary, and turn chops occasionally. Stir corn into frying pan during last 10 minutes of cooking. Serve with creamy mashed potatoes.

NOTE:

My neighbor Bruce buys the meat in their family. He was a farm boy and knows his pigs. When they want chops he buys a loin of pork and cuts his own, sawing through the bone. Obviously this is an economy. So take a lesson from Bruce.

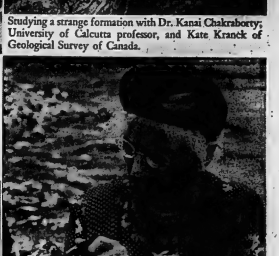
Dr. Alice Wilson : The World Is At Her Feet

Canada's Leading Lady of Geological Science

Scientific clues reveal majestic mechanics which formed earth's geological features millions of years ago.



Over 50 years ago Canada's first lady geologist looked up with young, enquiring eyes at the Precambrian ramparts of the Canadian Shield across the Ottawa River, wondered deeply about the earth we live on. Then, in an age when women were expected to leave such things to men, she began a scientific study that would make her name known to university students around the world. Today, after decades of field observations, years of scientific thought, half a century of intricate investigations, Dr. Alice Evelyn Wilson, M.B.E., is the authority on 10,000 square miles of regional geology centred on the nation's capital, is author of many scientific studies (and a children's geology book), is still very busy learning and teaching the story of the earth's history. At 81, Dr. Wilson still thinks big. Little vicissitudes of life find small encouragement in her scientific brain schooled by years of professional observations and precise thinking. Yet, despite the cold, hard geological facts of her work, her view of the world is warm with the massive grandeur and delicate beauty of nature, is sunned by the bright rays of tolerance in things physical and abstract. Taking a group of geology students on a weekend field trip to study exposed parts of the earth's crust, she is still first over the farmer's fence, first to spot a wild-flower, a high-flying bird, the gathering storm and the changing face of the countryside. Still active, still threatening to retire (she officially retired from the Geological Survey of Canada 16 years ago), Dr. Alice Wilson, in her 82nd year, is still—literally—very much a woman of the world.

Dr. Wilson jokes with Miriam Steele, University of Toronto, centre, and Penny Wise, Queen's University. Dr. Wilson formerly lectured at Carleton University.

Studying a strange formation with Dr. Kanai Chakraborty, University of Calcutta professor, and Kate Kranck of Geological Survey of Canada.

Dr. Wilson, who has acted as oil consultant in recent years, examines a rock fragment in the field.

With geology student Jocelyne Legault of Ottawa, Dr. Wilson, who is also a palaeontologist, takes close look at fossil imprint in seeps of Parliament Buildings.

matters of sex and features dealing with sex in the publication."

It is difficult, magistrates say, to interpret Section 150A, of the Criminal Code of Canada, amended in 1959 to define 'obscene literature as "any publication of which the dominant characteristic is undue exploitation of sex, crime, horror, cruelty and violence."

The code does not further define sex—either by measuring the degree of flesh exposure; or by grading the degree of intensity in the "come-hither" looks of the negligee-clad models.

In the Newfoundland Playboy cast, Crown prosecutor James Power said: "the nude model in the centre-page spread was there only because of her measurements and the titillating cartoons weren't even funny."

Playboy contended there was nothing in the particular issue which could be considered obscene, although it might be distasteful or undesirable to some people. Nevertheless, the magazine has not returned to newsstands on the island.

Quebec exercises the most rigid control on literature in Canada.

Paul Fenette, assistant deputy-attorney-general, said the list of banned books is "too long to remember."

He said the provincial censorship board keeps the blacklist up to date and distributors are advised of additions to the list. Publishers have never contested seizures or blacklistings in Quebec—except in the famous case of the novel—Lady Chatterly's Lover.

When the Quebec censorship board blacklisted that novel—the story of the love affair between an English noblewoman and her gamekeeper, written by D. H. Lawrence—three Montreal newsstand dealers took the matter to court.

The Quebec Supreme Court shot down their case in April, 1961, five months after a London court jury ruled the book—despite its sprinklings of sex and four-letter words—was not obscene.

Prof. Frank Scott, dean of the law faculty of McGill University, carried the test case to the Supreme Court of Canada, and last March won a 5-4 decision ruling the novel is not obscene.

The only provincial censorship boards are: he Alberta advisory board on objectionable publications; Quebec censorship board, and the Ontario attorney-general's advisory panel on obscene literature.

No court action is on record in Alberta where major distributors meet with the advisory board and comply with its recommendations of the board.

The Ontario board recommends withdrawal of obscene magazines to the distributors, but the only prosecutions which follow are the result of complaints laid by readers.

About 80 magazines were removed from Prince Edward Island newsstands last year by major Maritime distributor H. H. Marshall, of Halifax, after the home and school organization threatened to take action. P.E.I. has no provincial board.

Since Judge Keat's decision in Newfoundland now is on record, prosecutions can proceed in the normal way. A policeman now may go into a newsstand, seize any number of books he considers obscene, and use them to obtain a summons for the store owner to appear in court on a charge of selling obscene literature.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia said no action is planned on checking for obscene books. He said the provincial policy is that complaints must be made through proper authorities. He said only cases where complainants volunteer information will be investigated.

New Brunswick and Saskatchewan appear to be satisfied with following the rulings made by boards in Quebec, Alberta and Ontario. Attorney - generals in both provinces say they can recall no court action, and said they have banned 28 books—including the 23 recently banned in Newfoundland.

Nova Scotia's obscenity control appears to be in the hands of radio gospel preacher Perry Rockwood. Mr. Marshall agreed to withdraw 80 publications after Mr. Rockwood threatened to lay charges.

Mr. Marshall has suggested the establishment of an advisory board similar to those in Alberta and Ontario, but Attorney-General Donahoe said he preferes to let the courts rule—although there is no record of any prosecutions in the province.

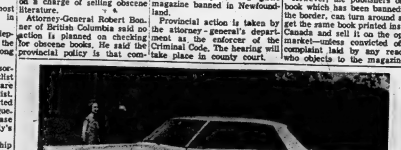
Manitoba has no board, but two cases are coming up for trial after a morality department official laid a charge against a news agency for circulating Escapade — a girlie magazine banned in Newfoundland.

Provincial action is taken by the attorney - general's department as the enforcer of the Criminal Code. The hearing will take place in county court.

Federally, obscene publications in Canada are controlled by two factors. The Criminal Code states what may not be allowed, and the seizures branch of the division of customs of the department of national revenue also controls the imports of literature.

In 1947, the branch banned 97 of some 3,000 books on their way into the country, and at that time had more than 1,000 titles on its blacklist.

There is no chief censor of books in Canada and no reading staff is maintained in Canada for the purpose of censorship.



When a shipment of books arrives at the border it is given a cursory examination by a customs inspector who forwards to Ottawa any books he considers borderline.

In Ottawa, the books are given to a number of employees of the revenue department to read, and a cross-section of opinions is formed.

If the employees agree the book should be banned, it is sent to the minister who makes the final decision.

Importers whose books have been banned have the right of appeal to the tariff board.

However, the publishers of a book which has been banned at the border, can turn around and get the same book printed inside Canada and sell it on the open market—unless convicted of a complaint laid by any reader who objects to the magazine.

HEATH STARTS

is the country retreat of British prime ministers.

Throughout the arduous negotiations, Heath has remained surprisingly resilient, refusing to be depressed by setbacks. British commentators said he is tackling the new round of conversations with "renewed zest," having completely recovered from the depression that appeared to settle over him during the Commonwealth conference, when the emphasis was placed on the perils and problems of affiliation with Europe.

Heath is understood to have reached a tentative understanding with his Benelux colleagues to try for an agreement on major issues involved in the Brussels negotiations before Christmas.

The new phase of negotiations coincides with a spate of weekend speculation on domestic political developments. These include:

Prime Minister Macmillan's television broadcast making it clearer than ever before the government's determination to get into Europe;

Opposition Leader Hugh Gaitskell's rebuttal, also on television, saying that the terms of entry negotiated so far must be improved and calling for an immediate general election on the common market issue generally;

The Liberal party assembly in Wales, at which leader Jo Grimmond attacked Gaitskell and Macmillan in turn for a timid approach toward Europe and caused correspondents to axe whether the Liberals really are climbing back toward the political heights.

"For the first time in 30 years or more the Liberals have reason to believe that their progress is real and . . . that its pace is increasing", says Mark Arnold-Foster in the Observer.

The Liberals are "breathing down Labor's neck," says James Margach in the Sunday Times, assessing the "tough-muscled radicalism" shown at the Liberal conference.

Commentators agree that the Liberals, once the despised third party, now must be taken seriously. Some see them possibly ousting Labor as the radical alternative to the Conservatives. Labor, some observers feel, is tending to become old-fashioned and reactionary, hampered by an extreme left-wing group and by its obligations to a highly Conservative trade union movement.

Some Day Robot Will Do Housework

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — A British scientist predicted Friday that man will one day invent a robot that will do all of women's tiresome housework.

He is Professor Meredith Thring of Sheffield University, who is married and has three children.

"We have gone no further than the hallway stage" in the industrial revolution, he said in an interview.

This has led a number of inventors to look seriously into the possibility of making a foolproof, 100 per cent robot housewife."

Mentioning vacuum cleaners, washing machines, floor polishers and automatic dishwashers, he said:

WORKS HARDER

"Yet the average British housewife of 1962 works harder than her Victorian counterpart. She works so hard that her husband often feels compelled to help her."

Thring, a professor of chemical engineering, said it's too early to discuss how far he's progressed with the project, but he visualizes a robot about the size of a small woman—a machine that could be rigged to make beds, set tables and do cleaning chores.

There's a gimmick. He said it would take about 10 years to develop at a cost of $2,800,000.

Mannish Look

By VERA WINSTON

The mannish look in suits makes its mark this season and at every price level.

Here it's expressed in a suit in a pale beige shade that is almost cream-colored.

The notched collar stands slightly away from the neck above the double-breasted closing with its six black buttons. The seaming, placed slightly forward of the actual side seams, is double.

A black sweater blouse completes the outfit.

Is There An A. A. for Smokers?

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS—I am a young man who smokes, but would like to stop it. Can you help? I started to smoke because, like other young people, I was a weakling about saying no when it was offered to me. The alcoholics have the A.A. to help, but what do smoke slaves have?—ROBERT.

DEAR ROBERT—You and many another took that first cigaret to seem like a sport. Then the habit took hold.

So far I have not heard of an S.S. which might approximate the A.A., but if you can find some others as desperate as you are to Stop Smoking, perhaps you could get one going.

But get this: You have to want to stop more than you want to keep on. You will have your own reasons. List them.

Then set yourself the task of stopping, one day at a time. Instead of a smoke, reach for a throat lozenge, a drink of water, a piece of fresh fruit. You will know your own best substitute.

When you find yourself weakening, take a look at the list of reasons you stopped. If you can find even one other person to do this with, it will strengthen your morale. Write to me for a leaflet by an expert and for the name of a helpful book about it.

DEAR DORIS—My mother (79) has lived with us twenty years up until four weeks ago, when she fell and broke her hip. She is now in hospital.

Her mind wanders very much, has for over two years, and the doctor says he is confused all the time.

Now my problem is, would it be unkind for me to try and put her in an old folks' home?—REALLY WORRIED.

DEAR REALLY—Homes for the ailing aged are cheerful places nowadays. Pay a personal visit to one and talk to residents as well as to the director.

Here you will find sociability and recreation that fits as well as kindness and care for your mother. Once she adjusts, she'll likely settle in and start enjoying herself.

DEAR DORIS—I suffered a nervous breakdown some seven years ago. My husband was drinking excessively at that time and it was impossible for me to leave my five children much to get treatment. My brother and father are also with us.

Now I have great difficulty in going among crowds or to church, and doing all the things I'd like to do. When I go any place, even for a visit, I have the overwhelming urge to break down and cry or run. I have been taking tranquilizers for some years off and on, but they do not help much.—IN FLIGHT.

DEAR IN—Did you ever get rested? We all feel like crying—or running—when we are just too tired to cope.

Keeping house for three men and five children could get the strongest woman in tears. How about a round table discussion about sharing the chores?

If you have specific unreasonable fears, you need your doctor's help.

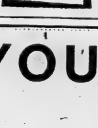
DEAR DORIS—I am nine years old and in love. His name is Glen. He is a little younger than me. What should I do?—DEBBIE.

* * *



DEAR DEBBIE—When I was seven there was a boy named George who gave me a ring (tin, probably). Then he wanted the box back! At the time he spelled Romance with a Capital R—but alas—short lived.

For now, be friends with everybody; both boys and girls. As for Glen, I would let him carry your books home from school, but don't permit any liberties.

(There are books and resources to meet your need.—Ask Doris about them.)

Golf Champ Plays Game Only for Fun

VANCOUVER (CP) — Golf has always been fun for Gayle Hitchens, new Canadian women's champion. And it's going to stay that way.

She's only 19, but she knows already she won't make a career of it.

"It's a pretty hard life, and you really have to be good when you're depending on winnings for your bread and butter," said the North Vancouver blonde.

Even teaching golf would force her into a professional status, and that would mean the end of her cherished amateur competitions.

She expects to get in only an occasional round this winter, perhaps in free time at the campus of the University of B.C., where she is in her freshman year.

But she hopes to keep close to the brand of game that won her the Canadian title in Winnipeg in August. Goals for 1963 include a place on the team playing at the Commonwealth championships in Australia, or barring her selection, a fling at the United States' women's amateur.

Miss Hitchens has no illusions of a long reign. She predicts an invasion from a "great group of juniors of 14 and 15 coming up in golf."

Her advice to them is simple: Get a good teacher and work at it.

Her perfections of style, including a brand - new compact swing in the last year, have been developed by her father Bob, assistant pro at the Capilano Golf Club.

And the rest of it—the toll—couldn't be sidestepped.

"Some think that to go out and play is enough, but it isn't. You have to go out and practise, practise every day."

Owen Ketcheson, 18, of Moira took first place in the senior calf competition of the Tweed 4-H club with his Ayreshire at Tweed Fair Saturday. Second place went to his sister, Linda Ketcheson, 15 years old.

Saturday was a wet day for a fair, but the sun broke through at times, and the Tweed Fair saw a good turnout. This view, from the top of the ferris wheel, shows part of the crowd.

Union Nationale Organizer Has Resigned Post

STE. GERMAINE, Que. (CP) This is one election that Joseph-Damase Begin won't organize for the Union Nationale.

Mr. Begin, 62, personally elected eight times in succession, Sunday night announced his political retirement to a crowd of about 2,000 in this Dorchester riding centre about 60 miles southeast of Quebec City.

He said he wants to devote more time to his family, which includes six children, and won't contest the Nov. 14 provincial election.

His talent for oratory and organization made him one of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis' right-hand men after the Union Nationale came to power in 1935.

The Duplessis government was defeated in 1939 but surged back to win the 1944 and three succeeding general elections in Quebec under the campaign guidance of the tall, burly radio dealer.

He was chief organizer for the party.

A nominating convention will be held in St. Clair, another Dorchester County community, next Sunday to choose Mr. Begin's successor as Union Nationale candidate.

His announcement came as the Union Nationale opened its campaign with a giant rally in Amqui.

Jumping to Conclusions How Many Do You Agree With?

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions—and how many do you agree with?1:

Monogamy has been such a success in the modern world not so much because it is so moral—but because it is so practical. The Koran SHROuld man up to four wives at a time, but only an idiot would want to cope with four wives in a three-room apartment.

Cows generally walk the same way home from pasture, but a man who always travels the same route home from work is in a real rut.

Many people today think it is a status symbol to brag about their stock market losses. If as much real cash had been dropped in Wall Street recently as you hear about at cocktail parties, the United States would be in hock for three generations. Heaven save us from the conversational paupers!

Never trust a man with false teeth who says they never give him any trouble. If he lies about that, he'll probably also lie about something really important.

ASK NO CHANGE

The best testament to the way God planned existence is the fact that at any given moment most people would not want in their heights to be either younger or older. They'd rather live in the present—and let life unroll as it will.

Divorce is a kind of living death, a paper tombstone. No intelligent man or woman—no matter how much each blames the other—can see their marriage wrecked on the rocks of disagreement without a sense of personal humiliation at failing in the greatest test of mutual human adventure.

Women keep their kinship with nature longer than men do. An old man usually takes off his shoes only to rest his feet, but an old woman never loses the cooling sense of thrill she gets from stepping barefoot into a running brook.

It's best to take the rainbows as they come: Even with the same palette, it's doubtful you could paint a better one.

MADRAS, India (AP) — India's elder statesman, 84-year-old C. Rajagopalachari, will meet President Kennedy in Washington next Friday in an effort to get a promise to stop nuclear testing, a Gandhi Peace Foundation spokesman announced today. Another mission will visit Moscow at the same time.

AWARD WINNER — Jean Wallbridge tries out the new Singer portable sewing machine which she won as the top seamstress in the 1962 Singer Young Stylemaker Contest in the Ottawa division. Watching as Miss Wallbridge demonstrates her style is Belleville branch manager J. Magnusson, who made the presentation.

Jean Wallbridge, 10-year-old entrant in the recent annual "Young Stylemaker Contest" sponsored by the Singer the "Tween" group (ages 10 to recently declared the winner of sewing machine firm, was re-13) for the Ottawa agency. This division includes the area from Sault Ste. Marie to Moncton, N.B. with the exception of the Toronto area.

She earned this award, and a portable Singer sewing machine, on the basis of her workmanship in making her own dress from patterns which were available for the contest entrants.

She was one of three winners in the local contest amongst approximately 40 entrants and was the only one to win the major class award with entries submitted by the 48 stores in the Ottawa division.

Another local winner, Miss M. Henry of R. R. 1, Picton, won an honorable mention for placing in the top three entries in the "Misses and Mrs." group at the divisional level.

As winner in the divisional finals, Miss Wallbridge's entry will go to the contest's finals in New York City.

Exhibits Down At Tweed Fair, Weather Chilly

Despite the rain which fell over the Tweed area on Saturday, a large crowd attended the annual Tweed Fair. Attendance appeared to be somewhat greater than last year, but exhibits were down considerably.

The well known baby show was held Saturday afternoon, sponsored by the Tweed Agricultural Society.

Several novelty contests were held, including old-time fiddlers, a prize for the largest family on the grounds, the oldest man on the grounds and the oldest woman on the grounds and a tug of war contest.

The midway was the centre attraction for the kiddies and teenagers even though it rained most of the afternoon. The Tweed High School band and the Gale Chapman majorettes of Belleville put on a performance for the grandstand viewers.

The Tweed 4-H Club and the Hastings 4-H Tractor Club had some fine exhibits and put on a splendid showing. There was a good attendance of 4-H members, a few more than last year. The Tweed 4-H Grain Club also had some fine exhibits on display.

Some of the dignitaries who were present at the Tweed Fair, First-President, W. S. McCrea; President, W. Bateman, who officially opened the Tweed Fair Saturday afternoon; First Vice-President, H. Varty; Second Vice-President, Thomas Lynn; and Secretary-Treasurer, Douglas E. Spencer. Also present for the event was Les Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, and Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P.

There were also some very fine horse races held during the afternoon, and for the younger horse racing fans present, there was a pony race held.

In all, the Tweed Fair was considered to have been a big success. Some officials remarked it was a better fair than last year's, even though it did rain. The exhibit building at times was packed, with people endeavoring to keep dry.

Ceylon Imports More Goods Than Exported and Country Is Running Out of Money

COLOMBO (AP)—After years of good living, Ceylon is running out of money.

This island nation, off India today imports more than it exports. The government spends more than it collects in taxes. Its foreign exchange reserves are almost depleted.

Fear of repercussions from angry voters has prevented the government from carrying out its own calls for austerity. Most opposition politicians also are away from the unpopular measures that Ceylonese economists and foreign experts say are necessary.

By December there will not be sufficient foreign exchange to import enough rice, basic item in the Ceylon diet. Despite the lush agricultural productivity and good fishing possibilities of this tropical island, Ceylon imports 45 per cent of its rice need, 74 per cent of its fish and much of its other food.

The country was wracked by the December crisis by Felix Dias Bandaranaike, 35-year-old nephew of prime minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike.

As finance minister, he proposed to cut rice imports and substitute cheaper wheat for a fourth of the weekly rice ration.

Older politicians in Mrs. Bandaranaike's cabinet considered a rice cut political suicide. They forced her and Felix Bandaranaike to back down, and the finance minister resigned.

The budget he had introduced was further distorted by failure to collect a new 10 per cent sales tax. After two chaotic days this effort to reduce the deficit had to be abandoned.

In addition to subsidized food, the government provides free education and medical services and subsidized transportation and housing.

These benefits were added atop an economic structure created by the British, who gave Ceylon independence in 1948. They exported tea, rubber and coconuts to pay for necessities.

The exports gave Ceylon one of the highest standards of living in Asia, with a per capita income almost double that of India. But in 1961 Ceylon's 10,- 167,000 people averaged 571 rupees ($120.37) apiece, scarcely higher than the per-capita rate in 1948 because a population increase of 2.8 per cent a year has eaten up small economic gains.

Ceylon's needy foreign aid has been imperilled it by seizing some assets of U.S. and British oil companies. Private foreign investment has been frightened off by contradictory talk of nationalization and efforts to restrict exportation of profits. Both countries have suspended aid among Ceylon's Buddhist Singhalese majority, the talents of the Hindu Tamil minority are being wasted. Racial tension could explode.

Quebec and Ontario accounted for more than half the 47 accidental deaths reported in Canada during the weekend.

They reported 25 violent deaths arising from normal holiday activities—13 in Quebec and 12 in Ontario. The two provinces also led in traffic deaths, Canada's highway toll rising from 9 p.m. local times Friday to midnight last showed, Quebec and 10, Ontario eight.

Five persons drowned, two died in fires and one was killed in a hunting accident.

Health Minister Criticizes Press Over Caouette

JACKSON'S POINT, Ont. (CP)—Health Minister Matthews criticized the Ontario Liberal press Saturday night for the treatment of Real Caouette and the Social Credit's qualified praise of Hitler and Mussolini.

"The press has never reminded me that Mr. Caouette has made the mistake of attacking the deputy leader of the Social Credit party.

The press had never reminded me that Mr. Caouette has praised people—that the boom periods in the 1930s in Germany and Italy were based on heavy armaments and Mussolini were preparing for war.

"It is our duty to remind our young people of this," Dr. Dymond told the 21st anniversary of the Toronto and District Young P.C. Riders Association.

Conservative Association. "God decided that this country should never be used by dictators to advocate guns instead of butter."

"Caouette," he said, "will one day hang himself with his own tongue."

Dr. Dymond also defined the present-day aim of Conservatism, which he said is for the government to do those things for the people which they cannot do for themselves.

But this did not mean the government should take over all responsibilities.

"Responsibility for yourself and your family is not the responsibility of the government."

Dr. Dymond said he added that there are exceptions, such as the aged and the sick people.

A frequently-repeated theme of the three-day convention, was that the Conservative party must reorganize to face both the provincial and federal general elections in the next 12 months.

1963 Car Models Will Be Longer Than '62 Brothers

DETROIT (AP) — The 1963 models of most North American car-built cars will be longer than their 1962 brothers.

Although some of the changes are infinitesimal, the direction appears to be more instead of less. And this has given rise to new rumbles from the auto trade journals as Automotive News.

But both of these Chrysler products are down. The new Plymouth is 205 inches long; the new Dodge 202 inches.

Using the American Motors grouping, the compacts are the only models in retreat of the industry. They passed the popular-size standards last March.

In July, most recent month for which official figures are accounted, compacts accounted for 38.4 per cent of all-registrations. That's above industry standards, a group in which AMC lumps Ford, Chevrolet, Plymouth, Buick, Pontiac and Mercury Meteor, accounted for 36.5 per cent.

Plymouth and Dodge are two of 19 makes or models which will be longer in 1963 than in 1962. The Dodge change of 6.2 inches is the greatest. Only five cars are shorter and two of these are the Rambler classic and Rambler American.

The Ramblers are 1.2 inches longer. The Chrysler New Yorker is four inches shorter. Mercury Monterey one half inch.

Among makers who have attempted to classify cars have been called the Edsel and Meteor intermediates.

In 1962 Plymouth and Dodge (both 202 inches overall) also were classed as intermediates by the automotive trade journals as Automotive News.

But both of these Chrysler products have been lengthened.

Plymouth is 205 inches long; the new Dodge 202 inches.

Southern Rhodesia Premier Appeals for Racial Unity

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters) — Premier Sir Edgar Whitehead called for racial unity in Southern Rhodesia in a broadcast Sunday night following a major shuffle of his cabinet.

Whitehead said supporters of domination by any race group or negroes were condemning their children and their future.

He said the banning of the nationalist Zimbabwe African People's Union last week was necessary because the party would not obey the law or tolerate disagreement.

Whitehead's speech and the cabinet changes came as the government pressed a security drive in an effort to stop recent outbreaks of violence and arson that have flared throughout this self-governing British colony.

Police reported they had seized more than 700 homemade weapons in a house - to - house search in the nearby Harare Native township and arrested five Negroes, bringing to 149 the number arrested since ZAPU was banned Thursday.

The cabinet changes followed the resignation of Reginald Knight, justice and internal affairs minister who will become a judge and of the local government and native administration minister, Ralph M. Cleveland because of ill health.

Knight was responsible for the controversial security legislation under which the government is making its current big drive against ZAPU.

Knight's post was taken over by Roads Minister A. R. Wise.

Stumbles and Cleveland was replaced by Desmond Ewing, a government legislature member.

Must Tighten Belts Says Premier Robarts

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP)—The time has come for a little "belt-tightening," Premier Robarts told Saturday's annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association of Ontario's central district.

"We have been a little soft, and we can't do our duty to children what our parents did for us, we must do a little tightening," he said.

"I have complete and absolute confidence in our province and in our people, but at times we must examine the balance sheet."

The premier said he is concerned with the possible adverse effects of the "budget-plus" taxes in Ontario.

He promised a study of the provincial tax structure, similar to the study on a federal level being made by the royal commission on taxation.

Speakers at the weekend shop sessions — held behind closed doors—were Premier Robarts, Darcy McKeough, Treasurer and Health Minister Dymond. About 700 supporters attended the meeting.

Rough, Tough Battle Over TV In Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A rough-tough verbal tussle between the Michigan Republican candidate for governor and the United Auto workers union's representative in Windsor erupted, showing Sunday night in the Windsor-Detroit area over Windsor station CKLW-TV.

George Romney, the candidate, and Guy Nunn, the commentator, "Good the show Saturday, Romney refused to be interrupted time and again as he answered what he termed "distortions of fact" that occurred a week earlier on Democratic Governor John B. Swainson's appearance on Nunn's UAW-sponsored show.

Romney requested he be allowed to go over. Nunn, a barbed - tongue former Rhodes scholar, said the union welcomed Romney's appearance, as it had sought in vain to get Republican candidates to appear on either its radio or television shows in years. Democrats now are completing a 14-year hold on the governor's chair.

QUESTIONS ANGER

Obviously angered by Nunn's attempts to background his questions by quoting from what they speeches stretching back to 1950, the Republican nominee accused Nunn of "reprehensible technique" after the taping and said he had been guilty of "many inaccuracies."

Nunn, who had his show all but taken away from him when Romney monopolized more than two-thirds of the time, said he didn't feel Romney gave "anything like relative responses" to his questions.

Nunn invited Romney to appear again but the former American Motor Corporation president said he didn't know about that.

Starting out by what he said was correction of "about 20 distortions of fact" on the Swainson-Nunn program, Romney accused Nunn of saying Romney had called the AFL-CIO "a dirty word."

DENIES QUOTE

"I never in my life said that the AFL-CIO was a dirty word," Romney said. "I have said that I think economic organizations' participation, direct participation, in political parties is a dangerous thing, just as wrong in the case of unions as it is in the case of corporations. and both should be stopped."

Here and at many other points he was unsuccessful in interrupting to get in new questions or his own commentary. Sometimes there were shouting matches as one or the other tried to get the microphone.

URGES TRUTH ON TV

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Pope John said in a letter published Sunday that the state should protect its citizens against any harm radio or television might do. The Pope said programs should stick to the truth.

Editors: The following account of his impressions was written by John Bland following a two-year assignment as Reuters correspondent in Havana, Bland, a 31 - year old Yorkshireman assigned to Cuba in September, 1960, was detained by the Cuban authorities on Sept. 9, held incommunicado in jail for six days and then deported to Jamaica.

By JOHN BLAND

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — Two years ago, when I was first appointed Reuters correspondent in Cuba, Havana was still a gaudy city, bustling with big cars and geared to the American way of life.

Tourists were a major source of revenue. Nightclubs presented lavish floor shows, roulette wheels spun and the city still deserved its notoriety for vice.

Today automobile traffic is down to two-thirds. Buses, elevators, office equipment and air-conditioners break down frequently for lack of parts. Water supplies are fitful. Supermarket shelves are only one-third full and strict rationing limits Cubans to five eggs, two ounces of butter and three pounds of meat each month.

The once-elegant life survives only in a half-dozen faded shows in the grand hotels and a handful of dining bars in old Havana.

CLOSED CASINOS

A new Puritanism closed the casinos a year ago, but has failed so far to close the race tracks. Western and gangster films are banned from the movie screen and replaced by war films from Communist countries.

Prostitutes were rounded up and sent to rehabilitation camps for "re-education." It did not deceive: The girls were forbidden to solicit for customers after midnight.

Commercial advertising has vanished from radio, television and posters.

More than 90 per cent of all business is transacted by the state or through state enterprises. Eighty per cent of the land is divided into people's farms, collectives or co-operative farms.

CENSORS NEWS

The Western press is only tolerated. An arbitrary censorship cuts whole cables, deletes phrases, even adds whole new sentences to what journalists send. The overseas telephone is subject to sudden breakdowns in the middle of a press message.

A worse hazard for the press is the incessant bombardment by mutually conflicting reports and rumors.

Arrivals at Havana Airport are welcomed by huge billboards proclaiming Cuba "territorio libre de America"—the free territory of America—while at the same time the departure lounges are crammed with Cubans desperately getting out, at the expense of their homes, possessions, wealth and citizenship.

34 Prisoners Cause Damage In Prison Riot

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirty-four prisoners rioted at the jail in this northern Quebec community at supper-time Sunday night and caused damage estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000.

No injuries were reported and none of the prisoners escaped.

The trouble started in the kitchen, where doors, windows, tables and chairs were smashed. The prisoners then headed to the second floor and set fire to mattresses in cells and to others piled in the hallway.

The men went to the basement where they shut off the water supply and twisted beds, mattresses, bench and pipes out of shape.

Heavily armed men Quebec Provincial Police, volunteer firemen and civilian volunteers were rushed to the jail by bus while the fire was extinguished. The prisoners were returned to their cells.

Cause of the disturbance, was not known. An inquiry, possibly today, wasopened.

The jail is a modern, permanent-brick wing of a building also housing the courthouse, RCMP headquarters and the sheriff's department. Ville Marie is 60 miles southeast of Kirkland Lake, Ont.

General Council Declares Church Pulpit Vacant

EDMONTON (CP) — A decision by the general council of the United Church of Canada that the pulpit at McDougall United Church be vacated, was announced Sunday from the church pulpit.

Dr. E. J. Thompson, principal of Alberta College here, told a thirsty old Alberta, who preached the morning service, made the announcement to the congregation.

Dr. Thompson said a future meeting will be held to decide the matter. No date was set.

The general council ruled Thursday that Rev. E. Rex Taylor of Edmonton must conform to an order by local church council that he vacate the pulpit at McDougall Church.

Mr. Taylor did not preach Sunday and was not present at morning services.

The Edmonton presbytery last May declared the McDougall pulpit vacant as of last June 30 on the grounds that Mr. Taylor showed "inefficiency" in dealing with the division in his congregation. The decision was confirmed by the Alberta conference. Mr. Taylor had remained at McDougall pending the outcome of the final appeal to council.

Dr. Thompson assured the congregation that the Edmonton presbytery and the Alberta regional council will do everything possible to retain the pastorate. He said the Alberta conference of the United Church will assist Mr. Taylor in finding a new pastoral charge.

Retirement of Adenauer Shaping More and More Into Serious Political Dilemma

BONN (AP)—The question of when Konrad Adenauer should retire and who should succeed him is shaping more and more into a serious political dilemma for West Germany.

The question has been publicly debated off and on since 1959 when the chancellor said he would retire to run for the more ceremonial job of president, then changed his mind because of the ensuing feud over a successor.

When Adenauer's Christian Democratic party lost its parliamentary majority last fall, Adenauer said he would retire in time to give his successor a chance to learn the job before 1965's general elections. After this concession the Free Democrats joined a coalition that elected Adenauer for a fourth term.

The question has again become acute.

Erich Mende, head of the Free Democrats, has threatened to take his party out of the coalition unless the 86 - year - old chancellor steps in the fall of next year.

Mende insists that his threat be taken seriously now though it was made in Schleswig-Holstein provincial election party is fighting to keep its three seats in the legislature.

"He can't attack government policy because his party has a hand in making it, so he acks away at te old man," said one prominent Christian democrat. "In doing this, Mende is toying with his own destruction."

Mende is indeed taking a chance. If he does carry out his threat it could mean the end of the Free Democrats' voice in Parliament, where they hold 67 seats out of 499.

Political experts argue that the foxy old chancellor would not be beyond forming a coalition with the socialists if he feels it will keep him in power. And the socialists are likely to try anything to get into the government.

Such a coalition would be unwelcome to the Christian Democrats promise enough to a free Democrats to get them to change parties, Adenauer needs only eight seats for an absolute majority.

Adenauer aides say the "old man" is by no means tired of his job and intends to stay at least until the end of next year. Already many bets have been made in German political circles and government officials that Adenauer will not live that long. Illness prevents him, will say "again you don't change horses in midstream." Adenauer's his candidacy for yet another four-year term.

Kids Blamed for Tampering With Switch Causing Wreck

TORONTO (CP) — Suspicions were voiced Sunday that tampering with a switch caused the derailment of a freight train crash was caused by someone tampering with a switch.

Three persons were injured—two of them critically—when a 62-car CNR freight train with a coupler went through a switch at Toronto's northeastern outskirts and entered a siding instead of continuing on the main line.

Three engines and 20 cars were derailed, spilling injured and frightened farmers and cattle.

"That's those goddamned kids," said Walter Scott, assistant superintendent of CNR's Toronto area, after examining the switch. "We've had an awful lot of trouble up this way."

Coun. Ross Macdonald, St. of Toronto, who was on the train at the time, said "it looked as though the switch was tampered with."

WORST YEARS

Mr. Scott said it was one of the worst wrecks he had seen in 30 years and that there are five days to clear up.

About 300 cattle and horses were believed to have been on the train — in the confusion of the derailment exact count was impossible. Some were killed on impact, some of the injured animals were shot by police and others ran terrified into the bush.

Police and firemen had to work two hours to free headend brakeman Harry Hamilton of Burlington, and fireman Harold Brown, 46, of Parry Sound, from the wreckage of the cab.

Both were in critical condition in hospital Sunday. But Brown with undetermined injuries, and Hamilton, suffering broken arm and possible back injuries.

Also injured was engineer Bruce Bushell, 35, of Toronto, who was thrown clear of wreck from the cab. He is in fair condition with concussion, a broken wrist and other injuries.

The train—the CNR's No. 309 —was slowing down when it went through the switch. Another train is due to pick back 86-lifted off the switch which blocked the siding.

The effect on the freight which was then travelling about 35 mph, was that of a giant separator. The first 40 cars behind the were went down the spur line. The second down the main line and so on until the remaining 20 cars were derailed.

Some of the cars were wrenched in two, others dropped down a 50-foot ravine. Others hung on the banks of the ravine, while the cattle they were carrying scattered down the steep slope.

Residents arrived from nearby farms and tried to round up the frightened animals and pull the dead and hurt from the wreckage. Wild - eyed horses galloped down the ravines, threatening to injure rescuers.

A part - time rodeo cowboy, Ernest Campbell, quieted one horse and lariat and lassoed three. Some frightened animals trapped themselves in barbed wire at the bottom of the ravine, and had to cut them loose with wire clippers.

Meanwhile, shots punctuated the confusion as police put badly injured animals out of their misery.

British Liberals Support Linkup With Continent

By GODFREY ANDERSON

LONDON (AP) — A vision of political power for the first time in nearly 40 years is unfolding new hope into Britain's long dormant Liberals.

The enthusiasm swept the party congress at Llandudno in Wales last week. New men spoke up with new ideas.

Even the party policy began to emerge.

Quick to profit from the split in the Labor party over Britain going into the European Common Market, the Liberals came out wholeheartedly in favor of a linkup with the Continent.

That means more, more votes for Prime Minister Macmillan in the crucial parliamentary ballot on the Common Market. But it also means that the Liberals can attract Labor and some of the ruling Conservatives waver, the Liberals at least know where they are going.

HAS HOPES

It is a long way yet for the Liberals to equal their peak year of power under prime ministers like Gladstone, Asquith and Lloyd George. But recent by-elections have shown where the Liberal vote cut deeply into government or opposition candidates, it then hope their seven members of parliament will be heard at Westminister much longer.

Liberal leader Jo Grimond brought the news of the party into millions of lethargic British homes in the party congress speech before television cameras.

He called Labor Party Leader Hugh Gaitskell a cautious reactionary, a man standing still while Britain passed him by. Gaitskell, he said, was reducing one of the great political decisions of history — the decision about entering European — to a controversy over a five-per-cent reduction in the tariff of the Common Market.

Prime Minister Macmillan fared no better at Liberal hands.

Mark Bonham Carter, a member of the party executive committee, accused him of a surreptitious shuffle instead of a clear and courageous lead over the Common Market issue.

The congress in the Liberals made a strong bid for the trade union vote by proposing that workers should be given representation on a joint management council and the right to elect directors to the board of the corporation employing them.

RARE, MEDIUM, -WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It was a closing-out weekend on two sports fronts with golf and softball winding up successful seasons with dinners, championships and presentations.

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club wound up its official season with two closing field days the ladies holding forth on Saturday and the men on Sunday.

The official closing of the season and the presentations to club champions took place at a dinner Sunday evening with upwards of 180 members enjoying the turkey repast and ceremonies.

Club president G. H. "Bud" Trill completing his second (or was it office spoke of the success of the season and with members of his executive and committee chairmen outlined plans for a bright future for the club.

He also announced that the club professional George Balazs had signed a two-year contract with the directors. The statement was warmly greeted by the clubman and their ladies.

SOFTBALL

Gerry Joyce's Real Estators captured the Belleville Inter-Industrial Softball League championship Saturday night with a decisive 7-4 win over the battling Trenton RCAF Flyers.

It was a well-deserved title for the popular sponsor of the new champions rates as one of the better sportsmen of the city. He has spared neither time nor money to bring fans as good a brand of softball as was available and it is hoped he will be back again next year.

"Pat The Ageless" Maracle was again honored with the handsome Jimmy Barrigage Memorial Trophy presented by Gerald and Cy Barriage. Jack Elliott Sr. accepted the Herbie Henn Memorial for son Jackie. Both trophies were thoroughly deserved. The Henn Trophy was presented by Jimmy Henn and Harry Morrison.

And the Lightfoot Construction team took the Frank Follwell Trophy defeating Trudeaus 3-1 to take the titular series. This winds up another successful Commercial League season and both players and officials are to be congratulated on fine efforts and good sportsmanship.

Bob Temple may not have produced a championship softball team of Bobcats this summer but as a host the genial sponsor rates championship class.

He entertained the Cats and their ladies at a highly enjoyable buffet dinner at the Hotel Quinte Saturday night.

It was Mr. Temple's tenth anniversary as a sponsor of softball in the city and district league. And, he said, he would be back bigger and better "than ever next year".

In fact he predicted he would not only come up with a Bobcats club year "but one that will win the league championship and the OASA AA intermediate title as well."

Softball the past season was not fs rewarding as it should have been, Mr. Temple felt. "Outside teams always proved an attractive attraction and clubs like Picton and Cobourg were missed last summer."

He felt that if the sports were brought back to the CNRA diamond, it would attract larger numbers of fans.

He paid fine tribute to his team manager Bill Old and to Belleville's OASA president Don Lee. "These men have done a lot for softball," he said. "Mr. Lee is the first man of this city to attain such a position and we are proud of him."

Both Mr. Lee and Mr. Old in turn paid tribute to Mr. Temple as a player, manager, coach and sponsor. "We will have a team to be proud of" said the Bobcats manager. "We are going out to win."

HOCKEY

Four teams will officially enter the proposed new City Hockey League at the meeting scheduled for the Recreation Commission office tonight starting at eight o'clock. There are strong possibilities for two more entries if the necessary ice time can be secured.

Names of the clubs and the new sponsors will be announced at the meeting and it is hoped other groundwork of the new league will be laid.

It is possible that the executive of the league will be named tonight or at least a nominating committee formed. The new sponsors, last year's officials of Commercial League clubs are requested to be on hand for tonight's meeting.

Lightfoots Take Title

Lightfoot Construction captured the City Commercial Softball League championship and the Frank Follwell Trophy at the CNRA Saturday night when they shaded Trudeau Motors 3-1.

The tight victory gave Lightfoots the titular series four games to one, after losing the first game of the set. Trudeaus won the league pennant with Lightfoots finishing second.

The new champions did it the hard way Saturday, spotting Trudeaus a run in the second inning and coming back with singleton in the fourth and fifth, and collecting a total of only two hits in the game.

An error on Merav's pop up behind second base opened the door for Trudeau's run in the second. He moved to third on a passed ball and scored after Casey popped out to foul territory behind first base.

Winning pitcher Percy Long singled in the Lightfoot fourth, reaching third on a passed ball and a fielding error on the play. Tom Lynch missed a third strike and Brooks slid home with the deciding run when the Trudeau catcher had to throw to first to get Lynch. McKenna was later cut down at the plate to keep it 2-1 but neither club could manage another run in the sixth and seventh inning.

Long threw six-hit ball for his fourth victory of the series. He struck out two and did not walk a batter.

Powers gave up only two hits, singles by Tom Dolan and Long, for the losers. He struck out two and walked three.

Long gave up allowed more than one hit per inning. He was touched for a double by John "Shaker" Baker and for singles by Jack "Deacon" Whiting, Bob Wannamaker, Eddie Plate, John Casey and Junior Day.

The clubs played good ball afield, Lightfoots booting one and Trudeaus two, but all three errors figured in the scoring. The winners left three men on base and the losers stranded half a dozen.

Lightfoot Construction: T. Lynch, C. Rowbotham, L. Smith, P. Long, D. Dolan, S. Garvin, J. Merav, K. Brooks, C. McKenna, J. Garvin, J. Jones.

Trudeau Motors: J. Whiting, B. Wannamaker, J. Baker, B. Brooks, P. Merav, Plate, J. Casey, L. Wannamaker, J. Day, H. Powers, T. Hookings, L. Potter.

Giants Cut Dodger Lead

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's like this, Mr. Commissioner. We have a problem. It involves Maury Wills, a bunch of stolen bases, TV, Cobb, the record book and an asterisk or so.

Wills stole two bases Sunday in his team's 158th game. His total of 97 is 1 more than Cobb have ever stolen in a season in modern history.

But the question is this, Mr. Commissioner, how does it go in the book? With an asterisk because of the longer schedule this year? Or without an asterisk?

Wills, the Dodger flash, swiped his 96th and 97th in Los Angeles Dodgers 12-2 loss to St. Louis Cardinals Sunday, thereby retaining the highest total of any base runner in a single season in modern history.

So he's got a record, but from an interpretation of baseball commissioner Ford Frick's ruling of a year ago, it will go in the books with the notation that it was made in 162 games, while Cobb's record of 96 will stand at 154 games. The Tigers played two ties the year he set the mark. Wills had 96 through 154 games.

Frick made his ruling in connection with Roger Maris' quest of Babe Ruth's home run record. Ruth had 60 in a 154 game schedule. Maris got 61 in 162 games for the Yankees.

Wills' base-stealing heroics weren't enough for the Dodgers, however, who ran into a 15-hit Cardinal attack and saw their National League lead trimmed to three games when San Francisco routed Houston Colts 10-3. The Dodgers and Giants each have 5 games left, all at home. Any combination of four Los Angeles victories and Giant defeats will give the flag to the Dodgers.

Cincinnati Reds beat Philadelphia Phillies 6-3 in 10 innings, New York Mets edged Chicago Cubs 3-1 and Milwaukee Braves crushed Pittsburgh Pirates 10-3 in the others.

In Saturday's action the Dodgers downed St. Louis 6-1, Houston edged the Giants 5-3, the Phillies shaded the Reds, 3-2, Milwaukee blanked Pittsburgh 3-0 and Chicago defeated the Mets 9-2.

Stan Musial and Bill White led the Cardinals' assault Sunday on Dodger loser Don Drysdale (25-5) and four successors, including Sandy Koufax. Musial and White each drove in three runs with a double and a single.

San Francisco closed a big outing a seven-run sixth inning to break open a tight game at Houston. Matty Alou's two-run double, his fourth hit of the game, and a three-run homer by Willie McCovey, his 18th, were the big blows. Duffy O'Dell scattered seven hits in winning his 19th.

Vada Pinson's 32rd homer, a two-run job with one out in the 10th, provided Cincinnati with its victory over Philadelphia. Hank Aaron drove in four runs with his 42nd and 43rd homers, while Eddie Mathews contributed his 29th homer, two triples and a single in the Milwaukee's easy triumph over Pittsburgh. Frank Thomas drove in both New York runs against Chicago with his 23rd homer and a single in the Mets' last home game.

Giants Defeat Eagles

Redskins Nip Browns

NEW YORK (CP)—A sparkling run by Bobby Mitchell carried Washington to the prime upset of the young National Football League season Sunday —a 17-16 triumph over Cleveland Browns that gave the Redskins the Eastern Conference lead.

Mitchell took a short pass from—Norm Snead with less than two minutes to play and flashed all the way on a 50-yard play. Bob Khayat kicked the conversion, and the Redskins moved to the head of the conference with a victory and tie.

Elsewhere in the NFL Green Bay's defending champion Packers rolled over St. Louis Cardinals 17-0; Detroit Lions trounced San Francisco 49ers 45-24; clutch defensive play paced New York Giants over Philadelphia Eagles 23-13; Pittsburgh Steelers nipped Dallas Cowboys 30-28; Baltimore Colts beat Minnesota Vikings 34-7, and ex-Rams Bill Wade and Joe Marconi sparked Chicago Bears over Los Angeles 27-23.

In the only American Football League action Sunday, Houston Oilers overwhelmed San Diego Chargers 42-17 and the Len Dawson-to-Chris Burford combination clicked for

Oust Flyers 7-4

Joyces Win Championship

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

Joyce Real Estate added the 1962 edition of the Belleville and District softball league title, and the Bill Ott Trophy, to their trophy room when they defeated the RCAF Flyers 7-4 before a crowd of 146 at the Fairgrounds Saturday night.

The win gave Joyces their second consecutive playoff crown by a 4-3 games margin.

Joyces spoiled the Flyers a single run in the top of the first, tied it in their half of the frame, scored three runs with the help of errors in the second and made it 5-1 in the third.

RCAF threatened with a pair on the fifth and one in the seventh but in each case the champions got one back in the bottom of the frame to maintain their three-run margin.

Pat Maracle and Mike Ratushniak were the winning and losing pitchers, both going the route but hit fairly hard in the cool, fall weather. Maracle gave up eight hits, struck out four and walked five. Ratushniak was combed for ten hits while fanning one and walking one. He was helped by three double plays by his mates but four errors, three in the second, evened that count.

Drake and Alexander singled and Joyces' lone error moved them along in the first frame. Don Cole, who had his club's only three RBI, made it 1-0 with a fly ball. Kingston doubled and came around on a wild pitches to tie it 1-1.

A two-base error put Muirhead on in the second and Ratushniak threw the ball away when the runner stole third, putting Joyces in front to stay. Jones singled, Davis did the same, Drake's fly ball and another) bobble plus Maracle's sob double upped the score to 4-1. Maracle was called out for leaving second too soon after Kingston's fly ball and in the old-fashioned chin-to-chin agreement that followed, Joyce manager Bill Shaw was given the heave-ho by base umpire Al Kelleher.

Ted Batchelor homered down the left field line for the 5-1 score but the Flyers rallied in the fifth. They loaded the bases with just one out, on two walks and Darke's infield hit but scored only two runs, on Don Cole's double. Wannamaker doubled off Taylor's glove, advanced on Batchelor's single and scored on Faulkner's fly ball for a 6-3 count.

Alexander singled and scored later on a wild pitch for the losers in the seventh but LeRoy Wannamaker lined a home run down the left field line to end the scoring in the bottom of the inning.

Ron Davis and LeRoy Wannamaker, who got in the game when Jackie Elliott and Gerry Carr were forced to set it out with injuries, sparked the Joyce attack, along with Ted Batchelor. Davis had three singles in as many trips while Wannamaker homered and doubled. Batchelor had a home run and single. Chuck Kingston and Pat Maracle a double each and Don Jones a single.

Doug Alexander, Roger Drake and Len Mowatt each collected two singles in a losing cause while Don Cole doubled and Ron Taylor singled.

League Commissioner Cliff Belch presented the Ott Trophy and the Dow Trophy, for playoff and pennant wins, to Joyces following the game. Earlier, Cy and Gerald Barriage had presented the Jimmy Barriage Memorial Trophy to Pat Maracle as the loop's MVP while Jimmy Henn and Harry Morrison honored Jackie Elliott with the Herbie Henn Memorial, as the best sports manjiks and Gentlemanly Athlete. Jackie Elliott Sr. accepted this trophy in his son's absence.

NHL Training Camps

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs have been doing well in early minor league opposition in pre-season exhibition games, but the Stanley Cup champions have yet to get a win over the fledgling Syracuse Chiefs of the Eastern Professional League.

The Hawks' win over Buffalo at St. Catharines Saturday night was their fourth straight exhibition victory, but it was a costly one for Stan Mikita who sprained a wrist, right winger Murray McKenzie suffered an 11-stitch head and Jerry Melnyk suffered a possible concussion.

In AHL exhibition action Springfield Indians defeated Rochester Americans 4-3, while Hamilton Saturday night and Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons tied 3-3 at Windsor, Ont., Sunday.

Leafs played their third exhibition game against another NHL club. They suffered their third loss, a 4-2 decision to Detroit Red Wings. Sunday Toronto will meet Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League and registered a 4-2 victory.

It's been the same story since Toronto's first preseason game, Sept. 14. Leafs won all three games in that period, defeating against American League teams but lost lost their other two games, both to Chicago Black Hawks.

OTHER CLUBS WIN

The other NHL teams all won their weekend exhibition games. Boston Bruins defeated Quebec Aces of the AHL, 3-1 and 6-3 Saturday and Sunday nights respectively. Detroit added a 7-2 victory over Edmonton Flyers of the WHL Sunday to the win over Toronto, Chicago beat Buffalo Bisons, the Hawks' AHL farm club, 6-4 and Montreal Canadiens secured a 6-3 win over

Yanks Clinch Tie For Pennnat

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees have clinched at least a tie for the American League pennant and can wrap it all up Tuesday night by beating the last-place Washington Senators.

The Yankees, all but nailed down their 27th championship in 42 years, 12th in 14 and second in two years under manager Ralph Houk, by defeating Chicago White Sox 5-1 in 10 innings Sunday.

Minnesota vanquished Baltimore Orioles 9-3 but all the second-place Twins accomplished was to avoid mathematical elimination. Trailing by 4½ games, the best they can do is force a post-season playoff provided they win their remaining four games while the Yankees lose all five they have left.

The third-place Los Angeles were mathematically eliminated from the race, dropping six to 1-3 decision to Cleveland Indians for their eighth loss in 10 games, Detroit Tigers defeated Kansas City Athletics 3-1, Rain forced the postponement of the Boston Red Sox-Senators game scheduled in Washington. The game has been re-scheduled for Boston as part of a Sept. 29 doubleheader.

In Saturday's games Chicago defeated the Yankees 6-2, Baltimore beat the Twins 5-3, the Angels topped Cleveland 6-4 in 11 innings, Kansas City downed Detroit 5-3 and Washington nipped Boston 4-3 in 12 innings.

WYNN STOPPED

The Yankees ruined Early Wynn's bid to become the league's first 300-game winner since Lefty Grove reached that total two decades ago. The 42-year-old White Sox right-hander battled the Yankees through 9 innings Sunday before suffering his 14th loss in 21 decisions.

Right-hander Bill Stafford took a 1-0 lead into the ninth when the White Sox tied the score on successive doubles by Don Cunningham and Floyd Robinson. The Yankees, however, raked Wynn for four runs, all after two were out in the 10th. Joe Lopez broke the ice with a single and Ellie Howard iced the victory with a two-run homer, his 21st.

West Wins Mann Cup

By PAUL RIMSTEAD

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — If Jack Bionda was as graceful on skates as he is on a lacrosse floor, he undoubtedly would still be in the National Hockey League.

Bionda's skating left something to be desired. He was relegated to the minors and retired from hockey this year.

But the 195-pound native of Huntsville, Ont., is still the best in the business with a lacrosse stick.

He scored seven points here Saturday night to lead New Westminster to the Canadian lacrosse title with a 10-6 win over Brampton Ramblers.

The Westerners swept the best-of-seven Mann Cup series in four games and Bionda, held scoreless in the opener, scored eight goals and eight assists in the last three.

His performance won him the Mike Kelly Memorial Medal, presented annually to the most valuable player in the series. He also won it in 1959.

Winnipeg Captures Soccer Title

WINNIPEG (CP) — A four-goal performance by 19-year-old centre-forward Johnny Schepers powered Winnipeg Scottish to a 6-0 win over Edmonton Edelweiss Saturday and gave the Manitoba club the Canadian soccer championship before 500 fans.

Schepers's efforts climaxed a savage second-half offensive by Winnipeg that crushed the Alberta squad, which had trailed only 1-0 with 10 minutes played in the last half. Hugh Jamieson and Jimmy Murphy scored the other Scottish goals. The sudden-death victory gave Winnipeg the Canadian cup. It was the first loss of the season for Edelweiss, who last week defeated Hull Concordia 3-1 for their shot at the title.

Hell-For-Leather Driving
Gregory Wins Grand Prix

ORONO, Ont. (CP)—A display of hell-for-leather driving and a duel between a pair of top sports-racing car pilots gave 20,000 fans a real thrill Saturday as they watched Master Gregory of Kansas City win the 250-mile Canadian Grand Prix at the wicked Mosport Park.

Gregory, who never races out of Paris, pushed his Lotus-19 past the checkered flag of 42 and kept the lead for 100 laps of the 2.5-mile circuit despite a one-minute penalty for an infraction of the rules.

His elapsed time was two hours, 46 minutes, 28.3 seconds, or 15.7 seconds better than that of the late Peter Ryan of Mont Tremblant, Que., who won the inaugural Canadian Grand Prix here last year.

The duel was furnished by Toronto bu driver Francis Bradley and Montreal lawyer-pilot Pedro Rodriguez, who drives for the Ferrari North American team.

At the 75th lap Bradley was lying second to the same Lotus 19 young Ryan used to scor his victory last year. Rodriguez was driving a 250 Testa Rossa Ferrari screaming through the straights at 150 miles an hour. Bradley has been the finish the Ferrari's superior power exhibited the Mexican to take second place and hold it.

Bradley's third place was more than enough to give him the points he needed to become Canada's top racing driver of the year, succeeding Toronto mechanic Ludwig Heimrath, 1961 champion. As the first Canadian to finish, Bradley won Peter Aylen Memorial Trophy named in honor of the young driver who lost his life on a Mosport track last spring.

Some favorites placed well down the list. Jack Brabham of Australis, world ch a m p i o n driver in 1959 and 1960, was fourth driving a Lotus 22.

Bucs Sign D. Murtaugh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Danny Murtaugh was rehired Saturday for his sixth full years as manager of Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League.

General Manager Joe L. Brown, in making the announcement, said: "Needless to say Murtaugh has done a fine job or he would not be back."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed. However, it was believed the 44-year-old Murtaugh got a slight raise over the estimated $35,000 he received this year.

Nicklaus Wins at Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus, holing birdie putts of 20 feet and 30 feet on the 15th and 16th holes, withstood a closing rush by big George Bayer and won the Portland Open golf tournament by one stroke Sunday.

Nicklaus carded a three-be-low-par 69 for a 72-hole total of 280—280 before par on the par 36-72 Columbia - Edgewater Country Club course. His score was two-stroke penalty imposed by tournament officials for slow play in Friday's round.

Liston Odds Drop To 3-2

Expect 'Live' Fight Gate $750,000

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — There was quiet tension before the storm today in the camps of world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson and challenger Sonny Liston—and also in the counting room for their rehashed $5,500,000 title fight Tuesday night in Comiskey Park.

Liston, now a dwindling 3-2 favorite, ends the comedy-of-gloves prelude today in the big scrap. It was also the day for promoting Championship Sports Incorporated to complete it's fantastic closed - circuit television marketing.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission was to march into Liston's camp today with, presumably, the biggest boxing check Floyd Dwetsi has ever made, for a final fitting of Liston's huge hands.

The 11th-hour activity of the two principals called for a final lumbering into Liston, then disappeared from their suburban camps into pre-fight seclusion in Chicago.

At Liston's harness track site, some scrapping was expected as the big-fisted challenger tries on, for the third time in eight days, the Everlast-make glove which Patterson will wear.

Liston prefers a glove already fitted to his bulging fist by Chicago mitts - making specialist Sammy Frager. Patterson and his handlers feel the Frager glove padding is too thin and could cut the champion.

The official weigh-in—Patterson is expected to go about 190 and Liston between 210 and 215—will be held here at 11.30 a.m. ADT Tuesday.

For all the talk of a $4,000,000 closed-circuit TV gross, the box office take will be about 1/8 of that figured 75-to-80 per cent filling some 1,000,000 seats available at 264 outlets throughout the country.

"Today is the big day," said Martin Smith, whose Graff Reiner and Smith Enterprises Incorporated is handling the closed circuit TV phase of the complex fight show.

The same holds true of the "live" crowd at Comiskey Park where 30,000 to 35,000 are expected. About $500,000 worth of park tickets—scaled from $10 to $50—had been reported purchased through weekend and the sponsors talk about a $750,000 Comiskey Park gate.

Argos Have Chance

Alouettes Tie Eskimos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What's this—a chance of Toronto Argonauts being in the Eastern Conference playoffs?

Two weeks ago this would have been an unlikely suggestion. Argos were lumbering through a five - game losing streak.

But today, thanks to Montreal Alouettes' 18-18 tie with Edmonton Eskimos Saturday, it is up to Argos themselves.

Toronto trails Montreal by four points in the quest for the last playoff spot, but the teams meet twice before the end of the schedule. In addition, Argos have two games in hand.

Tonight, Argos start their campaign against Eskimos at Toronto, hoping to stretch their winning streak to two games.

In other action in the east, Calgary Stampeders visit the Eastern Conference leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

TRY FOR SINGLE

A last-play kicking show failed to decide the issue in Montreal Saturday. Eskimos, on the Montreal 21-yard line, elected to try for a single rather than a field goal.

Veteran Vic Chapman booted the ball into the Montreal end zone and twice it was kicked back.

The first time, Chapman's kick was caught by Alouette's Larry Hickman who promptly booted it right back to Chapman. But, officials ruled that Als didn't give Chapman yards and, although time had run out, he was given a chance for another play.

The second kick was caught by Paul Fedor and Fedor's return gave possession to Edmonton's Mike Lashuk on the Montreal 10-yard line.

Lashuk, in turn, was pounced on by three Alouettes and the game ended.

Als had tied the score with less than four minutes remaining on a 13-yard field goal by Bobby Jack Oliver.

EDMONTON SCORE

Edmonton went into the fourth quarter down 15-4. Canadian quarterback Tom Getty sparking for the injured Jackie Parker—led them to two convert and one-yard plunge and a six-yard field goal.

Edmonton's other points were scored on a single by Chapman and a field goal by Coffey. Oliver kicked two converts and a single in addition to his field goal.

Montreal's rookie quarterback Sandy Stephens scored two third-quarter touchdowns, on a

Down 3-1 In Series

Gretel Loses To Weatherly

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)

Weatherly and Gretel sat in their corners today — like a couple of heavyweight fighters waiting between rounds — while the yachting world marvelled at the pluck of the Australians in the battle for the America's Cup.

Gretel, the Australian challenger, is down three races to one and only one defeat away from elimination. But already she has turned what was expected to be a four-race rout into the closest and most exciting series in 36 years.

The Australians won the second race last Tuesday, when they weren't conceded a chance, and came back Saturday to give Weatherly a real run for it over the triangular course in moderate winds, losing by 26 seconds.

This was the closest finish in all the 20 races staged since the United States won the bottom-less cup in the first race, run around the Isle of Wight in 1851.

TOP SHOWING

Already Australia has made the third-best showing of any challenger in the 111 years that the U.S. has held the cup. Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock won two of the five races against Defender back in 1920 when they were racing giant J-boats, about twice the size of the present 12-metre sloops. T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour took four of seven races against Vanderbilt's Rainbow in 1934 before dropping four in a row.

Even the Australian yachtsmen are experiencing a strain on their loyalties, so completely have the robust, friendly and fun-loving visitors captured the Newport public.

"I'd like to see them take it—they're a great mob," remarked one Newport policeman said Sunday.

The fifth race is scheduled to start at 11 a.m. Tuesday over the Newport-Inside-Out wind course over which Weatherly scored second victories in the first and third races.

The Australian sloop has shown decided superiority reaching into the wind, and most observers give her the edge on the 18th challenge for the fabulous mug will end in the Atlantic shortly before sundown Tuesday.

Fosmire Verdicts Ortega

BOSTON (AP) — Seventh-ranked welterweight Bob Fosmire pitted his speed and slashing left against Gaspar Ortega's experience and came out with a unanimous 10-round decision Saturday night in a televised fight at Boston Arena.

It was the Hyannis ex-marine's 19th straight pro victory without a loss. For the veteran Ortega, it brought his record to 53-36-1.

There were no knockdowns in the bout which drew only 897 persons as a live audience.

Fosmire took charge in the seventh, tagging the Mexican Indian from Mexicali with two sharp left hooks at the outset.

A Fosmire left to Ortega's chin at the bell ending the seventh round would have had the 30-year veteran in trouble had there been more time.

THINK

AND YOU'LL VOTE — YES ON BOTH

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th

Those who oppose the granting of Liquor licences in cocktail lounges have been enthusiastically spreading the story that if such licences are granted, Belleville's youth will be encouraged to drink.

But THINK: The same laws that now apply to underage drinking, will apply if licences are granted. No underage person will be allowed to buy cocktails, liquor or beer.

It is said that "one drink always leads to another" and that if more liquor outlets are permitted, the alcoholism rate will increase.

But THINK: There are millions of sociable people who enjoy a drink without ever becoming alcoholics. In this enlightened age, alcoholism is recognized as a sickness; those who are slaves to alcohol will always find it.

It is often alleged that the "liquor interests" are behind any move to give a community more civilized drinking facilities.

But THINK: It is clearly against the best interests of the liquor industry to have their products sold in small quantities. Under the present archaic system, the sociable individual who wishes to entertain a friend has to buy a whole bottle of liquor. In a cocktail lounge the same person would buy one or two small drinks then leave the premises.

It is said that liquor licences will benefit only the few who sell liquor and wine.

But THINK: Thousands of tourists by-pass Belleville each year because they can't enjoy a friendly drink in "our city." And when they by-pass us, so does their money. It would benefit the whole economy of Belleville to have tourist money circulate in Belleville. This city loses considerable revenue because tourists who would like a small drink with their meals, have to go elsewhere — and they've been doing this in increasing numbers in recent years.

It is said that making liquor more available will be the first step toward making Belleville a "wide open town."

But THINK: Liquor has been on sale in this community for 35 years and we are far from being a "wide open town." To suggest that a few more liquor outlets would result in widespread drunkenness by our citizens is to insult their intelligence and their innate good sense. Belleville people have been law-abiding in the past and there is no reason to suppose they will be different in the future.

"Let's go in and cheer up Tweedy. I hear he got his thumb caught in his desk drawer."

HIS PAINTINGS POPULAR — Norval Morrisseau, 31-year-old Ojibway Indian artist, had 28 paintings in a 35-painting exhibit sold in the first three days of showing at London, Ontario. The self-taught painter who depicts symbolic Indian mythology, has been praised by leading art critics. (CP Photo)

Ojibway Indian Painter Becomes Budding Artist

TORONTO (CP)—The complaint of many budding artists is that they are never discovered, at all.

For Norval Morrisseau, 31-year-old Ojibway Indian painter from Northwestern Ontario, it was a case of being discovered twice in the same year.

His first discovery was made by Allister Grosart, national director of Indian administration Conservative party, when he was travelling about during the federal election campaign.

"I learned about Norval from a CPR train conductor who was a Conservative worker in the Kenora area," Mr. Grosart said at the opening here of a one-man exhibition of Mr. Morrisseau's paintings.

"He told me that Morrisseau could do with some help, so I said 'Have him write me.' So he did, and also sent me some examples of his work."

The symbolic Indian mythology paintings impressed Mr. Grosart, an art collector, and so did the letters Mr. Morrisseau wrote. The Indian, then working at a gold mine, explained that if he could only get the summer off he "could really do something."

PRAISED BY EXPERT

Mr. Grosart got in touch with Selwyn Dewdney, of London, Ont., an expert on Indian paintings and author of the recently published Indian Rock Paintings of the Great Lakes.

He wanted Mr. Dewdney's opinion of the work. As Mr. Dewdney said later, "Norval's paintings have a passion, spontaneity and unpretentious simplicity that expose the emptiness of much contemporary painting."

With $900 from Mr. Grosart for living expenses, Mr. Morrisseau had the time he needed to do the work he wanted.

Shortly after, Mr. Grosart discovered the painter, Jack Pollock made the second discovery. He found Mr. Morrisseau at Beardmore, Ont., while teaching art during the summer for the Ontario government.

Mr. Pollock says the Indian offered to sell him all his paintings at $5 each. Instead an exhibition of 35 of the paintings was arranged for Mr. Pollock's Toronto art gallery.

At the opening of the exhibition Mr. Morrisseau was introduced as a "genius" by Mr. Pollock.

Three days after the show opened 28 of the paintings had been sold for a total of more than $1,500 and it was expected that the lists is closed late in September Mr. Morrisseau would have earned $2,000 to $2,500.

In addition, 15 paintings for which there was no room at the Pollock Gallery were to go on display at a downtown Toronto hotel.

As for the artist, he accepted success calmly. "I never build up hopes," he said.

He explained that while he has been painting for only three years, "I have been painting in my mind for 20 years."

His teacher? "Who could teach me this? Only legends."

Of the future, he said he would like to paint a series on The Great Flood, an important part of Indian legend.

Mother Had No Idea She Was Starting Son on Career

By EDNA BLAKELY

OTTAWA (CP)—When Russell Kronlck's mother asked him to get together a singing group three years ago to perform at a charity dance, she had no idea that she was launching her son in a show business career.

Russ formed a folk - singing trio with one girl member. Soon there were invitations for the group to make other local appearances. Their second engagement was a benefit for the aged.

"That was really fun," the 21-year-old banjo- and guitar-playing tenor recalls. "Those old people really enjoyed it."

Then the trio, who adopted the name The Courriers, found that a guest appearance on an Ottawa television show necessitated their joining a union "so we figured we might just as well start getting paid for our efforts."

After encountering a number of bumps on the road to stardom, The Courriers achieved their greatest measure of success this summer. They toured the southern United States, appeared on the American television network program and recorded an album in New York to be released next month.

RETURNS TO SCHOOL

Despite the group's success, Russ has not been kept from his studies. He is in his second year at law school.

Why not a full-time show business career?

"I haven't been brought-up to live from four in the afternoon until three in the morning," he says.

The other Courriers are Jean Price, a 22-year-old Ottawa office worker, and Mark Max, also 22, a guitar-playing baritone who is a fourth-year arts student at Carleton University here.

Engagements this winter will be restricted because of the boys' studies. A fourth member, bass player Peter Flemming, is joining the group. The original girl with the group was Cayla Minsky, who left four months ago and was replaced by Miss Price.

EARLY SETBACKS

Enthusiastic after fees of $60 and $50 began rolling in for their early Ottawa appearances, the group looked to brighter lights.

Russ and Mark both quit school in the summer of 1960 and the trio went to Montreal after a booking agent there assured them they would be an overnight success. But the agent failed to come through with bookings and the glum trio returned to Ottawa, linking up with their present manager, Harvey Glatt.

The group then went to New York but were told to come back in a year.

"That's when we took vocal lessons," Russ says. "We also revised our entire repertoire—all the songs."

The following year, they went back to New York twice. Still no luck.

The boys decided to go back to school, and took summer courses at the University of Toronto while playing several Toronto coffee houses. Last winter they made weekend appearances while attending university in Ottawa.

Russ, who does the group's arrangements, draws on his political science studies for the unrehearsed satirical banter on politics he often mixes in with folk songs.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — Onslow Stevens, starring as a psychiatrist, attempts to probe the troubled mind of a young psychopath, portrayed by Grant Williams, in this scene from "The Couch", opening tonight at the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Shirley Knight stars opposite Stevens and Williams in the Warner Bros. thrilling suspense drama which was produced and directed by Owen Crump from a Screenplay by Robert Bloch, author of "Psycho." "The Couch" was filmed behind tightly locked doors on the Warner lot to protect its bizarre theme and startling climax. 2nd feature attraction stars Natalie Wood, Karl Malden and Efrem Zimbalist Jr. in "Bombers B-52", filmed in WarnerColor.

Jack Paar's Show Offbeat And Highly Entertaining

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a weekend during which NBC launched some new comedy shows on its network—and by curious coincidence all the chuckles were wrapped in military uniforms.

There was the nautical Ensign O'Toole — probably the most likely of the group to succeed—the army-based Don't Call Me Charlie and one about military school cadets called McKeever and the Colonel, about which the least said the better.

Ensign O'Toole stars a most ingratiating young man, Dean Jones, in the title role. In manner and sometimes speech reminiscent of a young James Stewart, he plays a troublesome young navy officer with an encyclopedic mind and total recall. The program's most amusing moments, however, involve J. C. Flippen, who plays a grizzled chief petty officer who by accident loses their destroyer in a Japanese poker game.

Don't Call Me Charlie centres about an army veterinarian. Most of the opening show was devoted to getting him established in Paris. There, in future shows, he's going to get into trouble with his colonel, the lovely Charlie of the title.

This one seems rather pleasant and low key.

McKeever and the Colonel has one of the most raucous laugh tracks heard in recent seasons, as well as the fewest laughs.

There was also the return of Jack Paar to NBC on Friday night with an hour program in prime evening time.

The program and viewpoint were offbeat and attention holding, unlike anything else being broadcast. I enjoyed it.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Favorable lunar aspect today encourages mental activity, travel, change, intellectual curiosity. Express yourself to loved ones and business associates. Make presence felt!

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Excellent for expressing ideas in connection with rights, demands, aspirations. Refuse to take backward step. Day when you can achieve much, but you must take definite stand.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Key is versatility. Be ready to change plans. Don't be tied down with routine which is distasteful. Freedom of thought, action especially important, Permit Leo creativity to flower.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Attend to routine matters. No time to skip essentials. Others may talk about a "big jump." But you should keep your own feet on solid ground. Evening fine for reading.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Mercury in your sign stresses need for communication. Lunar position encourages friendships. Today features release from tensions if you exert effort. Holding back creates problems.

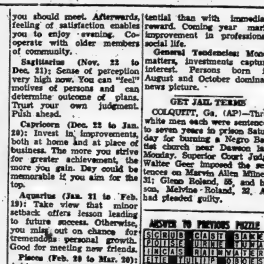
Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Invest in improvements, both at home and at place of business. The more you strive for greater achievement, the more you gain. Day could be memorable if you aim for the top.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Take view that minor setback offers lesson leading to future success. Otherwise, you miss out on chance for tremendous personal growth. Good for meeting new friends.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Achievement is key. Means you can get what you want and "catch" it. Fine for making new business friends. And for cementing good relations with neighbors. Be a good listener.



If today is your birthday . . . you are fascinated with the world of the "unknown." You are more concerned with potential than with immediate reward. Coming year marks improvement in professional, social life.

General Tendencies: Money matters, investments capture interest. Persons born in August and October dominate news picture.

KIDNEY AID FOR RHEUMATISM PAIN

After 35 years of success millions are made miserable by common urinary disorders. Waste impurities and bacteria often irritate the delicate passages from bladder to kidneys. Then backache, leg pains, dizziness, nervousness and rheumatic pains, such as backache, aches around neck, shoulders, arms, hands, back, hips, muscles, thighsand are felt. Nature helps the kidneys to flush out waste impurities and make them more alkaline. Then kidneys act well, pains go and feel refreshed. Try Cystex from your druggist today and be free from pain.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

MIGRATING CHIMNEY
SWIFTS

By Winston Wilson

Chimney swifts are quite unique in Birdland. From the time they arrive in Canada about the beginning of May until they leave in the early part of September, their habits are strongly adapted to life. Designed to practically live on the wing, they rest only when in a chimney or, before the spread of civilization, in a hollow tree. Consequently their feet are unusually small and weak and their mouths extra large, for catching up tiny flying insects as they swoop through the air. They remind us of swallows, but actually are not related to those birds at all. Their bodies are cigar shaped, their wings narrow, slightly curved, and stiff; their exceptionally short tails end in needlelike points which are clinging to the perpendicular interior walls of chimneys.

BUILDING

As the swift flies past an old tree it breaks off dead twigs with its feet and carries them inside a chimney for its nest. These are attached to the wall by glutinous bird saliva and occasionally one or two dead leaves. The nest is made in the shape of a quarter hemisphere and covered with shining saliva until it looks like a well-varnished piece of wicker furniture.

Four or five pure white eggs are laid. The nestlings are fed diminutive flying insects, the feeding often continuing after dark.

The date of departure from their Canadian homes (Newfoundland to southeast Saskatchewan) depends largely upon the weather. High winds and heavy rains mean no dinner. Otherwise all are promoted for both speed and endurance, migration holds no difficulties for them. But the young must be strong enough and the adults must fatten up before the long journey.

TRAVEL ALL DAY

Unlike seed eaters, chimney swifts are able to fly and feed simultaneously, and therefore travel by day. They find it possible to rest at night. The trip is made in large flocks in loose formation. No other species join them, as other birds could not keep the pace. Just as each year the same individuals occupy the same chimney for breeding, so year after year the same large chimneys on their migration route are used as hotels where stop-overs may be made. Towards dusk the swiftly hundreds of swifts are seen throughout their wings over their backs and one by one disappearing down the big stack.

Only in this 20th century has the winter home of chimney swifts been discovered. Now we know they are on their way to the Amazon Basin of Brazil in South America.

Cross-Canada Survey

University Costs Higher In Maritimes But Little Change Noted Elsewhere

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Dad has to dig a little deeper this fall to send his offspring to one of the larger universities in the Maritimes.

But a Cross - Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows basic costs are generally unchanged from last term at most of the country's universities.

Tuition fees and charges for room and board have been increased at Dalhousie in Halifax, St. Francis Xavier in Antigonish and Acadia in Wolfville, the three larger schools in Nova Scotia; and at the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton and Mount Allison in Sackville.

Spokesmen for all five attributed increased costs to higher salaries and higher operating costs.

Tuition charges jumped by as much as $80 on residence rates by up to $50 a term, giving Maritime fees rates on a level with the highest in Canada.

Elsewhere in Canada's larger universities, tuition fees have been increased by $50 in some courses at the University of Ottawa; by $40 for general arts at Western University and by $50 for engineering and law at the University of Sherbrooke. The balance have held the line.

FEDERAL GRANTS UP

Residence charges have been boosted by $50 a term at McGill, by $100 at Bishop's University in Lennoxville, Que.; by $30 at the University of Toronto; and by $25 to $30 at Assumption University in Windsor, Ont., where new residences have been opened.

In areas where fees have not gone up this year, university officials say increased costs of living are being met by fee adjustments made the previous year; by an increase to $1.50 per head in the federal government's per-capita grants; and—in Quebec and Ontario—by increased provincial government assistance.

The five universities in Western Canada — Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia—boosted tuition fees last term and this year are maintaining them. Both tuition and residence rates.

Memorial University in St. John's, Nfld., also is holding the line and registrar H. T. Renouf says it's largely because students can't afford any increase.
